STILL FIGHTING IN SANTO DOMINGO

Blast Damages U.S. Consulate In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—An early morning explosion smashed 78 windows and six doors of the United States Consulate in Montreal early today, and almost punched a hole through the floor of an elevated passageway between two parts of the building.

Police called the explosives which did the damage "a bomb."

Sgt. Leo Plouffe, who thought only Thursday he was through dealing with bombs for the Montreal police force, said it was "caused by quite a heavy charge, possibly dynamite and probably about 10 pounds."

It was under a linking passage built by the United States eight years ago when it bought two houses on McGregor Street that the charge went off, leaving insulation dangling above the ground but not quite puncturing the floor.

Consular officials said no one was in the twin building at the time of the blast, and there were no injuries.

"We have no clue at all as to why the bomb was planted," Mr. Hawkins told reporters. "This is very unusual for Canada."

OTHER TRY FAILS

Bomb-dismantler Sgt. Plouffe, who appeared at a police press conference Thursday to announce he was being relieved of active duty to become an explosives for the Montreal force, was on his second bomb assignment of the day. Friday morning he had handled a gasoline bomb found in Place Victoria, a skyscraper in the Montreal financial district which will house the city's stock exchange when completed.

Strong Scent Of Election

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Intentionally or otherwise, Trade Minister Sharp unleashed the strong scent of election Friday when he plunged into the budget debate with a glowing account of the economy, sweeping criticism of the Opposition, and these words:

". . . And if that is not a good budget on which to go to the people, I do not know what a good budget is."

He also suggested there is a possibility of a balanced budget this year despite the prediction of a $300,000,000 deficit by Finance Minister Gordon. In reference to last year's predicted deficit of $455,000,000 being pared to $80,000,000, the trade minister said:

"Once again I think it is quite possible that as a result of his foresight and courage he (Mr. Gordon) may not end up with a deficit at all, but he may once again be able to balance the accounts."

Several times, the minister made a passing reference to an election, but he clearly avoided any suggestion when one might be held.

Although his half-hour speech was devoted largely to a glowing review of the economy and an optimistic outlook, he also fired away at the Opposition.

TORY CONFUSION

The Conservatives had left the nation's finances in "a state of disorder and confusion" in 1963., The 1961 exchange crisis "was the most unnecessary exchange crisis which this country has ever had to suffer."

About the New Democratic Party: It "always gives me the impression of being the party with a halo around its head, of having invented all the good things and being the only party in the House that is opposed to sin."

Canadian business was showing its confidence in the government through its investments, he said. Such investment rose 16 per cent last year and are expected to go up another 14 per cent this year.

The Conservatives had accused the government of discouraging business. "If this is discouragement, it is the kind of discouragement that I think we would all like to see."

Russia Wants U. N. Meeting

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union accused the United States today of armed aggression in the Dominican Republic and demanded an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council.

"It is completely obvious . . . that the landing of U.S. marines in the Dominican Republic is nothing but an act of direct aggression against the people of this small country," said the Soviet news agency Tass.

Tass said the marine landing was "yet another attempt to keep in power a reactionary, an anti-popular dictatorship regime, which suits the U.S.A., and to suppress the strivings of the people for freedom and independence."

"The U.S. intervention is being carried out," Tass added, "as the colonialists have always done in the past, under the hackneyed pretext of 'defending the safety of U.S. citizens. . . ."

Canada Is Hard-pressed For Infantry Battalions, 2nd Guards Go to Cyprus

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Army is so hard-pressed for infantry battalions that the defence department has had to select the United Nations force in Cyprus the unit which performs the changing of the guard ceremony on Parliament Hill, a big summer tourist attraction here.

Officials disclosed Friday that the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Guards, will join the UN force in Cyprus in September—after its Parliament Hill duties —if the UN mandate, as expected, is renewed then by the Security Council.

In recent years the 2nd Guards has been far under normal battalion strength of 900 men. Last summer it was down to a strength of 570 and was unable to take part in brigade manoeuvres at Camp Gage town, N.B.

Informants said the battalion still have to be strengthened by men from other units, notably the 1st Guards at Camp Picton, Ont., before it can go overseas.

There are 13 infantry battalions in the regular army and they must fill roles in the Canadian Brigade in Europe, the 4,000-man Special Force, NATO airborne force, and UN service.

All six infantry regiments — each has two battalions except for the Royal 22nd, which has three — have provided units for UN actual or standby duty except the Black Watch. This regiment now has a battalion in West Germany.

Pearson Welcomed In Vermont

By STUART LAKE

BURLINGTON, Vt. (CP) — From state Governor Philip Hoff down the line, Prime Minister Pearson charmed his way through a five-hour visit to this northern Vermont community Friday.

"A red letter day for the state of Vermont," beamed the governor at a send-off dinner for the Canadian leader who earlier received an honorary degree from the University of Vermont.

Friendly relations between Mr. Pearson and the official greeting party which included state, town and university officials appeared to grow warmer by the hour. His final informal speech drew several bursts of applause in contrast to a more quiet reception to his formal speech earlier in the day.

In the earlier speech he called for mutual understanding between Canada and the U.S. and said it wasn't at all inconsistent with a good neighbor policy if his country criticized American foreign policies.

"If we seem to be unduly concerned with your international policies, remember that their outcome may for us—as well as you—mean the difference between peace and war," he said.

Despite any differences that might crop up "we in Canada know that the purposes of American policy in the world are neither selfish, nor aggressive nor imperialistic," he said to applause.

Canadian views on specific matters won't always coincide with those of the U.S., he said in what might have been a reference to the recent Philadelphia speech when he suggested a pause in U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam.

"We feel bound to speak with our own voice on continental and international affairs as the problems which are of concern to us," he said. At the same time Canada is aware of the tremendous responsibilities of the U.S. is shouldering in world affairs.

Vermont senator George Aiken, an old friend, presented Mr. Pearson for honorary doctor of laws degree, citing Mr. Pearson's contributions to world peace.

CABINET QUITS

LA PAZ (AP)—The Bolivian cabinet of junta president Gen. Rene Barrientos resigned Friday to let him decide freely whether he will run for president in October. At the same time the Barrientos junta confirmed by decree that the elections shall be held Oct. 31.

Agree On Truce But Many Rebels Out Of Control

From AP-Reuters

SANTO DOMINGO (CP) — Heavy firing continued in this rebellion-torn capital today despite an agreed ceasefire in the Dominican Republic's week-old civil war.

Rebel leaders fighting for the return to power of Juan Bosch, exiled former president, admitted they do not have complete control of their men, who include armed civilians and dissident young military officers.

Much of the firing was in the vicinity of the U.S. embassy where one U.S. marine was killed Friday.

U.S. defence department spokesmen in Washington said 14 marines and four paratroopers have been wounded in clashes with the rebels. They were the first casualties among the U.S. forces landed to protect American civilians.

A Reuters news agency dispatch from Santo Domingo said latest reports put the casualty toll among U.S. troops on the island at one dead and 26 wounded by sniper fire.

The Associated Press said latest estimates of the toll of the fighting which started when pro-Bosch military officers formed the nucleus of a civilian junta government headed by Donald Reid Cabral, were put at more than 300 killed and another 200 possibly killed. Those injured ran into the hundreds.

Reuters said unofficial reports put Dominican casualties at 400 dead and 1,200 wounded.

U.S. Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett announced the ceasefire went into effect at 5:30 p.m. EST Friday, but indicated to reporters that violations of it might have taken over the rebellious movement.

President Johnson said in a statement in Washington Friday that there were significant signs that people trained outside the Dominican Republic are seeking to gain control of the rebels.

Bennett said the rebels and

Presents New Act For CAS

TORONTO (CP) — Welfare Minister Louis Cecile introduced a new child welfare act in the Ontario legislature Friday that will remove the need for children's aid societies to raise funds from United Appeal campaigns.

Under the proposed legislation the total cost of care provided to children by the societies will be borne by the provincial and municipal governments.

The legislation also will make the provincial government the legal guardian of neglected children who now are wards of children's aid societies.

Mr. Cecile said that when the total comes into effect Jan. 1, 1966, the province will take over the entire cost of care of children of unmarried parents.

The remainder of the expense incurred by children's aid societies will be paid for 80 per cent by the municipalities and 40 per cent by the province.

The legislation will also require that all cases of "battered babies" be reported to the authorities.

HITS AT DRUGS

In other business, Health Minister Matthews introduced a bill to prohibit the sale of drugs for which standards have not been prescribed in the federal food and drug act.

The legislation, designed to prevent the use of "secret remedies" by unqualified doctors or healers, will not apply to legitimate doctors, hospitals or university researchers.

China Calls on Delegates For Support of Guerrillas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

China called on foreign delegates in Peking for May Day celebrations to support the Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam and continue the struggle "against imperialism."

"Let us drink a toast to the victory of the Vietnamese people's patriotic struggle against U.S. aggression, to the victory of the struggle of the Asian, African and Latin American countries against imperialism," Chinese Premier Chou En-lai told a reception in Peking.

The New China news agency reported delegations from 70 countries were taking part in the celebrations.

In Moscow a float showing Soviet support for Communist forces in Viet Nam was in the vanguard of a workers parade through snowy Red Square today as the Soviet Union celebrated its traditional May Day holiday.

The usual display of military equipment was missing. It was postponed this year until May 9, when massive celebrations will mark the 20th anniversary of the end of the Second World War.

The usual bellicose speech of Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky also was omitted. Soviet leaders, headed by Communist party chairman Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin, reviewed the parade from atop Lenin's tomb but did not make speeches.

May Day is celebrated by Communists and socialists throughout the world as the day of international workers' solidarity.

More than 6,500,000 people attended May Day celebrations in 730 Japanese communities, Tokyo newspapers reported.

One of the biggest rallies was held in Tokyo's 1964 Olympic village, where police estimated a crowd of 235,000 heard speakers denounce the U.S. land command and U.S. withdrawal from Asia.

Riot police in Singapore, Malaysia, used tear gas to break up at least four groups of leftist demonstrators today, including a mob of 400 at the U.S. Consulate. Malaysian authorities banned May Day celebrations. More than 120 persons were arrested.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Variable cloudiness is expected for southwestern regions Sunday while in other areas sunny, warm weather will continue. Temperatures will be quite a bit warmer early May values ranging from near sixty along the lower lakes to the low fifties across Northern Ontario.

Early Anglers Disappointed
Everything Was There But the Pickerel

There may have been "strange things done 'neath the midnight sun" in Bob Service's native Alaska, but the pickerel of the Bay of Quinte hereabouts haven't heard of them.

They may as well been marching in the Red May Day parades in Minsk, Minsk and discovy as far as city fishermen were concerned.

Some dozen nocturnal nomads roamed the bay waters hereabouts starting after the "witching hour" - and they may as well have "stood in bed."

Old Wally Walleye and his finny cohorts with the exception of a few scouts left the bay early and up to eight o'clock this morning were still dreaming.

However a bright sunny morning drew the hardy Hunters from their Saturday morning sleep-in and the bay and adjoining waters were dotted with craft by 8.30.

Forty were counted off the CPR bridge while various bays had large quotas. Weedy shorelines were favorite spots.

At 8.45 no hauls had been reported at Bob Blaind's Sports shop.

The Belleville Fish and Game Club set up weigh-in headquarters on Victoria Park from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and again this afternoon from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Tomorrow the hours are 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., when the Derby closes.

SOME WENT HOME

At 10 o'clock Game and Fish Club treasurer Fred Clarke was the loneliest man on the dock. He was in charge of weighing-in.

His bright scales stood a shining monument to the fish who never came for dinner.

"Nothing, absolutely nothing as yet" he said glumly.

Shore anglers had the same story.

Boats moved restlessly from spot to spot in the warming sunshine by 1st weather.

Youths who tried their luck from the CPR bridge went home early.

A veteran fisherman told reporters that in his opinion the lateness of the spawning season was a big factor in the absence of pickerel.

"Add to this the coldness of the water — and you have most of the answer. Most of the fish, I believe, are still on the spawning beds."

More optimistic anglers thought the fish may start to put in an appearance at noon. One said "the tables call for them to run between 11.30 and 2 p.m."

In the meantime housewives gave the fish-hungry spouses a noonday luncheon of fish from a can — or fresh smelts — if they had them.

The Fish and Game Club Derby lasts through Sunday to ONE IN PICTON

A report from the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce headquarters at 10.45 a.m. today stated that only one entry had been received up to that time.

This was a ten-pound beauty. There were no other details.

However the general condition of "no pickerel" seems to be prevalent in the county waters of the bay and inland lakes.

"NOTHING YET," smiles Mrs. Barbara Poste, of R. R. 7 Belleville who decided to do her pickerel angling from a shoreline ringside seat in Victoria Park. Mrs. Poste was one of many early morning anglers who sought a May Day fresh fish dinner.

3-Mile By-pass at Madoc With Two Bridges Will Be Constructed This Year

A three mile by-pass on No. 7 highway at Madoc, together with Madoc Creek bridges both east and west of Highway 62, is among the list of proposed new construction work planned for the Hastings county area for the 1965-66 fiscal year by the Ontario Highways Department.

Carry-over work includes the completion of last year's contract for rebuilding highway 37 south from the Corbyville by-pass to the Moira Bridge 1.3 miles south of Plainfield. In addition to grading and drainage, the carry overworks include granular base, and paving.

Local understanding is that the highway department also plans the by-pass the village of Plainfield although there is no mention of the work being done this year.

WILL FINISH PAVING

Completion of the paving on the 1.9 miles of No. 2 highway easterly from the Trenton town limits past the air station is also included in the carry-over work. Building of this stretch of No. 2 to four lanes was done last year.

Rock cuts on No. 7 highway nine miles east of Kaladar and five miles west on highway 509 near Actinolite along with a rock cut on highway 41 twelve miles north of Napanee are also expected to be done this year.

The big highway construction job in the Quinte area this year is of course the new Quinte Skyway over the Bay of Quinte west of Deseronto.

FIRES CURSE BY LAW

Piers for the new high level bridge are now going in and structural steel for the structure is now being fabricated by the successful bidder.

The Trenton district will be getting its share of bridge work with a new highway bridge over the Trent River scheduled for construction.

Also a new CN subway on No. 33 highway route is planned, a new township road underpass on 401 highway 4.9 miles west on highway 33 and a county road to Brighton underpass across the same highway 1.3 miles east of highway 30.

PLAN NEW ROAD

In Prince Edward county, the highways department is planning 1.2 miles of new road for the Sandbanks provincial park from the junction of county roads 11, and 12 north to county road 12A.

The department some weeks ago announced plans for a new road across the sandbanks opening up this natural phenomenon to easier access by motorists.

Also in Prince Edward grading and drainage is planned for 3.6 miles of highway 41 miles north from Robbins Mills to the new Quinte Skyway.

BRIDGE AT BANCROFT

Grading, drainage, granular base and paving is planned also for the No. 14 highway route through the village of Bloomfield and on the No. 2 highway route through Trenton from Ontario Street to Bay Street.

In North Hastings the department will rebuild 62 highway from Steenburg to the Cox Hill turn, while in the village of Madoc a half-mile of new road will be built from the east village limits and a new bridge over the York River will be constructed.

Can Detect Lung Cancer In Early Stages Lions Told

TRENTON — In the next year, 25 men from the Trenton area, (with a rough calculation of population, 30,000), will have developed symptoms of lung cancer, which are discernable without X-ray . . . but by that time, "the cat will be out of the bag," according to Dr. Wm. Alexander, radiologist at Trenton Memorial Hospital, and very little if anything can be done about it.

Speaking to the members of the Trenton Lion's Club Thursday night, Dr. Alexander said lung cancer in its early stages could be detected by X-ray, but not by the small X-rays ordinarily used to detect T.B.

"The risk of anyone having T.B. is four out of 100,000," Dr. Alexander said, "but the risk of lung cancer in men has risen to 75 out of 100,000."

Having a large X-ray taken once in a while at a cost of $5 would be a relatively "cheap" way of insuring that the disease did not make inroads, he said, and advocated that his listeners check with their doctors and have the X-ray taken. Even once every two years would be better than waiting for symptoms to get to the stage where it was easily discernable by outward symptoms, he said.

One person in seven enters a hospital and has an X-ray taken for other purposes during the course of a year, the radiologist told the Lions, and therefore often a lung cancer diagnosis is made because of this. But miniature chest X-rays, either taken in a hospital or in a mobile T.B. unit, primarily for the purpose of detecting T.B., is quite useless for detecting cancer in its early stages. "You're asking a too small film to detect a too small trace of the cancer," Dr. Alexander said, adding that the first trace of the cancer may not be any larger than an eraser on a pencil.

Dr. Alexander, who came to Trenton from Calgary, complimented the Lions at the ouset for his guidance for their outstanding work in carrying the "lion's share" of the burden which the local hospital was built several years ago. Sherman Graham, chairman of the hospital's board of directors, is also a Lion. Dr. Alexander mentioned also that the hospital board had recently bought an extra X-ray machine, for which, he said, he was "very grateful."

IN MEMORIAM

BROAD — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ada Broad, who passed away May 2, 1964.
Sweet memories linger around her grave,
Where we silently wander and gently rave,
Her memory is sacred for each,
Who knew her best,
Loved her most,
Can only remember her in the better land.

FROST — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, who passed away May 1st, 1960.
Far from the home he loved so well,
He never could forget,
And so we think that where she is,
She must be watching yet.
As angels keep their watch up there,
So we down here do not forget,
To love and remember.
Sadly remembered by daughter Etta, husband Harry and grandchildren Janet and Judy.

KEYON — In loving memory of our dear son Glen Denton, who passed away May 1, 1963.
Deep in the heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because he was one of the best.
Sadly missed by mother and father.

BIRKEL — In loving memory of my dear mother, Rose Eleanor, who passed away May 1, 1947. Just her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to scan,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be,
But some sweet day, we'll meet again,
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp our hands in hand anew,
Dear Savior, that happy life.
Sadly remembered by daughter Eva and son-in-law, Harry.

FROST — In loving memory of our dear sister Bessie Irene, who passed away five years ago today, May 1st, 1960.
Just a prayer from us who loved you,
Precious memories kind and true,
In our hearts you live forever,
Because we thought the world of you.

Mayor Jack Ellis will be the guest speaker at a reception and dinner preceding the regular meeting of the Belleville and District Chamber of Exchange at the Yacht Club Monday evening.

The possibility of reactivating the Industrial Standards Act in this area will be discussed at the Chamber meeting. This follows a request from the Carpenters' Union.

Trenton president Beverley Quinney said the Standards Act used to apply here. "However, because we thought the world of him, and I don't know whether they want it or not."

The Exchange plans to hold a general discussion on the Act before meeting with members of the union.

Watson and Wiegand, architects, announce that of contract for additional office and manufacturing space for Erie Technological Products. Tenders will go out to tender next week. The Trenton firm makes electrical components.

Tenders will be called in mid-May for construction of a general purpose room at Bancroft public school. In addition to school use, the 40 by 60 square foot room will serve as a community hall. It will be equipped with a stage and dressing rooms. Cost of this project is estimated at $45,000.

The Belleville architects anticipate tenders for an addition to St. John's United Church in Tweed will be called in about six weeks' time.

Maynooth public school, a 5-room structure some 90 miles north of Belleville, is to get two additional classrooms this summer. This will entail extra toilet facilities and another entrance. Tenders for the job will be called in June.

the opposing military juntas had agreed to submit the dispute to arbitration by an Organization of American States commission.

A special OAS foreign ministers meeting was called in Washington and an OAS peace team planned to fly here at night. President Johnson had urged the OAS to take responsibility for restoring peace and re - establishing constitutional government in the Dominican Republic.

The ceasefire pact, Bennett said in his announcement, guarantees the personal safety of combatants of both sides, including prisoners and those in asylum in foreign embassies.

NOT SETTLEMENT

Bennett emphasized that only a ceasefire had been discussed with the rebels and not a final settlement.

The papal nuncio in Santo Domingo, Rt. Rev. Emmanuel Clarizio, played a key role in negotiating the ceasefire. He was in touch with the rebels and later met with the ruling junta at its headquarters 20 miles outside of Santo Domingo. He also telephoned Bosch, exile at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Bennett said the ceasefire should have effect on the same day but communications have failed to spread the word quickly to scattered groups of combatants.

The rebels were reported to control more than half of Santo Domingo.

The first U.S. casualties came as the marines and paratroopers moved to the city from the east and west. The marines moved into a nine-mile area evacuated earlier by the OAS as a haven for refugees from the fighting.

(In Washington, the state department issued a special statement saying "the sole mission of U.S. troops in the Dominican Republic is to protect and evacuate U.S. and other foreign nationals from the stricken Dominican Republic, and not in any way take sides in the conflict.")

During the day, U.S. Navy transports from Puerto Rico landed tons of military material.

Foster Parents Attend Meet To Discuss Problems, Aims

A number of the local families who act as foster parents to wards of the Children's Aid Society met at Education Hall Thursday night with members of the society's board and staff. Mr. Lockyer, Q.C. lawyer of Belleville, acted as the chairman.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Lockyer outlined some of the basic needs for children; love, security, affection, a feeling of being wanted, etc. He then divided the group into small units which, under the direction of a leader, discussed such topics as "what methods of disciplining your foster child child have found to the effective, have been the most vexing problems you have found as a foster parent?" "what qualities, and characteristics, would have advise a prospective foster parent to look for in himself, his family and his home life, before undertaking foster parenthood?" Although originally one hour has been assigned for discussion of the various topics, the session lasted much longer.

It was generally agreed that while children living away from their natural parents should be treated equally to their neutral parents shared in the problems common to all children, but that they have special problems of their own and for this reason required considerably more reassurance, and, too, their demands for affection were greater. It was felt that before punishment of any kind was administered, it should be gone over and punishment was offered instead rather than child-focused . . . "I know you don't like what you have done, etc."

PARENTS A PROBLEM

The relationship between the child and his natural parent required careful handling of varying problems to foster parents. It was said that so often natural parents fail to keep appointments to visit and then, when they did visit, they made it the child completely unsettled (by spoiling what they know, even at that time, they could not keep.

It was pointed out that many older children are indeed children with problems and these require a great deal of patience and understanding. All made mention of the help available from the Society's caseworkers who visit regularly and whose job it is to help the child adjust to his or her new environment and the foster parents to understand the reasons behind the behavior of the child.

Time and again mention was made of what the child in their home had done for the foster parents, as a family, and for their own children. Foster parenthood was seen as an opportunity to share the good fortune of life with others less fortunate — as one man said, "to know you have really helped a child makes you feel ten feet tall". Of course there were disadvantages too. Nearly all made mention of the responsibility involved in molding the life of a child not one's own. It was something not to be treated lightly. Mr. Lockyer suggested that it might be considered as a challenge and while the element of risk was involved, it could work out whether the person who went through life continously avoiding challenge really had much fun — or got very much out of life.

The foster parents saw themselves as people who had a sincere love for children and a genuine interest in their well being. It was essential to have the capacity to accept a child not your own as one of your own; to accept the child at his level at which he is functioning and to have the patience to wait for him to progress at his own speedy to try to see the world through the eyes of the child and to understand his problems, miniscule as they may be to the adult, are mountainous to him.

A Complicated Age

Life in this 20th century has become so involved for the average citizen that he may sometimes wonder if he is coming or going. Family and community responsibilities, not to mention the demands of his job, tax the resources of the most durable of men.

And though they may dream of escape—to vacation, or by divesting themselves of some of the extra-curricular activities . . . the resulting disengagement may be valueless if it creates only a vacuum.

If John Citizen finds the going tough, what of our national leaders? While most of us have contented with only a 40-hour week at work, government it is different. Justice Minister Guy Favreau said during the Dorion Inquiry at his working day usually began at 8.30 a.m. d would not finish until 1.30 a.m. next morn g. Former Finance Minister Donald Fleming t in 100 hours a week and British Prime Min r Harold Wilson is said to work almost round e clock. Prime Minister Lester Pearson is as gy as any man in government in Canada today.

How do they stand the strain? Part of the cret of course is enjoyment of their work. But any still find it essential to snatch as much ercise and recreation as possible. Mr. Pearson es to walk his dog every day. Former Trade ister George Hees takes a swim as often as ssible, cold skin in winter.

The rest of us could follow their example. e Globe and Mail's Scott Young says he knows ny adults "who sit around their homes beset children, dogs, cats, telephones, television, ra and undone chores that they never wanted do." We all know people like that; they lude just about everyone.

Yet there are a few, as Young points out, o like to take long walks. They include both nits and young people. "Their neighbors d them a little strange," says the Toronto urnalist, "and they notice curtains twitching they pass, but non-conformists have to pay ne price."

For a final word on this subject, who better n the eminent American heart specialist, Dr. l Dudley White. "Cars," he said in Laus- e recently, "are exacting a terrible toll in an lives, not just through accident fatalities, t through heart disease resulting from lack of ercise."

To combat this, he recommends that people not smoke and that they walk at least six es every day. Which for most of us would better than sitting around the house on kends.

The Quietly Desperate

In the spring the frustrated's man's fancy mly turns to thoughts of murder.

That is the way in which Dr. Alfred McClung attempts to explain an outbreak of family dings.

"Spring is always a bad time for these ngs," he says. Life is frustrating for some ple and in spring, with all life reawakening, y feel their inadequacy more sharply. "They e to lash out at someone and often they do against those to whom they are most devoted."

Who amongst us does not recognize the curacy of this statement? He who does not count himself lucky. He has never waited il he got home to vent his ill temper in sur- ndings where he knows he will not be too shly punished for his outbreak.

But is there no more than a difference in ree between the man who takes his grouch ne and the man who runs amok and murders family? One would like to think there is. t then one meets face to face the terrible line Thoreau, quoted by Dr. Lee: "Most men lead s of quiet desperation." That cuts, because y knows it to be the truth, and yet for the st of us it is not the whole truth. The peration is not the perpetual, unchanging e which the words imply. It is reached only intervals and in between the peaks lies not much desperation as resignation.

For those who are merely resigned, spring's wakening kindles new hopes. Even if the ne flickers out into a summer night's dream, something to alleviate our condition. But e man be really desperate, and if this desper- has lived in meekness and in secrecy for y weary nights and days—well, then, the re- h of spring's hope all around must indeed be errible burden, making any avenue of escape cing.

Ottawa Offbeat
Parliamentarians Need Discipline of Days Past

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Perhaps the rest of this scarcely-started Session is going to be different.

But don't bet on it.

That revealing pre-Easter vote in the Commons, when the splintered four-group Opposition for the first time in this Parliament was united and could — but didn't care or dare — overthrow the vulnerable Minority Government, demonstrated dramatically the change of heart and mind that has come over some Honorable Members.

There was all the notice any MP anywhere in the world required that this do-or-die — for both Government and Opposition — vote was scheduled.

Everybody knew, days, nearly two weeks, in fact, in advance of it, that it was scheduled for a Friday, the day and even the hour. They could have got back even from Marakesh. There was time.

But when the division bells rang, only 83 of the combined 136 Opposition MPs were there to vote, by far the greatest number, actually and even proportionately, of the absentees being Conservatives.

Something, obviously, is out of Parliamentary joint.

There have been other minority governments, and in tighter arithmetical vote squeezes than this one.

But seldom has a supposedly embattled Administration had such a cozy time of it.

TIME CHANGE

You can only assume that the Opposition — at least part of it — doesn't want to Oppose hard enough to bring down the Government and bring on an election.

And what a switch that is.

Just recall how frantic were the votes in the last Minority Government, the short-lived second Administration of former Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker that stumbled through after the Kingsmere election cut its record 206 Members to a touch-and-go 116, then fell from power in the '63 campaign.

What racing and chasing, hurrying and scurrying.

When one of the votes — a sane division of Parliament — Conservatives won by a hairbreadth edge of eight — was called, then Liberal Minister Jack Pickersgill Hogard Green was caught 3,000 miles off Parliamentary base in the home constituency of Vancouver - Quadra. Trapped, too, was Tory MP Stuart Fleming in his hinterland of Okanagan in the mid-mountain Okanagan Valley.

There was one way out, by air, and together Green and Fleming jetted to Ottawa in split second time.

And there was scarcely less breathless streaking by both Liberals and Conservatives, with absentee MPs tearing by cab from Montreal, car and plane from Toronto and Western and Northern Ontario.

The squeaker vote so shook Howard Green that he won't leave Ottawa again even for the UN except on weekends.

But that kind of razor-edge Parliamentary living is no thing new. It was just like old times.

Now is the casual, the heck-with-it, who - gives - a - damn attitude which characterized the pre-Easter sitting of the Opposition had its Big Chance and through what could only have been sheer irresponsible sloth, snuffed it.

Look back a moment — not only to the Friday afternoon Tuesday days — but to other times and other Parliaments when a vote was something to be cast and not wasted.

KEEP 'EM HOPPING

Back in the 30's when it was nip and tuck between Mackenzie King and Arthur Meighen, the division bells which summoned the MPs to the Commons were kept ringing for hours and hours while a special train highballed up from Montreal with MP strays who had played hooky from the Friday sitting, to get on the town in the bright lights.

On one-vote, suddenly called Late Friday afternoon or evening when MPs from Toronto and other points, Montreal, Quebec City and the Eastern Townships like to head home on the week-end, Prime Minister Mackenzie King kept those bells clanging until the Parliamentary strays were rounded up and herded back to the House.

The two afternoon trains out of Ottawa — one for Toronto, the other for Montreal — were flagged down some 50 miles down the line, and the embarrassed, hookay-playing, early-weekending MPs loaded into cabs that were sent chasing after them, and hustled back to Parliament Hill and the waiting vote.

It was a bit different nine years ago during the three-week Battle of the Pipeline.

Then the Government had the votes.

And to spare.

But the political hand-writing was on the Parliamentary wall, and it became a matter of political pride for the embattled Liberals that all their men, like it or not, stand up and be counted.

It was a must. They had to be there. There were 53 separate votes altogether and on several nights the exhausted House swore and sweated its way through till dawn.

On those first two or three post-midnight votes, the bells were kept ringing while sixty-to-bed sneak-away MPs were rooted out of the sack in downtown hotels and apartments and hauled back, sleep fogged, to the House to do their voting duty.

This Parliament could use some of that discipline.

Predestination

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The human race is becoming far too knowledgeable. There was a time when people died because predestination or "fate" had struck! Now, in order to keep breathing long enough to enjoy the Canada pension plan, we are told we must exercise regularly, sleep soundly, eat and drink moderately, inherit healthy genes, smoke not at all, banish tension and think pure thoughts. Perhaps predestination was better after all.

Only Small Change in Diet After Gall Bladder Operation

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How long does it take for the inside stitches to heal after a gall bladder operation?

How long must one stay on a strict low-fat diet afterwards? Mrs. B. O'M.

Strictly speaking, it's the incision that heals, not the stitches. In any event, healing inside, just like healing of the outer incision, is quite prompt.

If stitches have to be removed this usually takes place about the first week after surgery. Removal depends on the suture material used. Gut, of course, gradually absorbs and does not be removed, such as some other materials — silk, for example.

A specific answer would have to be given by your surgeon — but the practical answer is: Forget about it.

Except for just a few days immediately after surgery, you have no need to be on anything resembling a rigid diet.

After removal of the gall bladder, you no longer have a reservoir of extra bile, the digestive juice produced by the liver. With the gall bladder, you store up bile between meals, and it is released when you eat. Without a gall bladder, you depend (and very well, too!) on the amount being released continuously from the liver.

Bile is particularly necessary in digestion of fats. So it is only reasonable not to eat more fat at a sitting than the supply of bile can handle. Otherwise, little change in diet is necessary.

By the time you leave the hospital after the operation, you are back to a full, normal diet, except for keeping fats at a moderate level.

After that, the amount of fat which may be added to your diet is a matter of individual tolerance. People who have been hearty eaters, or heavy eaters of fat, very often find that they can eat exactly the same way they did before the operation.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can an epileptic ever travel alone? — Mrs. E. M.

Certainly. That doesn't mean that all epileptics can.

Epilepsy is not one specific condition, any more than a respiratory infection is just a cold. For the latter, it can mean anything from double pneumonia to a slight case of sniffles. It is the same with epilepsy. There can be cases in which the seizures are severe — the grand mal attacks, in which the patient goes down and thrashes and falls to the ground, and is totally helpless for some minutes.

There are other types of epilepsy in which the individual attacks may be more frequent but are so mild that they may last only a second or so, or even less. This is the petit mal type, and may be evidenced by a losing but a brief pause in conversation.

In still other cases, finding the right combination or drugs for the patient means that there may be no attacks for years.

Whether a person with epilepsy should travel depends entirely on the type of epilepsy, and the degree to which it is controlled.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is circumcision of an adult usually performed in the doctor's office, or is it necessary to go to the hospital? Would there be any time lost from work for this operation? — E. A.

For adults, it is usually done in a hospital. Yes, healing would involve several days away from work.

Some Words Misleading

Vancouver Sun

"Phrases like neocolonialism and colonialism, imperialism and others, were good for a nation struggling for independence . . . but we have passed the stage of using such catchy phrases." — Nigerian Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa.

It is all very well for Sir Abubakar to lecture a delegation from Indonesia in this fashion. They had come to explain to Nigerians why Indonesia found it necessary to withdraw from the United Nations. Their proper reply might have been that if their boss, Dr. Sukarno, were forced to scrap these and similar "catchy phrases," he would have no excuses left.

He would be as helpless, in fact, as a muleskinner under injunction to use only Sunday school phrases in conversing with his beasts or burden.

It's a pity, though, that Sir Abubakar's advice can't be taken up by other heads of government.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, quite independently, has made a sacrifice of its own by dropping the phrases "cold war" and "Red China" from the vocabulary of its announcers. As Sir Abubakar said of words like colonialism, these are emotion-stirring words. But they also save a lot of thinking on the part of those who use them.

They were useful once but never quite true. "Cold War" is actually an awkward phrase because no one knows how, quite to express what is meant when the cold war gets worse or better. Is it "hotter war" or "colder war" — and when?

Years ago The Sun gave up using the words "free world" to describe the friends of the Western alliance as distinguished from the other side. We decided that if we had to put up with Messrs Franco and Salazar as part of the Western camp we need not pretend Spain or Portugal were free countries.

We also decided that even if Moscow regarded Red (oops!) China, North Korea and Bulgaria as "peoples' democracies," that was no reason why we should twist the plain meaning of rule by the people.

There are too many such words and phrases around. Some may once have meant what they pretend to mean.

Most of the coinage of propagandists on both sides of the ideological dividing line which has somehow solidified into an "iron curtain."

Fighting words.

If they and others like them could be retired, perhaps the world could better start thinking about its real situation.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 1st, 1945

The following self-explanatory letter has been received by the manager of the Chamber of Commerce from Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor at Ottawa:

J. Owen Herity,
Chamber of Commerce,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Herity: It has been brought to our attention by officials of the Department of Agriculture of Ontario, that you rendered valuable assistance last year in the recruiting and distributing of farm labor.

As we look forward to another agricultural season, when in all probability we shall have to rely more than ever on local initiative in meeting farm labor requirements, I wish to express to you our grateful thanks for your help last year and to express the hope that you will be able to assist again with this important work in 1945.

Yours very truly,
Humphrey Mitchell,
Minister

Daylight saving time will be observed in this city from midnight June 1st to midnight August 25th. In city council the resolution was passed by a vote of 8 to 6.

Mr. S. Cherrie, Charles St., C.N.R. engineer, has been transferred to Ottawa. His family will join him there in the near future.

Ray Covert has left to reside in Peterborough; he will play hockey with the Peterborough senior team.

Mr. Archie Boyd has arrived home from the College of Pharmacy, Toronto, to spend the long vacation.

Mrs. T. H. Holland, president of the local branch of the V.O.N. and Miss B. Soutar, V.O.N. Nurse here, are in Ottawa to attend the annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses. The delegates will be received by Her Excellency Lord Bessborough and the Countess of Bessborough at Rideau Hall.

The members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church have not yet selected a successor to minister; several more candidates for the pastorate are yet to be heard and it is expected that a decision will be made in the early summer.

The Royal Bank of Canada, owners of the property at the south west corner of Bridge and Front Streets, have let the contract for the construction of a stone office building upon the property for the use of the bank's local branch office.

Miss Lillian Manley of St. Charles College is spending Easter in Deseronto.

Dr. James F. Hill, M.P.P., for East Hastings, was a visitor in town today.

At a meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board yesterday, the 4 cents deducted from the market ever recorded in this city, if not in the province.

Tenders will be called shortly for the construction of sewers in West Belleville.

The following reference to Belleville boys is contained in a letter received from Lieut. Richard D. Tyrwhitt, now overseas: "I saw the two Yeomans boys this morning, they are both looking splendid and full of life. Officers say that they are energetic, good soldiers and will be brought on. I also saw Harry Wiseman of the Canadian Field Artillery, Sergeant Carter and Carsew's law office; he is looking fine and is a right good soldier all through. His wife Gibson is sort of a 'father' to the Belleville boys and would take the shirt off his back for any of us."

Where Money Went

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

During 1964, $30 billion passed across the counters of small businesses in Canada, equal to about $1,000 for every man, woman and child. Supermarkets and smaller food and beverage sellers got $8.9 billion. Car dealers, garages and service stations got $4.2. So it seems that more than half of what we spend is on stuff to eat and drink and a car to bring it home in.

Guadeloupe, Volcanic Island, Really Two for Price of One

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe, F.W.I. — As the Pan Am DC-9 pulled up to the ramp, an agent stood atop the stairs rolling his eyes forlornly and shrugging as if he beholdered the sweating workmen putting the steps in place. An officer in a pillbox hat and short shorts stood by philosophically, as French officers usually do.

On the Boulevard General de Gaulle, Citroens and Peugeots careened and honked madly, obviously driven by frustrated Parisians. And under the blown concrete of La Caravelle Hotel's dramatic parabolic roof, bikini-ed lovelies sipped Pernod or weensky with Perrier water, and the public address blared Parisian accordion records. At the newsstand you had your choice of Le Figaro or the New York Herald Tribune — Paris edition, bien sur.

Oblivious to the skiers in front of this $50-a-day palace, fisherman blithely pulled their Brittany style boats through water the color of peppermint lozenges and loosed them on the expensive sand.

Guadeloupe is one island the British don't get away from the French. Along with its little nearby dependencies and its sister island of Martinique, it remains French with a vengeance, a full fledged department of the Republic, but retaining the unique African overtones that distinguish all the Caribbean.

ENGLISH IS SCARCE

It is not to say, certainement, that the North American tourist will feel out of place here. But it is one of the few places in the West Indies where he will be outnumbered. And he'd do well to brush up on his parley-voo; English is as scarce here as California wine.

Guadeloupe is really two islands for the price of one. Situated in the Lesser Antilles between British Antigua and little Dominica, it consists of Grande Terre to the east of the Salee River and Basse Terre to the west, the two joined by a narrow neck of land. In every way but culturally, they are like two different islands.

Where Basse Terre lives on bananas, Grande Terre lives on sugar. A dry, windy, hilly land, its cane fields grow clear down to the incredibly white, incredibly untrammeled beaches where the rolling blue surf arrives without welcome.

The towns are sun-baked, hot, dusty and quiet, with almost an unlived-in feeling when the cane workers and fishermen are away for the day. The atmospheres of splendid end-of-the-world isolation is dramatically emphasized at the end of the island, at Pointe aux Chateaux.

There are no chateaux here, only a fierce surf that pounds mindlessly past volcanic extrusions standing guard in the water, and on to the bluff headlands. Along miles-long strands of virgin beach, only an occasional lonely fisherman is likely to be seen. The scene is not unlike the rocky coasts of Britany where many of Guadeloupe's settlers came.

SECRET CAVES

The island was once the prime stronghold of men like Pere Langlois, and Joseph Murfy, the corsairs whose names and terrible deeds struck terror into the hearts of everyone from Spanish Town to Port-of-Spain. On Basse Terre it is easy to see why Guadeloupe was their refuge. Most of the coast is lined with one after another of deep safe coves backed by volcanic mountains rising up to 4,500 feet. All the peaks presumably secret caves for hiding treasure.

Basse Terre still maintains one working volcano, sulphurous Soufriere near the southern end of the island. A winding road and a 20 minute climb bring tourists close to the mouth on days when it isn't obscured by clouds. Here, those who wish may listen to the ominous rumbling and bubbling and admire the bouquet of sulphur, a bit different from the duty-free French perfumes sold at Paris prices in Pointe-a-Pitre.

Pointe-a-Pitre, at the southwestern corner of Grande Terre, is the port and commercial capital of Guadeloupe, a steaming and teeming malanga of color, street markets and two - storey gingerbread buildings with rust-wrought-iron balconies. At the central dock, sail-powered trading boats and pagnats for the neighboring islands jam together in a tangle of masts, hawsers and crimson-painted wood hulls.

SHARP CONTRAST

The political capital, the town of Basse Terre, on the southwest coast of that section of the island, is a sharp contrast. It is smaller, cleaner, and quieter, with a rustic dignity imparted by its pink and yellow concrete government buildings and secondary-school campuses.

It fronts on a sunny beach lined with the ubiquitous fishing boats as oblivious of the capital as they are of La Caravelle Hotel. Above the town, Soufriere rises majestically into the clouds.

Near Deshaies in the northwest corner of Basse Terre is the Fort Royal Hotel, one of the most dramatically remote luxury hotels in the world. On a point of land between two endless beaches, it is Lord of all it surveys, which is aught but the wild, rolling tropical hills of Basse Terre and the wild, rolling surf. The cuisine is from France and the views from Heaven.

Like the fishermen, Guadeloupe's villagers go about their business remote from, and oblivious to, these pockets of luxury. Living in wood and tin shacks, pounding their wash on the rocks of Basse Terre's many rivers, carrying what they need on their heads, and chomping stalks of sugar cane as they pass on the roads, they are never above a smile for the passing tourists, and are easily among the most friendly natives in the Caribbean.

MISS CANADA TOURS

TORONTO (CP)—Miss Canada, Linda Lawton of Vancouver, leaves May 10 for a tour of the Middle East with a CBC concert party, to entertain soldiers of the United Nations Emergency Force. Others will be Maple Leaf hockey star George Armstrong; Gordie Tapp, musicians Phil Nimmons and Peter Appleyard, and singers and showgirls from all over Canada.

Business Girls Organize Weekly Golf

The Business Girls of the Bay of Quinte Country Club will operate their own divisional play this year.

Betty Ingram and Barbara Graham are the co-convenors of the venture.

It is the first time the business girls of the club have elected to play under their own banner, so to speak.

Starting next week, play will take place every Wednesday afternoon starting 5:15.

Draws will be made — and published in this newspaper every Tuesday.

New members eligible to play are especially requested to join the weekly play.

All potential entries are asked to get in touch with Betty Walmsley immediately.

Names for the weekly draw should be submitted by Sunday at the latest.

"Good morning, dear."

Delegate Gives Report

On Wednesday Mrs. Egerton Boyce of 174 Albert St., was hostess to the Government Registered Music Teachers of the area.

Miss Woodard, president, conducted an interesting business session. The May meeting will be at the home of Mrs. E. Hubbs, 34 Howard St. and the June session at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. De Bearie, Picton.

Mrs. G. H. Rennie as delegate to the recent O.R.M.T.A. annual convention in Toronto, brought interesting highlights of the three days' meeting. A splendid financial report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. E. Veley.

An expression of thanks was given to Mrs. Rennie by Mr. Bearie and Miss E. Moore thanked Mrs. Boyce for her delightful hospitality. The hostess was assisted by the social convener, Mrs. S. Martin.

Successful Living

Never Too Late to Dance Even Without Music Sense

DEAR DORIS — You often tell people that anybody can learn to dance. I wonder if a person that can't tell one tune from another till the words come (not even God Save the Queen) can learn to dance. I would have loved to learn to dance, but I could not tell one tune from another.

DORIS CLARK

It is too late for me now. When a woman is seventy years old it is too late. But I know several young people who would love to dance, but can't tell one tune from another.—PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED — Have you got rhythm? All a dancer needs is to be able to keep time with the music; carrying a tune is something else again. I know some who don't even manage the time-keeping very well, but seem to enjoy themselves on the dance floor.

Who said you were too old to learn? People at 80 are learning new skills these days. Go at it gradually though — and with your doctor's permission.

Reader's Saturday Column

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION:

Thank you so much for the gluten-free recipes you sent me. They are a great help. It is such a treat for Mary Ann to have so many different kinds of cookies and cakes now. And we all like them and eat them with her.

But I wonder if you have tested the recipe for the gluten-free bread (yeast). It does not turn out right at all. It will not rise. When I put the wheat starch into the lukewarm mixture in the bowl it gets real crumbly and it is very hard to make into a dough. I wonder what I do wrong. I would love to have a bread like that . . . Shirley K.

ANSWER:

Yes, Shirley, I tested the gluten-free yeast bread recipe that I gave you and it was fine but I had another letter from a reader saying hers did not rise well, so I have scrapped the recipe and am now using Self-Rising Gluten-Free Wheat Starch flour in a loaf (not yeast) for patients who are on a gluten-free diet. The slow rising results before you try it I have mailed half of my test loaf to you. It tastes fine and toasts deliciously and I believe, is foolproof.

GLUTEN-FREE WHEAT STARCH LOAF (self-rising wheat starch flour):

2 cups less 1 tablespoon (½ lb.) sifted gluten-free self-rising wheat starch flour (buy this at a large drug store — We for a 2½-lb. box or order from MacDowell Brothers, P.O. Box 141, Brockville, Ontario), ¾ cup plus 2 teaspoons sugar (2 oz.), ½ cup (1 oz.) of soft quality margarine (half of a ¼-lb. "stick"), ¾ cup lukewarm milk.

Sift together the sifted wheat starch flour, sugar and salt. Cut in the margarine with a pastry blender until pieces are size of small peas. Stir in lukewarm milk until batter is smooth. Turn into small buttered loaf pan. (Mine measures 7 x 4¾ x 2¾"). Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 13 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. and bake 18 to 20 minutes longer, or until when touched with finger tip at centre top it tests done. Mine baked for 33 minutes in all. Remove from oven, allow to rest in pan for 5 minutes, then turn out on cake rack to cool.

Dinner Menu

SATURDAY, (Guests)

Roast Loin of Pork; Applesauce; Broiled Crumbed Tomatoes; Asparagus; Cole Slaw; Banana Cream Pie (see Wednesday); Tea.

Shirley, I notice that you say that the whole family enjoys little Mary Ann's gluten-free cookies. Likewise we all enjoyed the above gluten-free loaf — each of us had a lovely piece of hot buttered toast made from it.

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Cross

GOOD SAMARITANS CAN "TAKE" YOU IN

Recently, a motorist from Montreal driving on the New York State Thruway, stopped his car because it was overheating. Along came a car with four men who also stopped, and offered him help. "You need water, let us take you to a gas station near here and you can get some." Thanking them for their kindness, the motorist climbed into their car, and in a few minutes the group passed through a nearby Thruway exit, supposedly heading for the service station. But suddenly the car stopped. "This is a stick-up," the four said. While they showed no guns their threatening gestures were enough to make Harry Cramer give up whatever money he had in his possession. Then they left him stranded again on the roadside. This time he didn't search out passing strangers for help, but went to the police.

It is an equal failing to trust everybody and to trust nobody. Many people can be trusted, and should be relied upon. But there is One who has never yet let a man down. When our first and basic trust is in our Heavenly Father, then we are never really dispositioned.

TEXT FOR THE DAY: — "It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in man." (Psalms 118:8)

Maintaining Facade of Perfection Is Sign of Immaturity

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"You'd be exhausted, too, if you'd spent all afternoon twitter on 127 drones!"

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

What happens to us when we give up our pretensions? Most of all we develop the "courage of imperfection."

Those who lack the courage of imperfection are forever seeking to prop up their lives with false appearances—facades they maintain to cover up their all-too-human errors.

Love, despite our poets, is never perfect, but those who lack the courage of imperfection must always make their love "appear" as if it were. Such folk often keep up a public appearance of perfection which really covers up their private agonies. If such "perfect love" does not always end in divorce, it rarely ends in growth — it lacks depth and maturity.

For when one insists on perfection he is either blind or dumb — blind to reality, and dumb enough to think he really sees. Tensions, differences of opinion and emphasis, arguments over truth — all of these can be opportunities, not catastrophes. Often it is through ourselves. They can be opportunities for the creative growth of love — creatively with and lead to building, not destruction.

So, too, with our family - life. Parents who rear their children under difficult and trying circumstances often transmit strength to their offspring — the courage that comes from learning to live creatively with our imperfections. By teaching their children how to meet their less-than - perfect opportunities as challenges to personal growth, they can often mold strong and self-directed personalities. Compare some of these with other children — those whose parents insisted on perfection all the time, and who showered every possible advantage on them for fear that they would feel "deprived." The child of "perfectionist" often ends up with much less — less spiritual vigor, less soulful stamina, less emotional maturity.

A reading of history will remind us that the "perfectionists" did not usually succeed. Andrea del Sarto was known as the "faultless painter" of the Renaissance. But Da Vinci second rate, compared with Michelangelo who repeatedly realized how imperfect his own art was. Strength comes when we develop the inner resources to Limitations and work within our own imperfections. Too many of us expend too much of our energy worrying about our appearances and what we seem like to others. If we can abide our own inferiorities — and stop covering them over with false superiorities — we will not fear to appear as we are — imperfect.

A Lift for Living

Perverted Spiritual Appetite As Damaging as Bad Foods

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

A prominent child-psychiatrist, Dr. Leon Kanner, has cited a perverted appetite as one of the chief disturbances of small children. While it is normal for a child of four to ten months of age to convey everything he can get his hands on to his mouth, if the habit continues beyond a year and - a - half of age, trouble results.

By this age, children are usually mobile and can move around the house and get into cabinets and drawers. Then a child with a perverted appetite may obtain and swallow pieces of string, buttons, soap, shoe polish, hair, wallpaper, chips of paint and dirt. Such a child is without discrimination in what he eats. Anything he can cram into his mouth will serve his purpose.

While this unhealthy tendency usually disappears in the normal child by the end of the second year, many a child has sickened and other children have died of intestinal obstructions caused by hair, rags and threads before the habit could be broken. A child who does not learn what food is wholesome and what is harmful is headed for trouble.

Appetite is a clue to health. When you visit your doctor to have him diagnose some ailment, he is likely to ask you, "How is your appetite?" How well you eat and what you eat suggest to your physician the state of your health.

Well, then, how is your appetite? Are you eating well? What do you crave? Of course, I refer to your spiritual hunger and thirst, for this is a religious, and not a medical column.

America should be asking itself such questions about its appetite. Publishers of pornography are finding such a lucrative market that one such businessman censored out of business in France, could use his hopes of coming to the United States because he believes his obscene material could be freely peddled here.

And the cheap, professional "under - the - counter" pornographers are fearful now that they may be driven out of business by their competitors — the publishers of slick, "respectable", hardcover books that are heavily laded with licentious writing and lurid expressions of exaggerated and unnatural sex.

Yet the publishers are not wholly responsible for the proliferation of indecent postcards, magazines and books. Publishers make their fortunes from buyers, and they would go bankrupt in a hurry if everyone's perverted tastes for literary pespawhows were cured. Indecent "literature" exists only where there is an appetite and demand for it. It is a sign of a sick society.

And what about gossip? Does it not generally arise from interest in the worst news about others rather than the best? Is gossip not a sign of a perverted appetite? Those who idly talk about the affairs of others, especially about their faults and their sins, either real or suspected, and those who eagerly listen to such talk, are like retarded children: with plenty of wholesome food on the table, they are interested in eating only chunks of plaster, strips of wallpaper, stray buttons and cakes of mud tracked into the house.

We blame gangsters for wreckfestly spreading rumors, but they would be helpless without listeners. If we have no appetite for rumor, such gossip will stop at our door. One good soul found an effective way to discourage idle tales about her acquaintances. Whenever anyone came to her bearing ugly news about a neighbor or friend she would say, "Isn't that too bad? Come on, let's go to her and talk with her about it."

Our mental and spiritual appetites should change as we mature just as surely as a healthy infant's tastes improve as it grows older. How, then can we develop a better appetite?

Live in the presence of greatness; live in the presence of the best. If pernicious pictures and literature, by the power of suggestion, present our minds with some mental images and spur toward misconduct, then good art and fine literature will suggest better thoughts and deeds.

Surround yourself with the best books; feed your mind upon them, and you will hunger for more good reading. Keep your mind to the best art and music and after a while you will crave only the best. Listen for good news about your acquaintances and seek what is highest in them, and soon you will lose your taste for gossip.

Long ago, the Philippians received a letter from the Apostle Paul in which he urged, "... whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think of these things."

That had a good appetite. What about yours?

Nurses Don't Want To Give Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — Many of Ontario's nurses don't want to dispense drugs in hospital wards, but they want operating room technicians to have more status.

Two resolutions affecting the two fields were approved Friday at the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

Maintaining that it takes six years to train a pharmacist and nurses are not graduate pharmacists, the association passed a recommendation disapproving of drug dispensing by ward nurses.

Members were also concerned because no legal protection is provided for a nurse if she makes an error and gives the wrong drug to a patient.

The meeting also recommended that persons employed as operating room technicians should be registered nursing assistants.

Technicians are used to handle and process instruments in operating rooms.

In other business, a report on a province - wide study of nursing set up in 1963 showed association members were confused about their roles and responsibilities.

The convention voted to renew the study, which recommended a scientific investigation to get hard information about nursing functions and responsibilities at all levels.

It also recommended that more methods must be found for members to express as individuals their opinion of the association's work.

AGRICO introduces NEW AA QUALITY 7-28-28 for Corn and Spring Grain

HIGH ANALYSIS — Your yields and profit will take a tremendous leap forward with new AA Quality 7-28-28 fertilizer. Agrico's 7-28-28 in the popular 1-4-4 ratio is high in phosphorus for early maturity and high in potash for top quality grain and sturdier stalks.

With more plant food units in every bag you need less fertilizer to get maximum yields. And you save time, labour and money. The uniform granules spread evenly and are easily regulated in the hopper. This season, use Agrico's AA Quality 7-28-28 for corn and small grains and watch your profits grow.

'$1,000 Per Man At Stake Tonight'

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Saturday, May 1, 1965

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Tonight in the jungle battle for the Stanley Cup, the Canadiens take on another hunting role.

Claude Provost will have to thicken his grip on the hilt of the Hawk Terry Bobby Hull, while the rest of the safari will likely break out as mouse hunters.

"Moose" Vasko, the huge bulwark behind the Hawk blueline, will get more deferential treatment tonight than heretofore. He potted his first goal of the series on Thursday night since 1961.

In fact it was his first tally since the 1963-64 series and that was the last time the Lake Michigan Redskins took home all the wampum.

It took the Black Hawks 12 hard games to land the big plum that season as they went to six tilts to oust Montreal in the semi-finals and required another half-dozen to make the Detroit Red Wings "say uncle."

Glen Hall was the "Mr. Hockey" of that period, recording two shutouts in the playoffs while the Hawks' "Million-Dollar Line" of Murray Balfour, Bobby Hull and Bill Hay led the way with 11 goals in a dozen playoff games.

Pierre Pilote was the Hawks' actual points-getter, with 15 to tie Gordie Howe. Stan Mikita was another hotshot in that championship romp of the Hawks who have only three cups in 38 years in the NHL.

The Hawks meet tonight's decisive battle and what it carries with it. And they won't be idle. For them it will mean a saving of face after leading the first part of the schedule in a blaze of glory only to finish fifth in the standings. Whipping the Red Wings in the semi-finals helped a lot but a victory tonight would be the crowning glory.

Besides they have waited 21 long years to clash in the chips-down series with the Canadiens.

Back in the 1943-44 season, Canadiens led by their wartime-packed squad of Maurice Richard, Elmer Lach and Toe Blake rode easy herd on the rest of the loop's mavericks.

They didn't need spurs or whip to canter through the NHL to finish 25 points ahead of the runners-up from Detroit. They stood out like a dowager's bustle, whisking 32 of their 50 league games before sweeping through the playoffs with the Hawks, their hellious victims in a four-game death march.

That was the last time the clubs met in the Gold and Glory Gallop. Actually they have met six times since then in semi-finals rounder playdowns.

This year is the 13th series between the clubs. Canadiens hold a 7-5 edge and have won 28 of the 53 games while outscoring the Hawks 185-119.

And don't think the Canadiens are not hungry to once again taste the wine of Stanley Cup glory, not only the "bubbly" that goes to the winner, but to place themselves again on the same proud footing they held a half dozen years ago.

They haven't won the famed pewter since 1959- 60 when they set an all-time NHL mark by winning the mug five years in a row. Pickles have been lean on the Habitant homestead in the past few years. They haven't been in the finals series since.

If, as Ole Diz says, "you want to depend on the statis" here's how the clubs fared against each other in Stanley Cup playoffs over the years.

In 1941-42 Hawks downed the Habs in six games outscoring them 19-13. In 1946-47 they bumped the Habs in six games as well, outscoring them 16-15. From 1946 to 1960 the Habs consistently held the upper hand and the Hawks failed each time to get the Habs in the semi-finals. This was preceded by the lopsided 1942-44 final when the Habs ran away from the Hawks in four straight games.

So tonight the die is cast. Two goaltending teams will have at it in what should be a bolster cup battle. The "home" situation favors the Habs. But Hawk fans will tell you "look what happened to Bobby!" Hah added, will prove "Doomed."

The Canadiens hold the slight edge, what with playing at home—and all that. If this agent's luck holds good in the regular "pool-dip" the Hawks have it wrapped up. So for every time I dip my finger into the pool box I did "wrong number." I must have been scared by a phone operator when I was a baby.

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, in search of their 11th modern-era Stanley Cup title, remain 7½-5 favorites to defeat Chicago Black Hawks in the seventh and deciding game of the Montreal Forum tonight.

Local oddsmakers gave Canadiens the edge on the strength of the final game in the best-of-seven series being played on their home ice.

In the six previous contests it has emerged as a "homers" series with neither team having the ability to win one on the road.

At home the Canadiens downed the Hawks 3-2, 2-0, and 6-0, but lost 3-1, 5-1 and 2-1 on visits to Chicago Stadium.

However, Chicago coach Billy Reay does not think home ice will be a deciding factor "when there's $1,000 - per - man at stake."

The $1,000-per-man difference is established by eighteen shares of the $18,000 going to the winners, while the final losers will divide only $18,000.

While Canadiens could set a record with their 11th victory, their coach could also reach a personal achievement.

Toe Blake will be in search of a record sixth title in 10 years at the Habs' helm. He currently shares top billing of five cups with former Toronto Maple Leafs coach Hap Day.

While no individual player has set the series on fire with a rash of scoring records, the penalty department should feature some broken playoff marks.

Canadiens have already snapped one mark in accumulating 65 penalties—one more than series mark set by Toronto in the semi-final last year. The Habs have drawn 20 minors, three majors and three misconducts for a total of 163 minutes, only five minutes short of the record set by Leafs for most penalty minutes in one series.

The final has seen several rough contests and the teams continue in that vein tonight, two other marks—for most penalties and most minutes—may also be broken.

The record now stands at 126 penalties and 327 minutes in total during last year's Toronto-Montreal semi-final.

Moving into tonight's final game, the Hawks and Canadiens have amassed 121 penalties for a total of 308 minutes in the box.

HABS SCORE MORE

In the scoring department the Habs have outgunned the Hawks 14-12 in the six games to date.

Team Captain Jean Beliveau leads Canadiens with four goals, while Henri Richard, Dick Duff and John Ferguson have scored twice. Bobby Rousseau, J. C. Tremblay, Yvan Cournoyer and Ralph Backstrom have singles to their credit.

The Chicago entry, on the other hand, has managed to remain in the running with little help from its one-two scoring punch of Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita.

Hull has scored two goals and both came in the fourth game in Chicago during a 5-1 triumph. Mikita is still looking for his first series goal and in addition has racked up 31 minutes in penalties.

In three games played on Montreal ice, the Hawks scored only two goals, both coming in a 3-2 opening defeat, before being shutout 3-0 and 6-0.

The Hawks' single goals in the series are Chico Maki, Phil Esposito, Ken Wharram, Bill Hay, Matt Ravlich, Fred Stanfield, Camille Henry, Doug Jarrett, Elmer Vasko and Doug Mohns.

Both clubs will be at full strength for the windup and general managers on both sides of the rink have expressed confidence in the final outcome.

"We played pretty well despite Thursday's loss. I think we can wrap up the series on home ice," says Sam Pollock for the Canadiens.

"We did it against Detroit Red Wings and we can take the cup against Montreal if we play well" was Tommy Ivan's comment, referring to his three-in-a-row seventh-game victory on Detroit ice in the semi-final series.

Game time for the final contest is 8 p.m. EDT.

Sale Of Balls To Help Blind Golfers

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Not too long ago a golfer strode to the first tee of his favorite course and watched two men get ready to tee off.

He was alone—and greeted them with a cheery "good morning—mind if I join you?"

The two welcomed him at assent. He noticed during play that one of the men was whispering to his associate. "Probably a coach and student," he thought.

At the end of the hole he mentioned the good play.

One of the men spoke. "Thank You. I'm sure my friend appreciates your comments. You see, he is Mr. Claude Pattemore, who is totally blind. He won the International Team Championship for the Blind in 1964."

Mr. Pattemore, president of the Canadian Blind Golfers Association, says the body was formed in 1948—and only totally blind people are eligible to play.

The membership of the body at present is 40.

"We believe that integration in sport with people with sight will do great things for the totally blind, particularly golf and bowling," he says.

Mr. Douglas MacCallum, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Kingston, agrees.

"We stress golfing," he says. "It is the better medium through which we can help the blind associate themselves with sighted people. We do not want segregated clubs."

Through the medium of the Blind Golfers' Association efforts are being made to impress those totally blind people who do not take part in sports with the value of play.

The purposes of the association are to develop golf and true sportsmanship for the totally blind in Canada.

It will demonstrate the ability of the blind, formerly thought to be relayed only by the sighted, and to promote understanding and co-operation of the sighted golfer with a blind sport and healthy recreation for the blind.

In addition it is intended to develop friendly co-operation and competition with blind golfers in other countries.

And there is how country clubs, pros, pro shops and golfers can help.

During the weekend of May 22, 23, 24 a percentage of sales of golf balls will be donated by Canadian golf ball manufacturers and pro shops to the Canadian Blind Golfers' Association.

This promotion developed following the interest of the Spalding Sporting Equipment Company and now all other golf ball manufacturers are backing the project. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the Canadian Professional Golf Association are solidly behind the move.

As far as golfers are concerned it is nothing more than painless extraction.

There has been no increase in the cost of the balls. You pay the same prices.

All Mr. and Mrs. Golfer does is purchase his or her balls at the country club pro shop. It is as simple as that.

George Balazs, Bay of Quinte Club pro, will have every need of the golfer over the holiday weekend. So a good golf slogan for these dates should be "Buy Your Balls from Balazs —and help the Blind."

As was noted only totally blind people are eligible to join the Blind Golfers' Association.

Mr. MacCallum states there are three totally blind persons in this city—all of them young men who would be interested in the game of golf.

If they so desire they will be assisted along these lines by the Association.

Take Title From Bears

Rochester AHL Winners

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP) — A group of veterans, six of whom played for last year's Stanley Cup champions, have brought the Calder Cup to Rochester for the first time in the city's nine 7 year membership in the American Hockey League.

The Americans, runaway winners of the AHL's Western Division, sewed up the title Friday night with a resounding 6-2 victory over Hershey Bears that gave them the best-of-seven final, four games to one. They had previously won their semi-final by the same margin over Quebec Aces, the Eastern Division champions.

Only one of this year's champions, left winger Wayne Duff, has had his name inscribed on the Calder Cup before, making it with Hershey in 1958 and 1959.

But defenceman Al Arbour and Larry Hillman, centre Billy Harris and wingers Ed Litzenberger, Gerry Ehman and Jim Pappin all were sent down to the American after collecting champagne from the Stanley Cup with Toronto Maple Leafs last spring.

Harris, Pappin and Dick Gamble, who got his name on the Stanley Cup in 1961 with Montreal Canadiens, looked after all the scoring for the American Friday night.

Pappin scored three goals, running his total to 11 in 10 playoff games. Harris had two goals and three assists and Gamble scored one and set up four more.

Although the Bears outshot Rochester in every period, their goals by Claude Barlow and Ralph Keller came after the game was hopelessly out of reach.

What's This, Make-up For Golf Clubs?

NEW YORK (AP) — First they invent no-smear lipstick and now they come up with an anti - slice and anti - hook make-up for golf clubs.

You spray a little bit of the stuff on the club head and—straight down the fairway. No hooks or slices...into the woods.

That's what Fred Gardner, president of a manufacturing firm originating the product, told a gathering of New York advertising executives Friday.

Miss Turnesa, widely-known professional from a professional - from a famous golf-teaching family, came in to say he would vouch for every word of it.

"We have put it through exhaustive wind tunnel tests and have had 10,000 rounds of golf played with it," Gardner told the advertising club. "The product definitely works."

"The substance forms a traction on the club's head. Slices and hooks are caused by the club meeting the ball and causing a glancing blow wise for a slice and counterclockwise for a hook.

"If the clubs didn't have grooves and the balls didn't have dimples, the ball would slide right off. The material creates a better grip on the surface and makes for a straighter shot."

ANNOUNCES PLANS
LONDON (AP) — Sir Stanley Matthews, who bid farewell to big-time soccer in a farewell game in Stoke-on-Trent Wednesday, said Friday he will play with Toronto City this summer in the Eastern Professional Soccer League.

Rock-n-Roller Stops Chisox Combo

Grant Tosses 3-Hitter

By DICK COUCH
United Press Sports Writer

Long - and - dance man Jim Grant went out to face the music and wound up calling the tune.

Minnesota Twins' right-hander, who headed a stacked combo during the off-season, took a rock 'n' roll earned run average — 24.30 after Friday night's game at Chicago and came away with a 1-0 three-hit triumph over the White Sox.

The victory, eighth for the Twins in 11 starts this season, snapped a five-game Chicago winning streak and probably saved Grant's spot in the Minnesota pitching rotation.

Grant, traded by Cleveland Indians to Minnesota last June, won 11 games and posted a 2.32 e.r.a. in 166 innings with the Twins in two previous 1965 seasons. However, the 29-year-old flamethrower had been shelled for seven runs and 11 hits in 3 1-3 innings.

This time Jim calmed the first 12 men he faced and allowed only one hit—an opposite-field single by Pete Ward of Montreal—over the first 8 2-3 innings. The Twins, meanwhile, clipped Chicago ace Gary Peters for three runs in the first inning and was going away.

Left-hander Hank Aguirre of Detroit also fired a three-hitter as the Tigers topped Boston Red Sox 4-1. Cleveland trimmed Washington Senators 5-2 on Ralph Terry's four-hitter; Los Angeles Angels blanked Kansas City Athletics 4-0 behind Marcelino Lopez and Bob Lee and three-run homers by Bong Fonseca and Curt Blefary led Baltimore Orioles past New York Yankees 10-4 in other AL games.

Grant baffled the White Sox with a change-up in addition to his fast ball. "I hadn't pitched much when Woodie Held doubled and Bob Chance homered. Chuck Hinton, who had a solo homer, and Dick Howser each drove in two runs for the Indians.

Willie Smith ignited a three-run Angel rally in the fourth with a double and wrapped up the decision with a ninth-inning homer. Lopez, 2-3, gave up six hits through the first seven innings before tiring. Lee mopped up with two hitless innings.

Two singles, Powell's homer, two more singles and Blefary's homer—all in the third inning off Jim Bouton—sealed the Yankees' doom early.

Jerry Adair, the Orioles' stick-fielding second baseman, set an American League record of 417 consecutive chances without an error and moved within one of the major league mark held by the late Ken Hubbs of Chicago Cubs. Bobby Doerr of Boston had the AL record of 414 chances.

Londoner Point Behind

Ontario Drivers Rally Winners

VANCOUVER (CP) — The team of Paul McLellan and John Wilson after trailing the leaders for the first 3,000 miles, pulled into Vancouver Friday night the winners of the 4,000-mile Cross-Canada Rally.

McLennan, a Toronto fireman, and Wilson, a doctorate student at Waterloo University, drove their fastback Ford Mustang to top spot despite a bad [illegible]. They ended with only 99 penalty points.

McLennan, who competed in both the 1963 and 1964 rallies and finished third over-all last year, said the rally was "much better this year."

"The rally was not tricky, no control signs were hidden around corners and you could win the rally without worrying about foolish hidden checkpoints."

This year's running was the most difficult in its five - year history. Twenty - seven of the original 64 entrants were eliminated.

Henry Taylor of London, driving a Ford Cortina factory entry, finished only one point behind the leading Mustang with 100 penalty points in provisional over-all results.

RICHARD ROSS OUT

Driver and navigator Robin Edwards of Fabreville, Que., did not lose a point during the last four days of the rally. McLennan said that Taylor was responsible for forcing the Toronto Valro team of Klaus Ross and John Bird, last year's winners, out of first place into third.

The volvo is in the same class as the Cortina and lost points each time it was beaten in a closed section by Taylor's auto.

Closed sections are segments of the rally in which drivers race on roads closed to the public. The fastest car sets the time and all the slower cars are penalized.

Ross and Bird finished only seven points out of first place with 106. They told organizers they would submit a protest to a committee which is to meet today.

Bird said they lost a minute during the second leg of the rally because of a timing error and it cost them 10 points.

Organizers said official results would be released following the protest meeting. All Friday night results were provisional.

Diana Carter of Toronto, driver of the car which won the "coupe des dames" last year, repeated the performance this year. She and navigator Jean Steagall of Merchantville, N.J., finished with 1,778. Their only competitors, Anne Coombe and June Taylor of Toronto, driving an Isuzu finished with a penalty total of 3,051.

In the manufacturers' team category, Chevelles finished in top spot with 4,947 penalty points. Second was the Japanese Toyota team with 5,303 points.

There were seven private teams entered, but the only team to finish without losing a member was the Eastern Canada - based Ecurie Confusion. Their total in the rally was 4,219.

PLAYERS SIGN

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference Friday announced the signing of Oscar Thorsland, 24, a defensive end from Clemson University, S.C., and of Joe Poirier, 26, halfback from Loyola and McGill universities. Thorsland played with Riders in 1963 but a broken leg sidelined him last season. Poirier signed for his sixth season.

Reds' Rose In Full Blossom At Plate

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Charlie Hustle dashes to first base even when he gets a walk. Sandy Koufax, on the other hand, might do well to slow down on his way to first.

Koufax, 29, Los Angeles ace making his fourth start with an arthritic elbow, pulled a muscle in his left leg while racing to first for an infield single in the fourth inning of the Dodgers' 6-3 victory over San Francisco Giants Friday night.

The southpaw remained in the game but finally was forced to leave after getting into pitching trouble in the sixth inning. Dodger officials said the injury was slight.

Charlie Hustle, however, does not worry about such things as pulled muscles in running to first base on a walk faster than some players do on a hit.

Charlie, known more commonly as second baseman Pete Rose of Cincinnati, collected five hits in five at bats as the Reds whipped New York Mets 6-1.

Rose, 24, Rookie of the Year in 1963, received his allas from Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford the first time they saw him run out a walk. Explaining his unusual style of hustle, Rose says:

"I picked it up when I was about 10 years old, watching Enos Slaughter on television."

His perfect game against the Mets, first at that level in the majors this season, consisted of three singles, a two-run homer and a double and rocketed his batting average 60 points to .333.

HOUSTON WINS AGAIN

In other National League games, Houston Astros won their eighth straight game 4-3 over Chicago, Milwaukee Braves whipped Philadelphia Phillies 7-1 and St. Louis Cardinals edged Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2.

Rose's home run capped a three - homer barrage against Warren Spahn in the sixth inning and sent the 44-year-old lefty out of the game. Tony Perez started the assault with a two-run homer followed by John Edwards' solo blast. John Tsitouris pitched a five - hitter for the Reds.

Koufax had a 1-1 tie when he was injured and departed with a 3-2 lead. In the seventh inning, with the game tied 3-3, pinch hitter Wally Moon stroked a two-run single that gave the victory to relief pitcher Bob Miller. Jesus Alou paced the Giants' attack with two singles and a double.

The Astros kept their winning streak alive with a three - run rally against Chicago in the eighth inning. Joe Gaines' pinch homer following Bob Lillis' lead-off single tied the contest 3-3 before Joe Morgan slugged his second triple of the game and raced home on Al Spangler's sacrifice fly.

Milwaukee, playing before a home crowd of 2,023, stopped the Phillies behind Eddie Matthews' three - run homer and Lee Maye's two - run blast. Tony Cloninger stymied Philadelphia on five hits.

Vernon Law blanked the Cardinals on one hit through 6 2-3 innings before Pittsburgh's infield crumbled. With two out in the seventh, shortstop Dick Schofield dropped Tito Francona's pop fly for a two - base error. Second baseman Gene Alley then booted Ken Boyer's grounder for one run.

The Golden Years

Some Poor, Forgotten Town Waits for Your Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

About 40 percent of the people who read what follows here will be intrigued by it. The remainder of you will think the comics make more sense.

What follows is an account of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Walters, who chose a poor, isolated, and forgotten town for their retirement . . . and on a small money have become more important and more satisfied than they've ever been in their lives.

The Walters aren't willing to let others know the name of their new home "because we'd either be farred-and-feathered out of town for what we say, or else other retired people would pile in here to foul things up."

There's no need to reveal the town's name, Mr. Walters insists. "Just pick up a map of one of the backward areas of the country, spot a town of about 2,000 people that is on a secondary road and at least 50 miles from a city. There are thousands of such towns, and they're all about like ours."

"Our town," according to Mr. Walters, "was a retail trading centre for a farming area that went to pot over the last 20 years. To stay alive, the town lured some small industries. And today, the payroll from these plants is the only money the town gets.

LITTLE COMPETITION

"This means it is a poor town where a couple with $250 a month lives well. And if they've got $5,000 in savings they're pretty rich. But it means also that the bright youngsters move away, nice home in the best part of the town is for sale, and the only people who stay are those who are content with what they've got. The more energetic adults are constantly reluctant to seek greener pastures . . . in brief that the retired couple has little competition in carving out a distinguished role in the town. Especially a retired couple from a city."

Mr. Walters explains that all these two factors are responsible for a third. "No outside cultural forces come into the books, good music — why should they come here when there are little appreciate them and fewer still who can afford to buy? Magazines don't try to get subscriptions here, and even travelling salesmen get their orders by long-distance . . . Culture, we ain't got!"

Into such a society — not a Poverty area, because it is getting by — the Walters chose to move.

They had an income of $350 a month. They had just over $17,000, in the bank, and Mr. Walters in due time was named to the bank's board of directors. He was invited to join two luncheon clubs, was sought for leading roles in the town's civic endeavors. With his city clothes and his sophisticated manner, with word getting around town that he had money "in five figures," and was giving off his annuities" — which always sounds better than "pension" — he rose fairly rapidly to a position of importance.

GOOD CITIZENS

All the while, presumably, both he and Mrs. Walters were being good and gracious citizens, with no superiority complex showing.

Mr. and Mrs. Walters rent a nice home in the best part of town for $85.00 a month. They eat in the restaurants, certain with cocktails instead of beer and coffee that are customary in the area, and entertain often.

They have no social problems.

Mr. Walters expects to go into business on the basis of what he thinks is a considerable discovery. "Towns like this," he says, "are the auto graveyards of the country. Second-hand and third-hand cars gravitate here because the people can't afford anything better, and it means that some families are contributing a car a year to the junk heap. On the abandoned farms around here there may be 75 junk auto lots . . ."

His idea is to ship salvaged parts back to the cities — in empty grocery trucks returning to their warehouses.

Big frog. Little pond.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Danny Song A. registered his fourth consecutive win at Mohawk Raceway, defeating Ardee in the $3,000 Meadow Art Junior - Invitation trot Friday night.

Driver Ken Galbraith kept the seven-year-old gelding, owned by Ken Smith of Toronto, in front for most of the race, beating back challenges by eventual third-place finisher Nancy Brooks B. and Ardee.

The quinella on-co-favorites Danny Song A. and Ardee paid only $8.80.

The daily double payoff was small as Miss Fly Ball won the first race and Andy Atom won the second. Both were even money favorites and the daily double paid only $8.70.

Peyton Place Proves to Be Unique Television Venture

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From its start, Peyton Place proved to be a unique television venture. It continues to amaze.

The idea of putting on a contiguous, twice-a-week nighttime serial was not new; the format had clicked in England with Coronation Street. But it was not known if American audiences would embrace such an innovation. They did.

Not the least bit shy about exploiting a success, ABC is shifting Peyton Place to a three-a-week schedule next season. What does that mean for its hard-working cast of 23 regulars?

"More work," sighed Mia Farrow, one of the show's major attractions. "We now have two companies shooting simultaneously, instead of one. And we're not even into the summer's product yet."

Since it presents a continuous story, the Peyton Place saga doesn't allow for re-runs. It will be "virtually the only network series" continuing through the summer with new shows.

Mia is the wispy, beautiful daughter of Maureen O'Sullivan and the late director, John Farrow.

Mia has become the darling of the gossips, who have tried to portray her as the most promising young delinquent since Tuesday Weld, especially in light of her dates with Frank Sinatra. Mia refuses to go along with such nonsense.

"Whatever they talk or write about me has to be imaginary," she remarked, "because I don't reveal anything of my personal life. If it came to the point where I had to, then I would quit."

She did give a hint that she might not span her contracted term of three years with Peyton Place.

"I don't think I'd be missed," she said. "I don't think any of us in the cast would be missed, although I don't think we could all leave at once.

"The success of Peyton Place isn't due to any one person. It is a phenomenon on its own."

TV AWARDS MADE

NBC-TV won the most Saturday Review magazine awards for 1964, for The Louvre, Profiles in Courage, a Walt Disney color show, and civil rights reporting.

U. S. TROOPS FIGHT DOMINICAN REDS

3,500 More Men Sent By U.S. Into Viet Nam

By RENNIE AIRTH

SAIGON (Reuters)—Officials today announced another 3,500 U.S. airborne troops would arrive in South Viet Nam shortly as American marines mounted their biggest patrol operation to date against Viet Cong guerrillas.

A joint U.S.-South Vietnamese statement said the airborne troops were being sent at the request of the Saigon government and would be used to strengthen defence at key military installations.

A 60-man advance party of the airborne brigade, which will total three battalions in all, arrived in South Viet Nam by air from Okinawa this afternoon. They are the first U.S. army combat soldiers to be assigned to Viet Nam.

They will be stationed at Bien Hoa air base about 12 miles northeast of Saigon and at the naval base of Vung Tau, about 40 miles east of Saigon.

A U.S. military spokesman also announced three companies of U.S. army helicopters arrived in South Viet Nam by sea today, bringing to about 350 the number of American helicopters now here.

MARINE STRUCK

Their arrival coincided with today's marine patrol operation carried out with the aid of helicopters, and came only a day after heavy air strikes against guerrilla positions by planes of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

About 200 marines were lifted by helicopter into an area several miles southwest of the U.S. air base at Da Nang, and were joined by another marine company entering the area on foot for a "search and destroy" patrol.

The marines are theoretically occupying "static" defensive positions around Da Nang air base, but in practice they have been extending patrols into the surrounding countryside further and further each week.

Yesterday, during a South Vietnamese special forces unit moved into the foothills 40 miles southeast of Da Nang Sunday, destroyed a Viet Cong village and captured nine guerrillas.

In another brief encounter with the guerrillas later in the day, the unit lost two killed and three wounded, and killed three Viet Cong.

A navy spokesman said today 62 planes Sunday struck at Viet Cong positions within a 35-mile radius of Saigon.

The aircraft dropped a total of 100 tons of bombs in separate missions from early morning until the evening. All returned safely.

Klansman Is on Trial In Alabama

HAYNESVILLE, Ala. (AP)—A 21-year-old mechanic, one of three Ku Klux Klansmen accused of killing a white civil rights worker, was called to trial today in a small town courtroom.

Only the first-degree murder indictment against stocky, crew cut Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr. of Fairfield, Ala., was on the docket for trial at state court.

But Klan lawyer Matt H. Murphy Jr. of Birmingham, representing all three defendants, said he might ask that Eugene Thomas and William Orville Eaton, both of Bessemer, Ala., be put on trial with the younger man. No dates had been set for their trials.

All three KKK members are under indictment for murder in the night-rider slaying of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo of Detroit. The 39-year-old wife of a Teamsters Union official and mother of five children was shot to death in her car near Lowndesboro the night of March 25 after she participated in the civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery.

A 19-year-old Negro riding on the front seat of her car, Leroy Motion of Selma, escaped injury and is expected to be one of the state's chief witnesses.

Another key prosecution witness will be a fourth Klansman and reputed FBI informer, Gary Thomas Rowe Jr. of Birmingham. He was arrested with Wilkins, Thomas and Eaton, but later released.

Study Shows Cigarette Filters May Help in Reducing Cancer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A two-year study has shown that filters in cigarettes may be helpful in preventing cancer by cutting down the amount of smoke-tar intake, three scientists reported.

The scientists at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, New York state's cancer - research and treatment centre, also said:

—Stopping exposure to smoke may decrease the chances of developing cancer.

—The cancer-producing potency of cigarettes depended on the type of cigarette smoked.

The study results were published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute. The study was conducted by Drs. Fred G. Bock, George E. Moore and Paul C. Clark.

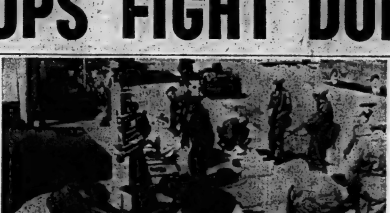
Bock said the study was to determine whether smoke from any brand of commercial cigarette was more or less hazardous to a smoker's health than smoke from cigarettes American made cigarettes and one English brand were tested.

All seven brands were smoked in one of the institute's automatic smoking-machines.

Each of 100 mice received tars equivalent to 8.3 cigarettes a day for 60 weeks.

In the non-filter group, 62 per cent developed skin tumors and 26 per cent developed skin cancers. Of those receiving tars from filtered cigarettes, 31 per cent showed skin tumors and 7.5 per cent developed skin cancer.

Two hundred mice which did not receive any tars were used as a control group, and none developed any type of skin tumors.



In a second experiment the researchers applied cigarette smoke tars to two groups of 100 mice for 26 weeks. About seven per cent had skin tumors at the end of that time.

One group continued to get the 8.3 cigarettes a day for 60 weeks.

Of those in the 26-week category, 18 had skin tumors, and 10 had skin cancer. In the 60-week group, 62 mice had tumors and 25 had skin cancers.

In a third experiment, they found tars from British-made cigarettes produced about twice as many tumors as those in the American brands.

British cigarettes differed from American in that they consisted of nearly 100 per cent flue - cured tobacco, whereas American cigarettes were about one-half flue-cured and one-half air-cured.

Honorable Negotiated Settlement In Viet Nam Urged by Wilson

LONDON (AP) — British Prime Minister Wilson opened the Southeast Asia Treaty Organizations ministerial conference today with a call for "an honorably negotiated settlement" of the war in South Viet Nam.

His appealed for the same sort of settlement of the explosive Indonesian-Malaysian dispute.

"Both situations constitute a serious threat to peace and both urgently need to be ended," the British leader said.

Wilson said the countries of Southeast Asia, once colonial but now independent, "should be left alone to follow their own path toward peace and freedom."

"Independence means more than freedom from British rule or from the rule of any other former colonial power," Wilson said. "It means freedom from aggressive outside interference."

Britain is supporting the new federation of Malaysia against Indonesia. Wilson pointed out that the British government has more soldiers in Southeast Asia today than any other non-Asian country.

"We must work for negotiated settlements that will bring lasting peace to the area. In Viet Nam, no less than to Malaysia," said Wilson.

"This is bound to be a long and difficult task, above all, because those who have threatened the peace, have so far shown no readiness to prefer the conference table to the battlefield."

The U.S. delegation, led by Undersecretary of State George Ball, intended to press for further allied assistance in South Viet Nam.

Ball told the conference the U.S. would continue seeking a peaceful solution to South Viet Nam but would not be party to any "meaningless agreement." Ball said the central issue in South Viet Nam should be clear to all to see.

"It is whether a small state on the periphery of Communist power should be permitted to maintain its freedom. That is an issue of vital importance to small states everywhere."

Other members of the SEATO alliance are France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines.

Russia and Cuba Ready To Hit U.S. in Council

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Russia and Cuba were ready to hit the United States hard today in the UN Security Council for sending troops into the Dominican Republic. The United States was ready to hit right back.

The council was meeting at the request of Soviet chief delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko, who accused the United States of "armed interference . . . in the internal affairs of the Dominican Republic."

He was expected to ask the 11-nation council to condemn the U.S. landings.

U.S. chief delegate Adlai E. Stevenson was prepared to repeat the U.S. contention that it had sent in troops and marines to rescue foreign residents from a civil war. But Stevenson was expected to add President Johnson's latest statement that the U.S. goal was to save the Dominican Republic from "Communist conspirators."

Stevenson wanted the council to dispose of the Soviet complaint in one meeting and leave any action to the Organization of American States.

Cuban chief delegate Fernando Alvarez Tabio sought permission to speak as an interested non-member of the council.

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa sent Secretary-General U Thant a note Friday accusing the United States of planning "total occupation" of the Dominican Republic on the "false pretext" of safeguarding U.S. citizens.

He said this action could not be "ignored by the Security Council and General Assembly and asked Thant to see that "competent organs" of the United Nations condemned it.

Because of the council meeting, Thant flew back Sunday night from a visit to Vienna and Geneva, three days earlier than planned.

Thant told reporters in Geneva he believed the OAS could play a "very useful role" in a "very serious" situation in the Dominican Republic. But he added: "I very much hope the Security Council will be able to adopt a resolution which will contribute toward a peaceful solution."

Stevenson tried to head off trouble by sending a letter Thursday to the council. It said President Johnson had ordered U.S. marines in to escort foreign residents to safety because of fighting between the military junta and rebels backing former president Juan D. Bosch.

The United States has repeatedly denied it is taking sides in the fighting. But Sunday night Johnson said the U.S. goal was to prevent Communists taking over the Dominican Republic.

Cease Fire Arranged

From Reuters-AP

NEW DELHI (CP)—Diplomatic sources said today a one-week de facto ceasefire had been arranged in the Indian-Pakistan border dispute, but an Indian defence ministry spokesman here refused to confirm the report.

The spokesman referred to reports of renewed shelling in the disputed Rann of Kutch border area this morning by Pakistani troops.

The spokesman said the expression "de facto" implied an understanding between two sides, and added he was not aware any such understanding had been reached.

In Karachi, a Pakistani foreign ministry source said he had no information to confirm reports of a ceasefire but stressed he could not deny them.

A correspondent of the news agency press Trust of India said the shelling in the disputed salt-marsh border area lasted for only a brief time.

Meanwhile, in the council of states, India's upper house of parliament, Prime Minister Shastri said today British Prime Minister Wilson was continuing efforts to obtain a ceasefire in the area, where Indian and Pakistani troops have been fighting since April 9.

Shastri assured the house he had told and would continue to insist on the restoration of the status quo existing prior to the outbreak of fighting as a condition to any ceasefire.

WANTS NEUTRALITY

Pakistan has called for the withdrawal of all forces from the disputed area as a condition for negotiating a ceasefire.

A top Pakistani foreign office official, Aziz Ahmed, published about prospects for a formal truce, said: "Terms for this are being negotiated in a preliminary way."

Britain's truce proposals were reported to call for the withdrawal of regular forces from the Rann and a return to the situation as it was Jan. 1.

Britain's high commissioners, Sir Terence Lane in Pakistan and John Freeman in India, have been trying to find a basis for talks between the two countries.

Jahes held talks with Pakistani Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, who left shortly afterward for a conference in London of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

(On arrival in London Sunday Bhutto blandly denied accusations by India that Pakistani forces used American military aid in the Rann fighting. He also denied charges that Pakistan connived with China to launch disguised attacks.

("This is sheer propaganda," he told reporters at London Airport. "China has nothing to do with the Rann of Kutch."

Johnson States Revolt Directed By Communists

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The United States began rushing another 4,500 troops to the Dominican Republic today after President Johnson said the rebel uprising had been taken over by Communist conspirators directed from abroad.

The president's declaration that a military buildup was necessary for security on the Caribbean island, came as rebel fighters made a new attack Sunday night on U.S. troops despite the declared cease-fire.

No new casualties were reported on the American side, and it was uncertain whether answering fire by U.S. forces caught any of the rebels.

The defence department in Washington has reported two marines and two paratroopers killed, and 21 marines and 21 paratroopers wounded since U.S. forces began landing last Wednesday.

Addition of the 4,500 fighting men ordered in by the president will bring the total of U.S. marines and army men to 14,000.

U.S. IMPARTIAL

A U.S. spokesman said American forces were maintaining a strictly impartial attitude. He said they are safeguarding an international zone of refuge and in that sense are in the "front line."

Marines held positions to the west of the rebel stronghold while paratroopers are to the east. The rebels are entrenched between the low - income residential section that was the centre of insurgent movements against the Rafael L. Trujillo regime and was a stronghold of exiled left - wing agitators.

The entire area of rebel operations covers about 15 blocks, a space which constitutes the entire commercial section of the capital.

In a televised address Sunday night, President Johnson said the rebellion has taken "a tragic turn."

"Communist leaders, many of them trained in Cuba, seeing a chance to increase disorder, to gain a foothold, joined the revolution. They took increasing charge and used it for a popular democratic revolution, committed to democracy and social justice, very shortly moved and was taken over and really seized and placed into the hands of a band of Communist conspirators."

COMMUNIST-LED

The army leaders of the rebellion said they were fighting to return ousted president Juan Bosch to power. Bosch and U.S. ambassador John Barlow Martin, in Santo Domingo in a non - official capacity, told reporters that he was convinced the uprising had been completely taken over by pro-Castro Communists.

LBJ Woos Latin America

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson pressed a diplomatic drive today to win Latin American support for his newly announced determination to prevent "Communist conspirators" from turning the Caribbean island country into a second Cuba.

"Our goal, in keeping with the great principles of the inter-American system, is to help prevent another Communist state in this hemisphere," the president said Sunday night in a policy pronouncement.

"And we would like to do this without bloodshed or without large-scale fighting."

He said that Communist leaders, "many of them trained in Cuba," had captured the rebel movement that began "as a popular democratic revolution."

Even as the president spoke, two special envoys were already meeting with officials in Latin capitals. Other American representatives here and in Santo Domingo, centre of the civil war, were working with the organization of American States for an end to bloodshed and a provisional future which would, in Johnson's words, be free of "Communist dictatorship."

Johnson announced in his televised speech that the multiple tasks of protecting lives, distributing food and medical supplies, and assisting U.S. and other refugees to leave the country were more than the 9,500 U.S. marines and army men already in the island could handle. He said he had ordered another 4,500 to the trouble spot, raising the total to 14,000.

Since the marines first landed Wednesday night, he said, they have evacuated more than 3,000 persons from 30 countries. Another 3,000, including 1,500 U.S. citizens, were waiting to come out, Johnson reported.

Flood Eased by Broken Levee But Mississippi Rising Again

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — Soggy dikes held back the powerful thrust of the swollen Mississippi River in the Hannibal, Mo.-Quincy, Ill., area today as residents of other communities up and down the river waited for the worst spring flood in history to run its course.

"A flood of this magnitude is estimated to occur only once in 100 years," the interior department reported, confirming that the flood was of record - breaking record.

The flood, which began in Minnesota, parts of North Dakota and Wisconsin during March when snow began to melt, has taken 14 lives and caused $150,000,000 damage in five states.

In the Hannibal-Quincy area, the river is on the rise again toward a predicted crest Tuesday.

Only 23 families have been evacuated from low-lying areas in Hannibal. About 100 persons have fled their homes in Quincy.

Hannibal has no levee protection; its population of 20,000. But the water had begun falling in a 15-block industrial area which has been ringed for about a week and most of the streets are passable.

But the levee Saturday night five miles south of Quincy, a city of 45,000, took some of the pressure off the Hannibal area.

After the levee break, floodwaters ran 12 feet deep across 7,700 acres of farmland. It increased the amount of land under water in Adams County, Ill., to 25,000 acres. More than 20,000 acres were covered upstream in Henderson County, 70 miles to the north.

When the levee broke, the river began receding.

The Mississippi dropped Saturday night at Quincy from Wednesday's record high of 24.8 feet to 23.5 feet. The high in Hannibal was 24.6 Friday, but it fell to 23.6 early Sunday.

The river began rising again, however, Sunday night and the weather bureau predicted a crest for Tuesday of 24.7 feet in Quincy and 24.5 feet in Hannibal.

The Mississippi has been over flood stage—which is 18 feet—since April 6.

Flood officials have said the crisis will be over when the crest passes Quincy and Hannibal and the waters level out in the wide channel of the lower Mississippi.

Mental Health Body Tries To Win Public's Tolerance Of Mentally Ill Persons

This is Mental Health Week, sponsored by the Canadian Mental Health Association.

A most conservative estimate is that, at any time, well over two million people in Canada are damaged, disabled or impaired by mental and emotional disease and disorder. This is more than by all the well known physical diseases put together. Of this number, more than 75,000 are in the care of the country's mental hospitals, the majority of which are still large, isolated, out of date institutions, quite unsuitable for present methods of treatment and today's patterns of care. Many of the two million do not receive any treatment at all. While, in exact, mental illness is the greatest health problem, its lack of the dramatic and the still present sense of shame and discomfort that accompany it, make it the all - pervading quiet disaster of our time.

The Canadian Mental Health Association plays its one of stirring the private, the public and the government conscience to take necessary action. It is a role of educating and informing the public, in the lack of the dramatic and the still present sense of shame and discomfort that accompany it, make it the all - pervading quiet disaster of our time.

The Canadian Mental Health Association plays its one of stirring the private, the public and the government conscience to take necessary action. It is a role of educating and informing the public, in the lack of the dramatic and the still present sense of shame and discomfort that accompany it, make it the all - pervading quiet disaster of our time.

NEED ACCEPTANCE

The acceptance of the mentally ill from early diagnosis to rehabilitation in being, in essence, no different from the physically ill, is a prime aim. CMHA encourages and provides services of many kinds to the mentally ill or on their behalf, undertakes the planning of mental health facilities and services and co-ordinates community activities in this field. Through its volunteer citizens and scientists, CMHA works steadily to combat mental illness and to advance mental health.

Today can begin to look forward to the time when the lasted custodial care of the mentally ill will be replaced by the positive therapy of community interest and attention. A community whose citizens have a high degree of tolerance and sympathy for those with emotional disturbance will seek to establish within it the community mental health services that provide continuity of care from the outset of the illness to its disappearance. The Canadian Mental Health Association is dedicated to this task and sincerely seeks the support of all responsible citizens.

JUST LIKE REST

The most important thing for the average citizen to do is to realize that mental illness is an illness, that the mentally ill are people just like the rest of us — people who are troubled, who are unhappy, who need help. The mentally ill may say and do things that outrage the normal person, but they say and do these things because they are sick. Most people are able to accept this fact, but far too many when face to face with someone who is now or once has been mentally ill, react with superstitious fear rather than with a rational understanding of the medical problem involved.

The attitude of the individual citizen is perhaps the most important factor in determining whether or not a mentally ill person can be rehabilitated. The psychiatrist, the clinic, the mental hospital are, after all, none, treat, cure and discharge the patient. Whether or not the person can remain well, depends on whether he is wholeheartedly accepted back into his community, by his friends, neighbors, work associates, and by other people in his everyday life.

In addition to understanding something of the nature of mental illness and being sympathetic and helping attitude toward the problem, the average citizen can assist personally in his local voluntary mental health association.

The Canadian Mental Health Association has been organized for this very purpose. Information on how to participate can be obtained from the local branch. Mental health is everyone's responsibility.

Three St. John Divisions Will Be Inspected

Belleville, Trenton and Picton Divisions of St. John Ambulance Brigade are busy preparing for their annual inspection to be held in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's Belleville Armory on Friday, May 7. This year's inspecting officer will be Assistant Provincial Commissioner, Brigadier Eric Young, a distinguished military figure well known to many in this area. High ranking officials who will accompany him will include Lt. Col. T. J. Calvert, M.D., Area Commissioner of Peterborough and Lt. Col. J. D. Simpson, Provincial Staff Officer. Mrs. C. D. Ashley, O. St. J. of Peterborough is Provincial Cadet Officer. Belleville people heading Divisions are Mrs. R. L. Golding, Reg. N., Mrs. H. W. Reid, S. St., Murray E. Johnson and J. R. Symons. Trenton, Lt. Patrol, S. St. J., Reg. N. Corps. Sgt. Major Ernest J. Read and Corps Sgt. Instructor Mrs. Ruth Chapman of Picton will be assisting Corps Superintendent John Wilkinson from Brighton. The inspection will include a march past of the troops, demonstrations of First Aid and Home Nursing in action. Hundreds in both Divisions have watched the work on simulated casualties with great interest, spanks.

St. John members are a familiar sight on duty at the arena night after night during the winter when the younger lads were playing. They were at the Front Street fire, at the Quinte Caledonian Highland Fair. Others have been working on the first aid theory classes operated by the Association, training youth groups, serving the aged or speaking to meetings.

Close to three hundred injured people were treated last year.

St. John personnel, in addition to keeping up their normal training have worked closely with the Area R.M.O. Co-ordinator Lt. Col. D. Duffy. He has spoken to the Picton, Trenton and local units this winter, outlining the plans for St. John's place in the local emergency arrangements should the Pickering Nuclear Station or industrial disaster, explosion, air disaster or other cause of massive casualties occur. It were also prepared in event a flood had materialized this year.

St. John personnel will demonstrate or speak to any group. Members serve without fee. Their fine service is made possible by the Belleville United Appeal upon which St. John groups are almost totally dependent. The divisions would welcome new members at times the demands for services, possibly during the busy summer, are beyond ability to fulfill.

Loughborough Pupils Return After Boycott

KINGSTON (CP)—Pupils returned to school in Loughborough Township today after 75 parents unanimously decided Friday to end a 23-day boycott of classes.

About 95 children were without classes since April 9 when their parents decided to protest a central school in Sydenham, about 10 miles from Kingston.

The decision of the township school board to close four one-room schools meant that some children would have to travel up to 18 miles to the proposed central school.

Earl Young, member of the North Road Action Committee, said Sunday the committee will meet Tuesday to make future plans. We don't intend to let it drop here."

Twenty - two children were sent back April 26 but attendance varied after that.

A similar boycott in nearby Hinchinbrook Township ended Wednesday after parents withdrew about 60 children from three public schools last Monday.

For he has left behind
Just scattered God's eternal home,
And memories kind.
Sadly missed by Marilyn, Malcolm and Jeanette.

Cannot Sell Fireworks Before May 14

TRENTON — Dealers displaying or selling firecrackers before May 14 are liable to prosecution, and the parents of children who set off fireworks before May 21, are also liable.

This was pointed out by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis today after an incident on Ferry Street last night. Children and fireworks were responsible for a fire in a backyard shed at the home of Wm. Hartling. The firecrackers had been sold, unwittingly, by an east side storekeeper. The firecrackers were on display at his store. Since the fire chief has made the merchant acquainted with the law, the display has been removed.

"Firecrackers must not be displayed or sold until ten days before the 24th," the chief said today, "and it's against the law to set them off until three days before the 24th."

Children, too, are thought to be responsible for burning down a boathouse on the bayshore last night. The boat house was owned by Robert Vieau, who said a small punt was also destroyed.

Also thought to be the work of children was a fire last night in scrap back of the new Front Street federal building.

Cause of a fire in a storage shed in the McPherson Balsam Street building, last night, is not known.

"It could have been children," Chief Ellis said today, "or there is the possibility it was combustion."

The McPherson fire occurred at 5.55 p.m., and two trucks were sent. Almost simultaneously, the department received a call to a grass fire on Chester Street.

Square Dancers Hold Evening At Drill Hall

TRENTON — Saturday evening, the recreation hall at No. 8 Repair Depot was once again filled with swirling skirts and gaily colored shirts as square dancers from Toronto, Pickering, Lindsay, Peterborough, Perth, Cobourg, Oshawa, Campbellford, Trenton, Belleville, Kingston and Ottawa converged on the building.

Guest caller for the evening was recording star Dick Leger, from Warren, Rhode Is.

Mr. Leger, completing a two-week Canadian tour, received a standing ovation from the crowd of close to 450. Dick accompanied himself on the guitar as he called the squares. Old time favorites were featured as well as several numbers not yet released by the recording companies.

The famous caller was introduced to the crowd by Ernie Dempster, who was responsible for arranging Mr. Leger's Canadian Tour. Mr. Leger spoke generously of the Canadian interest in modern square dancing. He said there was the greatest interest in this type of entertainment throughout the length and breadth of Canada. Mr. Leger was accompanied on his tour by his son, Richard Jr., who also spoke highly of the kindness of their Canadian hosts.

Wally Turton, chairman of the RCAF Trenton's "Fairs and Squares," introduced Group Captain E. M. Butcher, Commanding Officer at RCAF Station Trenton, who welcomed the guests on behalf of the RCAF Trenton Complex.

Area clubs were thanked for their interest at the close of the program and special mention was given to Jean and Joe Gibson, RCAF Station, Trenton, for their very fine job of decorating the drill hall.

A delicious buffet lunch, catered by the Chuckwagon, brought to an end the enjoyable evening, which many voted the "best yet" of the square dance events at the local station.

Mrs. Pearson Opens Exhibit At Kingston

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Lester B. Pearson, wife of Canada's prime minister, Saturday opened the spring exhibition of painting at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre here.

Mrs. Pearson was accompanied by Mrs. William Benidickson, wife of the minister of mines and technical surveys.

The 47 paintings in the exhibition were done by local artists and were selected from 300 entries by the director of the art centre, Ralph Allen. Mr. Allen this year made standards higher than previously to ensure a high quality exhibition.

Mrs. Benidickson, a frequent visitor to the Queen's University campus gallery, officially opened the $175,000 art centre in 1962. She is a niece of Kingston native Agnes Etherington, the former Agnes Richardson, who until her death in 1955 was prominent in local art circles. The art centre bears her name.

Joe MacInnis' field is underwater research. Read how his scientific training helped him choose a London Life policy

The story of Joe MacInnis:

How a young man can plan to retire with $65,000 cash from London Life

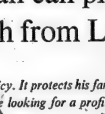
Joe MacInnis, 28, chose a Jubilee policy. It protects his family and can give him double his money back. If you are looking for a profitable investment, read his story below:

THE ABOVE photograph of Joe MacInnis was taken during his working hours. He is Director of Diving Research with Ocean Systems Inc.

Joe's goal—a rich career work with the Link "Man in Sea" project—is to enable man to live and work deep in the ocean, on the continental shelf.

Canadians will have a chance to see this underwater world at Expo '67 in Montreal. Joe is Senior Scientific Advisor to the design consultants for the proposed $2 million "Man and the Oceans" exhibit.

In a recent interview, he talked about his approach to life insurance and why, two years ago, he chose a London Life policy:



"I try to look at things very objectively, as a scientist should. When I started thinking about insurance, I was thinking mainly of protection for my wife, Cynthia, and our children.

"I'm the first to admit that investments and insurance are a foreign world to me. My field is science.

"So, I decided to talk to five or six people who sell life insurance. Eventually, I bought this $50,000 policy from a representative of London Life."

Why did he select London Life?

"Well, a couple of reasons. It's an old axiom in our business to get the best man for the job; this is what I've done. The London Life man wouldn't make any sort of recommendation until I told him practically my life story. As a scientist, this impressed me.

"And of course the insurance plan itself—it gives me protection and a good investment.

"If I die, my wife will receive the $50,000. If I live, I can more than double my money. This came as a surprise to me, but the figures are right here.

"My premium is $64.00 a month. To age 65, I'll pay in a total of about $29,000. But I can get back—since I'm leaving my dividends to accumulate—a little over $65,000. That's a pretty good return."

(Note: This figure of $65,000 is made up of $27,700 in guaranteed cash value and the balance in accumulated dividends. These dividends are based on the 1965 scale. While they are not guaranteed, London Life has had an outstanding record of dividend payments. Dividends allotted to owners of London Life profit-sharing policies for 1965 exceed $29 million.)

This policy—like all London Life policies—is flexible. It provides three choices when Joe is 65:

(a) The premiums can be continued and the savings will keep growing.

(b) The $65,000 or so can be withdrawn as a lump sum.

(c) The savings can be used to purchase an annuity for life or for a set number of years.

Joe had one other interesting comment to make:

"Since I'm so wrapped up in my research work, I don't have a lot of time to worry about personal financial problems.

"I have confidence in my London Life representative to the point that I have consulted him on financial matters other than insurance. Mind you, he doesn't always know the answer, but he steers me to an expert who does."

The experience of Joe MacInnis is not unusual.

Many men rely on their London Life representative for financial counselling.

Whether you're thinking of a $10,000 or $50,000 Jubilee policy, if you buy when you are young and leave your dividends to accumulate, you can double your money before you retire.

Price Spreads in Food

The Ontario Farmers' Union wants the government to provide a greater measure of price support.

The Liberal Government has been showing unmistakable signs of endeavoring to abandon, or at least curtail, the program of underwriting all farm production so as to assure farmers they will sell their wares at a profit regardless of effective demand.

But Hon. Harry Hays, Federal Minister of Agriculture, interpreted the Farmers' Union brief as basically a complaint that the prices of farm products are slipping behind the costs of farm operations. In this form, he was able to endorse the Union's presentation as a true picture, generally speaking, of the nation's agricultural problem.

At the same time he baldly stated the great flaw in price support programs—their frequent tendency to encourage the production of crops in amounts which cannot be marketed.

The farmers themselves consider the government's policies to be designed "to provide an abundance of cheap food to consumers primarily at the expense of the producers."

The provision of an abundance of cheap food ought to be one of the primary aims of any efficient government. But it ought not to be at the expense of the producers and this not only because the producers are entitled to a just return for their labor but also because making farming unprofitable is likely to lessen the supply of food and increase the prices of that available.

Perhaps, our real trouble lies in a different realm from farm policy.

"I hate to waste anything," we overheard the waitress at the lunch counter say to a customer. "Last year I put down 300 jars of preserves. I can make a pint of jam for 7½ cents and it is the real thing."

In a store a six or eight ounce jar of jam costs four times the 7½ cents which the woman who hates waste pays for a pint.

Are we not, today, spending too great a portion of our food dollar for packaging and marketing expenses? Nobody wants to see the return of the old cracker barrel, but are there not ways of reducing the amount of work expended on wrapping, displaying and selling some of our foodstuffs?

Part of the spread between the price the farmer receives for his produce and the price the consumer pays for it is accounted for by partial processing and this is not necessarily money wasted. Even when its expenditure is not wholly justified by a saving of time in the home, it may result in some additional benefits. For instance, buying potatoes, ready-cooked, would be wasteful for a large family; it may actually be economical for a single person when one considers the wastage in even the smallest bag of potatoes through rot before they are consumed, and the additional wastage because it is impossible to prepare exactly the amount needed for a meal.

It is not this kind of preparation which we criticize—it adds an additional service to the food for which the consumer ought to be prepared to pay. But there are many foods today in which the packaging must cost almost as much as the food itself.

Where the additional cost adds nothing to the food but "eye-appeal," some thought ought to be given to the problem of whether the game is worth the candle.

May Busy Month

Thanks to the Department of Health and Welfare, we have received timely warning that May is going to be a busy month.

May 2 is Child Safety Day. It is also Be Kind to Animals Day, a combination which may, or may not, make the double observance easier. Both "days" fall in Mental Health Week, while all of May is Canadian Beautification Month.

We have an uneasy feeling that the department's list is incomplete, that it has only named observances which can come under a broad interpretation of the scope of health and welfare. Mother's Day on May 9 falls in this category. But there are probably half a dozen "weeks" and twice as many "days" which it has neglected to mention, perhaps in the naive hope that if nobody notices them they will go away.

The call for freedom, not class struggle, is the revolutionary sign of our time.—West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Right Aim, Wrong Method

Ottawa Journal

A Government measure, offered in Mr. Gordon's budget, to restrict ownership and control of Canadian newspapers to Canadian citizens, brings a roar of disapproval from some Canadian newspaper publishers. This, some cry—this endangers press freedom!

The cry is nonsense born of associated myth, too little examined, that press freedom is an absolute; that it goes beyond general intellectual freedom; that some kind of privilege attaches to the profession of the press as distinguished from the members of the public.

Unfortunately, some members of the press seem to think that newspapers have special dispensation from the laws and regulations which society lays down for the government and security of citizens within that society. No right includes a privilege to harm the society granting it. A country's society could be damaged if its press were foreign owned.

Press freedom! Because we may be hearing much about it in coming weeks, let us see what the highest constitutional authorities say about it.

There was the famous case in Canada of the Alberta Press law, a law passed upon and rejected by the Supreme Court of Canada, with Sir Lyman Duff, greatest of all our jurists, writing the rejection. The Social Credit Government of Alberta sought to impose upon its people an ideological dogma, said in effect to the newspapers: If you dare criticize us, we shall compel you to print our reply in any way we write it, and exactly as we write it, and whatever length we write it. This, of course, was an absolute invasion of the very freedom of a newspaper but of any citizen—was rightly declared invalid.

But in the same judgment, too often overlooked was Sir Lyman Duff's statement:

"But the right of public discussion is subject to legal restrictions, those based upon considerations of decency, public order and others conceived for the protection of various private and public interests. . . . the protection of various private and public interests!" These lies the principle that makes nonsense of belief that press freedom is an abstract; an absolute—different from ordinary freedoms.

We would quote two other judgments, one by Mr. Justice Coleman, head of the U.S. District Court, the other by Lord Shaw, one of the past great figures of the Privy Council.

Said Mr. Justice Coleman in 1955:

"Freedom of the press is a constitutional guarantee, but this guaranty does not give immunity to the press . . . but merely secures to it the right to the same basic rights and immunities as are enjoyed by the public at large.

"Nothing more and nothing less. This idea that in some way the newspaperman has some special privilege, that a state or that a newspaper has some special privilege in the state, is simply not true. All that he has is the freedoms given to every citizen by the constitution, the Bill of Rights or whatever."

Lord Shaw, in a judgment given in 1938 said:

"Their Lordships regret to find that there appeared in one side of this case the timeworn claim that a certain kind of privilege attached to the profession of the press as distinguished from members of the public. The freedom of the journalist is an ordinary part of the freedom of the public, and to what ever lengths the subject in general may go, so also may the journalist. Nothing apart from statute laws, his privilege is no other and no higher. No special privilege attaches to his position."

In the light of the above is it not wrong to argue that press freedom is endangered if the government seeks to keep control of Canadian newspapers in the hands of Canadians? What freedom is endangered? What freedom withdrawn? What right of speech suppressed? Or are we to be told that some cliche about press freedom must have precedence over steps a society or nation may deem necessary for security?

The Journal supports the principle that Canadian publications should be owned by Canadians. But we would add one reservation. It is that witnessing the incompetence and lack of integrity with which this same Government proposes to deal with the case of Canadian magazines, we are dubious about the method it has chosen to retain Canadian control of newspapers — a method involving censorship. Taxation is a classical form of punitive measure that could be handy to a government of future years seeking to enforce its ideology on the whole press or a part of the press.

If the government has the right idea but is to go about it in the wrong way then mischief and abuse could indeed follow on. There are more ways than one of achieving the ends which the Government professes to want, but what we would fear is that this Government, following dismal precedent, will unerringly stray to the wrong way.

Strictly Personal
Frustration Can Lead to Regression

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There is more fulfillment in the world today than ever before, but there is also more frustration. The two go hand in hand as our society becomes more affluent, more mobile, more self-expressive.

One of the main reasons for the rise in juvenile delinquency, I am convinced, is that this generation holds out more promise than ever before, in terms of pleasures and material goods. These are constantly dangled in front of young people's noses, yet they are not able to take advantage of them.

It is a well known psychological fact that frustration tends to make children regress to an earlier emotional stage. About 20 years ago, Dr. Kurt Lewin and his associates performed an illuminating series of experiments with nursery-school children aged from 3 to 5.

At first, all these children were allowed to play, one at a time, for a half-hour in a large playroom containing a host of sorts of toys and games. It was carefully noted how maturely and constructively the children played with these toys, and their individual performances were rated on a "constructive scale."

After this, each child was in turn shown a fascinating collection of new toys — large and beautiful ones, including boats with dresses to iron, a pond for boats to sail on, and so forth. Then each child was promptly told that he could not play with this new collection, and was shut in with his "old" toys.

According to John Madge, in his book, "The Tools of Social Science," it was found that each child's behavior was strikingly less constructive than in his previous play period. Instead of seeing the new toys, he might have used the telephone for an imaginary conversation, or he simply banged it about and used it as a rattle.

On the whole, the researchers reported, maturity of behavior of the children declined by about one month — which is an enormous decline for those ages. As far as I can learn, no similar tests have been done with adolescents, but I am sure the results would be much the same.

Our special problem with young people today is that by dangling the delicate balance between fulfillment and frustration. On the one hand, many of them are given too much too soon, while those at the other end of the scale are given too little too late, if at all. Frustration in itself is not a bad thing, but if the pressure becomes relentlessly pursuing pleasures and material goods, then we can scarcely blame youngsters for attacking the car or breaking the shop window in resentment.

Letter to the Editor

Sauce for Goose, What About Gander?

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I have read about the automobile accident in Toronto, Ontario, wherein the car of the Chief of Police rammed into a vehicle waiting to make a left turn. No charges were laid. The Chief's car was unable to stop in time to avoid the impact.

I recall sometime ago being a passenger in a car — the driver taking extreme precaution and travelling 10 miles per hour because of a very dense fog. Damage resulted to the rear end of a parked car and the police were called, the result being the driver was charged with careless driving. The sergeant very forcefully informed the driver that "it is your responsibility to always have your vehicle under control."

No other comment. I just wonder about things.

To Your Good Health
Congestive Heart Failure Often Involves One Valve

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is congestive heart failure and how serious would it be in a woman of 65 who has not had a heart attack as yet and hopes to avoid one?

Also please send me your booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," for which I enclose the required 25 cents in coin and a long, unstamped, self-addressed envelope. — Mrs. M. E.

The booklet will make this clearer than I can in limited space — which is why I wrote the booklet, of course.

In brief, a heart attack means that the organ's muscle is damaged by some of the circulation to it being cut off by a clot or similar obstruction. It is the muscle which suffers — and naturally that is serious.

Congestive heart failure is a different thing. Instead of being the result of a sudden attack, it develops gradually, and from more than one possible cause.

A typical condition involves damage to one of the valves in the heart. This valve may be so weakened, or so scarred by rheumatic fever, that it functions as effectively. The heart has to work harder to accomplish the same amount of blood circulation.

The heart gradually tires from the strain. The seriousness depends on the degree of congestion — and how the patient takes care of the problem. The booklet is designed to help you understand how to do that.

Dear Dr. Molner: You wrote that there is no cure for psoriasis, but I have read that a drug called methotrexate has done so. Have you heard of this? — B. C.

Yes, I have. Methotrexate has helped (but not cured) some patients who have been plagued by severe psoriasis over large parts of their bodies.

It is a very powerful drug, has to be used with great respect, and isn't — at the present state of knowledge about it — to be considered for use when (as so often is the case) a patient has only some small patches of psoriasis.

Psoriasis is a nuisance but not dangerous. Sometimes it goes away for no apparent reason. Sometimes it subsides when one or another of the various treatments is being used — at which point the patient may think that he knows the cure for psoriasis.

My advice to the average person with psoriasis is to have a doctor or skin specialist prescribe something to subdue the scaliness and itching (when it becomes bothersome) and otherwise to ignore it and hope that it will subside spontaneously some day.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do men go through a change of life? If so, at what age and what are the symptoms? — Mrs. A. C.

Ordinarily men do not go through a change of life in the sense that women do. With a woman, there is a very distinct change in glandular action as the age of child-bearing comes to an end, and this is accompanied by a variety of symptoms, quite distressing in some cases, rather mild or absent in others.

Such a sharp change in psychology does not occur in men. All the same, there can be some change in hormone production. In addition, nervousness, dizziness, anxiety and even a counterpart of "hot flashes" can develop from psychological rather than physical causes.

Most men never encounter such symptoms. It isn't something that you expect to happen, like the female menopause. But such cases as do occur in men are most likely to be noted and somewhere between the ages of 40 and 55.

It's Sunk

Russian Ship Uses Seaway

Montreal Star

If ever any ship entered the St. Lawrence Seaway perfectly fitted with every safety device, completely up to scratch on operational procedures, it probably was the Russian freighter Mitchurinsk bound for Toronto and Hamilton. She was inspected from "stem to stern" before getting permission to go on, and the red tape apparently was spun out in pretty complicated fashion.

Of course the official explanation was perfectly legitimate. There never had been a Russian ship in the seaway before and it was imperative that its worthiness conformed to all the seaway standards. But who, for a single moment, supposes that the Russians didn't themselves expect they would be penalized for the slightest deviation from the seaway rules and take every possible step to make their ship better perfect for this pioneer run?

Naturally the primary objections to letting the Russian ship into the seaway came from United States shipping interests, supported by the longshoremen. The Mitchurinsk has U.S. ports scheduled, but she passed under the Stars and Stripes at the Snell and Eisenhower locks, a thought which makes some Americans shudder. Bombs, y'know. Or even a deliberate crashing of a lock gate to serve some vague purpose.

Political prejudice dies hard, even in the field of commerce. A great deal of our commerce in the past 18 months has been with Russia, however, because of her crop failures. The seaway was constructed as an international waterway to speed the commerce of both the United States and Canada to the markets of the world. Efforts to erect unnatural barriers against shipping from any country make no sense if the objectives of the great system are to be maintained.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

MAY 3rd, 1940

With facilities crowded to a maximum for practically the entire year the total of 6,316 patients was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital during 1940, it was reported by the Administrator at the annual meeting of the hospital's board of Governors held recently.

The above number of patients makes 1940 the busiest year in the record of the institution with crowded conditions being experienced all year and the hospital being forced to operate a reserve-ation fist. The reserve list at one time reached a high point of 32 patients, while coupled with this the emergency department handled 738 cases treated and returned to their homes.

Bed occupancy of the hospital is 175 but the crowded conditions during the past year made it necessary for extra beds to be placed in corridors with even detention rooms at times being used to cope with the situation. The record for patients in the hospital at one time was 196.

Jesuit Electors Will Name 'Black Pope'

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Jesuit electors from around the world have gathered here for a meeting starting May 7 to choose the "black pope"—the general of the Society of Jesus, Roman Catholicism's biggest and best-known religious order.

A total of 225 Jesuits will be locked inside a square white room down a side street from St. Peter's Square in what amounts to a "little conclave."

Their rules allow only bread and water during the time it will take them to elect the 37th successor to St. Ignatius Loyola.

The delegates from the 62 provinces of the worldwide order probably will require only a few ballots to select someone in their rank to succeed Very Rev. Jean Baptist Janssens, the Belgian Jesuit general from 1946 until his death last Oct. 8 at the age of 75.

Most of the 62 provinces have sent three delegates each. Joining them in the voting will be Very Rev. John Swain, formerly of Toronto, Ont., the Jesuit vicar general who was named on Father Janssen's death bed to run the 36,000-member order until a successor is chosen.

STRONG CONTENDER

Father Swain is among those mentioned seriously as a possible successor as general.

Father Janssen was unable to work for long periods in the years prior to his death and Father Swain carried on many of his duties.

The meeting, or general chapter, called to elect a new general also will consider proposals to limit the office to a fixed term of years. The general now serves for life.

Pope Paul will be asked to authorize whatever change is eventually voted, since it will involve an exception to the order's 400-year-old rules.

A simple majority is enough to elect. On each successive ballot, votes can be cast only for a man who received votes on the previous ballot.

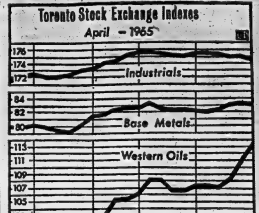
The general chapter is expected to continue for two months. The bulk of that time will be spent going over the society's rules for adjustments to meet the times, discussing contemporary problems affecting Jesuits in various parts of the world and examining the topics of the vatican ecumenical council.

Will Hold Inquest Into Girl's Death

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP) — An inquest into the death of 16 - year - old Denise Therrien, who disappeared nearly four years ago and whose remains were found Saturday, is to open Tuesday in this community 80 miles northeast of Montreal.

Dr. J. F. Valcourt, medico-legal pathologist for the Quebec government, said Sunday the girl's skull showed multiple fracture, possibly caused by an iron bar.

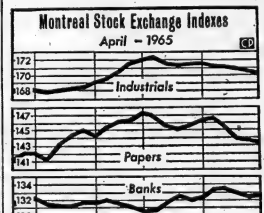
"When I say multiple . . . I use it in the strongest sense of the word," he told reporters.



Attorney - General Claude Wagner announced the inquest will be conducted by a judge instead of a coroner, the first time such action has been taken in Quebec province.

Marcel Barnier, a Shawinigan gravedigger, is being held as a material witness.

Discovery of Miss Therrien's body culminated a two - week search of an area beside the St. Maurice River near here, during which police found several articles which belonged to the girl.



Henri Therrien of Shawinigan, the girl's father, identified a shoe, a scarf, and a purse containing a wallet.

Quebec provincial police would not say where they got the clue which led them to the girl's remains. She disappeared Aug. 8, 1961, while job-hunting near her home.

Cambodia Ends Relations With U.S.

PNOM PENH (Reuters)—Cambodia today decided to break off diplomatic relations with the United States, it was announced here.

Head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk announced the decision in a broadcast this afternoon.

Consular relations with the U.S. are to be maintained temporarily.

Sihanouk indicated further maintainence of relations depended on the United States.

The decision was said to have been reached after numerous motions put to the governmental calling for a break in relations following an article in the American magazine Newsweek on the queen of Cambodia and because of the alleged bombing of Cambodian villages April 28.

April 30, the Cambodian government announced it had forbidden entry to Cambodia of all journalists and photographers from "the so-called free world" because of the newsweek article.

COPPER PRICES UP

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., announced Sunday a 3¼-cent (U.S. funds) increase in the price of a pound of copper sold in Europe. C. O. Buchanan, spokesman for the company, said the increase is effective today and will raise the price of a long ton of copper sold in Europe to $700 from $680. A shortage of the metal was given as the reason. Hudson Bay's copper comes from its holdings in the Flin Flon area, about 330 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

33 Paintings, Old Pieces of Money Stolen

QUEBEC (CP)—Thirty-three paintings and three collections of old pieces of money were stolen Sunday night from the Quebec Provincial Museum on the Plains of Abraham.

Exact value of the stolen articles was not immediately known, but it was believed to run into several thousand dollars.

The robbery was reported by provincial police who discovered two night watchmen tied up in the museum's basement.

Two men got into the museum about 8 p.m. Sunday night. The robbery was discovered when the men, Jean-Paul Michaud and Henri Duchesneau, were found about 6 a.m. today. They were not injured but were taken to hospital with mild shock.

The paintings were carefully lifted from their frames.

Police said one of the watchmen left the building about 9 p.m. to make rounds outside. He was grabbed by the two men.

The watchman was taken inside the building and forced to call his companion, who was overcome when he arrived.

Castro Assails Landing of U. S. Forces

By RICHARD DAW

HAVANA (AP) — Premier Fidel Castro, assailing the landing of U.S. forces in the Dominican Republic, told a cheering crowd Saturday night U.S. marines are dying there "like miserable and traitorous dogs."

"What has been proved is that marines, flesh and flesh and blood and that bullets will pierce that flesh and blood," he said in a May Day address to the nation.

He charged U.S. leaders "are nervous and they have lost control and control of thought."

The dispatch of American forces to Santo Domingo is a slap in the face to Latin American members of the Organization of American States, he said, and called it "one of the most vandalistic acts of the century."

Castro expressed "admiration and profound respect for the brave fighters" opposing the military junta established last week to keep military rebels from bringing former president Juan D. Bosch back to power.

The Cuban leader scoffed at claims that Communists were among the pro-Bosch forces.

Printers' Union Is Criticized By Official

HAMILTON (CP)—A leading union official criticized the Toronto Typographical Union (TLC) Saturday for what he said was its lack of co-operation with other unions in the printing trades.

John Duncan, president of the Ontario Federation of Priting Trades Unions, said the day 680 printers at the three Toronto daily newspapers went on strike last July 9, other newspaper unions and even many members of the typographical union had no idea the strike was going to take place.

The printers and affiliated mailers remain on strike. The newspapers—the Star, the Telegram and the Globe and Mail—have continued to publish.

Mr. Duncan was a member of a joint negotiating committee which bargained initially with the three papers on behalf of printers, mailers, pressmen and stereotypers.

Sunday, a staff representative of the striking union rejected a proposal for compulsory arbitration to end the newspaper walkout.

"We'll take our victories and we'll take our losses," Alan Histed told the federation's conference. "We don't want to have the terms of defeat dictated to us."

Soviet Author Tells of Visit To Canada

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Soviet author Ilya Ehrenburg visited Canada in 1946, just after the Second World War. Today he writes of the visit with undisguised bitterness.

In the latest instalment of his memoirs, currently appearing in the literary magazine Novy Mir (New World), the 73-year-old novelist recalls that his trip to Canada coincided with the Gouzenko affair.

Of Igor Gouzenko, the Soviet cipher clerk whose revelations sparked the sensational espionage hearings, Ehrenburg writes derisively: "He was tempted by money and the prospect of a comfortable life."

This hardly seems consistent with evidence produced at the trials that Gouzenko had a hard time finding anybody in Ottawa who would believe his story after he ran away from the Soviet embassy with information about a widespread Soviet espionage network in Canada and other Western countries.

Diplomatic sources say Ehrenburg's reference to the Gouzenko affair may be the first that has ever been made to it directly in a Soviet publication.

Ehrenburg writes:

"As all states, large and small, are enlarged in spying, no such cases are usually investigated without much noise; newspapers report that the arrested persons have worked for a foreign country."

"But this time the Canadian government (hardly of its own will) launched a severe campaign against the Soviet Union. Every day the newspapers wrote about the 'Red danger.'"

'ARMIES OF MOSCOW'

Around the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa gathered crowds who "abused Moscow." The atmosphere was not suitable for a "peaceful acquaintance" with Canada.

The bracketed inference that Canada acted at some other country's behest is not elaborated upon by Ehrenburg.

Ehrenburg travelled to Canada as a journalist, representing the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia. With him were two other Soviet journalists, Mihail Galaktionov of the Pravda and Konstantin Simonov of Red Star.

They visited Toronto and Montreal in addition to Ottawa.

Ehrenburg writes that in Toronto he was invited to dinner by the owner of a big newspaper. Soon after he arrived he heard the newspaper proprietor say to Galaktionov: "So you understand that Canadians, reasonably, see in any Soviet visitor a spy."

The Russians departed after 19 minutes, he recounts.

Their most unpleasant stay was in Ottawa, where "we were surrounded by medium-calibre officials." Unwarmly invited to meet Prime Minister Mackenzie King on their last day in the capital, Ehrenburg made excuses—"I was tired and felt unwell"—leaving his two companions to keep the appointment.

Finally the visit was over. As they sat in their airplane seats prior to departure for Albany, N.Y., Ehrenburg says he smiled: "Thank God, it's all over."

GIRL BECOMES BUSINESS

SHREWSBURY, England (CP)—Prisoners at the grim old English jail here were so bored with stitching mailbags that one suggested derisively, "We might as well be stitching goslings."

The prison governor thought this a splendid idea, and the convicts now are turning out about 1,000 a month for a local toy factory.

Parents Not Explaining Sex Cause Grief for Children

DEAR DORIS — When I went with two different boys they both buttered me up until I gave in. I'-believed all the things they told me but both of them, after getting what they wanted, broke up with me. I thought I had learned my lesson and would never give in to anyone again.

DORIS CLARK

When came my present boy friend, After a long time I finally gave in to him until I found my sister had to get married, I then made my promise to myself I would never give in to so until I was married. I decided to talk it over with my boy friend and he agreed. We have turned over a new leaf. This way we don't have to worry about getting married before our set time (two years from now.)

Please, young teen-agers, don't make the mistakes I did. My mother never did tell me anything so I asked her but she kept brushing me off, and look what happened to my sister's and my life. I'm glad I corrected mine before anything happened.

It is the parents' fauk. They are afraid to talk and that is why it happens all over the world. Sex should be discussed among people — M'S GIRL.

DEAR M'S GIRL — How lucky you were to learn wisdom all by yourself! I agree with you that a mother or dad is greatly at fault when he clams up on the subject of sex.

DEAR DORIS — A girl at the age of four years was left in our care. We never adopted her nor did we get any financial aid to keep her.

She was a good girl and we kept her until she left us. She now has been married for 15 years. Her husband is good to her, also to us. He is making good money and is well insured.

We also have two boys. They are own own. They are having financial difficulties.

Should this foster girl be treated the same as our own flesh and blood in a will? — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED — If you care for her like you would a member of the family, that settles the flesh-and-blood business. If the boys need the help and she doesn't, that's something else again. And is it when you die they need help, or now?

A will expresses affection as well as providing for obligations. If it seems right to you to leave more to the boys, leave enough to your girl and her good husband to show you appreciate them. A letter to her, to be delivered with her inheritance, could explain your actions.

DEAR DORIS —

(1) A friend told me that by washing my hair with eggs, it not only gives it a shine, but helps it to grow quickly. Is this true? I'm afraid to try it before asking you for fear of ruining my hair.

(2) What can I do about split ends, if I don't want my hair cut? — QUESTION MARK.

DEAR QUESTION MARK —

(1) Egg white has a rinse seems to help the shine. It will do no harm. But it won't help with growth.

(2) Brittle, dry hair may cause split ends. I'm sending you my leaflet on Hair Care which was written for me by an expert. (Available to other readers for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

DEAR DORIS — My husband is kind, considerate, unselfish, a good worker, clean and tidy, but he always scolds me about little things. Like the cheese is not cut properly, the bed is not located in the right spot, the pictures are not hung up right. Don't use a broom to the floor, etc.

Doris, I'm a nervous wreck. These things upset me because I fuss and fret to make everything pleasing to him. Is there such a thing as a man not knowing what he really wants? — NERVOUS WRECK.

DEAR NERVOUS WRECK — That's for sure. Some people develop a habit of criticizing everything someone else does. They hardly know how it makes the other person feel — especially if the trying-to-please type never talks back.

This is one way of feeling important and particular, used by persons not very sold on themselves. If they had more understanding of psychology, they would know that encouragement and praise were the real miracle workers.

Show this column to that "kind, considerate" husband of yours and perhaps he will, after all, understand what I mean.

DEAR DORIS — I could not help seeing notice in your column asking for volunteers. Where are all the community fund grants? The handicapped make most of articles that are sold. They do not even get a cup of tea or any money, only their ride there.

I feel she is very selfish in expecting kind people to give up their precious time when there is plenty of money between sales and community grants. There are also other groups helping them.

Looks like the more they get the more they want. Never wanting to stand on their own. — ONE WHO KNOWS.

DEAR ONE WHO DOESN'T KNOW — You know what you were getting into when you started. Not only that, but such volunteer jobs often give a handicapped person the Know-How to get a paying job later.

If it weren't for polite citizens giving their time free, there'd be far greater expenditures for already-loaded funds to meet. I feel a little ashamed of your letter.

(Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.)

planes for routine strikes against guerrilla positions in South Viet Nam is a new development in the conflict.

Military observers in Saigon speculated that navy pilots were being given the opportunity to familiarize themselves with flying conditions inside South Viet Nam in case they are needed to help break up any future large - scale guerrilla attack.

U.S. and South Vietnamese planners expect a major Communist offensive to be launched in the coming weeks.

THANT CONCERNED

In Geneva, United Nations Secretary - General U Thant said Sunday he believes the Vietnamese situation has gone "from bad to worse."

Speaking briefly, to reporters before boarding a plane for New York, he said "it is far from good. If my interpretation is correct the situation has gone from bad to worse."

Meanwhile, a North Vietnamese newspaper claimed Sunday the Communists have downed 163 U.S. planes over North Viet Nam last month and U.S. officials "are now losing their brains" on how to prevent future losses.

Quan Doi Nhan Dan (People's Army) said in a commentary the U.S. lost 103 additional planes between Aug. 5, during the Tonkin Bay crisis, and March 31.

See ALL TROOPS

The three new helicopter companies totalled 260 men and 25 machines.

U.S. officials said the army paratroopers would bring the total U.S. strength in South Viet Nam to more than 36,000 men. There already are 8,500 U.S. marines in South Viet Nam.

The paratroop brig. - Gen. Ellis W. Williamson, the airborne contingent includes two infantry battalions, one artillery battalion and the equivalent of one battalion of various support units.

After being made idle Saturday by unfavorable weather, U.S. jets Sunday resumed air strikes against the Communist Viet Cong.

U.S. Navy jets blasted a railroad siding and bridge about 100 miles south of Hanoi. Groundfire was light and all the planes returned safely to their carrier.

NO AIR RAIDS TODAY

A U.S. official said there were no air raids over North Viet Nam today, presumably because of bad weather.

The troop and helicopter arrivals coincided with today's marine patrol operation carried out with the aid of helicopters and came only a day after heavy air strikes against Viet Cong positions by planes of the U.S. 7th Fleet.

SOUTHEND, England (CP)—When Bob Pring settled down to his curried chicken in a restaurant here recently, another diner, Bill Fleming, told him how best to enjoy the dish. Lady Churchill Peerage Causes A Controversy

LONDON (CP) — A controversy over the peerage for Lady Churchill — or, at least, the timing of the announcement — is building up into a rowdy debate to accompany the major debate on steel nationalisation in the House of Commons Thursday.

House Leader Herbert Bowden hit back for the Labor government Sunday when he described as "beneath contempt" a Conservative suggestion that announcement of the life peerage was timed to deflect public attention from the steel scheme.

He was referring to a statement Saturday by Edward du Cann, chairman of the Tory party, that Prime Minister Wilson and his colleagues "planned a brilliant public relations exercise" to divert the press and public from details of the nationalization plan.

Although no other Conservative leader entered the verbal battle publicly, political observers suggested that some of du Cann's colleagues thought he had put his foot in it.

The government white paper giving details of the plan to nationalize steel was unveiled Friday afternoon and announcement of the life peerages, including the one for the widow of Sir Winston Churchill, came in time for Saturday morning newspapers.

Bowden's statement said: "The action of the Conservative party through their chairman . . . in seeking to drag the name of a revered public figure into the political arena is beneath contempt."

The plan to take into public ownership 90 per cent of the steel industry is seen by many as the biggest challenge so far to the Labor government elected last October. The first of a series of votes will come Thursday when the white paper is debated.

Both the Conservatives and the minority Liberal party are committed to fighting it every inch of the way and two Labor MPs who have expressed opposition are expected to abstain Thursday.

The government still would have a two - vote majority.

how long U.S. forces will remain in the Dominican Republic. The United States has told Latin American leaders it would welcome troops from their countries. Such contingents, internationalizing the force, might mean early withdrawal of some U.S. units.

But the U.S. action in sending marines into a Latin country has drawn sharp criticism elsewhere in this hemisphere. Johnson's special emissaries, roving ambassador Averell Harriman and former Alliance for Progress chief Teodoro Mo oso, faced tough problems on their missions.

TELLS OF U.S. AIMS

In his speech Johnson laid out for the first time the additional decision which he had implied in a statement Saturday night: That the U.S. purpose in the Dominican Republic goes beyond saving lives and now aims also to block establishment of a "Communist dictatorship."

In words clearly addressed to Latin America, Johnson asserted:

"The American nations cannot, must not, and will not permit the establishment of another Communist government in the Western Hemisphere. . . ."

Johnson also addressed an appeal to the rebels fighting in Santo Domingo asking them to break with the Communists and stop fighting.

"To those who fight only for liberty and justice and progress I want to join with the Organization of American States in appealing to you tonight to lay down your arms and to assure you there is nothing to fear."

WOOL PRODUCED

Canadian wool production declined 6.7 per cent last year to 9,368,000 pounds from 6,812,000 in the previous year. At the same time, the bureau of statistics reported Friday, imports rose 14 per cent to 63,044,000 pounds while exports dropped 33.3 per cent to 3,223,000 pounds from 4,861,000.

LOADINGS DECLINE

Railway freight loadings in Canada in the week ended April 21—which included the Easter weekend—declined 18.3 per cent from a year earlier to 90,382 cars, the bureau of statistics reported Friday. This brought the year's cumulative total to 1,196,783 cars, down 1.6 per cent from the corresponding 1965 period.

LESS FREIGHT HANDLED

Canadian ports handled 1.8 per cent less freight in February than a year earlier. The bureau of statistics said Friday cargo tonnage slipped to 6,107,-303 tons from 6,220,354. Ports handling the greatest volume, with year - earlier figures in brackets: Vancouver, 1,495,119 tons (1,400,889); Halifax 684,300 (790,971); Saint John, N.B., 600,044 (628,595).

Saturday, Bosch said the decision was won until the United States intervened. He said it now is the responsibility of the U.S. to bring democracy to his country and that he had abandoned any hope of a return of Juan Bosch as his supporters. Bosch said the uprising was democratic and was not in any way under Communist control.

Bosch, the only freely-elected president the Dominican Republic has had in more than 30 years, is an exile in Puerto Rico.

President Johnson emphasized that other factors were involved in the dispatch of more forces. He said food must be distributed to people who have not eaten for days, sick and wounded must be given medical attention, and steps must be taken to avoid an epidemic because hundreds of dead have been in the streets for days.

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro told a cheering May Day crowd in Havana that the dispatch of U.S. forces was a slap in the face to Latin American members of the Organization of American States. Castro said U.S. marines are dying in the Dominican Republic "like miserables and traitorous dogs."

11.06-lb. Pickerel Biggest Fish Caught by 700 Entrants In P. E. County 'Fish Derby'

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce sponsored "Fish Derby" came to a close Sunday at 2 p.m. Close to 700 entrants took part in the derby and although the weather for the weekend was ideal for fishing the catches were not as large as last year.

Winner of the first prize, for largest pickerel caught by an out-of-area resident, was D. Arrowsmith of Toronto. Mr. Arrowsmith won the Johnson 9½-h.p. motor with his pickerel weighing 6.94 pounds. The fish was caught just west of the Desoronto Ferry and the motor was presented by warden of the county, B. Hepburn.

The largest pickerel caught by a local resident was weighed-in at 11.06 pounds, and was caught by Clarence Juby of Tweed at the mouth of the Salmon River on a Williams' Wobbler. The fish measured 28.5 inches in length. Prize was a 6-h.p. Johnson motor.

The largest pike was landed by George Easterbrook of 34 Otonobee Ave., Toronto. The pike caught in West Lake measured 36.25 inches in length and weighed 10.46 lbs. Mr. Easterbrook won the boat trailer.

The largest gross catch was won by Gerald Stoddard of Wellington with a total of 18.58 lbs., all pike. Mr. Stoddard was winner of the spinning outfit.

Two sisters from Stittsville won a spinning outfit for the smallest fish or largest caught by a woman. Myra and Isabel Carr each caught a fish weighing 1.35 lbs. The smallest fish in the derby was caught by John Pawlenchuck and weighed .46 lbs. Mr. Pawlenchuck was a contender for the largest catch with 16 lbs. of fish.

The draw for the transistor radio was won by John Raidsal of McMurray, Penn. Raidsal also fished from a 9.42 pound pickerel he caught in Baggot's Bay. 10-year-old Tommy Montgomery of Brampton, Ont., the youngest fisherman, caught a pike weighing 7.2 lbs. and as there was no prize for this class he was presented with $5.00 cash by Mayor McFarland and Mr. H. Frizzell.

Kinsmen Club Home, Sports Show Success

PICTON (Staff) — A weekend of sporting activity was finalized in Picton late Sunday. The events began with the opening parade of the Kinsmen sponsored Home and Sport Show. The show, an annual event, ran for two days this year and was highlighted by an impressive dog show and remarkable displays by the RCAF team of "Flying Frogmen." The Scuba divers, amused the crowds in their glass tank by playing with an eel someone had playfully placed into the water. Demonstrations were shown on the use of the diving equipment under water.

The dog show, which included entries from a wide area, entertained the crowds of over 1000 which were in attendance on each of the two nights. Twelve different breeds were represented. Included was a bloodhound shown by Tom Murphy of Kingston, toy pomeranians and chihuahuas by Mark McDermott of Kingston and a St. Bernard owned by C. M. Cawker of Foxboro.

A stage show was presented for the jam-packed Community Centre under the direction of Bob Wood. Picton Heights provided three musicians and three singers for the show.

Many fine exhibits were on show to please those interested in camping, boating, travelling and outdoor living. Interest was also added by displays of wood carving by Cory Ellen and an exhibition of guns and pistols owned by Jack Welsman, both from the Picton area. Work done by the Senior Citizens' Club, which is Kinsmen-sponsored, drew much attention. The show was officially opened by Mayor H. J. McFarland and County Warden B. Hepburn.

MANY GOLFERS OUT

Picton Golfers were out in full force Sunday to open the season's golfing at Picton's Golf and Country Club. Many players took advantage of the fine weather after patiently waiting out the long winter.

U.C.W. TEA

On Saturday evening the United Church Women held a birthday tea in the church hall. The 12 tea tables each represented a month of the year and were decorated according.

January, New Year's; February, Valentines; March, St. Patrick's; April, April showers; May, May Day; June, the June bride; July, Dominion Day; August, Harvest; September, (Asor flower of month); October, Hallowe'en; November, Thanksgiving and Armistice; December, Christmas.

Guests sat at their birthday month table. Some months seemed more popular than others. A bake table also was well patronized. Guests were present from Plainfield, Moira and Thomasburg.

TRUCKERS' CODE

LONDON (CP) — Truckers carrying loads of tea up and down England's M1 highway know each other and flash their headlights when they meet. When Peter Greaney did not get the wave and a call from a strange driver, he remembered that a truck had been stolen and tipped police. Later, a gang responsible for hi-jacking £20,000-worth of goods was rounded up.

Queen's Alters Requirements For Engineers

KINGSTON — A change in admission requirements affecting students entering the first year of applied science (engineering) that will become effective in September 1966 was announced today by Queen's University.

At present, students must have completed their Ontario Grade 12 in high school, and in addition, have Grade 13 standing in English, mathematics, Physics and chemistry. Beginning in 1966, the additional requirements of a language, history, biology or geography will be dropped.

Dr. J. H. Brown, Dean of Applied Science, explained this move as an essential part of the Queen's plan to expand the opportunities for student engineers to study the humanities while at university.

"Engineering training at University in the past has emphasized technical matters almost to the exclusion of education in the humanities and social sciences," he said.

These subjects were expected to be taken care of sufficiently in the high schools and not taken up as part of University education in Applied Science. Now the University has arranged its courses of study so that the humanities, social sciences and a wide range of other university subjects will be available to engineering students as part of their regular courses.

Dean Brown noted too that this change at Queen's is in accord with the recommendations for improving Grade 13 (units) standing set by the Ontario Department of Education's Grade 13 Study Committee. As the committee proposed, Queen's expects freshmen engineers who conform to this new requirement to be better prepared in English, mathematics and the sciences which are the basis of engineering programs.

The prospect, he said, is not only for future engineers who are more broadly educated, but also more advanced technically.

Dean Brown also observed that the engineer today is not cut off from the requirements of his society.

"He must be prepared to design, construct and operate facilities that are consistent with the interests and requirements of the nation and the world. Only if he is familiar with and appreciative of the needs of his society can the young engineer make the most of his talents for the welfare of society to which he contributes through his professional talents," said Dean Brown.

Male Nurses Desegregated By Association

TORONTO (CP) — Man has finally won a round in the battle of the sexes. Male nurses have been desegregated by the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

A resolution sponsored by J. N. Ruddock and Ed Thrasher of Ottawa, asking that male nurses be desegregated and that the association discontinue the practice of listing the 250 male nurses in the province separately, was approved Saturday at the annual meeting.

A MAY TRIBUTE

"The fairest thing we can experience is the mysterious." — Albert Einstein.

Can you suggest what the following local historical facts have in common?

John Walden Meyers, (1st founder of Belleville) received a commission of Captain in the year 1782.

The Town Meeting (the first form of Municipal Government, carried on in a purely democratic manner and held in the parish church or some other convenient place in the parish) appointed Captain Meyers as Moderator, in 1791.

The first Masonic Lodge, formed by Captain Meyers, was consecrated in 1801 and held at the social and business centre, Simpson Lodge, what is now the southerly side of Dundas Street between Front and Pinnacle Streets.

Moira River to require slides to dams upon it and its tributaries, assented to in 1846.

Belleville Incorporated as a town in 1849.

What have the above facts in common?

As you may have guessed, they all occurred in the month of May !

"But surely," one may protest, "there's nothing unusual about May's role as custodian of historical events. The self same role is entrusted to all the months of the year."

Agreed.

And yet — May along with her regular duties fills still another role. A unique one: a miracle maker.

Note upon May's arrival how our hearts sing with delight at the sight of bare, sculptured branches turning into leafy boughs where birds set up housekeeping as they spill their silvery notes on the soft warm air. Of flower-petals splashing the countryside and city gardens with riotous color.

Each year it is as if it had never happened before.

Wisely Father Time knows if such a miracle happened every day it would no longer be a miracle, for, declares Joseph Wood Krutch, "the faculty of wonder tires easily," and cannot live in a "continuous awareness of things which alone is true living."

While Albert Einstein adds: "The fairest thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the fundamental emotion which stands at the cradle of true art and true science. He who knows it not can no longer wonder, no longer feel amazement, is as good as dead, a snuffed-out candle."

Day of May, how welcome you are!

Speaking of May, which also brings us Queen Victoria's birthday, we suppose you might enjoy the following story entitled "A Month Saved a Queen", thoughtfully sent in by Mrs. Mary Beamish, 206 John Street, which we submit with pleasure:

"It was a wet foggy night as the late Queen Victoria was resting in her cosy home of Sandringham. Word had come to the Queen for her urgent return to Buckingham Palace, for affairs of state had taken a serious turn for the worse.

The decision of her train was told to make all haste back to London, but consistent with safety. The Queen was quickly discussing events with her advisors in her coach.

Suddenly there was a screeching of the brakes and the train brought to a hasty stop.

Guards surrounded the Queen for fear of a hold-up, the conductor got out and walked to the front of the train. The driver and the engineer were scouring around to see who it was that stood in front of the train, waving frantically in black.

Both men declared they saw this person. Now he was nowhere to be seen — just vanished.

However, going on ahead, they came suddenly upon a bridge over which the train would have passed in a few more moments. It had collapsed into the swollen stream. It was only about 300 yards from the engine.

Somebody had warned them and then disappeared. Loud calls were made but no response. A strange figure in black had prevented a disaster, but there was absolutely no trace of him.

Apparently so, until as the men were walked back to the train, the engineer noticed the head light of the engine. He climbed up and noticed a big black moth in its last throes.

It had evidently flown direct to the headlight with such force there was little left of it now. The moving wings cast a shadow on the headlight which this strange phenomena which alerted the driver.

It appeared to the engineer as someone in a cape waving their hands frantically — and just at the right moment to prevent a terrible disaster.

The reason for the moth, we understand, are in the British Museum as the moth that saved a Queen's life."

BELLEVIGNETTE: In kindly recollection of Mrs. Beverley, Miss Madeline Young, 53 Queen Street, enabled us to learn that Owen Wellington (Edward Robert Bulwer Lytton, Earl of Lytton) wrote the lines ending "... but where are they Roy Armstrong, the bride's brother and James Glenn, the bridegroom's mother.

A reception was held at the Bridgetown's Hall in Belleville, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a black two-piece dress with beige hat and accessories and a feathered pink and white carnation corsage.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a navy blue dress with matching hat and accessories.

For a wedding trip to Muskoka and Whitney the bride wore a three-piece pink suit with matching hat and accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The bride was honored with a miscellaneous shower given by Patricia O'Brien; and a miscellaneous shower given by Donna Thompson.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ashley, West Huntingdon, are happy to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Barbara Ellen, to Mr. Leonard Thomas Lalonde, son of Mrs. Wilfred Yakob of Actinolite and the late Albert Lalonde. Marriage to take place in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, Ontario, May 29th, 1965 at 2 p.m.

BMHA Ladies' Aux. Sponsors Social Event

A most enjoyable event took place in Club Canara on Saturday evening when the Belleville Minor Hockey Women's Auxiliary sponsored an evening of dancing.

Due to the playing of a several-mile game it was felt that the crowd was somewhat smaller than anticipated. It was hoped that a larger number of parents would have attended due to the fact that there are approximately 700 boys playing minor hockey in the city with proceeds of the event going for their welfare.

During the evening spot dance prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. A. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Morrison and by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Buchanan. A number of door prizes kindly donated by local merchants were drawn by the Women's Auxiliary president Mrs. G. Smith with the lucky numbers announced by Ed Adamson, president of the BMHA. At this time Mr. Adamson expressed appreciative thanks to the sponsors of the event, especially to Mrs. Smith and the executive and members of the committee who were Mrs. A. Atkinson, Mrs. J. Buchanan and Mrs. Adamson and Mrs. E. Clarke.

The Ray DiFruscio Orchestra provided music for dancing and one of the highlights of the evening's entertainment was a lively vocal rendition by Mr. Russ Soules.

Nurses Vote For Passage Of Collective Bargaining

TORONTO (CP) — The Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario voted unanimously Saturday to press for passage of proposed collective bargaining legislation by the provincial legislature.

The vote came on the last day of the association's three-day meeting attended by more than 2,000 delegates.

Until the legislation is passed, the resolution urged nurses to press for collective bargaining "in any way deemed advisable . . . to meet the wishes of nurses in individual employing agencies."

Lloyd Sharpe, the association's employment relations director, said in answer to a question from the floor that he does not think the procedure would weaken the association's position in dealing with the government.

Another resolution not passed unanimously, split nurses into two groups for negotiation purposes — managerial and non-management nurses.

Some delegates said they felt it would be almost impossible to separate the two groups since nurses in small hospitals sometimes double as supervisors at night and would fall in both categories.

A unanimous, standing vote of confidence in the association's leadership was given at the end of the meeting.

GROUP DISSENTS

A rebel group within the association, the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Nurses, had called leaders of the association sub-cratic.

They threatened to break away from the association and form a rival group.

Another resolution eliminated non - voting associate membership. All members, including those not practising, will be full members.

Higher and provincial elections will be held every two years, with provincial presidents limited to one term.

The provincial minister of health was eliminated from the board of directors, where he sat as an ex-officio member. Both Le Roux, leader of the CAPN party, and it would be incongruous for the minister to sit on the board while the nurses are approaching the government for collective bargaining rights.

A basic annually salary for a nurse in Ontario was set by the meeting at $4,200, with increases of $324 a year. Nurses with a university certificate would get an additional $600, a bachelor's degree would be worth $900, and a master's degree would add $1,440.

The association cannot dictate salary, but it suggested the salary scale as guideline in individual negotiations.

The nurses also called for a 35-hour week to replace the present 40 hours.

Women to Invade Trading Floor of Montreal Exchange

MONTREAL (CP) — Women will still not be allowed on the floor of the Montreal Stock Exchange for the first time come October.

Oddly enough, automation is responsible for the fall of one of the last of the male bastions.

When the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges move into Montreal's new skyscraper, Place Victoria, 16 women will replace the "chalkboys"—the ones who write the bids of the traders on the floor on chalk boards.

But instead of chalk boards, the women will use the newly-designed machines that handle the details of trading, transfer them immediately to a board that at the same time show on television or theatre offices.

As console operators, the women will have to learn to be speedy on computer keyboards and to operate coolly amid the hubbub of a white Bible-crested with red sweetheart roses and hyacinth florets.

FAMOUS INDIAN SOUP

Mulligatawny is the subject and it is for the poor and rich, and for plain and fancy eaters.

It all started with a super market selling cut-up turkey. There, nestling beside the tinned quarters and breasts and legs, were big packages of turkey backs at 19c per lb.

Now you could your old-hawkeye transform the most plain turkey backs into wonderful dishes for your dinner guests — many — that's how! I've made Turkey Mulligatawny, individual turkey pies, turkey-stuffed mushrooms and turkey sandwiches.

When I asked the butcher for 8 lbs. of turkey backs he gave me such a huge parcel I wondered at my folly. But after I'd gone to work on them everything turned out fine.

To get the turkey meat for the Mulligatawny (below) I put the raw turkey backs in my pressure-ing kettle with 8 cups cold water and simmered them, covered, for 2 hours, when the meat was ready to fall from the bones. I let the backs cool in the lukewarm in the broth then lifted them to a big kitchen tray and slipped the meat from the skin and bones. I strained the broth and discarded the skin and bones. It is an economical way to obtain turkey meat from back bones than it is from chicken backs but you still have to be careful to remove all the little pesky bones that try to slip through unnoticed.

I had 6½ cups solidly packed turkey meat from $1.55 worth of backs. I used 3 cups for the Mulligatawny. If you follow my recipe, freeze away and freeze the remaining turkey meat for next week's turkey pie recipe, or use it for luncheon sandwiches or turkey a la king or croquettes.

TURKEY MULLIGATAWNY
(Famous Indian soup - could be mainecamp for guest meat-makes 2½ quarts)

(Note: Of course you know you can use whole chicken or chicken backs and broth instead of turkey in this recipe)

3 tablespoons butter,
1 garlic clove, chopped,
3 teaspoons (1 tablespoon) best-quality curry powder,
⅔ cup raw long-grain rice,
1 apple, chopped,
1 onion, chopped,
1 carrot, chopped,
1 teaspoon (1 tablespoon) salt,
8 cups strained turkey broth (or chicken),
3 (or 4) cups chopped turkey meat (or chicken),
3 tablespoons corn-starch,
½ cup 18% cream (or milk).

In very large pot or kettle melt the butter and gently saute the garlic, curry powder, rice and rice until rice takes on a golden straw color. Add the apple, onion, carrot and apple, salt and broth and bring to boil and cook gently for 20 minutes. Add turkey meat and cook gently 10 minutes longer. Stir cornstarch into cream to make a smooth paste and stir into soup until thick and boiling. Pour soup into hot soup tureen and serve to 12 to 14 guests or your own doting family. Leftovers are even better on second day. A lawyer friend of ours said "Mary it's marvellous."

Women's Study Guild Discusses Conservation Methods

A well planned and well-presented program on Conservation was given to the Women's Study Guild at the April meeting held at the home of Mrs. G. Winhara.

Pointing out the lack of conservation in the past, Mrs. H. G. Wylie said: "Man battling with elements of nature in his struggle for a living found it easier to destroy than conserve. When the settlers first came to this country, Canada abounded with wild life. The Indian and they cleared the tilling, did not always prove to have the best soil, so the settlers moved on, seeking better farmland, without replanting."

Dividing the subject matter into four main parts, air, water, air and human resources, Mrs. Wylie showed how careless use of these has had disastrous results.

SOIL DETERIORATES

In the past, erosion, lack of rotation of crops, breaking up of grasslands, clearing of forests and poor farming methods resulted in deterioration of the soil. Draining of swamps and lakes has lowered the ground water table. Modern demands for sanitation and increased use of water by industry cause an alarming demand for adequate quantities of water than ever before. Methods with the use of chemicals in detergents, its sewage disposal systems, industrial wastes, cause increased water pollution. Smoke and chemicals is the air in industrial areas, and the many respiratory diseases. The population explosion with its resultant problems of housing, better services, better living conditions, education and jobs puts a strain on all our resources.

Mrs. George Winhara said that the basis of survival is to learn the proper use of our environment, animal, vegetable and mineral. Using books, reports, pamphlets, newspaper clippings and news-letters as illustrations, Mrs. Winhart explained what measures the various levels of government are taking to remedy the situation. ARDA — the agricultural rehabilitation and development association, the Water Resources Commission and the Conservation Authorities of which there are 32 in Ontario alone, all are attempting to help conserve the soil, water, forests and wild life. The United Nations with its F.A.O., and its building of dams and drainage control facilities in other countries is doing conserving conservation internationally.

In conclusion she remarked that we should remind the people that this is their heritage which they must preserve, and suggested the possibility that automation might release young people to work at conservation projects similar to the C.C. camps in the U.S.A. during the depression years.

Mrs. R. Roulet presided for the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. Reeves. An interesting article on Tunisia by Miss Cecil Hill, a former Belleville girl, Njamou Srouma, was read by Miss Tickell. Mrs. E. Smith gave the devotions and Mrs. G. Maybee and Mrs. N. Meldrum were hostesses for the social hour.

Conservation of Heirlooms

OIL PAINTINGS

Because the Couldrey Collection of European Antiquities includes many oils from the Victorian era our Museum staff is asked often about the care of paintings.

Oil paintings require little attention. Dusting, however, is important. If aging of the varnish layer has turned your picture dull, you can't do a thing- about it. Take it to a professional restorer for re-varnishing.

Oils are sensitive. If they're hung in the gloom they get to look dirty when they're packing in a layer of grime. Direct sunlight is the life of an oil painting." That's because the linseed oil used in pigment darkens with age unless it's exposed to the bleaching power of light. A dark painting will often brighten up if it's hung in a sunlit room. Don't leave it in the direct rays of the sun for more than five minutes or so each day.

Of course, there's the yellowing of varnish. It's a case of choosing between the lesser of two evils. If your picture has darkened hopelessly, try the daily sunbath treatment for a few weeks before packing it away in the attic for good.

If the dust of ages, mixed with fly specks and greasy finger marks has darkened your picture, try cleaning it this way:

Get some cotton batting and a bottle of white mineral spirits or turpentine. Take a piece of cotton about the size of a walnut, dip it into the solvent, squeeze almost dry and gently rub a small area. Leave this area in one corner of the picture. Do a small area at a time, using clean cotton for each area. Don't scrub away at a stubborn spot. If an area seems to need vigorous cleaning, consult domestic help.

While you're working on the painting, go at the ornate scrolled Victorian frame with turpentine. These gilded frames are made of plaster of paris and will soften if washed with water. Turpentine does the cleaning trick, especially if used with the aid of cotton on the end of a toothpick or wooden meat skewer.

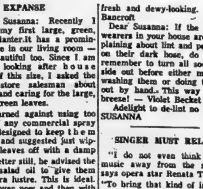
Next week — care of leather. Send questions to the Curator, Hastings County Museum, telephone 962-3731.

Susanna's Family Fare

BROAD EXPANSE

Dear Susanna: Recently I bought my first large, green, house plant and it has a prominent place in our living room — looks beautiful too. Since I am new at looking after house plants of this size, I asked the flower store salesman about dusting and caring for the large, broad, green leaves.

He warned against using too much of any commercial spray that is designed to keep them shining, and suggested just wiping the leaves off with a damp cloth. Better still, he advised the use of salad oil to give them that extra lustre. This is ideal. A wipe-over now and then with salad oil on a soft cloth keeps the leaves of this lively plant fresh and dewy-looking. — J. Bancroft



Dear Susanna: If the sock wearers in your house are complaining about lint and pebbling on their dark hose, do try to remember to turn all socks inside out before either machine washing them or depositing them out by hand. This way it's a breeze! — Violet Beckett

A delight to de-lint so neat! — SUSANNA

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

Mrs. D. Brenton presided at the Easter meeting of Canniffton U.C.W. afternoon unit.

Two leadership schools for U.C.W. members were discussed, one to be held in Kingston June 13, 19 and 20 and one at Albert College August 9 to 13, the theme at this one "Eternal Value."

It was decided to combine the usual monthly meeting with the dinner meeting on May 12 and have a short worship service, followed by a talk and film by Mrs. Margaret Bakay.

EASTER THEME

Mrs. Flossie Bird and her group had charge of the program, the theme "Easter."

Mrs. Helen Boyd read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Flossie Bird gave a fine talk on security.

"Across the world millions are looking for security — security from war, from fear, from want, from sickness, from the uncertainty of existence. God has provided an inner security. This security comes through faith and hope in Jesus Christ, who has overcome the world, sin and death, whose resurrection has assured us of hope beyond this life," said the speaker.

Mrs. A. Holgate gave an interesting reading.

There are two things in the world of nature surpassing all others in beauty — sunrise and sunset. The story of Easter is partly the story of sunrise, that first day of the week when Jesus rose. There never again was a chance of a day going down in darkness, after Easter had come to the believing world. There is always something of regret when the sun sets, the twilight falls, and the color fades.

As soon as Jesus had revealed Himself to the two disciples on the Emmaus Road, He suddenly vanished. Their perfect day had closed in mystery. But they were helped by the power of memory, and with the glowing truth of His presence which would be always with them.

Easter stands for life's victory through death.

Mrs. Flossie Bird gave a helpful reading and the meeting was closed with the benediction.

Compassion for Others Is Taught in the Home

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The man who lives next door has always been unpleasant and hard to get along with. We have tried to be friendly but nothing we did for him was ever acknowledged.

This neighbor has a large dog and a lot of people are afraid of him. Yesterday the dog came unto our property, broke into the pigeon cage and killed every one of my son's beautiful birds. The boy was heartbroken. He loved those birds and had bought them with money he earned doing odd jobs. (The boy is 14.) The neighbor was cold and hostile when he was told the dog had killed the pigeons.

We asked our son what action he wanted us to take against the neighbor. He answered, "We should go to church and pray for him. Anyone who has that much meanness in his heart must be miserable."

We are proud of our son and hope we can keep him thinking that way until he is a grown man.

Now we are asking your advice. Should we take some legal action against the neighbor? — OTHER CHEEK.

DEAR OTHER CHEEK — Your son is extraordinary and you have every right to be enormously proud of him. And, you can be proud of yourselves as well. This young man's lofty principles and sense of compassion were learned for the most part at home. Respect your son's wishes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am writing this for my buddy who is so mad he can't hold a pencil.

Blackie gave his girl friend, Trixie, $10 on her day off and told her to go to the track and have a good time. Trixie is a nice girl but she is also a dumb broad who doesn't know one end of a horse from another. Wouldn't you know it, she hit the daily double and dragged down $440.

Trixie called Blackie from the track to tell him the good news. She said, "I am going to buy you the best $10 tie in town." Blackie said if she was a lady she would have split her score. What do you say? — ON HIS SIDE.

DEAR ON — Sorry but Blackie didn't ask her to place a bet for him. He gave her the $10 and told her to have a good time.

I do feel Trixie could have been more generous. A C-note would have been more like it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother is 48 years old and she has been a widow for twelve years. Everyone remarks on her vitality and good looks. She could easily pass for 33.

About five years ago Mom started to go with Vic. He is a successful business-man (about 53) who never married. Although Mom always made good money she could never afford the luxuries she has had since Vic came into the picture.

Mom told us yesterday that she is quitting her job. When I asked how she would manage she said, "I have a small income from the real estate your father left me."

My father didn't own any real estate, I am sure Vic is going to keep her. My husband says a kept woman is not welcome in our house because sooner or later the children will be asking questions. Is my husband justified in barring my mother from our home? — ARDIS.

DEAR ARDIS — It's terribly sad to see one's mother sink to such a low level, but I don't feel she should be barred from your home. The name and the shame are hers, not yours.

If the children ask questions tell them Uncle Victor is a friend who takes Grandma places because she has no husband. No other details are necessary.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 30c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Board Plans Hospital Expansion

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual meeting of Campbellford Memorial Hospital was held in the board room on Friday evening with an attendance of about 20.

Chairman C. H. Davidson conducted the meeting. Mr. Davidson paid tribute to former board member ex-Reeve G. H. Fyfe.

Campbellford Memorial Hospital was completed late in 1953 and opened for operation in 1954. During the ten years of operation statistics show an increase in total income from $94,159 in 1954 to, $405,378 in 1964. Expenditures are comparatively increased from $100,341 in 1954, to $486,877 in 1964. The number of employees have increased in the ten years from 38 to 101, the total paid hours of work from 75,478 to 230,070, and salaries and wages from $61,463 to $336,139 in 1964.

A surprising figure while the number of adults and children treated has almost doubled in the ten years the number of babies born has remained almost the same, 232 in 1954 and only 225 in 1964.

During the ten year period, the Women's Auxiliary of Campbellford Hospital have contributed a total of $42,721. Chairman Davidson paid great tribute to the Women's Auxiliary. The hospital now has invested in short term bonds $208,000.

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Dr. T. Hackett chairman of medical staff spoke briefly. He first welcomed the press and expressed an opinion that hospital week should be given more publicity. Dr. Hackett expressed appreciation to the Women's Auxiliary particularly in the linen department, to Miss Eidt and nursing staff for competence and harmony, to the maintenance staff for their efficiency in the various departments and in particular to members of the community who had the foresight and courage to provide the building.

In regard to expansion Dr. Hackett stated the hospital must expand or turn patients away. If regionalization becomes established it is a fact that larger areas will assume huge complexes able to look after any type of surgery or illness and smaller hospitals will gradually become only first aid centres. To enlarge is an investment in the future. This is the year to do so, every year becomes more expensive.

Mrs. R. Fox spoke for the Women's Auxiliary, and said their main source of income was the card tournament each year and the annual bazaar. The sewing and mending committee meets each Tuesday afternoon. All linens are now in stock for 1965 unless an emergency arises.

A gift of bootees are given all new babies, patients' tray decorations were provided for Easter by Norwood public school, for birthdays by Campbellford public school, for Thanksgiving by Merryvale School for Retarded, for Christmas by Trent River United church.

Mrs. Fox assured the Board the Auxiliary would support any plans for expansion.

Secretary T. S. Linton, also chairman of the Planning Board stated discussions re expansion had been taking place by the Board over the past five years. The obstetric ward is more than sufficient but the medical and chronic wards are overcrowded. Five chronic beds were originally intended but ten have been constantly occupied and there is a waiting list.

Mr. Linton felt action should be taken this year in regard to expansion and outlined some of the plans.

ELECT OFFICERS

The election of officers was conducted by past Board member, G. S. Free.

Honorary members are; Mr. M. McDonald, Trenton, and Mr. A. Meyers, Campbellford.

Members appointed from other organizations are: Morden McIllan, Seymour township; A. Wartman, Percy township; Morley Tanner, Campbellford Municipal Council; other members were all re-elected, C. H. Davidson, F. S. Linton, A. Putman, R. Locke, F. Douglas.

MANY CHANGES

Miss Eidt supervisor of nurses stated that on October 1st, 1965, she would have been at the hospital seven years, she had seen many changes and demand for services had increased greatly. The situation in regard to nurses has improved, more nurses are available, inactive nurses have returned to active services. Miss Eidt felt some formal plan of orientation should be set up to help these nurses overcome the tension and reticence due to absence from active duty for period of time. Basically nursing does not change but techniques do and are frightening to those who have been away for some time. She stated the equipment was good, new pieces had been added.

Miss Eidt stated she hoped economic pressure will not reduce quality of patient care. She expressed her appreciation of the staff and board.

OUTLINES PROJECTS

Mr. G. Carr, administrator, outlined some projects of the past year. A team of radiologists from Peterborough visited the hospital weekly, the pharmacy has been renovated in such a more modern way, a film had been shown "Stand By For Life," Dr. Taylor had visited the hospital and was working on having the hospital accredited. The staff had been trained to handle patients in case of fire or other emergency, staff members had received special training on pressure trends, two nurses had been given an eighty course in geriatrics. He said it was most difficult to take adequate care of patients necessity in the corridors.

A dietician is employed on a consultant basis. Mr. Carr stated the Board of Directors are responsible for the Public Health Act and all its regulations, responsible to see that proper building and equipment are available to community. It is not merely a case of attending meetings, it is a case of solving problems. The hospital is now in Region 9 with prospect of being transferred to Region 7.

A general concensus of opinion of Board members was that expansion of the building should be considered in the immediate future.

Board members were given a Board dinner previous to the meeting.

This Aquarium Draws Viewers To Ocean Floor!

By LESLIE MILLIN

VICTORIA (CP) — Charles White's smaller investments sometimes eat his larger investments.

His vessel has to pass Canadian steamship safety specifications, even though it sits on the sea bottom and goes nowhere.

He must have a staff of trained gardeners even though the only plants in his business need no care.

"But business is booming anyway, with expansion in sight all over the place.

Charles White is head of Sinclair Investments Ltd., holding company that owns Undersea Gardens Ltd., and Undersea Gardens is an unusual but profitable business.

Basically, it is the reverse of an aquarium.

Where an aquarium brings marine creatures to the surface in tanks to be viewed by humans, Undersea Gardens sends humans beneath the surface in a tank—"and I think the fish enjoy watching them," says the manager.

Bill Starkey, manager of the original Undersea Gardens in Victoria, must cope with octopi and wolf eels as well as divers, fishermen and customers.

Customers are easy—150,000 of them streamed through the reverse-aquarium beneath Oak Bay last year.

They saw rat fish, sable fish, sturgeon, starfish, sea cucumbers, sea anemones, dogfish, sea feathers, king crabs and herbie the seal living in virtually a natural environment.

MOST ARE UGLY

They boarded what looks like a small ferry boat sitting low in the water, walked down a companionway to a lower deck, and looked through double-glass portholes at the sea creatures.

The sea creatures look back —and many of them can only be described as ugly with a capital Ugh.

But they are all specimens from local waters, captured in many cases by the same scuba divers who swim around the hull holding up interesting animals near the portholes.

Only a wire mesh separates the fish from the open sea.

"We don't feed them, we just replenish the pens occasionally because they eat each other," says Mr. Starkey.

"Herbie the Seal eats the octopi, and I wish he wouldn't because they cost between $80 and $100. We buy them from divers."

Mr. Starkey says the idea was original with Mr. White, the owner, and is fully protected by patents.

A similar operation is being started in Seattle, another is planned for California, and "our sights extend beyond North America," says Mr. Starkey.

The hulls cost about $250,000 each, and the fish range from a few cents to "a whole lot more than that"—in some cases more than $100 for the larger octopi.

Three divers clean and maintain the pens and are described as gardeners—but the only plant life in the place is kelp, which needs no care.

"The only flowers we have down here are animals," says the guide, "sea anemones."

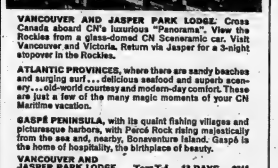
Public Travel In Army Camp To Be Curtailed



CAMP PETAWAWA, Ont. — Headquarters Camp Petawawa has announced that public travel and other activities in the Camp Petawawa Military Training Area will be greatly reduced this spring and summer over past years because of the increased training activity this year. Civilian entry into the Training Area will be closely controlled. These controls are necessary for the safety of the public, who have had reasonably free access in the past. There will be a great deal of military traffic on the Camp roads; and the field firing ranges and training areas will be in almost constant use.

Access to Algonquin Park, through the Camp Petawawa Military Training Area, is provided by a route signed from Highway 17 at a turn-off point about six miles past the main Camp entrance when proceeding West on Highway 17. If part of that route is closed, entrance to Algonquin Park may be gained via the Forestry Station entrance, near Chalk River. Travellers must remain on the signed routes.

Persons wishing to enter any part of the Military Training Area for any purpose, other than the Algonquin Park access route, must request permission beforehand. Authority may be granted subject to the conditions at the time. Long term authorization will not be granted. Application must be addressed to Headquarters, Camp Petawawa, Ontario.

Investment? I thought you bought life insurance in case something went wrong.

You do. But it's not just protection.

If it isn't, what is it then?

An investment, too. Your Mutual Life policy can give you insurance protection until retirement age. Then the same policy can be used to provide a monthly income for as long as you live.

No Foreseeable End For Civil War Now Raging In the Dominican Republic

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Dominicans are engaged in a bloody civil war that actually began four years ago this month and to which there is no foreseeable end.

It is being fought in the long shadow that Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo still casts over the Dominican scene.

This is the view of some influential Dominicans who are fearful, as are some Latin American diplomats here, that any peace effort that does not call for enforcing the total disarmament of the civilian population will be only temporary.

Thousands of civilians—even children—were handed weapons and ammunition by military officers who overthrew the civilian junta of Donald Reid Cabral a week ago in an attempt to bring former president Juan D. Bosch back to power.

"If a peace arrangement is made, these arms will be hidden for future use," said a businessman, recalling that years ago former president Ulises Hereaux also armed the civilian population and there was no peace for the next 20 years.

There appears to be too much at stake in the present conflict to guarantee other than a general peace agreement without the necessary safeguards, these Dominicans fear.

At the heart of the civil war is a genuine quest by most Dominicans for freedom from despotism that has ruled this country for most of its 121 years.

The trouble is that this hope is inextricably linked to the thirst for the political and economic power that Trujillo held for 31 years until he was slain in May, 1961.

Corruption, violence and lack-lustre leadership have marked the post-Trujillo period, which up to the present has known four different governments and seven heads of state.

The single effort to restore representative democracy was wiped out by the military with the overthrow of Bosch, who had been elected by an overwhelming majority in the 1962 elections.

The armed forces' excuse for tossing out Bosch, in September 1963, was a fear that his leniency with left-wing extremists would result in a Castro-type take-over. One of the fundamental motives behind the ouster, however, was considered to be a law that would expose to legal action the properties of people, including military figures, said to have benefited by association with Trujillo.

Many influential Dominicans viewed this as an unconstitutional application of double jeopardy since their cases were considered as adjudicated by the previous government.

Under these circumstances, it was not difficult for opposition political leaders to convince the army of the need to oust Bosch. The subsequent overthrow deepened the civilian resentment with the military, long discredited under Trujillo.

Sensitive to this feeling, young officers desiring a change were behind the present upheaval.

Regardless of the outcome, it is felt the fighting has resolved nothing; that it has merely deepened old resentments and that real peace depends on how receptive future leaders are to significant change in the country's social strata. There is at present too wide a gap between the wealthy and the Dominican underprivileged—almost a total absence of middle class, as in much of the rest of Latin America.

The general impression here is that the Dominican people has not changed significantly since the Trujillos were thrown out, except as one long-time American resident put it:

"Everyone is armed now and suspicious of each other."

William Bedford Is Vendor On Market For 50 Years

He now makes the trip "just for something to do", but one familiar vendor on the Belleville farmers' market has been selling garden produce to city customers for over half a century.

He is Mr. William Bedford, of R.R. 2 Belleville (Rednersville) who will soon celebrate his 90th birthday.

"Belleville market is nothing like it was years ago," states the stocky Ameliasburgh man before the turn of the century apprenticed as a blacksmith.

During his first year as an apprentice blacksmith he earned the equivalent of 60 cents a week, and in his fifth year earned $1.50 a week.

He came to Canada in 1905, worked in London, Ont. for a short while and then got a job at the Belleville Rolling Mills.

But the mills closed down and Mr. Bedford was out of a job.

DECIDED TO FARM

After a winter of vainly looking for a job in Belleville, Mr. Bedford decided to go farming. He had only 85 cents in his pocket when the family moved to the farm in Prince Edward county.

Then for many years he combined the work of a "smithy" with that of farming and on Saturday loaded up the democrat to bring market produce to Belleville market.

Over the years, Mrs. Bedford did the most of the market attending, but both Mr. and Mrs. Bedford for years were familiar figures on the farmers' market. Mrs. Bedford died 11 years ago, and a daughter, Mrs. Nellie Main, now is the mainstay of the family market gardening.

HAD BIG CLIENTELE

For many years Mr. Bedford has a wide blacksmith clientele with farmers bringing their horses, and custom work, for miles. He finally gave up regular blacksmith work about five years ago but still does the "odd job" on request.

All winter he remained indoors, but with the return of fine weather he will again be a regular market attender on Saturdays.

But as Mr. Bedford says he will be coming mainly for "something to do."

Horses Live in Luxury At Calif. Boarding School

CORONA DEL MAR, Calif. (AP) — Burnt Umber, a thoroughbred stallion, rose early, breakfasted, and hurried down to the swimming pool for a dip.

After a pretty girl curried his glossy coat he rolled awhile in a sandpile, then headed for the nearby beach for another swim. In the sea, this time. Burnt Umber likes to surf.

The C. V. Whitney horse is one of 25 thoroughbreds now boarding at a motel for horses on the bluff south of Corona del Mar, a section of Orange County sometimes called the Gold Coast of southern California.

Only millionaires can afford to live on the ocean front—a company in which the customers of the Hendricks' family stable fit with aristocratic ease.

Several horses insured for $1,000,000 have enjoyed the cuisine (grain and hot mashes, alfalfa, oat and timothy hay) rooms (extra large stalls with sun roofs) and sports facilities (swimming daily).

"There's almost always a few million dollars worth of thoroughbreds on hand," said pretty Connie Hendricks, wife of Byron, one of the twin brothers who boss the spread. "You get a few horses worth a half-million or a million, and it adds up pretty quick."

"Colorado King left just last week," said Byron's brother, Lee—who talks like all the Reed's innkeepers. Dropping names of celebrities on the guest list. "Then that's Rapido over there—there's a horse to watch."

Lee says horses fresh from Hendricks' are always good bets. He explains it this way:

"A horse gets sore legs running off of them do. Ever see a horse who wins a handicap and then begins to be dropped down to slower and slower races? It's because his legs are sore. Maybe he needs an operation. Maybe just a rest.

"The problem is keeping in condition while he's recovering. He can't run, or it'll make his legs worse. But he can swim. It keeps a horse in condition, and it saves him from that pounding on his legs.

"They've been swimming horses for exercise for a hundred years or more. But we think this is the first pool designed just for horses—a sandy bottom, a gradual slope, 130 feet wide, fresh salt water."

Prince Philip Came Close To Getting Drunk

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip says he came close to getting tight during his eight-week tour of Asia and Australia.

In a radio interview Sunday, Prince Philip told of attending a banquet in Borneo and being offered a harmless looking drink.

"It tasted very good," said the prince. "I had two tumblers of it.

"I could hardly walk afterwards."

The spectacle gave his hosts "immense pleasure," he added.

A spokesman at the Malaysian government's office in London said the drink apparently was a local Borneo brew known as tapai, made from tapioca roots.

U. S. Is Now in Showdown With Reds on 2 Continents

WASHINGTON (AP) —The United States now is in a showdown with communism on two continents. In both cases there has been criticism of the U.S. and particularly in Latin America where there were demonstrations in Chile and Panama.

In both cases President Johnson did a lot of explaining.

In Asia the climax came slowly, starting in the 1950s with aid for the South Vietnamese government. Then the U.S. sent military "advisers." Now U.S. forces in Viet Nam are totally at war with the Communists.

The pace was lots faster in Latin America, starting as a rescue mission last Wednesday and by Sunday night becoming a struggle against Communists in the Dominican Republic.

When Johnson went on television and radio last Wednesday night to explain why he was sending marines into the revolt-torn republic, he said the reason was to rescue Americans. He said nothing about communism.

But quickly administration sources, unnamed, were being quoted as saying they were suspicious that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro had a hand in the rebellion.

The revolt, begun by some young army officers, was against the three - man junta which, never elected by the people, had been running the country since 1963 when the elected president, Juan Bosch, was thrown out.

The young army officers' revolt last week got twisted when navy and air force leaders turned against them. The revolt wasn't crushed but got worse. The rebels were demanding the return of Bosch.

More U.S. troops were sent into the republic after Johnson's Wednesday talk. Friday he went on the air again, explaining again the troops had been sent in to protect Americans. But this time he added a new element.

He said "there are signs that people trained outside the Dominican Republic are seekin' to gain control" of the revolution. He still didn't mention Communists, but he got close to it.

There was a good deal of unfavorable reaction around the world to the American action, and particularly in Latin America where there were demonstrations in Chile and Panama.

Then Saturday night, Johnson issued a statement saying, without mentioning Trujillo's name, that he was not going to return to the brutal dictatorship of the past.

Meanwhile, unnamed sources within the administration were telling reporters that about 58 prominent Communists or supporters of Communism were directing the rebel fighting.

But the Washington Post correspondent who said many foreign diplomats in the Dominican Republic thought the Communists taking part in the revolt represented the noisiest element but had no dominant influence in it.

The United States continued to send in troops until by Sunday night it had 9,200 there. And Sunday night Johnson, as if trying to answer critics anywhere, went on the air again, this time for a half hour.

He finally reached the point of linking communism to the revolt. He said they had taken it over. Then he said, without mentioning a number, had been trained in Cuba.

Now, he said, the U.S. goal is "to help prevent another Communist state in this hemisphere."

SCIENTISTS SEEK MOA

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (AP) The ostrich-like moa may be dead as the dodo, but New Zealanders are keeping their eyes peeled just in case. The giant wingless bird is thought to have become extinct centuries ago, but doubtful sightings are reported from time to time. Scientists recently failed to find any on a remote island, but survivors of moas might still be living in unexplored forests.

St. Pierre-Miquelon Isles Expensive Piece of Land For the French Government

ST. PIERRE, St. Pierre-Miquelon (CP)—Three tiny islands with a land area about one-twenty-third that of Prince Edward Island, are France's last North American possessions. They are an expensive 93 square miles.

Most of the 5,200 inhabitants of the islands, 10 miles off Newfoundland's south coast, earn their living from fishing and related processing industries, and 4,300 of them live in this town.

The old colony costs France more than $1,900,000 a year to administer while capital works projects run more than $1,000,000 annually. They have been French territory since 1660.

The arrival last week of the special army police from Paris disturbed the usually uneventful routine of the islands and sparked protests from residents who blamed Governor Jacques Herry for current political and labor unrest.

Celebration of the traditional European Labor Day Saturday, during which the special police relaxed, danced and took photographs, was followed Sunday by mayoralty and council elections in St. Pierre.

Mayor Joseph Lehuen and the slate of the municipal council were returned to office 3 days after a citizens committee had issued a proclamation which said, in effect, that a vote for Mayor Lehuen would be a vote of non - confidence in the governor.

The committee was behind several demonstrations and a three-day general strike to protest the arrival of the militia-men.

The dispute arises from what the committee says is the failure of the governor to get sufficient funds from Paris to make promised pay raises to waterfront workers.

Meanwhile, the economic and political future of these islands is tied with the French government.

No one here seems to know exactly what France continues to maintain the islands. Local officials say only that France has hopes of making St. Pierre a great base of operations for the foreign fishing fleets in the northwest Atlantic.

The islanders themselves say they are French and want to remain under French rule and stay on the islands. Any suggestion that France might some day let the islands go to Canada is met with disbelief.

The future seems bright. More North American tourists are finding their way to the islands and the foreign fishing fleets are considering leaving old established bases of operations in favor of St. Pierre.

The main attraction for the fleets is a new $3,000,000 waterfront and harbor development being financed by the European Common Market countries and due for completion in 1967.

Before St. Pierre can reap the harvest expected from the harbor development, residents admit some changes will have to be made in the legislative and administrative policies of the colony.

Recently, longshoremen were granted a raise of 10 cents an hour when they threatened to go on strike and not service three Polish ships. After several hours of bargaining, the raises were granted by Albert Briand, president of the general council, the colony's legislative body.

However, after the ships were serviced, the raises were rescinded and the longshoremen were told they must go back to the previous rate of 75 cents an hour.

The increases were later granted again by the salaries committee of the general council and Briand, an appointed representative of the French Chamber of Deputies resigned, saying the raises would seriously affect the economy of the islands. He said it would increase living costs and deteriorate the standard of living.

Gives Reason For Coming To Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Polite, well-mannered Canadian children were part of the reason Ethel Van Der Breggen, recently chosen Canadian Mother of the Year, moved to Canada from Venezuela.

Mrs. Van Der Breggen, who arrived in Ottawa Sunday to begin a week that will include visits with Prime Minister Pearson, Governor - General Vanier and other officials, was chatting with reporters.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Der Breggen now live at Weyburn, Sask. with their seven children but spent 14 years in Venezuela.

She said the family considered Australia, the United States and South Africa "but Canada was attractive from so many viewpoints . . . the Canadian children who came out to Venezuela to visit their parents seemed so well - behaved and nice."

Another reason Canada was chosen was that "university fees are relatively low and schooling is free" compared to her native Holland where there were fees for primary and high school.

She was chosen Canadian Mother of the Year in a contest sponsored by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

The frothing white waters of the rapids section of the Moira River at the old Lazier's Dam in north Belleville attracted about 30 "Kayers" from Eastern Ontario on Sunday. Fifteen kayaks shooting rough water below the dam thrilled spectators lining the banks. Top picture shows two "Kayers" about to push off above the dam. Smaller pictures give indication of the rough water encountered on the way to Victoria Park.

The blue haze of belated spring mantelled the tree skyline of Prince Edward County "across the bay." Ole Sol heralded his dawn salute with spires of light shafting the coral pink of the eastern horizon.

The bleak of a brilliant May dawning suffused the placid surface of the bay freckled with the dark dots of boats of hopeful pickerel fishermen.

But the beauty of the scene was lost upon the frustrated Waltons. Some of them, like their opposing day counterparts had ghosted the haunts of the elusive walleye all night—with the same result. Little or nothing.

The fishermen accepted the refusal of the pickerel to co-operate in their stride. One by one they left. At eight o'clock Sunday morning eight boats were anchored off the mouth of the Moira. At eleven o'clock only one or two remained within cyo-range of Victoria Park.

The heralded Pickerel Derbies of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the Belleville Fish and Game Club were out-and-out disappointments as far as results were concerned.

A consensus of veteran anglers I interviewed in the park; along the waterfront and in Bob Blaind's Sports Shop early yesterday morning was:

"Spawning two weeks late; water too cold; wait another ten days; warm rains needed."

It wasn't the pickerel fishermen's weekend to "howl," but their counterparts of the pike and trout breed at least at something to giggle over.

The rainbows were biting at Shelter Valley and the Ganaraska River at Port Hope. Les Saunders and Archie Longhourst each brought home five-pounders with a two-pounder accompaniment.

Another informant told me that more good hauls were recorded "even if we had to walk over the smelt schools to get at them at the mouth of the Ganaraska."

I was given the story of a game warden who got his men and a ducking into the bargain. Seems the night previous to opening the three boys engaged in a little spearing practice with the rainbow the target.

They were wading in the river accompanied by a floating wash-tub. A spear would flash and a tasty rainbow was "tubbed." When the "law" caught up with them they had fourteen beauties in their floating crock. The officer nabbed two of them, was shoved into the water by the third—and they're looking for him now.

The pikemen of the piscatorial battalions did not come home empty-handed. The "spoils" were nibbling heartily off Saugwyn Creek near Mississauga.

Twenty-one averaging between three and five pounds were hooked within an hour. Harry Hall with Bill Coates hauled seven 4-5 pounders ashore in quick time as the big-mouths showed a definite yen for their Williams Wobblers.

A small horde of moppet anglers testified that the mudcats were biting "off the pumphouse" while flatfish also showed signs of halt hunger.

More people with more time, more youngsters with more money are two of the reasons there is a definite upsurge in interest in fishing, Bob Blaind told me.

Bob, whose shop was open all night Friday said this is indicated in the fact that his business volume on opening day this year far exceeded that of a year ago.

"The day of the Huckleberry Finn angler is a thing of the past," he said "The youngster of today wants no part of a bamboo pole, a bent pin and a worm. He wants modern tackle just like dad's —and he gets it."

"And fishing is becoming more and more a family affair," he said. "Look out there." I looked through the window and saw a big station wagon disgorging a man, wife and four boys.

They entered the shop and left a sizable order. During the two hours I stayed in Blaind's shop between 40 and 50 assorted youngsters—some of them girls—came and went with different items of tackle.

"These are the real fishermen who fish for fishing's sake and the kicks they get from it, no matter what's on the other end of the line," Blaind said.

"Adult anglers soon classify themselves," Bob said. "You get pickerel experts, trout experts, musky experts and others. But the youngsters are the real guys who get as much fun out of landing a panfish as their dads hauling in a big trout, pickerel or musky."

Beliveau Leads Habs To Cup Victory

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—"It was courage and desire and spirit that won for us . . . and it was him too," said David Molson, Montreal Canadiens' freshman president, gesturing toward team captain and Conn Smythe Trophy winner, Jean Beliveau.

That about summed up the happy ending for the Habs Saturday night after their 4-0 shutout of Chicago Black Hawks brought them their first Stanley Cup in five seasons.

Beliveau, who had a difficult first-half season, was declared winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding player in the playoffs—the first time the award has been given.

JEAN BELIVEAU . . . Resting on the table beside the new trophy was the Stanley Cup — professional hockey's highest team award.

"There's nothing, just nothing to compete with winning the Stanley Cup," a happy Beliveau said, as he stood framed by the two trophies. "The other trophy (Smythe) is nice and I'm pleased to win it, but this was the one I was after."

Beliveau, asked about his late-season playoff spurt, said: "It's hard to explain. I just kept working and the harder I worked, the stronger I got. There's nothing like hard work.

Praising the team effort, he added: "This is the best of the six championship teams I've been on."

Coach Toe Blake also praised the team effort which brought him his sixth cup—the most for any coach in National Hockey League history and one more than Clarence (Hap) Day of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Blake said although injury troubles had made it a hard year, he was "really happy for these players — especially for fellows like J. C. Tremblay, who proves he belongs with the great stars of this game."

Both Blake and Beliveau declined to discuss their reported retirements.

Canadiens also came up with a steady reminding performance from Lorne (Gump) Worsley—who had never before appeared in a Stanley Cup final.

However, Worsley is known throughout the league as a "money" player and Blake told his second-guessers that Worsley started because he was less likely to be nervous than Charlie Hodge, Canadiens' regular goalie over most of the season.

Two of Saturday night's goals were scored on power plays and added to the awesome total of 31 accumulated by the Habs in their two playoff series.

TAKE QUICK LEAD

Montreal registered all its four goals in the first period. Beliveau counted his eighth of the series at the 14-second mark and Chicago never recovered.

His left winger Dick Duff got a goal while Bobby Rousseau on his right side came up with three assists. Rookie Yvan Cournoyer and Henri Richard were the other Habs marksmen, while Beliveau got an assist and Duff two in addition to their goals.

It was Canadiens' 12th cup victory, a record which surpassed the one they shared with Toronto Maple Leafs at 11 apiece.

The Hawks and Habs set a record for the most penalties called in a playoff series at 135, nine more than the mark set by Toronto and Montreal last year.

The Habs set records for both the most penalties and most penalty minutes accumulated by one team in a playoff series, 71 and 183. The previous records of 64 and 126 were set by the Leafs last year.

The second and third periods saw the frustrated and sometimes inept Hawks unable to penetrate Montreal's defensive wall.

In the only incident to mar the evening, the 15,740 fans turned on boots and jeers to welcome NHL president Clarence Campbell after the game.

Yelled down as he attempted the twin presentation to Beliveau, he finally was forced to shout into a microphone, but it's doubtful if many heard him.

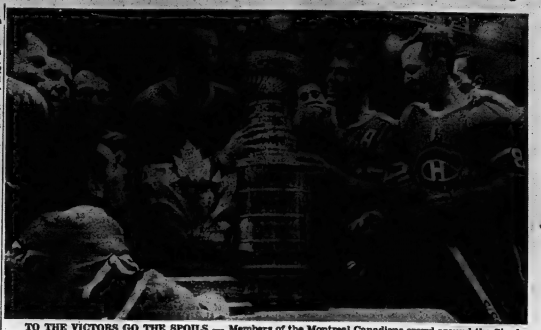
The Canadiens' victory kept the "homer" skein of the cup final alive. Neither Chicago nor the Habs won a game on their opponents' ice.

Chicago spokesmen were unanimous on one point—no alibis.

Coach Billy Reay refused to fault his netminder Glenn Hall on any of the four markers Saturday night. "He (Hall) should have been awarded the Smythe Trophy for his play in this series," the Chicago coach said.

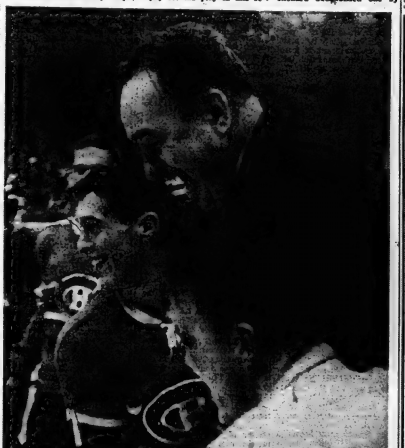
Following Beliveau's 14-second mark tally, Duff got his at 3:03 with a 10-foot shot on a perfect pass from Beliveau.

Montreal's power play came into force when little Cournoyer skated down the boards on a pass from Duff and doked Chicago defenceman Elmer Vasko before beating Hall at the 16:27 mark.



Richard backhanded one by Hall after the Hawks goalie made a partial pad stop. Again it was a Canadiens power play goal, with Phil Esposito sitting in the penalty box.

In all, Hall had 41 saves. Worsley wound up with 20.



There were 14 penalties, eight to Chicago.

Worsley summed it up when he said following the cup victory: "The whole team was just fantastic. I had the easy part of it.

"There's another thing about winning the Stanley Cup," he said straight-faced. "It helps pay the grocery bills."

Shoemaker 'Steals' Derby From Field

Bold Lad Tenth

By KELSO STURGEON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — His name is Willie Shoemaker but they should change it to Jesse James for the way he stole the 91st Kentucky Derby with an almost forgotten colt, Lucky Debonair.

Shoemaker, often not at his best in the Derby, out - rode, out-foxed and out-thought every jockey, owner and trainer Saturday in the 1¼-mile classic to gain what was to him his greatest victory.

"Shoemaker was great," said Lucky Debonair's trainer, Frank Catrone. "If he can ride like this and get that many breaks in the Preakness and the Belmont, it will be all right."

"It was about time," Shoemaker said. "I was getting tired of getting beat in this race."

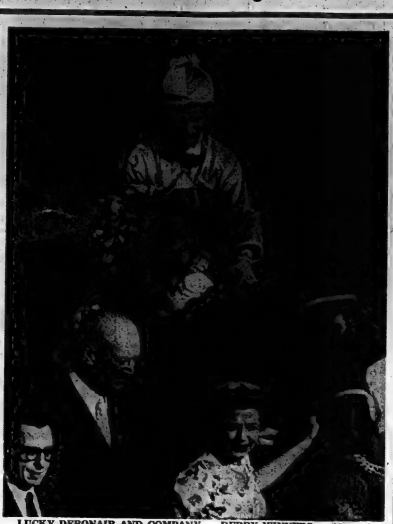
"That guy was a real sneak," said Mrs. Mary Keim, who saddled Mr. Pak in the Derby. "Shoe is a sly one and I know that every jockey in this race knew what he was going to do, but he still pulled it off."

Bill Winfrey, who trained the favored Bold Lad who finished a disappointing 10th — and second - place finisher Dapper Dan, agreed with Mrs. Keim.

"I don't want to take anything away from the winner," Winfrey said. "But Shoe was sitting in the catbird seat all the way."

They were at the half-mile in 47 1-5 seconds and at the mile in a slow 1:37. Shoemaker was breathing easier with every stride and when they hit the final eighth he turned his horse loose.

In four strides, Lucky Debonair was two lengths in front of Flag Raiser and full of run. Shoemaker went to the whip and held on to nip fast-closing Dapper Dan by a neck for the $112,000 first-place money.



Tom Rolfe, ridden by Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., finished third, Native Charger fourth, Hail to All fifth, Mr. Pak sixth and Swift Ruler seventh. The others in the order were Flag Raiser, Carpenter's Rule, Bold Lad and Narushua.

Shoemaker, who was winning his third Derby, brought Lucky Debonair to the finish line in 2:01 1-5, compared to the track record of 2:00 set last year by Northern Dancer.

Catrone said Lucky Debonair probably will leave Tuesday for the Preakness at Pimlico May 15. If all goes well there, it will be on to the Belmont Stakes, the third jewel in the Triple Crown, at Aqueduct June 5.

The $112,000 Lucky Debonair received from the Derby purse of $154,500 boosted his bankroll to $237,450. As the third choice in the betting, he paid $10.80.

The race was delayed for one - half hour by a fire that swept through the box seats in the fourth floor of the clubhouse, causing the evacuation of 2,500 of the estimated crowd of 100,000.

Six-Day Bike Race Under Way

TORONTO (CP) — Favorites Rick Van Steenbergen and Emile Severeyns of Belgium jumped into the lead early today in the first day of the six-day bicycle race here.

The race, which winds up Saturday night at Maple Leaf Gardens, is the first in Toronto in 27 years. About 4,000 persons attended the first night's racing.

Van Steenbergen and Severeyns were three laps tied in laps with three other teams but had 12 spring points more than their nearest rivals, the Swiss duo of Oscar Plattner and Hans Kaenders.

Sprint points are used to determine a winner in the event two or more teams are tied in total laps. They are gained by the first five finishers in a series of hourly races when competitors barrel around the track attempting to be the first team to win the short race of 10 or 20 laps — one or two miles within the main race.

In third place is the point standings were Palic ... and Freddie Eugen who represent Denmark in the marathon. They had 52 points.

Aurelio Battello of Montreal and Italy's Guisseppe Ogna, who form a Toronto team in the race, were in fourth place and tied in laps with the leaders. They collected 38 sprint points.

The other six teams in the 10-team race were all one lap behind the leaders.

Six of the teams represent European countries with another three from Canada and one from the United States.

Came From Behind

Ron Saylor, '65 'Mr. Bowling'

By GEO. H. CARVER
SPORTS EDITOR

Ron Saylor hit for three strikes in his final frame to snatch his fourth "Mr. Bowling" title at the Bowl-O-Drome over the weekend. His average for ten games was 258.9.

Saylor nosed out Joe Allan for the title and loot by two pins. Allan came up from nowhere in the last five - game series to grab a brief lead from Jim McKenzie. Allan's average was 256.2.

The scores were the second lowest in the 14 - year history of "Mr. Bowling" tournament. But they were consistent. Only 111 pins separated Tony Rumboskie tenth - place finisher from the winner.

Saylor is the only four - time winner of the tournament. He won it in 1952, 1953, and 1962. Jim McKenzie and Horace Ormshaw of Trenton each have won the title twice.

Sixty-five district bowlers entered the two - day tournament, Kingston sending a large delegation.

The high single award went to Bob MacKinder of Trenton with his 378. The high singles in the ten games were well over 300.

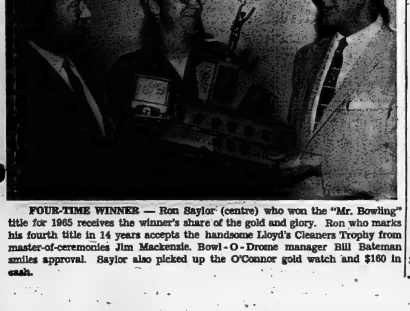
The first ten to finish came home "in the money". Saylor received $160 in cash; the Gerry O'Connor watch; and the handsome Lloyd's Cleaners trophy recently refurbished by Jack Fitzgerald plus a Labatt stein.

Second place Joe Allan took home $95 and a stein. Third place winner Jim McKenzie pocketed $32.50; fourth place Glen Hamilton (2537) $19.50 and fifth to tenth place winners cashed in for $13.00.

These were; - Jack Canning 2,522; Bill Lott, 2,516; Bud Petican 2,503; Eric Rank, Willowdale, 2,491; Ed Bowers, 2,489 and Tony Rumboskie 2,477.

The first six received the handsome gold - colored rieins from Ed Nicholson," Labatt's representative here.

High singles for the ten games were scored by Horace Ormshaw, 314; Cec. Hardwick, 316; Ed Bowers, 331; Wilbert Reid, 371; Bill Lott, 315; Bud Petican, 336; Tony Humieskie, 319; Joe Allen 318; Art Lockwood, 324; Don Smith, 321.



Each received five dollar awards. MacKinder top single winner of the tournament, received $20 and a silver tray.

Bill Griffiths of Kingston received a special prize for the lowest score of the tournament, 127.

Master Bowler Jim McKenzie acted as master-of-ceremonies at the post-tournament presentations. He presented the trophies and awards to the various winners in an excellent job well done.

Bowl-O-Drome manager said the tournament had run off very smoothly although he was disappointed in the lowness of the scores. "The winners aggregate of 2,533 was well below the record score of 14 tourneys, 2926 rolled by Leo St. Louis in 1961," he said.

Veteran bowler Harry Moore was on hand assisting in the official scoring.

FOUR-TIME WINNER — Ron Saylor (centre) who won the "Mr. Bowling" title for 1965 receives the winner's share of the gold and glory. Ron who marks his fourth title in 14 years accepts the handsome Lloyd's Cleaners Trophy from master-of-ceremonies Jim MacKenzie. Bowl-O-Drome manager Bill Bateman smiles approval. Saylor also picked up the O'Connor gold watch and $160 in cash.

Quinte Student Wins Chess Game

Three Belleville players participated Sunday in a 20-board match at Ottawa between a team representing the South-Eastern Ontario Chess League, and a team from Quebec, mainly from Montreal. Robert Snetjella, 17-year-old Quinte S.S. student, won his game on the 16th board from M. Mares of Montreal. Rae Swansburg won by default on the 19th board. The other Belleville player, Dick Payne, was the first player to go down to defeat, losing to L. Goudreau of Quebec City in a mere 17 moves. Results of the match were not complete when the Belleville players left for home.

Only One Pickerel Entered

The Belleville Fish and Game Club Pickerel Derby set some kind of a record this year.

Only one eligible fish was entered treasurer Fred Clarke said today.

The lone entry was caught by Leslie Bonisteel, 276 Coleman Street and weighed five and three-quarter pounds.

Bonisteel wins the derby first prize of $10. Second and third prizes were five and three dollars with no claimants.

Mr. Clarke said a club member named Middleton caught two pike, the largest weighing eight pounds ten ounces. This will be eligible for the yearly contests sponsored by the club.

The pickerel fishing both here and in Prince Edward county waters was a distinct disappointment to all concerned.

Approximately a small pickerel as far as contests go won the top awards in Picton. It weighed six pounds, four ounces.

While the pickerel yields were next to complete washouts, other fishing showed some signs of life. Pike were biting in some parts of the bay area here while rainbow trout yields were said good at Shelter Valley and the Ganaraska River at Port Hope.

Palmer Wins At Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Arnold Palmer slammed his way into golf's victory circle Sunday with a one-under-par 71 in the final round for a 72-hole score of 277 in the $75,000 Tournament of Champions.

In a fading finish, Palmer won by two strokes over Chi Chi Rodriguez, who fired four straight birdies on the final holes for a 70 and a total score of 279.

The 35-year-old Palmer who won the tournament in 1962, went one over par on two of the last three holes, but hung on to pick up the $14,000 winner's purse.

On the 559-yard 10th hole, Palmer holed out a 35-foot wedge shot for an eagle three and more than enough cushion to carry him through the round.

Doug Sanders was third at 281. Kel Nagle and Sam Snead tied for fourth at 283. Masters champion Jack Nicklaus was far back in the pack.

George Knudson of Toronto ended the tournament with a 289 total, worth $2,400. He shot a 74 Sunday.

The course is a 7,209-yard par 36-36—72.

Nicklaus, overwhelming favorite to win the tournament for the third straight year, wound up with a 78 for 290.

Stolen Trophy Returned

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Calder Cup Trophy that took Rochester Americans nine years to win was returned to them Saturday a few hours after it vanished from a victory party.

The Americans whipped Hershey Bears 6-2 in an American Hockey League playoff game Friday night to win the cup for the first time.

They took the cup to a nearby motel and a victory party. Early Saturday a player noticed the cup was missing.

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle reported that Saturday afternoon a cab driver appeared at the motel and presented a cardboard box to the still - celebrating players.

City Archers Win Trophies At Kingston

The Belleville Archers got off to a flying start for the outdoor tournament season over the weekend, competing in Kingston.

Twenty-one members of the Belleville club participated in the tourney and brought home a total of 13 trophies.

There were 70 marksmen in competition, from Belleville, Kingston, Black River, U.S.A., Montreal, Cornwall, Hamilton and Ottawa.

These centres have a league of their own, although it has no official name, and will hold shoots in the different cities throughout the season.

Top winner from the Belleville Archers was Mr. Flora Donaldson. He captured the overall handicap trophy.

Mr. Donaldson's wife, Eileen made it a family affair by winning the women's novelty trophy.

Plans are under way now for the Belleville club to host a tournament on Sunday, June 6, at their Wallbridge range.

Allan Cup Finals

Sherbrooke Wins Opener 7-4

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Despite his team's convincing 7-4 victory in the opening game of the Allan Cup finals, Sherbrooke playing coach Georges Roy says the Nelson, B.C., Maple Leafs are the first serious competition his club has met in its quest for top Canadian senior hockey honors.

"Nelson has a very good team, a well balanced club," Roy said after the Sunday night victory. "We'll have to play well if we're going to beat them."

Beavers scored three times in the first three minutes of the third period to win the game.

They led 3-1 and 3-2 after the first and second periods respectively.

The next games are scheduled to be played May 4, May 6 and May 8 with further games, if needed, May 9, May 11 and May 13. All games will be played in Sherbrooke.

The Beavers struck in the first minute of the third period when Bob Dupre scored his first two goals, beating Maple Leaf goalie Seth Martin. He scored his second 34 seconds later and Jean Richer rammed in another at the three-minute mark.

Other Sherbrooke scorers were Claude Cardin with a pair, Simon Nolet and Roy. Nelson scorers were Howie Hornby with two goals and Mike Laughton with one.

LINESMEN LATE

Martin had to come up with 34 saves while Beavers goalie Serge Aubry kicked out 28. The game was delayed 40 minutes while officials awaited the arrival of a linesman from Montreal.

Sherbrooke did not waste any time getting on the score sheet. Rene Pepin relayed the puck behind the Nelson defence to Cardin at the 10-second mark and the latter caught the corner of the net with a hard shot.

Hornby got the goal back after breaking through the Sherbrooke defence four minutes later. Sherbrooke again took the lead four minutes before the period ended when Cardin was left uncovered in front of the net and managed to whack a rebound into the corner.

Nelson fought right back when Laughton scored at 0:44 of the second, but Sherbrooke regained the lead when Skippy Burchell fed the puck to Nolet who drilled it past Martin.

The Maple Leafs, behind 6-2 after Sherbrooke's blistering early third - period drive, managed to get one back on Hornby's second goal but were thwarted time and again by Aubry's play in the Beaver net.

Although Sherbrooke slowed down in the latter part of the game, Roy ended the scoring on a breakaway at 13:22.

"Not only that. He wears suspenders under his shirt to keep his shorts up."

Leafs Split With Crackers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manager Dick Williams said his young Toronto Maple Leafs might throw away a few ball games but he didn't envision three errors on one play.

But that's what happened in the nightcap of the Leafs' International League doubleheader with Atlanta Crackers Sunday. The Leafs went on to win the game 4-3 anyway as the errors scored only one run after Atlanta won the 13-inning opener 9-8.

Woody Woodward scored on the Mets-like play in the sixth inning when he singled, right fielder Bob Guindon bobbled the ball allowing Woodward to go to second and threw wide to allow the Atlanta outfielder to go to third.

First baseman Tony Horton recovered Guindon's throw and relayed it to catcher Earl Averill — wide of the plate.

Woodward scored on the play.

Jacksonville Suns defeated Buffalo Bisons 8-3, Rochester Red Wings split a doubleheader with Toledo Mud Hens, winning the first 16-4 and dropping the second 3-2 and Syracuse Chiefs split their twin bill with Columbus, losing the first 5-4 in 13 innings and winning the second 10-1 in the nightcap.

In action around the league Saturday, Atlanta edged the Leafs 6-5, Buffalo won their second game from the Suns 5-3 after being blanked 9-0, Rochester dropped Toledo 4-1 and Columbus defeated Syracuse 4-2.

'Big Jean'

Initial Winner Smythe Trophy

MONTREAL (CP) — Probably the happiest player in the madhouse that was Montreal Canadiens' dressing room Saturday night was team captain Jean Beliveau.

The veteran centre star was declared the initial winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding performer in the Stanley Cup playoffs, following Canadiens 4-0 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

In becoming the first winner of professional hockey's newest trophy, Beliveau receives $2,000, made up of $1,000 from the National Hockey League and a similar amount from Canadiens' management.

The trophy was donated a year ago by Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. to honor the former Toronto coach, manager and president — now an honorary NHL life governor. It is awarded to "the most valuable player for his team in the entire playoffs."

CHOSEN BY GOVERNORS

Selection for the award was made by the NHL's six governors or their representatives. They filed ballots at the conclusion of Saturday night's game, submitting their votes to league president Clarence Campbell, picking the three top players on a 5-3-1 voting basis.

Beliveau, the Canadiens 33-year-old captain, won the Hart Trophy as the player judged most valuable to his team in regular season play in the 1964-65 season and again in 1964-64.

He won the Art Ross scoring trophy in 1955-56 when he wound up the season with 88 points on 47 goals and 41 assists.

Beliveau scored eight goals and eight assists in the playoff series to emerge as the fourth highest playoff scorer in NHL history with 107 points.

Tommy Davis Out for Three Months

Willie McCovey's Homer Beats Dodgers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie McCovey, whose size 13-D feet feel comfortable only when he's on the move, got out of the batter's box quickly Sunday, hammering Bob Miller's first pitch in the 10th inning for a homer that powered San Francisco Giants to a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

McCovey's homer, his second of the game and fifth of the season, was the first off Miller in 76 games and 143 innings dating back to April 1964, and put the finishing touches on a lost weekend for the problem-plagued Dodgers.

They got the complete diagnosis on outfielder Tommy Davis Sunday and learned that the 1962 and 1963 National League batting champion will be lost for at least three months with a broken right ankle. Davis suffered the injury sliding into second base Saturday night.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies took both ends of a doubleheader from Milwaukee Braves 6-0 and 10-7, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh Pirates twice 9-5 and 5-4, Cincinnati Reds swept New York Mets 9-4 and 10-8 and Chicago Cubs ended Houston Astros' 20-game winning streak, 6-3.

In Saturday's games Houston swept a double bill over Chicago 6-4 and 6-1, the Braves downed the Phillies 6-1, the Reds clobbered the Mets 9-4, the Cardinals nipped Pittsburgh 3-2 and the Dodgers whipped the Giants 4-2.

McCovey hit a two-run homer following Lowes Alou's single in the seventh inning and then put the Giants ahead to stay in the 10th. A wild pitch, a sacrifice and Harvey Kuenn's single produced an insurance run.

The Phillies got the opener out of reach with a four-run sixth inning bulk on infield hits by Cookie Rojas, Alex Johnson, a walk and a misjudged fly by Hank Aaron that brought in three runs. Chris Short checked the Braves on seven hits for a 4-3 record.

ALLEN SET PACE

Richie Allen hit a homer and two singles in the opener, then stroked a triple and double in the nightcap that raised his average to .394. Tony Taylor and Wes Covington homered for the Phillies in the nightcap, Covington collecting No. 6.

Tim McCarver played a key role for the Cardinals in the opener, starting a four-run fifth inning rally with a single, scoring the decisive run in the sixth after reaching base on Gene Alley's error and then driving in two runs in the seventh as Bob Gibson brought his record to 4-0.

Bill White finished the sweep with a leadoff homer in the ninth inning of the nightcap.

The Reds scored eight runs after two were out in the fifth inning to nail the opener against the Mets. Pinch - hitter Art Shamsky, batting for injured Frank Robinson, slammed a two-run homer and Leo Cardenas contributed two doubles to the uprising.

In the second game, the Mets rolled ahead 8-6 with a six-run sixth inning. But the Reds scored in the seventh on a double by Don Pavletich and Johnny Edwards' triple before Gordy Coleman hit a decisive two-run homer in the eighth. Pavletich and Edwards also homered.

Larry Jackson, the majors' biggest winner with 24 last season, picked up his first 1965 victory against the Astros by triggering a four-run, third inning Chicago outburst with a leadoff triple. Ron Santo doubled in two runs in the rally.

Defeat Leeds 2-1 In Overtime

'Pudlians' Win English Cup

By GEOFFREY MILLER

LONDON (AP) — Liverpool soccer team had bitter news in it. hour of glory Sunday.

Two of its greatest stars— left — back Gerry Byrne and right-half Gordon Milne — cannot play in Tuesday's European Cup semi-final against Internazionale Milan.

Liverpool returned home in triumph with the English Football Association Cup, which it won Saturday by beating Leeds United 2-1 in the final at Wembley Stadium.

Byrne, who played through most of the game with a shoulder injury, will be out of action for several weeks.

Milne, who is nursing an injured knee and failed to get fit in time for the Wembley final, still is not ready to play. He has withdrawn from England's team which will tour West Germany, Czechoslovakia and Sweden this month.

Liverpool's win at Wembley again emphasized its staying power. The teams were level after 90 minutes and battled for another half - hour on the lush Wembley turf — a field that notoriously eats up a player's energy. But it was Liverpool that had the winning punch at the finish.

HUNT SCORED

Their first goal didn't come until after two minutes of extra time when inside - right Roger Hunt netted from close in.

Eight minutes later, Scottish international wing - half Billy Bremner, who had moved up to inside-right, tied the score for Leeds.

Scottish international Ian St. John netted the winning goal nine minutes from the end of the period.

Welsh international Gary Sprake starred in the Leeds goal and helped force the game into extra time although Liverpool dominated the play.

A capacity crowd of 100,000 watched the game in drizzling rain. They paid £89,000 ($267,000).

Inaugural Broadcast Via 'Early Bird' Was Success

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—On Nov. 18, 1951, the Edward R. Murrow presided over the premier of CBS' See It Now program as the cameras showed live first the Atlantic and then the Pacific.

"For the first time," said Murrow on that day, "people were able to sit at home and look at a bullfight in Barcelona a May music festival in Amiel, an open - heart operation in Houston, Russian sailors dancing on a British ship in Portsmouth, England, ceremonies in Quebec and Halifax and other events in North America and Europe.

It was the live, two-way inaugural broadcast via the satellite "Early Bird," which now is available for commercial telecasts. Made up of bits and pieces from all over, it was primarily an explanation and demonstration of its operation, and something of a miracle of production logistics.

The events came on about as scheduled. The commentary of the BBC announcer on Comel and dam building in France and Italy, cricket in England and pelota in Paris sounded as if he were broadcasting from an echo chamber. The great lie, however, was that the picture of baseball practice in Houston's astrodome was lost in a portion of North America.

The broadcast was an important communications landmark and suggested Early Bird's potential. Some of the features were awkwardly staged, as when the FBI, Scotland Yard and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police exchanged pictures and information on wanted criminals. Scotland Yard asked their North American colleagues to watch for suspects in England's great train robbery, which occurred almost two years ago.

The sight of a group of doctors in Geneva, Switzerland, watching a heart operation in Texas was impressing.

All three major U.S. television networks and the CBC carried the pool program.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How does it feel at 29 to have the movie world practically at your feet?

"Very nice," said Julie Andrews, "but slightly bewildering. And a little frightening."

Before her three pictures were released, she said, "I had more freedom. I can't go anywhere now without being recognized." Autograph hunters close in. She accommodates them.

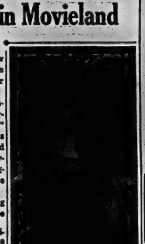
Success gives her the feeling that every new project must be better than the one before.

And despite 17 years' experience—she started at 12, as a vaudeville singer with her mother and stepfather — her stage, camera and microphone fright seem gradually to increase.

The singing, dancing and acting star now is the most sought-after performer in Hollywood.

Many producers want her first picture, in which she played the high-flying, vocally magnificent governess, is the biggest film in Disney studio history. Walt's accountants gleefully predict a worldwide gross of $87,000,000.

PRAISED BY CRITICS



Critics hail Miss Andrews as "an incomparable artist" . . . "the greatest musical talent show business has produced in 25 years" . . . "incontrovertibly great." In film more than a year, her price per picture has risen to $700,000 from $150,000.

After Sound of Music and The Americanization of Emily, she wants roles "as varied as possible."

Her present about-face is as a missionary's wife of the early 1830s in an adaptation of James Michener's Hawaii. In the story she becomes seasick, bears a baby and finally dies.

Then comedy, The Public Eye, in London next February, followed by biography, The Gertrude Lawrence Story, in Hollywood the following June.

She shares her rented Beverly Hills home, formerly Boris Karloff's, with daughter Emma, 2½, a housekeeper, a nurse and "a mad, wacky, toy white poodle." She and husband Tony Walton, a set and costume designer, run up "enormous" long-distance phone bills. Her current film assignment is in London.

AT THE BELLE — Paul Newman smacks the most unusual and controversial role of his brilliant career in MGM's powerful drama, "The Outrage", in which he plays a ruthless Mexican bandit who kidnaps Claire Bloom and her husband played by Laurence Harvey. "The Outrage", opens Today at the Bells Theatre in Belleville.

Foul Pop Wins for Senators

Baltimore Sweeps Pair From Yankees

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

A foul pop has instilled new life in the last of a vanishing breed.

Jim King hit the pop that enabled Washington Senators to edge Cleveland Indians 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader Sunday. The feat so exhilarated the 32-year-old pinch hitter that he drove in the decisive run with a single in the Senators' 4-3 second game triumph.

King is the last of the 26 players the new Senators collected in the American League expansion draft for $75,000 each.

Now in his ninth major league season, the last five with Washington, King hadn't had much success this season in his battle to remain in the majors and save the 1961-vintage Senators from extinction. Before Sunday's doubleheader, he had only two hits in 28 trips to the plate for an .071 average.

But manager Gil Hodges selected the outfielder to bat for Ken Hamlin with one out and the bases loaded in a 2-2 game in the eighth inning. King quickly became involved with another original Senator, Cleveland first baseman Chuck Hinton.

He lofted a pop fly into foul territory just beyond the Indians' dugout near the stands. Hinton caught the pop but failed to keep Ed Brinkman from reaching from third with the winning run.

SNAPS 2-2 TIE

In the eighth inning of the second game, King batted for Joe McCabe and popped a single to centre field that scored Don Lock with the run that snapped a 2-2 tie.

Elsewhere in the AL, Minnesota Twins edged Chicago White Sox 3-2 in 10 innings before losing 5-4, Baltimore Orioles swept New York Yankees 4-2 in 10 innings and 6-0, Boston Red Sox took two from Detroit Tigers 2-1 and 10-3 and Kansas City Athletics defeated Los Angeles Angels 9-5 after losing 10-8.

In Saturday's games Chicago nipped the Twins 2-1, the Tigers shaded the Red Sox 9-8, Cleveland whipped the Senators 7-2, the Yankees downed Baltimore 9-4 and the Angels defeated the Athletics 3-1.

The majors' defending home run champion, Harmon Killebrew, finally clouted his first homer of 1965 Sunday, a two-run blast in Minnesota's eighth inning that tied the game 2-2. Then, in the 10th, he beat Chicago with a run-scoring double.

FLOYD PROVIDES HOMER

The White Sox won the nightcap behind Floyd Robinson's first-inning homer and a two-run shot by Don Buford in the third.

Veteran Robin Roberts stymied the Yankees on six hits for his third victory against no defeats. He allowed only one Yankee to reach third while the Orioles wrapped up the second game on Paul Blair's homer in the third and Luis Aparicio's run-scoring triple and a balk in the fifth.

Two producing singles by John Orsino and Jerry Adair in the 10th inning won the first game for Baltimore. New York's stung by Curt Blefary's two-run homer in the second, had caught up in the ninth on Joe Pepitone and Tony Kubek.

Boston edged Detroit in their opener on Felix Mantilla's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the sixth inning. The Red Sox had an easier time in the nightcap, as Dalton Jones and Mike Ryan combined for seven runs batted in. Ryan hammered two homers, his first in the season.

Los Angeles rookie Paul Schaal also clubbed a pair of homers in the Angels' opening game victory against Kansas City, but the Athletics struck back in the nightcap as Bill Bryan drove in three runs with a homer in a five-run first inning.

Improper Replacement Dooms Plugs

By EUGENE R. WILMOR

Efficient engine combustion is often doomed by sloppy spark plug service. This is no slap at the unprofessional hand of the do-it-yourselfer . . . the careless or hurried mechanic owns his share of the blame.

Improper replacement practices — rather than poor plug cleaning and-or inaccurate gapping — are the major crimes. A common neglect, for example, is failure to check plug seats and hole threads for dirt, carbon and corrosion. Applying improper torque when replacing plugs is another fault. Too much torque is more likely than too little, and can damage threads as well as change spark plug gap settings.

In any case, plugs that are badly installed are in for trouble. They will run much too hot, even at moderate speed operation, and you're bound to be in the market for replacements before many miles have passed.

Y. L. asks: "When exhaust valve leakage causes delayed combustion to take place in the muffler or exhaust pipe — as you recently wrote — isn't this a dangerous situation?"

Right . . . and this should have been stressed. The pipe or muffler can get red-hot enough to start a car fire.

From F. L.: "How do you determine when an engine knock is due to a main bearing . . . without taking the motor apart?"

If a main bearing is loose, there is a havy dull knock or thud heard with regularity when the engine is pulling under load.

H. B. writes: "Could dirty sludgy oil be enough to cause hard engine start--ing?"

Absolutely — in fact pistons can actually stick to the cylinders because of very gummy oil.

From M. J.: "This may save some motorist all the time and money it cost me to find out why my engine kept missing at practically all speeds. It was all caused by the switch — the very last part checked out!"

Agreed — a failing ignition switch can cause a weak spark, but it's usually among the last suspected. Many times, the coil is unjustly blamed and replaced before the guilty switch is unmasked.

U. S. SEALS OFF DOMINICAN REBELS

Another Switch In Saigon Rule Said In Offing

Stevenson Defends U. S. Action

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States today prepared a detailed reply to Russian charges that the Americans have embarked on "policy of naked force" designed to topple any Latin American government that does not suit them.

Ambassador Adlai Stevenson defended armed U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic during a four-hour UN Security Council session Monday. He said that he would answer Russian and Cuban charges in detail at a later meeting. The council scheduled another session at 3 p.m. today.

Stevenson said he was confident that the verdict of history would be favorable to the U.S. when the full significance of the Dominican revolt is known, "it will be clear that the role of the United States forces has been constructive and not destructive of freedom in the Dominican Republic."

The American spoke after delegates of the Soviet Union and Cuba had harshly denounced the dispatch of marines to the Caribbean country.

DEMAND WITHDRAWAL

Both Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko and Cuban Tabio demanded that the council condemn the U.S. military action in the Dominican Republic and call for the immediate withdrawal of U.S. forces.

Stevenson told the council the U.S. action was taken "to protect the Dominican people from a Communist seizure of their country." He said recourse of the entire Western Hemisphere were being mobilized to this end.

Diplomats generally agreed that the council would accept a U.S. proposal that the Dominican problem be left in the hands of the Organization of American States.

The council meeting Monday was devoted entirely to speeches by Fedorenko, Stevenson and Alvarez Tabio. Rarely has a session heard so much name-calling as this one. Fedorenko and Stevenson remarked that the Soviet attack on the United States was reminiscent of the Stalin era.

Fedorenko, who requested the urgent meeting, said the marines were "mercilessly exterminating Dominican patriots" to keep a "bloody and rotten

SAIGON (CP)—Reports of an impending shakeup in South Viet Nam's military high command circulated in Saigon today. There were reports that some changes in the civilian government also were likely.

It was expected that the Armed Forces Council, a consulting military body that at various times has served as a national junta, would be dissolved.

It also was expected that a civilian defence minister might be appointed to replace Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu.

The capital was buzzing with coup rumors, and armored vehicles were seen at key places around the city Monday night. But insiders said they saw no immediate danger of trouble.

Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, powerful commander of the South Vietnamese Air Force, said last week he hoped the Armed Forces Council would be dissolved soon. He said it was important that all military leaders quit politics and devote their full efforts to the war against the Viet Cong.

The appearance of the armored vehicles appeared to be more of a precaution than an indication of impending trouble. Leaders of at least two earlier attempted coups still are at large in the country.

Four Children Die in Fire At Almonte

ALMONTE, Ont. (CP)—Fire destroyed a tinder-dry log house here today killing four children and a fifth person found the bodies in the ruins.

The victims were the four youngest children of Cecil Colp, an unemployed carpenter and his wife, Peggy. All were of pre-school age.

A neighbor, Mrs. Cliff Robertson, said the blaze broke out when Mrs. Colp was at a neighbor's house telephoning a grocery order. The father was absent.

Mrs. Cole and the neighbor tried to rescue the children, but were driven back by the flames. The Coles have three other children, apparently away when the blaze started around 10 a.m. EDT.

The Coles lived in a converted barn in this town of 3,400 about 30 miles west of Ottawa. The dead are three boys and a girl. The youngest was a six-month-old boy.

Salvador Quake Kills 43

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—Shocks around San Salvador were evacuated today as earth shocks continued. Reports of the toll in Monday's quake ranged from 43 to 130 dead.

The government declared a state of emergency and started mass inoculations against typhoid and other diseases in the areas of heaviest damage.

Many homes were destroyed and at least 4,000 were damaged. Shocks on the outskirts of San Salvador were hardest hit.

The official residence of U.S. Ambassador Paul Castro suffered about $35,000 damage.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said there were no reports of deaths or injuries among the 21 Canadians living in El Salvador.)

The government put the death toll at 43 and said about 300 were injured. Other reports said as many as 130 were killed and 400 or more injured.

(Reports received at U.S. military headquarters in the Panama Canal zone said there were 101 dead and 300 injured. A spokesman said no request for U.S. assistance has been received.

The quake cracked part of the runway of San Salvador's airport and damaged the new multi - million - dollar terminal building. Planes were diverted from the field for hours, but traffic was restored later in the day.

The first shock came at 4:02 a.m. Other shocks came at 9:02 a.m. and at noon. A ham radio operator said he counted 16 tremors.

The quake apparently centred in San Marcos and in Santo Tomas, about 10 miles southeast of San Salvador. Extensive damage was reported in Ilopango, Mexicanos and other towns near the capital.

San Salvador was ruined by earthquakes in 1854 and in 1873 and was jarred heavily in 1917. The city, founded 400 years ago, has a population of about 160,000.

It is the main manufacturing and commercial centre of El Salvador, a Pacific coast central American country of 8,236 square miles and about 2,500,000 people.

Fire Destroys Three Cottages

BARRIE (CP)—A four-alarm fire five miles south of here destroyed three cottages, a garage and a shed Monday night.

Residents assisted local firemen in fighting the fire which burned over eight acres of bush and forest land.

Lands and forests department officials have warned of the fire danger in the Barrie district because of recent high temperatures and high winds.

Horse Guards Parade Afoot, Equine Flu Sweeps Stables

LONDON (CP)—Equine flu is keeping London police horses in their stalls, de-horsing mickeys and causing red-faced cavalrymen to change the guard on foot.

About 40 police horses were ill today and authorities were hoping to keep it from spreading to any more of London's 200 police horses.

Tourists were denied the most colorful free show in London—the changing of the guard at the Horse Guards parade on Whitehall.

The guard was being changed on foot, unto lucet secret session today to debate means of halting the mounting Communist menace in the Orient.

The United States charged at the opening session Monday that the fighting in Viet Nam is being escalated by the Communists from guerrilla fighting to hand-on warfare. George Ball, U.S. undersecretary of state, pleaded for more military help from other members of SEATO for the fight in Viet Nam.

France and Pakistan brushed aside the plea. New Zealand said it would study the request. Australia announced last week it would send an infantry battalion to Viet Nam.

Other members of the alliance—Thailand, the Philippines and Britain—supported U.S. policy in Viet Nam but made no immediate comment.

China has claimed that the Viet Cong now controls fourfifths of South Viet Nam with a population of 10,000,000.

A New China news agency dispatch from Hanoi said the Communist forces, in the first month of this year "destroyed 400 strategic hamlets, liberated 100 villages, 301 hamlets, 32 reinforcement zones, 8 towns and district towns with a population of more than 858,000."

U. S. Navy Planes Pound Rail Link With Viet Cong

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. Navy jets late Monday pounded North Viet Nam's main railway link with the Viet Cong guerrillas south of the border while a company of U.S. marines spent the night in Viet Cong territory outside the U.S. air base at Da Nang.

Two Skyhawk planes from the U.S. 7th Fleet carrier Coral Sea dropped 250-pound bombs on the tracks 90 miles south of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi.

The jets also hit 11 freight cars on the track with rockets and made strafing runs with 20-millimetre cannon, severely damaging six cars.

In three other raids in the same area, six Skyhawks hit two military trucks and one freight car with high explosive bombs.

Some of the pilots said they encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, but all the planes were reported to have returned safely to the carrier.

On the ground, the marines staged their biggest patrolling operation to date in South Viet Nam outside the Da Nang base.

There were no reports that the 200-man marine company made contact with the Viet Cong during the patrol, several miles south of the air base.

But the move extended still further the scope of the marines' operations in setting up a defence perimeter around the strategic air and missile base.

Until now, only small probing patrols of 50 men have been sent out at night from the marine lines.

Budget Clears Hurdle

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon's budget cleared its second—and perhaps final—hurdle of the six-day budget debate Monday night as the government defeated a Conservative no - confidence motion, 111-to-100.

The Social Credit members and independents Lucien Baiter and Remi Paul joined with 102 Liberals to vote down the motion that condemned the government for not introducing tax cuts for lower income groups, for raising old age pensions or abolishing the sales tax on production machinery.

The standing vote came after Mr. Gordon, in a 25-minute defence of his budget, said support of the non-confidence motion meant a vote against the 10-per-cent cut in the basic income tax, an expanding economy and increased employment.

Another formal vote can be forced before the budget debate is concluded Wednesday but usually the main motion is passed without this.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Monday he hopes to make a statement today concerning the government's plans for House business following the Quarte Bridge over the Ottawa River and out to the San Isidro Air Base, from where they will be flown to Puerto Rico.

Progress Made By OAS Team Seeking Accord

From AP-Reuters

By LUIS UCHITELLE

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—Negotiators of the Organization of American States reported progress today toward a peace agreement in the Dominican revolt as U.S. forces sealed off the rebel stronghold in Santo Domingo.

Ricardo Colombo of Argentina, head of the OAS peace committee, said the negotiators had made "a great deal of progress toward a solution of the crisis" after a three-hour session with the rebel military command. He declined to give details.

The committee met with Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, rebel military commander and his aides in rebel-held territory in downtown Santo Domingo. Earlier the inter - American group met with leaders of the military junta set up by Brig.-Gen. Ellas Wessin y Wessin.

U.S. marines and paratroopers moved in the insurgent stronghold in the downtown area by establishing a corridor across the remaining exposed edge of the sector. He avowed purpose was to assure a flow of supplies to an international safety zone set up for the protection of foreigners. Since the revolt erupted nine days ago they have been supplied by helicopter.

TAKE UP POSITIONS

The U.S. troops took up positions in houses, alleys and garages. Some residents chatted with the soldiers, but others glared resentfully.

These operations have cost the lives of six American soldiers with another 42 wounded, a U.S. spokesman said.

Caamano was killed Monday by sniper fire while a paratrooper was reported killed by accidental explosion of a hand grenade. It has been estimated that 1,000 Dominicans have been killed and 1,200 wounded in the revolt.

Meanwhile some 300 refugees at the Ambassador Embassador Hotel prepared to evacuate.

The refugees were to be taken through the corridor opened up Monday by paratroopers from the U.S. 82nd Airborne Regt. The rebel-held area consists of streets of the old section of Santo Domingo and by U.S. marines stationed in a three-square-mile international safety zone secured earlier.

Securing the corridor means the refugees, who have been living in the hotel at the western end of the international zone, can be moved three miles across the city to the government set up by Donald Reid Cabral and his civilian junta.

"We made an agreement of honor that if by June 1 presidential elections had not definitely been fixed, we would rise in arms," he said.

Reid's regime apparently learned of the plan, he said, and cancelled the commissions of the seven officers.

"I am sure I would have been next," Caamano said.

U. S. Is Fearful Dominican Reds May Turn to Guerrilla Warfare

WASHINGTON (CP - AP)—The Associated Press reports that U.S. officials see a "serious possibility" that as peace is restored in the Dominican Republic Communist leaders might go underground or take to the countryside with plans to wage a campaign of terror and subversion.

AP correspondent John Highower said that the U.S. government is represented by authorities here as being determined to make sure that as far as possible all measures will be taken to eliminate any danger of a Communist seizure of power before U.S. troops leave the war-torn Caribbean island.

President Johnson said in a speech here Monday night that he proposes to put the lid on our rocking chair with our hands folded and let the Communists set up a government anywhere in this hemisphere."

Johnson reaffirmed in his talk to a meeting of the AFL-CIO Building Trades Department his determination to see that peace is established and that the Dominican people are given real hope of stability in their government. U.S. forces leave the Dominican Republic When those requirements are met, he said, "we'll be the first to come back home."

Meanwhile, Congress appears to be in a mood to give President Johnson a blank cheque for military spending to support his actions in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Usually budget-conscious Republicans objected Monday that the administration might ask Congress for more military funds this year.

Paul Martin on Visit to Cyprus Finds Violence Under Control

NICOSIA (CP) — There are still sandbagged rifle pits, barbed wire and roadblocks in Cyprus, but the violence has been brought under control, at least temporarily.

This is the appraisal Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister received today in his talks with Cypriot officials and officers of the United Nations peacekeeping force.

Martin visited the UN and Canadian headquarters and paid courtesy calls on President Makarios, Cypriot leader, and Vice-President Fazil Kutchuk, Turkish-Cypriot leader.

A Cypriot foreign ministry spokesman said in an interview that either an indefinite stay here by the UN force or its departure before a return to normal conditions would be fatal for Cyprus.

He said the government, though disagreeing with some aspects of UN mediator Gallo Plaza Lasso's report on the situation, still favors the continuation of mediation efforts.

Martin, in keeping with Canada's position as a peace-keeper on the island, declined to be drawn out on any political aspect of the situation.

Despite a relatively relaxed atmosphere, there are still several trouble spots on the island and at least two of them are under the close eye of Canadian troops.

These trouble spots are where cease-fire lines divide the Greek and Turkish communities. Only Greek reporters met Martin at Nicosia airport Monday night—because the Turks left the airport. Only Turkish reporters interviewed him Tuesday when he visited the inner city, which is under control of the Turks.

This is probably as good an example as any of the conflict besetting the island. Though there is now free flow of persons between the Greek and Turkish communities, they still don't trust each other.

Federal Election Campaign Expenses Limited

OTTAWA (CP)—Election campaign expenses of candidates will be limited to 10 cents for each elector in the constituency under legislation introduced in the Commons Monday by Justice Minister Favreau.

The bill also would limit the amount a political party could spend on a national campaign to 50 cents for each elector in the country.

Under the bill, candidates would be required to file a statement of their election expenses within 30 days of polling day. Failure to do so would result in disqualification from sitting in the Commons.

Seek Quarters for Psychiatric Clinic Here For Mental Health

It would be foolish to lose out on the possibility of having a psychiatrist for a full time mental health clinic in Belleville because of inadequate accommodation, this was the consensus of the board of directors of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association at their recent board meeting.

Mr. Stanley Johnston, administrator of the Belleville General Hospital, reported that he had been in correspondence with a psychiatrist who had shown an interest in the position of clinic director. He feared that the present lack of space in the hospital might deter an applicant from accepting the position.

The Mental Health Association board agreed if government funds were not available to rent accomodation outside the hospital that it would be a proper function of the Canadian Mental Health Association to undertake the rental of suitable space until some time in the new hospital is built. Dr. John Stock, Mr. John Pringle and Mr. Tom Lally were appointed to meet with Mr. Johnston to work out the necessary details and to look for suitable accomodation at a psychiatrist is hired.

HEALTH WEEK PLANS

Mrs. Josephine Reddick reported that plans were well under way for Mental Health Week which runs from May 1st to 7th. A film festival will be held on Monday and Thursday evenings at the library, Wednesday morning, Mr. Dick Gibson a psychologist from St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto will address student assemblies at B.C.I. & V.S., Nicholson College, Quinte Secondary School and Albert College. Wednesday evening a full length feature film, "The 31st Day" will be shown at Education Hall with a commentary and discussion led by Dr. Evelyn Williamson. The following week volunteer canvassers will take part in a city wide drive.

Mr. Keith Patterson, a rehabilitation officer for the Ontario Department of Health is accepting the position of handicapped persons. Those with physical, mental and emotional defects. The board examined the role that the Canadian Mental Health Association might play in the total after-care program - both in social and industrial rehabilitation. It was decided to appoint an after-care committee to investigate this increasingly important area of service.

Laser Beam Subject of Talk To AOTS Club

The A.O.T.S. Men's Club at Eastminster United Church held its regular Pot Luck meeting in the church on Thursday. The guest of honor was Mr. Paul Henri Lavallee, lecturer for the B. T. Co. of Canada, who spoke on the "Laser Beam."

Laser light - a light beam that can transmit voice, business data and television programs - promises to make today's science fiction not only true, but even obsolete, within a few decades, P. H. Lavallee, Bell Telephone lecturer, told the members.

"Since the idea of the Laser was first described, about five years ago, this discovery has inspired every major team of science," Mr. Lavallee said.

He pointed out that the telephone industry, Canada's biggest user of microwave facilities, is using out of radio and microwave frequencies. Scientists are looking for visible light waves for communications instead of radio waves.

LIGHT BEAM

Using a diagram of the spectrum of light frequencies, Mr. Lavallee explained the higher the frequency, the more and more messages they can carry. He said the Laser section of the spectrum, although relatively narrow, has room for about a million times more messages than the wide "range of frequencies we now use for communications purposes, because of its high frequency.

Comparing Laser light with ordinary light, Mr. Lavallee said: "This special kind of light comes marching out of the end of the tube like a regiment of soldiers ... in the form of a beam — all in exact step and in a narrow column," he said.

Discussing the uses of the Laser, Mr. Lavallee said: "At the moment it is only a laboratory tool, because it's all so new. Scientists and engineers have to catch up with their own achievements.

In the field of medicine, Laser has also found some uses. "Eye surgeons have used it to 'weld' detached retinas in human eye," said Mr. Lavallee.

USED IN SURGERY

"It has also been used to perform delicate brain surgery. Surgeons claim its precision-controlled beam can be used to perform operations on the finest surgical knife. It has been used as an instant coagulator and has been blended instantly," he said.

Mr. Lavallee used a demonstration set-up to show how Laser could carry a voice between points. He used a telephone to talk into the telephone, which is connected to the Laser, the spoken words are converted into light waves, travel through space to the receiver, where they are changed back to sound waves again, and built up by an amplifier," he explained.

USERS ENCLOSED

He said the possible uses of Laser in industry are endless. The beam can blast a pinpoint hole in anything, even a hole a thousandth of a second, heating the steel to 10,000 degrees fahrenheit.

"This intense beam could be used to drill even the toughest materials ever known to man, and for the first time, permit us to weld dissimilar metals such as aluminium to brass or aluminium to steel," said Mr. Lavallee.

"Alexander Graham Bell once said that belief in 'the possibility' was the key to making ideas work. We have the idea — the Laser — and, let me assure you, we believe in its possibilities," concluded Mr. Lavallee.

A very enjoyable question period followed with Mr. Lavallee answering the numerous questions put to him particularly by the younger club members.

Realistic Apprentice Plan Advocated by Mayor Ellis In Speaking to Builders

Mayor Jack Ellis told the Belleville Builders' Exchange last night that there is a need for the industry as a whole if it presented a realistic apprenticeship program.

Noting that there is "a definite shortage of skilled tradesmen," the Mayor said that the possibility was being discussed of guaranteeing a full year's employment to apprentice masons in the hope that young men might become interested in the trade who was really a highly-paid trade.

Mayor Ellis predicted a definite increase in housing next year, but he added: "I am fully aware there are many difficulties in the way of such an increase in the Industrial Standards Act, but I suggest that the future looks good in the major metropolitan centres too, and while they cannot be compared to Belleville they can be endowed and a reasonable working liaison established with Quinte Home Builders' Exchange.

He said the Quinte Home Builders had a strong working organization but unlike the Builders' Exchanges and suggested such a liaison would benefit both parties.

"I'll not try and give you any answer to this problem (of variation in labor rates between prime contractors and housing contractors), but I do suggest there must be a solution and if it can be found, the contracting industry as a whole will this district can profit best-fit."

DISCUSSES SERVICES

Mayor Ellis said the most well-qualified contractors there were in the Belleville district, the best equipped and was of keeping unemployment to a minimum.

Discussing the services provided by the Exchange, Mr. Ellis said the Exchange should solicit plans from architects and engineers "for any and all projects in our marketing area."

"Some of these may not be used, but close liaison between the prime and sub-contractors in the Exchange here in Belleville with the architects and it would soon become automatic for architects dealing within a 10-mile radius of Belleville, to send plans to the Exchange with the accepted opinion that reasonable tenders would be received.

He said it would also become automatic for members to check the plan room regularly and be kept aware of work in the district.

"Another facet of a Builders' Exchange, one which they have with the plan room, is the creation of a bid-depository. Tenders and bids would be received and on some smaller projects Kingston and Peterborough are used."

Mayor Ellis said Belleville's ideal situation between Toronto and Montreal was one of the factors in trying to attract industry and if a bid-depository could be established and encouraged, the image of the Exchange would be greatly enhanced.

"You are well aware of the cut-throat, last minute bidding which can take place between prime and supplier when they need not be named. A bid-depository, properly used, will eliminate this practice."

ALL-TIME PEAK

Total construction in Belleville last year, according to permits issued, was $4,911,130, the Mayor said. "This year I predict the level of construction permits is going to hit an all-time peak."

He said the hospital project would go to tender in July, for approximately $8,000,000; a new $2,000,000 high school in June, a public utilities garage this summer or early fall, for winter construction, and he was sure there would also be construction on the site of the recent fire on Front St.

Mayor Ellis said the Exchange could help to create more work for contractors in the area. "For a number of years," he said, "we have been insisting that more and more work, which in the past has been done by city hall forces or public works, be let to tender. This is a constant uphill fight because many aldermen feel the public will not get as much can do it cheaper, and of course public works staff are prone to maintain the status quo.

"I am confident that many thousands of dollars of work of a various nature has been let to tender over and above what would normally have been open to public building. In this I am not politicking; in fact I am essentially sure I don't have to be public in this particular group. If this were not so I would not have mentioned the labor problems that I did."

NOT BEING CRITICAL

The Mayor said he was not being critical of the city engineer or his staff. "I just happens that I am aware of the construction industry to a much greater degree perhaps than any Mayor that we have had for many years."

"This is not, nor do I intend to try, to correct sluggishness all the misuse of bids practices and the lack of use of general contractors for city work. For one thing, each year I try something like that I am accused of partisan politics. While this is pure nonsense it gets a little difficult after a while. It's just a simple fact of life that when you have a specialized job to do you get a specialist to do it. Contractors are specialists."

He said the possible establishment of a Standards Committee of the Exchange would be of great assistance to the city in assisting it to develop good tendering practices and good specifications.

The Mayor said he was currently working on some method of trying to license all out-of-town contractors and sub-contractors to compensate for the disadvantage a local contractor finds when he is paying a business tax in Belleville. He was not sure he could accomplish this, but it would be much easier with a Builders' Exchange doing the spade work.

Anticipating normal growth in Belleville over the next 25 years, the city would have some 200,00 people, said Mayor Ellis. The Industrial Commission's program was beginning to bear fruit and he was certain that before the end of the year there would be new panels in the city district as well as the other buildings already mentioned.

On winter work, the Mayor said the city had had at least one major project each winter for the past four years and he hoped this would continue.

Exchange president Beverley Quinney presided.

Mr. Quincey will represent the Exchange at the Canadian Construction Association's conference in Ottawa from May 6 to May 8.

The national contest will be held in conjunction with the National So-Ed Queen conference to be attended by nine local members.

Theft of Paper From Box Cost Accused $25

For the third time in almost as many weeks police have hailed a Bellevillian to court for theft of a morning newspaper.

And again the 10-cent paper has cost the petty thief $25 and costs.

The accused, a foundry worker, stood in court chuckling while details of the theft — from the Globe and Mail deposit box at Dundas Street East and Foster Avenue this time — were recounted to Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The same 10 cents also gives the man a criminal record.

Spring Seeding In Full Swing In Quinte Area

With the better drained fields now dry enough to work, spring cultivation and seeding is now in full swing in the Quinte area.

Along almost every country road farmers are either readying cultivation equipment or have spring work underway and the hum of tractors is general.

But spring seeding is not the long drawn out chore it used to be.

Now tractors do the job in short order and on Saturday one farmer on the Belleville-Wellington road in Prince Edward county was seen with three tractors at work in one field.

Despite Plea Given Month

A Shannonville man today was sentenced to a month in jail for driving under suspension—after a plea had been made on behalf of his wife and family.

The sentence was passed on 23-year-old Wilson E. Marsh, who lost his licence last summer and earlier this year was given seven days for racing.

His service station employer pleaded that Marsh was the father of two children with a third one expected at any time.

"You've heard what this man has done," retorted Magistrate T. Y. Wills. "We don't have policemen to follow and keep tabs on every driver whose licence is suspended. The law has got to have some teeth. This man intends to drive his car in complete defiance of the law—and if he insists on doing it he will have to pay the penalty."

Belleville People Attend Mental Health Conference

Seven members of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association travelled to Niagara Falls last weekend to attend the conference and annual meeting of the Ontario Division, C.M.H.A. Those attending were Miss Kay Abbott, Mrs. Louise Hurst, Rev. Norman Hutchinson, Miss Olive Price, Mrs. Jo Reddick, Mrs. Janette Thompson and Dr. Evelyn Williamson.

They had the opportunity of hearing an excellent roster of speakers including Dr. John Morgan, pastor of the First Unitarian Congregation in Toronto, Dr. Frank Robinstein, director of social work at Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, Miss June Callwood, well known T.V. panelist and journalist, and Dr. John Griffin, general director of Canadian Mental Health Association.

Dr. Morgan stressed that mental health is everyone's business and that personal involvement in such a worthy cause is a necessity. It is not enough to tend one's own garden and let a few people carry the burden for the whole community, he said.

Dr. Frank Robinstein noted the importance of the lay person - the volunteer - in mental health services. He gave examples where the personal one - to - one contact between a volunteer and a patient had proven more effective than the psychotherapy administered by the professionals. He emphasized the importance of proper follow - up and after - care services, noting that in areas where this has been done rate of readmittance to hospitals have fallen from around 50 per cent to as low as 25 per cent.

Miss Callwood captivated the audience with her witty and intelligent presentation which she said was on behalf of the 75% of the population who function adequately in society most of the time but once in a while need help with minor emotional problems. She decried the lack of help available for these minor crises and imagined a service where a parent could phone regarding a child's minor case of jealousy or a teenager could drop in to discuss a problem. She deplored the fact that admittance to a hospital for psychiatric treatment was not available on a twenty-four hour a day basis.

Dr. Griffin traced the trends in service from the early years of the mental health movement to the present. He said our primary concern today is prevention of mental illness and early recognition and treatment. He, in common with other speakers, stressed the fact that mental illness was a community responsibility. In the very near future most mentally ill patients will be treated in their local general hospitals in the same manner as the physically ill receive treatment, he said.

An interesting panel discussion was held on Saturday morning to explain the aims and operation of Bill 118 of the Ontario Legislature. The Homes for Special Care Act. Under this Bill it is expected that over 4,000 patients from Ontario Hospitals will be moved into community nursing and boarding homes. There are chiefly older people who no longer require active psychiatric treatment but who in many cases have had nowhere else to go. It is felt that the Canadian Mental Health Association will have a large responsible role to play in developing community acceptance for these ex-patients and in assisting in their social rehabilitation.

Rev. Norman Hutchinson was named a Belleville branch representative on the Ontario Division board.

John Watson, 11, displays his knowledge of the semaphores at the Navy League inspection last night. He was awarded a communicator badge by Lt.-Cmdr. Joseph Jeffries for his outstanding signals display.

Annual Navy League Cadets Inspection Is Held Here

Lt-Cmdr. Joseph Jeffries of the RCN, Kingston, was the inspecting officer for the annual inspection of Navy League Cadets at their headquarters on South Front Street last night.

He was assisted in the inspection by Lieut. M. Bly, Commanding Officer of the Belleville Navy League, and his three officers, Lieut. Travers, Sub-Lt. Mercier and Sub-Lt. Shandrew. Andre Mercier, chairman of the Navy League Cadets, also accompanied the inspection party.

A total of 37 boys, aged 11 to 14, were inspected.

Lt-Cmdr. Jeffries said, "I saw a big improvement in dress and behavior from the last time I was here. There are still things lacking, but when over I see the improvements I witnessed tonight then I know a great effort is being made."

The inspecting officer criticized the boys for the untidy condition of their shoes. "The uniforms from the cuff of the pants up were 95 per cent good — there was only one cap that wasn't clean — but from the cuffs down, it was 95 per cent bad." He reminded the boys that looking after their shoes makes the leather last longer and saves their parents money.

"I saw only one lad who needed a hair cut," he continued; "and he wasn't too bad. I'd like to compliment the corps on the neatness and shortness of their hair. If you keep your hair cut like men, then it's much easier to be men."

The speaker cautioned members of the corps to obey the boys who have been given responsibilities and praised those lads who come to the Navy League to work and learn.

"It's the boys who are conscientiously working now who are getting the benefits from the Navy League, and it's those boys who will get ahead in later life because of the things they learn now."

Lt.-Cmdr. Jeffries praised those people who work so hard behind the scenes to make the Navy League a success. He presented three trophies and one special award. The trophy for the outstanding cadet was won by Doug Carran, 12, while Wilbert Redditt, 12, won the sailing trophy, and David James Magee, 12, was the recipient of the academic achievement award. A special award, the communicator badge, was presented to John Watson, 11, for his outstanding display of semaphores.

Ideological War

Once upon a time there was a war in the Congo, with government forces under President Moise Tshombe pitted against rebel forces. Tshombe had the support of white mercenaries under a Major Hoare and the rebels were in the usual tradition—they were against the government and established order.

They killed a lot of missionaries, and in one appalling massacre in a public square slaughtered a group of hostages before Belgian paratroopers intervened. Other groups of missionaries were rescued by Tshombe's forces.

Now this war seems to have petered out. It would be wrong, though, to suppose that all is calm in the Congo, for this enormous territory, along with all the other new political entities of the African continent is a target of the relentless ideological war that is the one constant factor in international politics today.

It may be wondered what legitimate interest communist China, for example, might have in Africa, if it is not to fill the ideological vacuum that has resulted from swift changes on the political scene on the big continent.

China has sent large delegations to countries like Ethiopia and the Sudan, and we may be sure their mission is not concerned solely with trade.

Then again, the South African defence ministry announced recently there had been at least ten sightings of unidentified submarines off the republic's coastline in February alone.

This lends credence to the belief that the Soviet Union has a fleet of long-range submarines being used for extensive reconnaissance missions. And whatever else may be said of South Africa it is still the most prosperous and most western-orientated country in Africa.

In other words subversion and the gathering of information about the other side, and the war of nerves that is one of the facts of political life today, still go on, unceasingly.

Depends on Viewpoint

Ottawa was raided by Britain Saturday.

The musical group known as the Rolling Stones came across the pond to send our capital city's teenagers into wild fits of screaming, shouting, fainting and no doubt, gnashing of teeth.

The Ottawa press roasted the teenagers for their behavior, calling it "more than just wild—they were ridiculous."

Perhaps, the teens were ridiculous to the Ottawa press and to grownups, but not to themselves. The whole affair is a question of relative values.

A seven-year-old girl thinks there is nothing in this world as important as her own doll Susie, except perhaps for her skipping rope. A 10-year-old boy would not trade his six-gun for one million dollars. And how about mamma, who would not dare be seen without a new outfit on Easter Sunday.

Fainting, screaming and shouting at the Rolling Stones, the Beatles, or whoever, doesn't prove anything except that teens will be teens just as kids will be kids and parents will be parents.

After all, the teens enjoyed themselves, and what is the harm? Better they should be fainting over the Rolling Stones than causing havoc out in the streets.

Why not let the teens act ridiculous when they are young? They will soon get over it and find other ways of being ridiculous.

Should Have Aided Constable

The other day we printed a letter from a citizen who was alarmed because nobody came to the assistance of Constable Sam Morgan of the city police on Victoria Avenue near Front St. a week ago. Constable Morgan was injured while making an arrest.

The citizen is right, of course. If those law-abiding citizens in the watching crowd had also been law-respecting, they would have come to the constable's aid.

Still, just as one swallow does not make a summer, one muddy stain on the city's record should not mislead us into concluding that the great majority of Belleville people do not respect the law. It could be pure coincidence that there was nobody with the desire to uphold the law and the courage to match this desire in that particular group of citizens at that particular time of night. Unless the incident is repeated, we need not feel unduly alarmed.

The present contains nothing more than the past, and what is found in the effect was already in the cause.—Henri Bergson in Creative Evolution.

Cramped Quarters, Archaic Equipment Plague Members

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It was back only three years ago, Early 1962.

And New Democratic MP Murdo Martin of Timmins was spelling off his secretary at the typewriter, addressing a mountain of envelopes while she read off the names and numbers.

When in walked Mrs. Colin Cameron, wife of the neighboring down-the-Centre-Block-hall NDP Member for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

Having to use a $10,000-a-year MP for addressing envelopes, that's how so, she told him.

And things have not changed much since then.

Except that what used to be $10,000-a-year MPs now rate better than $18,000 and if it was financially nonsensical to work them then as their salary permits stenographers, what kind of Parliamentary slap-happiness is it now?

You are paying your MP that $18,000 with fringe benefits now, but you're still providing him with just about the same kind of cramped accommodation, prewar office working equipment and a total lack of adequate staff you furnished him 25 years ago.

SOME BETTER

Things have been improving. Slowly. And really not much.

Two years ago some MPs were still doubled up, sharing not only one-room offices, but the one typewriter.

And there are two sides to that story.

"Talk about slave labor," is the way one secretary, who understandably, must remain nameless, put it, "with the politicians busy giving you dictation in turn. And that filing! Those photostats! I'm turning murder!"

Murdo Martin has the other side of the story:

"My room-mate was Ab MacDonald of Prince Albert-Kingsway, and I shared a secretary with Merv Johnson of Kindersley, down the Centre Block hall.

"Every time I told her to get out some letters she said she was busy typing for Merv, and every time Merv needed her, she said she was busy with me.

"Merv and I didn't get much done that Session, but she must have had a wonderful year."

Even now with each MP having his own office and secretary, the working accommodation and equipment is pretty basic.

It is still one room and one girl.

Or as plain-spoken South Renfrew Liberal MP Joe Green sees it:

"What executive at GM or Stelco, Dow or Canada Department's own CNR would stand having to share his office with his secretary who must dash out into the hall every time he has a visitor and there is need for privacy?

SWING AND SWAY

To kill halfway waiting-time, the girls go for coffee in the Centre and West Block cafeterias.

"Sometimes," grins Joe Green, "they spend so much time over coffee they gurgle when they walk.

"All that's left isn't the simple swing of girlish hips — it's just that the gals are awash inside with coffee."

Some of the equipment the MPs find in their offices is utterly archaic.

"Some of the chaps," cracks Joe Green, "have it made with up-to-date facilities out of the Sir John A. Macdonald era.

"They're a century or so up on me — my typewriter dates back far beyond Macdonald — and I often suspect that Carter brought some of my office stuff over with them."

Joe Green says he asked for an electric typewriter from the Commons supply office.

"And they laughed at me," he shrugged. "One of them wanted to know how many electric typewriter, some new-fangled gadget or something!"

Joe Green, like many another MP solved the problem by outfitting his Commons office with some spare equipment from his private law office in Renfrew.

"Now I ask you, here are at $18,000 and better, we're all middle-level executives — and what self-respecting executive in private business or industry would dream of having to lug his own dictaphone, typewriter and things to work?"

And a good question, that.

20 YEARS AGO

With the view of greatly increasing harbor facilities at the Belleville waterfront, the Federal government will be approached with a request to dredge out what remains of the old Grand Junction Dock, it was decided at a meeting of the city council. Harbor improvement Commission held Friday evening. The old dock was declared a navigation hazard and it was recommended it be used as fill at the south end of the Schuster Dock.

Presenting a report of the meeting at Monday night's council meeting, Chairman Fred Cummings stated that if the above project were carried out 600 feet more docking space and approximately 80,000 feet of additional storage space would be provided.

Also it was suggested that if the present Government docks were extended to a line with George Street, and by doing some dredging, a suitable turning basin could be provided for boats coming into this new dock extension.

Mechanical Exercisers Not All Play and No Work

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We are two women of 76. What do you think of a mechanical exerciser for older people who find that some of the routines regularly recommended are too exhausting?

We both like to walk, but my friend's feet are so painful that this is impossible.

We live in advising apartments and could use the same machine, but would not want to spend the money involved unless we would both benefit as a result. — Mrs. P. W. S.

I have nothing against such exercise machines, but let's think in terms of basic common sense. The benefit you get from any exercise depends entirely on how much effort you put into it. Don't you agree?

There are rowing machines, and bicycle machines, and weights, and things with pulleys and springs, and a lot of others. All of them are gadgets to make you do some physical work.

If ordinary exercises (I'm not sure exactly what you have in mind) are too exhausting, any sort of machine that makes you exert the same amount of effort would be just as tiring.

(For invalids, of course, massage and certain forms of physical therapy can make up, in part, for their lack of exercise, but that's a different matter.)

If you are looking for some sort of machine that will give you exercise without making you do any of the work — stop looking.

A machine that demands a lot of energy can be fine for the rugged businessman who is chained to a desk most of the day and wants a hard workout, although (if it wouldn't hurt his dignity) he could get the same amount of exercise by running around the block a certain number of times, chopping wood, chinning himself, doing push-ups or accumulating a lot of rocks and carrying them from one side of his yard to the other.

For you, the answer isn't a machine, but exercise of a type and duration which won't exhaust you.

After all, you don't want to build up bulging muscles, I'm sure. You want the amount of exercise which will be good for your health.

You want regular, daily use of your muscles. Walking is excellent. If your friend's feet won't permit that, she can do the simple sort of calisthenics most of us learned in grade school: Bending, stretching, raising laverstig and rotating the arms, lying on the back and making the legs go through the motions of "pedalling a bicycle."

When such simple exercises start to become exhaustin g, stop. Try some more later. Exercise helps the circulation, the breathing, and even the digestion. It keeps muscles from getting flabby. It makes you feel better.

But whatever the type of exercise (whether cleaning house, walking, or washing clothes or bowling) the right amount of it makes a person feel brisk but not exhausted.

Dear Sir: Is there such a thing as nerve deafness? What are the symptoms and cause? — E. J.

Yes. It means that you have inherited some sort of defect or fault in the auditory nerves — you don't hear as acutely as you otherwise would. This may not be noticeable early in life. There is nothing to do about it, except to take care that the ears are not additionally damaged in other ways, such as by infection.

Rocket Ships Are Forecast

Winnipeg Free Press

Mr. Grant McConachie's predictions of shape of air travel to come within the next 35 years are, to put it mildly, imaginative. The Canadian Pacific Airlines president believes that supersonic airliners (which are now on the drawing boards and which are expected to fly at around 2,000 miles an hour) will be obsolete almost as soon as they are airborne.

Instead, global flying (if that word can still be used) will be done in airliners which will carry 140 passengers, take off vertically, travel at around 17,000 miles an hour, and so will reach anywhere in the world in less than an hour.

All of which sounds pretty Jules Vernish. Yet science and technology are advancing these days at a rate that makes today's far-out predictions become the flaws of tomorrow. Mr. McConachie expects the airships to be flying by 1980. That is not very far off, however.

Yet 15 years ago, in 1948, who would have dreamed that in 1964 the Soviet Union and the United States would be racing satellites to Mars?

The sharp increase and frequency of trans-atlantic flights today, which we take entirely as a matter of course, would have been hard to believe even a score of years ago. So it would be foolish to scoff at Mr. McConachie's predictions.

The shape of things to come, as seen by the CPA president, certainly is exciting; but it may not appeal to everyone. The idea of being strapped into a projectile (to prevent one from floating around inside) and being blasted off at a high rate of acceleration is less than reassuring—even if one is hypnotized to the gills and really doesn't care much what's happening.

So while we all live in a more busy - busy - busy - people who will relish the idea of getting to Sydney or Tokyo in a jiffy. Once we have the elderly and unadventuresome types who will hope that some airliner at least will keep in service the outmoded old slow airliners that bumble along at under a thousand miles an hour.

One may be skeptical about this brave new world, without doubting for a moment the promised speed. There comes to mind the European refugee who crossed the first ocean flight, the Atlantic, remarked somewhat wistfully: "Once it took six months to learn a language. Now you can get there in six hours. But you have to wait six years — for your quota."

Bank Boxes Are Not Safe

London Free Press

Another looting of safety deposit boxes, with great but still unknown losses probably exceeding $1 million, once again comes as an expensive reminder to the public that "safe as a bank" is a meaningless phrase so far as these boxes are concerned.

Most customers assume that when they hide away their valuables in a safety deposit box inherited some sort of defect or fault in the auditory nerves — you don't bear as acutely as you otherwise would. This may not be noticeable early in life. There is nothing to do about it, except to take care that the ears are not additionally damaged in other ways, such as by infection.

Wild Flowers Start to Show In Woods

The late spring delayed their appearance, but wild flowers are once again beginning to make a show in country wooded areas.

This was the happy discovery yesterday of Trenton Cub Pack 3 city separate schools who made a safari to Sidney township to take part in a Centennial tree planting project.

Following the tree planting the youngsters were given a brief tree identification lesson.

At the same time they found that spring flowers were beginning to show and a few returned with small bouquets.

Murray Twp. Residents Approve Cocktail and Dining Lounges

TRENTON — In Murray Township yesterday, 66 per cent of the slightly voters turned out to vote in dining lounges and cocktail lounges in what was described by one township official as "a real heavy vote."

For dining lounges, 977 (62.86 per cent) voted "yes"; 575, "no."

For cocktail lounges, 1,017 (63 per cent) voted "yes"; 609, "no".

Required for approval was a 60 per cent "yes" vote.

Some 194 ballots were spoiled, and this, on the percentage basis, is high. Some had merely a check mark, not the legal "X"; some a "straight" mark, and some were marked "yes" and "no."

Waste Paper Still Being Thrown Around

TRENTON — Town residents are still complaining about the paper boys throwing waste paper around Trenton streets. It has been suggested that containers be placed at strategic spots for the boys to use, and this has been done. But one Trenton resident, Allan Taylor, told council in a letter last night, this was to no avail. The boys (or others) merely dump the container over.

H. S. Pase, chairman of the Trenton Board of Health, was at last night's council meeting and he suggested the boys could fold up the paper and string and put it in their paper bags to be disposed of at home. Council immediately delegated Mr. Pase to cope with the problem.

GUEST SPEAKER

Dr. H. F. Swann, a retired United Church missionary, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of United Churchmen and women from Presbyterian churches in the area in the lower auditorium at Grace United Church in Trenton, starting at 8 p.m. tonight. Dr. Swann will be accompanied to the meeting by Mrs. Swann. The couple have recently returned from a visit to Trinidad.

Have Raised $4,500

TRENTON — James Campbell, the 1965 chairman for the Canadian Cancer Society drive in this area, said on Monday more than $4,500 had been turned in by Saturday, the last Trenton yet to be canvassed. Mr. Campbell said he had high hopes of coming close to the 1965 objective of $6,000.

Seeks Approval Of Row Housing

TRENTON — Belleville realtor, Donald Burr, came before Trenton council last night to ask approval of a row housing area, south of Westmount Park sub-division and adjacent to Hanna Park, to permit construction of "row" housing. The two-storey units would be constructed six to a building. Each unit would contain 1,100 square feet and have a front and back door. The units would be sold, rather than rented, and the price would be $11,900.

Council has asked Mr. Burr to take his request to the Trenton Planning Board, which meets tonight.

Mr. Burr said he was anxious to get approval of the rezoning of the area before too much money was spent on engineers' fees.

Council and the planning board turned thumbs down on a proposal that "maisonette" be built in this area a year ago, after area residents objected. The residents in question live on a hill in the Westmount Park subdivision, and would overlook the structures. They said that they had been sold their lots by Mr. Sidor, developer of Westmount Park, with the understanding that the area was to be "exclusive." They maintained the maisonette type of building would "cheapen" their property.

Mr. Burr said he had also been involved a few year's ago in the D. H. Hahn proposal to build maisonettes in the Coulter Crescent area, and had plans drawn up and engineering work done. "$5,000 later, I found out council and the planning board would not approve." Coulter Crescent residents made strong objections to the maisonettes being built across the road from them.

However, Mr. Burr said his proposed "row" housing was different from the maisonette idea, and was an "an entirely new concept of living in Ontario," while it was very popular in the United States. He said he had Central Mortgage and Housing approval of the proposed project.

Science Fair Had Profit Rotarians Told

Belleville Rotary Club's recent science fair and hobby show made a profit of about $200, members were told at their luncheon meeting in the Hotel Quinte yesterday.

Pat Houston, chairman of next year's program, said the budget had been sufficient to cover just and the cost of sending finalists to the national science fair in Winnipeg at the end of this week.

Belleville Collegiate students Jim Wright and Robert Lupton of Trenton, champion and reserve champion respectively, who were among the luncheon guests, will compete in the Manitoba event.

President Stan Reston showed a color movie of the fair.

Next year's event will be held once again in co-operation with the secondary schools in this area.

Three new Rotarians were inducted at the meeting.

Past-president Harold Mott told the new members they were joining a world-wide body of 528,000 Rotarians in 11,000 clubs in 127 countries and geographical regions. He said that 180 new clubs had been established since last July.

W. Wallbridge New President Potato Club

A meeting of the South Hastings 4-H Potato Club was held April 26th at Arthur Carleton's place on the 4th of Sidney. Wayne Wallbridge was elected as president; Randy Brown as vice-president; Kirk Carleton as secretary and Tom Sheppard as press reporter.

The Stirling Rotary Club is sponsoring the Potato Club at the first meeting. It was decided that Irish Cobblers should be planted and seed was received at the meeting.

Mr. Carleton discussed with the members how to plant and treat seed, when to plant them and how to plant them.

All prospective members were present. After the meeting Mrs. Carleton served a light lunch.

North Front St. Motor Row To Be Joined by New Dealer

A few years ago the area boasted only residential development the odd hot dog stand and a few gasoline stations, but Belleville's North Front Street north of College Hill is rapidly developing into Motor Row.

Used cars lots were the first automotive development along the 14 highway entry into the city from the north, but last year two major local car dealers, Elliott's Buick-Pontiac sales, and Stevenson Ford Sales, opened new sales and service departments.

And later this spring or early summer, still another downtown motor dealer — Kennedy-Chrysler-Plymouth is scheduled to take the move to North Front Street.

Kennedy - Chrysler - Plymouth have taken over the Hedger garage still in course of construction and will make the move in another two months when construction work is completed.

A body and paint shop is still to be built, finishing touches put onto the main garage and the property levelled.

The Kennedy - Chrysler - Plymouth move will bring to three the number of new car dealers along Front Street. Already there are no less than five used car lots.

Also along the street are three motels, while a new merchsteria and bank are scheduled for opening in the near future.

Wants Lights At Both Intersections

TRENTON — At the insistence of Councillor Edward Todd, Trenton council will bypass a traffic committee recommendation that traffic lights be installed at the corner of Byron St. and Dixon Drive in favor of lights at the corner of Byron and Dundas Street East, if there isn't enough money to make both installations.

At last night's meeting of council, Councillor Todd disagreed violently with the traffic committee's ruling that lights were needed at Dixon Drive and not at Dundas Street East.

He said that trying to get around the corner at Byron from Dundas Street was a "rat race," and that at times, it was almost impossible for a pedestrian to get across the highway.

Councillor Todd said that there were lights left over from the recent installation of synchronized traffic lights in the downtown Trenton area and that these lights, with needed alterations, could be used for the Byron-Dundas St. installation.

Larry said council the problem should be divided into two separate sections. One, air pollution; two, fire hazard. He said council must consider whether or not the original by-law should stand, and the amendment be rescinded, on both counts.

Health Board Head Wants Bylaw Enforced

TRENTON— H. S. Pase, chairman of the Trenton Board of Health, advises Trenton council last night to ask that the town's original air pollution by-law be enforced and an amendment to the by-law be rescinded.

The original by-law, passed in 1961, made it an offence to burn leaves and other rubbish in the open. Council, a year later, paid out $600 to have the leaves removed. Considering this too costly, the succeeding council amended the by-law to permit the burning of leaves, under certain restrictions.

Mr. Pase claimed last night council had erred by amending the by-law without first getting approval from the Department of Health. He said that the burning of leaves in yards and in the streets is not only constituted a health hazard, by polluting the air, but also was a fire hazard.

While some of the councillors were not in complete agreement with Mr. Pase, ("I've burned leaves for years, and haven't suffered a d - - - bit," said Councillor Ross Burt), it was agreed that Councillor Edward Todd should take the matter up with Fire Chief Cecil Ellis. (Councillor Todd was suggested because smokers were doing themselves more harm than any inhalation of smoke from burning leaves could do. "Why not pass a by-law to prohibit smoking in town?" he wanted to know.)

Modern Beauty Salons Sprouting in Moscow

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Modern beauty salons have begun sprouting all over Moscow.

Seventeen sparkling new ones are scheduled to open in 1965 and four are already in operation.

The new salons are handsome, two - storey glass-and-aluminum structures, far cheerier and more commodious than the "torture chambers" — so styled by a Western housewife who used one—now in existence.

Soft music, soft lighting, fancier privacy, modern dryers —contrasting with the cumbersome system of wired pipes hung under chairs, are some of the features of the new palaces.

Provision is being made for snack bars, chairs under dryers are of soft leather instead of the hard, straight-backed affairs in the established beauty parlors.

In the old places the customer hands identification to the hairdresser from a tray on her lap. In the new salons they're arranged on mobile trays and she doesn't have to lift a finger.

And instead of having her head yanked back into a vise-like contraption that acts as a water trough, she can enjoy the relative luxury of having her hair rinsed over a sink.

METAL CURLERS TOO HOT

The break with the past is not complete, however. Curlers are still of solid metal and unfortunately hot under the dryer.

"To avoid the torture of metal curlers, we import from foreign women take their own wire mesh curlers," says a Western housewife.

They also take their own shampoo and spray, finding the Russian brand harsh on the skin.

A new system has been established for the training of Moscow hairdressers according to proficiency. There are four categories and if there are complaints about an operator's work she can be downgraded.

Haircutting fees are paid on a commission basis: 26 per cent of the price of each job. Income for an experienced hairdresser averages around 90 rubles a month (about $108) which isn't a bad salary, here.

It's possible to make an appointment to have your hair done at a certain time at one of the new salons but this feature hasn't really developed yet since there is seldom a lineup anyway.

Most Western women living here don't patronize Soviet beauty salons, preferring instead the services of a West German girl who some time ago set up shop with modern equipment and does the job according to Western standards and practices.

PAY MORE

They also pay higher prices for the privilege—two rubles ($2.40 at the official exchange rate) for a shampoo and set, one ruble ($1.20) for a haircut. Soviet prices for these jobs are 75 kopeks (90 cents) and 50 kopeks (60 cents) respectively.

Other Soviet prices: Trim 15 kopeks (23 cents); dyeing one ruble 30 kopeks ($2.16) to two rubles 50 kopeks ($3) depending on length of hair; permanent wave two rubles to one ruble 80 kopeks ($2.16); chemical set—Russian equivalent of a home permanent—one ruble; their manicure 38 kopeks (45 cents); face massage one ruble 80 kopeks ($2.16) to two rubles ($2.40).

So far the reaction of Moscow women to the new salons seems to be one of slight bewilderment at the sudden windfall. There is resentment to having been a mild run on the new establishments when they first opened but since then the shop has often outnumbered customers.

Business may be about to pick up, however. "Spring is the time for permanent waves around here," says a Muscovite working girl.

U.C.W. Meetings

STONE CHURCH U.C.W.

The April meeting of Stone Church U.C.W. was held at the manse. The president opened the meeting with a reading, giving a few fine thoughts of a mother's responsibilities to her family, always a watchful eye, as well as cook, and her duties as her children pass through the ages of Scouts, Cubs, Brownies and so on.

Mrs. O. Chisholm read a poem in keeping with Easter.

Mrs. F. Vermilyea chose for her subject, "Time." It should be precious time, used wisely, not thoughtlessly.

Mrs. Cooper was in charge of the Bible study, with the following thoughts as to the resurrection, what happened?, who were there? and what each saw?

Mrs. F. Vermilyea conducted a contest, the winner was the one who could get the most words from the word "Easter."

Business was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. Demorest, after which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Vermilyea served a dainty lunch.

WHITE'S U.C.W.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's United Church Women convened at White's Church on Tuesday evening, with their April meeting with the President, Mrs. Lorne Hunt, presiding.

Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson, the devotional leader, spoke on "The Voice of the Temptation."

An invitation to Grace United Church Women's meeting on Tuesday evening, at which Dr. H. Swann and Mrs. Swann will be guest speakers, was accepted. It was decided to have a bake sale the later part of May.

Mrs. Hunt introduced the guest speaker Mrs. Maurice Clancy of Halloway who is the literature secretary for the Belleville Presbyterial. Mrs. Clancy gave an introduction to several informative books which she displayed and recommended for their reading. She said, "As Christians we must learn to go out in everyday life with the Christian message. We must understand our neighbours and not condemn them. We must visit the sick and lonely people more often and write those forgotten leters and cards."

Mrs. Lawrence Dafoe thanked Mrs. Clancy for the informative address.

Mrs. Roy McGrath closed the meeting with prayer and the conveners served refreshments.

Ann Landers

Feigned Homosexuality Could Bring Fraud Charge

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am in love with a 21-year-old who has done something terrible. I am so ashamed of him I am sick at heart.

Last night Phil told me he was called up by the draft board and had to fill out a form. On the form he stated he was a homosexual. I asked why in the world he told such a lie and he replied, "Because I don't want to go into the army, that's why."

We talked for a long time and Phil said, "There are enough bums and loafers around who would rather go into the army than work. I don't see why the government has to pull men away from good jobs when they don't want to go."

If a man says he is a homosexual is he excused from the army? If it's true, then anyone who doesn't want to serve could use homosexuality as an excuse. Please tell me what the outcome of this horrible thing will be? — OUTA MY SKULL.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR SKULL — Phil will be called in for a psychiatric examination and asked for a letter of verification from his physician. Then he will be questioned by a psychiatrist who will determine from his answers that he is lying.

Phil could be charged with fraud, which might mean some time in the cooler—or he could be inducted promptly. The draft board will decide.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In September I married a man who lost his wife six years ago. We get along well together and our marriage is just about perfect. There's only one serious flaw.

My husband's daughter, Janice, who is married and has two small children, lives ten minutes away. She refuses to set foot inside our house. Janice says she can't bear to come here because there are too many memories. She grew up in this house and was married in the living room.

My husband and I must go to her home if we wish to see her and the family.

I have begged her to make the effort but she says she can't. Her father is the type who never lets his unhappiness show, but I know he is hurt. Any suggestions? — IMPASSE.

DEAR IMPASSE—Continue to visit Janice in her home and stop begging her to come to yours. Make it clear that she is welcome anytime but that you will not ask her again.

I'm betting when you no longer let the hurt show she'll change her attitude.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Lester (not his real name) and I were supposed to be going steady. I wanted to test my love for him so I accepted a date on the sneak with Bruce (not his real name.)

Somehow Lester heard I was out with Bruce and he took his father's car and went looking for me. The police picked him up for running a red light. Also he has no driver's licence because he is underage. This is the second time Lester has been picked up now he's in big trouble, not only with the police but with his folks.

Lester's mother telephoned me and said it was all my fault because if I hadn't two-timed her son he would not be in this mess. What do you think? — BLAMED.

DEAR BLAMED — I think it's terrible that a kid who isn't even old enough to get a driver's licence is so tangled up with a girl that he goes looking for her when he hears she is out with someone else.

You know my views on going steady, so if you came to me for support you rattled the wrong cage, Toots. And where is your mother anyway?

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BUYS CANADIAN FURS

MONTREAL (CP) — Princess Soraya, former wife of the shah of Iran, was in Montreal recently to buy sable and leopard coats from a Canadian furrier. She has made two other such trips, always incognito, since she first saw Canadian furs on exhibition in Germany four years ago.

Macdonald Paintings Shown at Spring Fair

The 20th annual Spring Fair presented by the Belleville and District University Women's Club featured a fine exhibition of paintings by Manly Macdonald, R.C.A.

This successful event took place de Saturday afternoon, in St. Michael's Academy auditorium. The guests were received by Mrs. R. E. Barrett, president, and Mrs. R. S. Burtt, general convener of the Fair.

The fine display of more than 60 paintings was arranged by Mrs. J. H. Bateman. Mr. Macdonald is recognized as one of Canada's foremost artists, his canvases are characterized by soft muted colors.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald were present, and kindly discussed the painting with the many interested viewers.

It was difficult to single out one or two canvases for special mention. All were of great interest because of their local color. "Carson's Barn" was much admired. Views of the Don River and of Unionville, were from the Toronto area. "The Ranch," near Picton, is a favorite subject of Mr. Macdonald's skilful brush. An interesting portrait study of Mrs. Macdonald hooking a rug in her cosy living room, was on display.

More than half of the paintings were sold to enthusiastic admirers. One beautiful Ontario scene, "The Sugar Bush," will grace a home in Germany, taking with it a distinctive Canadian flavor.

Mr. Macdonald has donated annually a painting to be used as a prize in a draw. These proceeds enable the U.W. club to provide scholarships valued at $1100 to three girls in the Belleville district who will be entering university in September.

The convenors of the sale of draw tickets were: Mrs. R. K. Jeffrey and Mrs. R. R. Collins. The winning ticket was drawn by Mrs. G. E. Boyce of Trenton, who is the Provincial Director of CFUW. The fortunate winner of a beautiful scene of the Don River was Mrs. J. E. Bateman.

The home bake table was convened by Mrs. E. Clark and Mrs. H. M. James.

The decor motif was "Discotheque," and was skilfully created by Mrs. R. N. McNichol and Mrs. R. A. Pringle.

The guests were graciously welcomed to the tea room by Mrs. D. G. Burr and Mrs. F. H. Forrester.

Members who poured tea were Mrs. P. T. Seibert, Miss M. Gibson, Mrs. B. G. Walsh, Mrs. G. E. Boyce, Mrs. A. S. Lewis, Mrs. R. A. Pringle, Mrs. J. E. Pugh, Miss J. Tindall and Mrs. J. E. Nelles.

The committee of Mrs. H. Lobel and Mrs. K. Gitzel provided delectable tea-time refreshments. The delightful setting for the afternoon tea was arranged by the conveners, Mrs. R. Finlayson and Dr. J. Bronskill.

Admission convener for the Spring Fair was Mrs. W. C. Pryor.

Thanks were expressed to Mr. Macdonald for his generosity and to the people of Belleville and district who attended in such numbers to make the annual exhibition a decided success. The scholarship fund is made possible by this generous support of the whole community, which is much appreciated.

Also special thanks to Mr. Ritchie of BCIVS and his students for their assistance, and to Mrs. R. S. Burtt who was responsible for the Spring Fair as general convener.

Favorite Food

Ice cream is one food that has stimulated the imagination of cooks for years. But the most original mixture of fruit, ice cream, sweetened milk and nothing whatever, stirred up in the days of Alexander the Great, was a far cry from the Neapolitan creamy popularly enjoyed today. And the variety of flavors we enjoy . . . was undreamed-of even dreamed of then!

Full of Goodness

And ice cream goes on delighting mankind to-day, for the new serving trends you see pictured are as delicious as tempting. Almost makes one forget that ice cream is a nutritious food, full of good perfectly able to stand on its own for dessert anytime!

Brownie Alaska

For a touch of glamorous, luxurious memories and ice cream into a Baked Alaska, what turns out a wonder of uncut brownies cuts a foil covered board. Top with ice cream, a slice to each brownie, or fresh strawberry and delicious . . . then cover with egg and sides completely with meringue. Bake at 500°F. 4 to 5 minutes, or until golden brown.

Sundae Pie

Ease by serving ice cream as a pie filling. Why not a chocolate shell? Our most popular pies start with a crumb crust. Fill the crust with your favorite flavors of ice cream and top with sundae sauce and cocktail cherries. Cover with foil and tuck away in the freezer for a few hours. At serving time switch pies to the big until the ice cream is just soft enough for cutting.

Buffet Beauty

Next time you're entertaining buffet-style, try this special arrangement. Use a large container such as a cut glass bowl, large glass platter, or basket lined with foil. Pile it high with scoops of ice cream, using several flavors. Then tuck nuts, marshmallows and cubes of pineapple between the scoops!

Scooping Success

The scoops for your buffet bowl will be firm and easy to handle if you make them the day before the party. Arrange them side by side on a foil covered cookie sheet and ready to use. Scoops can also be rolled in coconut, fine chocolate or cinnamon, or crushed peppermint stick candy and served with hot fudge sauce.

Susanna's Family Fare

IT'S RE-USABLE

Dear Susanna: My suggestion is for a most attractive and useful lightweight afghan, while, at the same time, one is able to use up woollen socks that are no longer wearable because of holes in the heels or toes.

First cut off the foot part and discard it. Leaving the leg doubled, proceed to cut the sock into afghan-size pieces. A fairly short sock just cuts in half nicely, right across the middle, for two squares.

Now, crochet around the edge of each double square. Any of spare wool will suit perfectly — the more varied the better. When you have enough, sew them together for an exceptional lovely throw or afghan. — G. H.

As one square said to the other: "I wish someone would teach me to cut corners!" — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: For a lovely spring centrepiece when you are entertaining guests at dinner — or as a treat for the family, bake an angel cake, ice it in a pretty pale color and place a few fresh or artificial short stemmed daffodils in the centre opening. — Mrs. D. Lamoreaux

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, when requesting pamphlets.)

Successful Living

Doris Criticized for Living in 'Old Tradition'

DEAR DORIS —

(1) Why are you always "cutting up" going steady, especially between 14, 15 and 16? Don't be so pessimistic, just because you were brought up in the old tradition.

Doris, this is 1965. Think like a teen-ager; not like an old lady. Going steady is not a commitment to get married.

Nowadays when you go steady your girl is more than a girl friend, someone you can always go out with, someone you know is always waiting. There is a little bit of sex involved but the two people can regulate how much sex will go on.

DORIS CLARK

My mother is a great admirer of yours and whenever I bring up the matter of going steady I get shot down because my mother says I am not old enough.

So get with it, Doris. Don't be a pessimist!

(2) Could you give me advice how to clear up pimples, but especially blackheads, because this is my biggest problem. — D.S.

DEAR D.S. —

(1) So help me, I am far from alone with my "old tradition." Some of your best friends agree with me that going steady is "for the birds." It is too confining, too involving of personality, for the young person who has the courage and zest for living to spread his wings.

(2) Identify yourself with a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents mailed to me for my leaflet about what to do about adolescent pimples and blackheads. (I'm glad to hear they are your biggest problem. Once you get rid of them, maybe you'll be willing to try your chances with the other girls!)

DEAR DORIS — I am an air hostess on a Canadian line which is crossing the Atlantic all the time. I was glad of your item about taking the baby along.

The beauty of travelling with babies is that they demand practically no assessment. But we do suggest bringing along a few familiar toys to comfort strangeness.

If the baby is on a whole milk formula, mothers sometimes ask the doctor about shifting to evaporated milk a couple of weeks before the trip. Evaporated milk and canned fruit juices are easy to store and useful to carry.

The tiny baby is not much interested in local foods — all he requires is a bottle, baby food and cereal. Another very good idea is the disposable bottle, which eliminates time-consuming sterilizing. — STEWARDESS.

DEAR STEWARDESS — Disposable bottles, no less! Does Grimson know about it?

DEAR DORIS — I am on a diet to try and lose weight but I simply love sweets and nearly go insane. As soon as I eat a piece of pie or something similar, on goes a pound.

I hate to live without sweets all my life but there doesn't seem to be any other way. — DESPERATELY YOURS.

DEAR DESPERATELY — Who doesn't have a sweet tooth? The naturally thin ones, that's who!

Here's an open secret: you can now satisfy that sugar-love without calories! On the grocery shelves there are sugar substitutes, fruits canned without sugar, jams and marmalades featuring calorie-less sweeteners. A whole book of recipes using them.

P.S. — Leave the pies alone; they are even worse for bulges, with their high fat content.

(There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Potato 'Brine' Test

As every housewife knows, not every potato comes from the oven mealy and flaky, so a baked potato should be. To separate the "bakers" from the "boilers," the Ontario Food Council suggests the "brine" test. Lump the potatoes into a salt solution, one cup salt to eleven cups water. A good "baker" sinks, boiling potatoes float.

Church Groups

EVENING BRANCH W. A.

Members of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church met on Monday evening in the parish hall.

The service of devotion was in charge of the president Mrs. A. Bongard, assisted by Mrs. R. Miller, Mrs. J. Ling, Mrs. J. Kilburn and Mrs. J. Spencer. Mrs. Williams presided at the piano.

Reports were given by Mrs. W. Edwards, Miss Frances Reid-Correspondence included thank-you notes from the Rev. James Smith for the farewell gift presented to him; Mr. James Churchill for a babe sent to help him in his work; a letter of appreciation to the branch members who had attended the chapel service at Kingston penitentiary.

A request was made for worn nylon stockings to be used for stuffing toys. An interesting letter was read from Bob Smith of the Church Army who has joined the Rev. D. Rose in his evangelistic work in the Church of England.

The sum of $50 was received for the annual thankoffering. A special collection was made, to the rose fund. Any W.A. member ill in Kingston hospital is visited and presented with a rose bowl and rose. Decision was made to have a rummage sale in the near future. The Junior Auxiliary mother and daughter banquet is May 13th. May 31st will be the closing supper meeting when the outstanding business will receive attention. Prayers were said for two members of Christ Church who are seriously ill.

Since several members planned on leaving early Tuesday morning by chartered bus, for the W.A. Diocesan annual meeting in Kingston, the session was brief.

COCOANUT MACAROONS

Do you remember that last week I promised you a macaroon recipe that would use up three leftover egg whites? We are pleased to give these to you because you don't have to frustrically remove them from the pan the split second they come from the oven. They are baked on buttered foil on your cookie sheets and lift slick as a whistle from the pan when baked.

COCOANUT MACAROONS
(coonstick — 50 to 55):

3 egg whites, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1¼ cups flaked cocoanut.

Beat egg whites with salt until frothy. Gradually add sugar, beating constantly, until whites form very stiff peaks. Remove beater and fold in cocoanut and vanilla. Have ready 3 cookie sheets covered with buttered foil. Drop macaroon batter from teaspoon, 1½" apart, making mounds 1¼" to ¾" in diameter, forming a little swirl at top as you draw the spoon away.

Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, switching and turning pans in oven at half time. Macaroons should be barely tinged with gold. With spatula remove from foil on pans and cool on cake racks. Makes 50 to 55.

Iam defying my assistant Eleanor and "gilding the lily". She says that the charm of these cookies is their pure primitive beauty. But I want to give you some colorful, flavorful variations. You can chuck them out if you wish (the variations — not the lovely macaroon recipe!).

Variations: 1) Add ½ cup each quartered, drained red or green maraschino cherries. If you include cherries in the macaroons you could top each shaped macaroon on cookie sheet with ½ red or green cherry.

2) Use only ¾ cup flaked cocoanut and add ¼ cup coarsely crushed cornflakes. This variation reduces the cost of the macaroons a little.

3) Add ¼ cup finely chopped candied pineapple, folding it in carefully to be sure it is evenly distributed.

4) Just before spooning onto cookie sheets, barely fold in 1 tablespoon chocolate shot.

5) Use only ¾ cup flaked cocoanut and add ½ cup coarsely chopped pecans or walnuts.

Cross-Canada Survey

Many Skurfing Their Way Into Hospital With Bruises, Abrasions, Broken Limbs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Whether you call it skateboarding, sidewalk - surfing or skurfing, it doesn't alter the fact that Canadian teen-agers (and a few so-called adults) have found a new craze.

Skateboards — small wooden platforms mounted on roller-skate wheels—are being marketed through the streets of just about every city in the country, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows.

Many are skurfing their way into hospitals with bruises, abrasions, scratches and broken limbs.

The teen - agers themselves recognize that the skateboards can be dangerous. In Montreal they're called "coffins." A safety official in the same city has another name — "booby trap."

The skateboard, a sort of scooter with nothing to hold on to, is supposed to simulate some of the action one gets surfboarding in the ocean. You lean like or stand on it, hit 30 miles an hour going downhill, snake your way down the road, make 90-degree turns, and take headers into a hedge.

You can also lose your balance and fall off, collide with people and cars, and wind up with a variety of injuries.

"If anybody wants to use a skateboard in my district, he'd better have a long front hall," says Police Director Joseph Griffith of the Montreal suburb of Outremont.

SOME SEIZED

Police Chief Reg Arell of Ottawa says his department has received hundreds of complaints and some skurfboards have been "temporarily confiscated," but he denies charges that some have been thrown into the Rideau Canal. And the capital has no blanket ban on the devices.

Halifax Police Chief Verdun Mitchell says parents have been warned repeatedly of the dangers of children skurfing on the streets. But the effect is questionable. One school reported eight injured pupils.

In neighboring Dartmouth some streets have been virtually blocked by kids using skateboards and some have been confiscated but police say they're frustrated in efforts to stamp out what they call a "dangerous" sport.

Skateboard prices range from $1.50 to $9.95—the high prices being for motorized versions—but many teen-agers prefer to make their own.

Although bills provide the most excitement, it's possible to operate on level surfaces as well and this may account for skateboard popularity in Regina, a city that is notably flat. The only limitation there has been lack of stock, says a spokesman for a large department store.

Victoria reports skurfing has become "almost an epidemic." The suburban municipalities of Saanich and Oak Bay have forbidden skurfing on the streets and one 21-year-old man who tried it in Oak Bay was fined $5 for obstructing traffic.

HOSPITALS BUSY

A Vancouver policeman called skurfing "more a teenage way of life" than a fad; and hospitals report having treated skurfers for band, arm and leg fractures. Since Christmas skateboard accidents have boosted emergency ward business "a good five per cent."

A sporting goods store in Edmonton tried to arrange with the owners of parking arcades to have skurfers use their premises on Sundays but was turned down. One operator reports the skurfers are using his ramps anyway.

Winnipeg is another city that lacks hills but this hasn't eliminated injuries altogether. One 17-year-old girl fractured an ankle when she fell off a skateboard in front of her home.

In Galt, Ont., where four fractures occurred in a four-day period, the South Waterloo Medical Society has asked that parents consider carefully before allowing children unrestricted use of skateboards" because "often enthusiasm exceeds the skill of the operator."

"The toy is one of the most dangerous pieces of equipment I've seen yet for children," says Staff Sgt. Archie Stewart of the Sudbury, Ont., police department. "I'm thinking of asking authorities to introduce a bylaw banning its use in the city."

How to deal with skurfing may be a problem in some places. Chief Constable Charles Evenson of Whitney Township near Timmins, Ont., says he thinks a section of the Highway Traffic Act which permits torture in cases where the boards became a hazard for pedestrians.

In Cornwall, Ont., Chief Allan Clarke says there may be a "traffic bylaw" prohibiting their use. He reports some drivers have had hair-raising close calls with skurfers dashing in front of their cars, but he doesn't plan to take action unless a serious accident occurs.

In Kitchener, Ont., Inspector John Ulmer of the police traffic bureau wants paved ramps in public parks to keep skurfers off streets and sidewalks. And a safety official in Halifax also suggests a special area be set aside.

But Paul Leboeuf, manager of the Quebec Safety League, thinks skateboards should be banned outright.

Premier Opens Royal Bank Ontario Headquarters

TORONTO — Adding an imposing new landmark to the financial centre of downtown Toronto, the new Ontario headquarters building of the Royal Bank of Canada was officially opened last week by Hon. John Robarts, Premier of Ontario.

Representatives of the bank attending the opening included W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president; D. S. Anderson, vice-president, Ontario; John H. Coleman, chief general manager; T. F. Whitley, Ontario District general manager, and approximately 30 Royal Bank directors.

The opening ceremonies were attended by almost 400 special guests, including government and bank officials and representatives of many leading Canadian financial and industrial organizations.

Declaring the building officially open, Premier Robarts said: "The opening of this new headquarters building in Toronto symbolizes the continuing confidence of the directors of the Royal Bank, its shareholders and its depositors in the continuing growth and prosperity of the Province of Ontario."

In his remarks, Mr. McLaughlin emphasized the high degree of regional autonomy which is a feature of the Royal Bank's operations.

"While there is much discussion concerning centralized banking and an impression that every decision has to be approved by head office, this is not the case with the Royal Bank," he said.

"An example is my attendance at the opening ceremonies here today, as it is the first time I have seen the finished building. Head office gave approval in principle, of course, but all aspects of planning and completion were strictly a regional responsibility.

"In the same way, the Royal's day-to-day banking operations are based on regional decisions in the various regional headquarters across Canada."

Mr. Anderson, who as Ontario vice-president is the bank's senior executive at Ontario headquarters, served as chairman for the opening ceremonies. Before introducing Mr. McLaughlin, he gave a brief outline of the site's history, and the services of the headquarters and the new Toronto main branch.

Mr. Anderson paid tribute to architects Marani, Rounthwaite and Dick for their highly functional and modern design of the new building. Allison Hair Limited for interior decoration, and to Canadian artist Franklin Arbuckle for designing two large tapestries for the walls of the main banking hall.

Plans for construction of the new 11-storey building were announced in 1963, and the cornerstone was laid in May of 1964, less than a year before final completion. It is located at 20 King St. West, just west of Yonge.

The new Ontario headquarters building, whose smooth white marble face rises 205 feet above the level of its elevated plaza will contain all offices of the Ontario headquarters, as well as those of the new Toronto Main Branch.

The seven youths were charged with murder.

the U.S. Navy with a 19-ship, 6,200-man force.

Colombo, the OAS peace chief told reporters the problem of persons who had sought asylum in embassies in Santo Domingo had been "resolved" and now the mission was settling down to work on all the other problems the OAS had assigned it.

U.S. planes dropped the first of 20,000 leaflets on the rebel-held sections of Santo Domingo Monday. A U.S. spokesman said the leaflet mission would continue today.

The leaflets told "the rebels: "The government of the United States does not support any faction nor has it given any military or material aid to any faction.

"It only favors liberty and well - being within a constitutional regime for the Dominican people. It is giving its total support to the efforts of the Organization of American States to resolve the crisis.

Fighting broke out again between U.S. marines and rebels here Monday night as it was reported rebel leader Caamano had been elected provisional head of a new Dominican government.

The report came from San Juan, Puerto Rico, where a spokesman for deposed Dominican president Juan Bosch said the election was made at a special meeting of the legislative assembly in Santo Domingo.

(A report from San Juan today said Caamano told Bosch he was appealing to Britain, France and the nations of the Western Hemisphere for immediate diplomatic recognition.

Caamano was commander of the army forces which precipitated the attempt to overthrow the reactionary civilian and junior Bosch to the presidency 10 days ago.

Caamano's forces control a large area of Santo Domingo despite repeated counter - attacks by Gen. Wessin's forces.)

ACTION SLOWS

U.S. hopes for quick action on a proposal to set up an inter-American military force to deal with such crises as the Dominican revolt received a setback.

The OAS council discussed the proposal in Washington Monday night, but there was strong opposition from Mexico, Chile, Ecuador and Uruguay.

An informant said there were about 12 votes in favor of the U.S. proposal, but 14 are needed for approval. However, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker said the United States was still hopeful of approval. The OAS has 20 members.

U.S. intervention in the revolt has sparked few Latin American demonstrations so far.

In Caracas, about 15 Venezuelan university students burned U.S. flags and forced their way into the offices of the All-American Cable Company with pistols and steel rods.

In Havana, some 2,000 Cuban students shouting "gringos (Americans) out of Santo Domingo" demonstrated.

Pro - Communist Uruguayans in Montevideo threw bricks, bombs and rocks at offices of U.S. business firms and the local OAS office. In Santiago, Chilean youths waved anti-U.S. signs. Chilean Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes said U.S. intervention threatens to destroy the goodwill the Alliance for Progress has built up for the United States.

Mexico called on the United States to withdraw its forces. But the Brazilian government issued a statement supporting the landing of U.S. troops to protect the lives of Americans.

Budget

nine Creditistes joined with 80 Conservatives on the Monday vote.

Five Conservatives announced they were paired with absent MPs. They were: Paul Martineau (Pontiac - Temiscamingue), Hugh John Flemming (Victoria - Carleton), Gerald D. Baldwin (Peace River), E. G. L. Fairweather (Royal), and Chester J. MacRae (Yorkshire).

Party standings in the Commons are 129 Liberals, 94 Conservatives, 18 NDP, 13 Creditistes, nine Social Credit and two independents.

WITH LIBERALS

Before the vote, the Conservatives joined with the Liberals to vote down the three minority parties on a procedural dispute involving the order of speakers in the budget debate.

The NDP, Social Credit and Creditiste MPs have been protesting that during the debate they should be entitled to field a speaker for every time a Liberal and a Conservative are recognized.

The New Democrats moved a motion that an NDP member should be recognized instead of a Liberal. It was defeated 168 to 22.

Mr. Gordon said that during the four days of debate so far the opposition has had difficulty in criticizing his proposals because in 1964 the Canadian economy had its best year since 1957. The unemployment rate had dropped and the gross national product had increased substantially.

Opposition criticisms had been "carping and ungenerous, directed at the budget's edges."

He defended a decision against wiping out the 11-per-cent sales tax on production machinery with the argument that corporations would reclaim much of the cost through corporation tax deductions and write-offs if the equipment lasts for five years.

regime" in power.

"The Latin American countries," said Fedorenko, "cannot fail to be shocked at this open reversion of American imperialism to the policy of naked force in Latin America.

"The United States are now —today—proclaiming as the basis of their policy open intervention in the affairs of any Latin American country where circumstances do not suit their wishes."

Stevenson told the council that the United States acted because it had become clear that "Communist leaders, many trained in Cuba, have taken increasing control of what was initially a democratic movement, just as they once did in Cuba."

The Dominican rebels are seeking to return ousted president Juan Bosch to power.

Alvarez Tablo denied that Communists had promoted the Dominican fighting. He said the marines had been sent in to establish a government "obedient" to Washington and that it was "one of the most shameful and criminal acts" of the century.

"Once again, Latin America's soil is being occupied by the Yankee boot," he said. "once again Yankee bullets are taking Latin American lives."

SCORES SPEECH

The Cuban delegate described as the "worst political expression in history" President Johnson's Sunday night speech on the crisis. Johnson said revolution in any country is a domestic affair and becomes a matter for hemispheric action only when "the object is the establishment of a Communist dictatorship."

Alvarez Tablo, who had asked to address the council as an individual, said Johnson had "lies shamelessly when he declares that 'we do not support any man or any group of men in the Dominican Republic.'"

Stevenson declined to reply to what he called the "insults" and "offensive remarks" of Alvarez Tablo.

Alvarez Tablo also criticized the OAS, which he said had completely discredited itself by "grovelling" in Washington.

He warned that no country in the hemisphere would be safe from U.S. interference if Washington succeeded in its Dominican intervention.

In defence of the intervention, Stevenson stressed the role of the OAS. "It has had been dealing with the situation for several days and had made substantial progress.

He suggested that the council "permit the regional organization to continue to deal with this regional problem.

Echoing Johnson's speech, Stevenson said that "the American nations will not permit the establishment of another Communist government in the Western Hemisphere."

At another point he said the U.S. "has no intention of seeking to dictate the political future of the Dominican Republic."

He added:

"Our interest lies in the re-establishment of constitutional government and to that end to assist in maintaining the stability essential to the expression of the free choice of the Dominican people."

Adolf Hitler

The Vagabond Who Put A Match To the World

Twenty years ago, the Second World War ended in the ruins of Berlin. Behind the ruins was the mad dream of Hitler to fashion a "thousand-year Reich." The following is the first of four articles tracing the rise and fall of Nazi Germany shows the roots of Hitler's movements.

By LOYAL GOULD

BERLIN (AP) History's most destructive war, which ended just 20 years ago, had its roots in a tiny, crackpot party from southern Bavaria which rose for a time to mastery of most of Europe.

"It took over Germany Jan. 30, 1933, when a former Austrian vagabond named Adolf Hitler took the oath as chancellor.

Hitler bragged that his regime, which he called the Third Reich, would last 1,000 years and make the Germans the rulers of the world.

Instead, it passed into history after little more than 12 years and ended in defeat, ruin and chaos. It brought death and enslavement to millions and left Germany a broken, occupied country, soon to become a pawn in the East-West struggle.

The story of the artist's life and lived off his widowed mother until he was 19.

FAILED EXAMINATIONS

At 20, he set off for Vienna to realize his artistic ambitions, but on failing to pass entrance examinations to accredited schools, he spent four years in Stubborness, eating in charity kitchens and painting pictures that he sold to tourists.

He also made his first contact with ideas that were later to change the fate of Europe—pan-Germanism and anti-Semitism.

He finally left Austria for Munich, where he volunteered for the German First World War armies.

Wounded twice and twice decorated for bravery, Hitler returned to Munich after the war and started work in the Reichswehr who had organized what they called the German Workers' Party.

It was a group violently opposed to the democracy of the Weimar Republic and to payment of war reparations called for by the Versailles Treaty.

It wasn't long before Hitler had changed the group's name to the National Socialist German Workers' Party—Nazi for short — and designed a party symbol. It was a blood red flag with a white disc in the middle on which was imprinted the black swastika or hooked cross.

He also took over the party's propaganda apparatus and quickly gained local fame as a speaker who could stir crowds to wild cheering at his tirades against democracy, the Jews and the victors of the First World War.

He soon attracted masses of followers, mostly young war veterans looking for a cause.

They included:

Rudolf Hess, a German raised in Egypt who was to become Hitler's first deputy.

Yet, uniform-loving Hermann Goering, the last commander of the famed Richthofen fighter squadron in the First World War. He later was to head the Nazi air force.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, the crippled skirt-chaser who became the Third Reich's propaganda boss.

And Heinrich Himmler, who

On the morning of Nov. 9, 1923, 3,000 Nazis led by Hitler, Goering and Gen. Erich Ludendorff marched from the Buergerbraeu beer hall to the center of Munich and into a detachment of armed police. Ludendorff had been chief of staff to the Kaiser's armies.

Nobody knows who fired the first shot, but the street soon was littered with 16 dead Nazis, three dead policemen and scores of wounded.

In the following year, Hitler was sentenced to five years' imprisonment on conviction of treason for his leadership of the beer hall putsch. Less than nine months later, he was paroled.

During his imprisonment, he dictated his political, racial and leadership theories in "Mein Kampf, or My Struggle, became next to the Bible in Germany and a best seller. By 1940, 6,000,000 copies had been sold in Germany alone.

Publication of the book drew thousands to Hitler. By 1929, his party had 178,000 dues - paying members.

Despite initial success, Hitler had changes cause with the economic depression of the 1930s and the political divisions and weakness of the Weimar Republic.

With millions out of work, he promised to make Germany strong again, provide bread and work, wipe out the alleged influence of the Jews and refuse to pay the hated Versailles reparations.

PARTY GROWS

By the end of 1930, the Nazis had jumped from Germany's smallest party to its second largest with 107 members in Parliament, the Reichstag.

But even after winning the country's largest party, the Nazis never succeeded in mustering more than 44 per cent of the popular vote in a free election.

The majority of Germans who opposed them were too divided among Conservatives, Communists and socialists to unite effectively.

But because of the size of Hitler's following and out of a belief that he would help order out of chaos, President Paul von Hindenburg named his chancellor Jan. 30, 1933.

That night, thousands of jackbooted storm troopers marched in a torchlight parade through downtown Berlin.

Little more than six years later the Hitler, the meteoric, the opportunists and the misguided German Nationalists who backed Hitler's Nazi party would carry their fight to the battlefields.

13-year-old's Miracle Operation

Life Bearable Again - - - Thanks to Two Surgeons

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Several dozen doctors in the lecture amphitheatre of the Hospital for Sick Children watched while Bob Lemcke, 13, ran with a loping gait across the stage below them.

Ordinarily, the sight of a teen-age boy running would hardly warrant the interest of doctors who had travelled from hospitals as far away as Edmonton, Corner Brook, Nfld., and Moose Factory, Ont., for a two-day refresher course in pediatric surgery.

But Bob Lemcke is no ordinary boy. Just seven weeks before Bob performed for the visiting surgeons, Dr. Harold J. Hoffman had removed the entire left half of the boy's brain in a rare operation.

Dr. Hoffman, a staff neurosurgeon at the hospital, resorted to the drastic surgery in order to make life bearable for a boy whose partial paralysis since birth was complicated by the misery of frequent epileptic seizures—as many as 10 or 15 some days—despite heavy, regular doses of drugs.

The result of the hemispherectomy, as the operation is called, was better than anyone had hoped. Bob is free of seizures, needs no drugs, has better use of his limbs and is much, much happier.

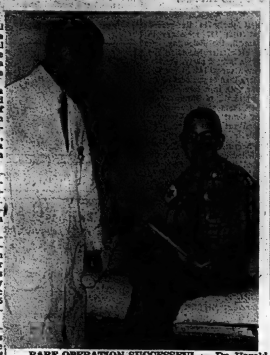
STRUCK AT BIRTH

Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lemcke of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., with healthy brothers and sisters, is a victim of infantile hemiplegia, a partial paralysis as a result of a blood clot that probably occurred during birth and prevented normal development of the left half of the brain.

The left half of the brain controls the right side of the body so Bob's right arm and leg were impaired. A further twist of malevolent luck in the form of polio attacked Bob's spine and affected his left arm.

Bob was examined by a travelling clinic for crippled children from Sick Children's Hospital which tours Ontario twice a year. Two operations on tendons improved the function of his hands.

But the increasing frequency of seizures, coupled with the debilitating effect of anticonvulsant drugs in full dosage, left the boy so exhausted that he was incapable of any prolonged physical or mental activity. By early this year, Bob was virtually unable to feed himself and seemed destined for total care in an institution.



On the last visit of the travelling clinic to the Sault, Bob was examined by neurologist John Stavens and Dr. John Hall, a bone and muscle specialist, who decided surgery might help cure down the seizures.

In January Bob came to Sick Children's Hospital where a team of neurologists, orthopedists, surgeons and physical therapists began a combined study.

TOOK SIX HOURS

They found that in Bob's case some of the functions normally controlled from the left half of the brain had been taken over by the right half, eliminating a fear that surgery might mean loss of some of the more refined senses located in the brain's cortex. Also luckily, Bob's speech-control centre was located in the healthy right half of the brain, although it is in the left side in most people.

Still Dr. Hoffman thought he might be able to get away with removing only part of the brain's left hemisphere.

RARE OPERATION SUCCESSFUL — Dr. Harold J. Hoffman chats with Bob Lemcke, 13, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., on whom he successfully conducted an operation to remove the left half of the brain. The aim of the operation at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto was to make life bearable for the boy whose partial paralysis since birth was complicated by as many as 15 epileptic seizures a day.

(CP Photo)

In the neurological operating room on the morning of Feb. 11, Bob's brain was bared and wired for electrical impulses on an electroencephalogram interpreted by Dr. Gordon Murphy. He and Dr. Hoffman determined that the trouble involved the whole left hemisphere and it was removed. The procedure took six hours.

Bob spent five days in an intensive-care unit, with individual nursing around the clock. As he recovered, physical and occupational therapists began to encourage Bob's newfound powers.

When Bob left for home March 20, he took with him a balsawood sailboat he had built and painted, a copper plaque and a basket he had made.

On the eve of his departure, talking to a visitor, Bob told how he had been learning to play quoits.

"I scored my second ringer today," he said.

The minority Liberal government survived its second non-confidence test of the budget debate.

Seven Social Credit MPs and two Independents joined the Liberals to vote down the Conservative non-confidence motion 111 to 109.

Finance Minister Gordon said the opposition had trouble criticizing the budget because of the country's sound economy.

Creditiste leader Caouette said the budget was "indirect birth control" because it favored single and small-family taxpayers.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) said the system of progressive income taxes should be reformed.

Hays Answers Two Questions By Rod Webb

OTTAWA (CP) — Rod Webb (PC — Hastings - Frontenac) asked Agriculture Minister Hays Monday whether he knew that federal health representatives have been taking blood samples from Ontario farmers in a search for Kew fever.

"I am not familiar with that fact . . . but I know of a few people who should have them taken," Mr. Hays replied to the Commons question.

Mr. Webb then asked another. "In view of the fact that apparently some of the representatives calling on these farmers can supply an explanation, will the minister explain that Kew fever is?"

"Yes," Mr. Hays replied, "If you come out behind the barn, I will tell you."

A department official explained outside the Commons that the fever comes from cow's milk. It does not affect the animals but causes symptoms similar to influenza in humans. The fever virus is killed by pasteurization.

Film on the Life Story Of Duke of Windsor Not Attended by Royal Family

LONDON (AP)—A film of the Duke of Windsor's life story was given a gala premiere Monday night, but not a single member of Britain's Royal Family attended.

Guest of honor at the showing of A King's Story was Lady Clementine Churchill, widow of one of the few English politicians who stood by the duke when he abdicated as King Edward VIII in 1936.

The premiere was given to benefit the educational trust of the English - speaking Union. The Queen is patron of the union and Prince Philip honorary president.

The sellout performance of the color documentary, made by U.S. producer Jack Le Vien with the duke's help and commentary, was held in the Royal Festival Hall.

The duke and duchess, who live in Paris, were unable to attend because doctors had ordered the 70-year-old duke to remain at home. He recently underwent eye surgery in London, where the Queen and the duchess met for the first time since his abdication.

FRIENDS ATTEND

But some of the duke's old friends and aides of his brief reign were in the audience.

They included Col. Sir John Aird, his former equerry; Lord Brownlow, who spirited the duchess out of England just before the abdication; Lady Alexandra Metcalfe, whose husband was the duke's best man, and the Dowager Countess of Monckton, chairman of the film premiere committee and widow of the duke's legal adviser during the abdication crisis.

The picture shows film clips of the duke's life and scenes of him in his Paris garden. At one point the duke described his feelings during his long exile from the land of his birth.

"I often felt how lonely I was," he said "but I always had to remember my father telling me never to forget who I was."

The picture ended with the duke reading his famous speech of abdication for "the woman I love."

British critics were warm in praise of the movie.

Their verdicts ranged from "stirring" and "entertaining," to "tactful."

Most newspaper appraisals today were agreed the movie avoided the defects of sensationalism and sentiment.

The Times on this point said: "It is a lot to say for Jack Le Vien's film on the subject that it steers with remarkable skill a middle course."

The Daily Telegraph said: "Shrewdly declining to take a point of view beyond a decent, friendly compassion, 'A King's Story' presents a tactful portrait of the Duke of Windsor as far as his abdication. . . ."

The Daily Mail critic said what made the picture for him was not the pomp nor the more obvious dramatics. It was the self-effacing humility of the man at the core of it all.

"An engaging portrait" and "moving" were among the impressions of the mass-circulation Daily Express critic who said he did not think there was any public man in the last 100 years who had a tougher time of it than the Duke of Windsor.

Will Appeal To Vatican Against Order

VICTORIA (CP)—Mother Cecilia Mary says she will appeal to the Vatican against a Church order to close the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter here.

The 73-year-old nun and five other sisters have been in rebellion against the order since Thursday.

Mother Cecilia, who built the shelter with money she inherited has said the church has no authority to close it.

No action could be taken by church authorities during the appeal "and Rome will take a few months to make a decision."

The church deadline for closure is today.

Mother Cecilia said Monday she will not leave the shelter.

"The animals are depending on us," she said. "I am not going to stand by and see 120 animals put to sleep just to save our own skins."

FOUNDED ORDER

The church order came after an investigation by a member of the Benedictine Order, the order to which Mother Cecilia attached her Sisters of the Love of Jesus when they left from the Anglican Church in 1937. Mother Cecilia founded the order in 1922.

Last week the church ordered Mother Cecilia to close the shelter and return to the priory. It said there have been complaints about noise by neighbors; that the nuns are not following their vocation by caring for animals rather than people; and that they cannot lead an accepted religious life in an animal shelter.

Since then Mother Cecilia has in turn threatened to ignore the church completely, return to the Anglican Church and turn the shelter into a society and become president.

COPPER PRICE RAISED

International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. said Monday it is increasing the price of domestic copper. The price for Toronto deliveries will be 35½ cents a pound Canadian funds, up 3½ cents. The increases effective immediately, reflect growing world demand and tight supply.

PRICE INCREASED

Effective May 1, 1965, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd. increased the price of standard grade iridium by 15 cents per troy ounce for all quantities, the company said Monday. Price for 10,000 ounces and over was increased to $1.80 per troy ounce compared with the previous $1.65 level established October 1, 1964. World demand was given as the reason.

BUILD NEW PLANT

Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada will build a $14,000,000 tire-manufacturing plant at Joliette, Que., it was announced Monday. The plant on a 150-acre site is expected to start production early in 1966 and will employ about 350 persons. A joint announcement by Premier Lesage and M. T. Mayberry, firestone president, said. The company has tire plants in Hamilton and Calgary and a tire-cord plant at Woodstock.

Canadian Export Figures Behind Pace Set in 1964

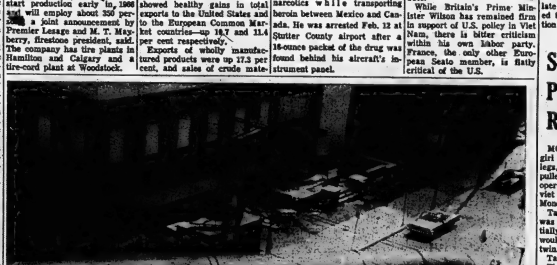
OTTAWA (CP)—Latest available Canadian export figures are running well behind the rapid rate of increase which a year ago triggered a 16.3 per cent boom for 1964.

Figures now public for the 1964-65 months of December, January and February show Canadian exports to all countries are up 1.5 per cent over the same period of the 1963-64 winter.

The small's pace 1.5 per cent advance during the past winter companies with exports during the winter months of 1963-64 which surged ahead 13.2 per cent.

The slackened pace is the result of sharply reduced wheat shipments to Russia.

SHOW HEAVY GAINS



Figures for the winter months showed healthy gains in total exports to the United States and to the European Common Market countries—up 18.7 and 11.4 per cent respectively.

Exports of wholly manufactured products were up 17.3 per cent, and sales of crude materials were up 12.5 per cent. In the 3 months of 1964 these classes of goods showed gains of 41.1 and 13.4 per cent respectively.

The impact of the Russian and other Communist markets in Canada's $1,094,000,000 export aggregate in 1964 is demonstrated in the fact that exports to countries other than the U.S., Britain, Commonwealth countries, and European Common Market countries rose 36.6 per cent. In the 1964-65 winter months they were down 28.5 per cent.

Johnson Action Has Raised Dominican Republic to Status of South Viet Nam

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It requires something spectacular to stir general European interest in the Dominican Republic, the oldest European settlement in North America.

President Johnson has done the trick, however, by ordering 14,000 United States fighting men to the Caribbean island country discovered in December, 1492, by Christopher Columbus, who instructed his brother to form a colony there.

The Johnson action has raised the republic, in international political terms, to a status almost equal with South Viet Nam where more than 30,000 U.S. military men are committed in the cruel southeast Asian struggle.

The Soviet Union and China, because of their own ideological differences, have done some carping between themselves over the conduct of the Vietnamese fight.

Some British observers feel it will be easier for the two Communist giants to get together in denunciation of the U.S. for the fighting in far-off Santo Domingo.

CAUSES MORE DISMAY

The news of the large-scale U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic hit London just as the eight-country Southeast Asia Treaty Organization met for a regular meeting, with the "escalating" U.S. role in Viet Nam the chief topic of debate.

While Britain's Prime Minister Wilson has remained firm in support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam, there is bitter criticism within his own Labor party. France, the only other European Nesto member, is flatly critical of the U.S.

Against this background, the action in Santo Domingo caused all the more dismay, especially since news from the republic has been scanty over past months and even years since Rafael Trujillo, the Dominican dictator, was assassinated in 1961.

Though there is considerable European sympathy for Johnson's fears of a new Cuban-type Communist state being formed in the Caribbean, newspapers also reflect a feeling that the president has much explaining to do.

1920s ACTION RECALLED

"Sending the Marines," in some European ears, is merely the modern equivalent of "sending a gunboat" in imperialist days. The U.S. now is suffering for its support of reactionary Latin American regimes in the past. One periodical says it was the intervention of U.S. Marines in the 1920s that opened the way for Trujillo's generation-long rule.

It is noted that the first reason given for sending in the Marines last week was to protect the lives and property of U.S. citizens. But then a second reason emerged, first being denied, then officially admitted, then proclaimed: To foil a Communist takeover.

Washington is criticized for acting first, then consulting the Organization of American States. It is recalled that the late president Kennedy managed to link action with consultation in the Cuban showdown.

Soviet Child Pulls Through Rare Operation

MOSCOW (AP)—A year-old girl born with four arms, four legs, and five kidneys has pulled through a rare surgical operation successfully, the Soviet news agency Tass said Monday.

Tass said a Soviet surgeon was able to remove the partially developed body of what would have been her Siamese twin.

Tass gave this account:

The second body had no head and no heart. It was attached to the child's chest and stomach.

The second body had two arms, two legs, four kidneys and a pelvic bone. It shared a common abdomen with the fully developed child.

The child, identified only as Vera D., was given blood transfusions, glucose and vitamin c before the operation.

The second body was removed starting with the shoulders and ending with the pelvic bone.

The child left the hospital April 29. Tass said she now is doing well and doctors hope she can lead a normal life.

5,000 School Children Engaged in Tree Planting Program for This District

Close to 5,000 school children and high school students in the Tweed Forest District will have a part in Canada's centennial tree planting project as part in Canada's centennial program preparations when tree planting is completed this week.

Starting Monday and continuing through Thursday, public spirited citizens, and school students in the immediate area are planting ten trees apiece on two reforestation areas in Sidney township.

The centennial planting is a joint project on the part of the Ontario Department of Education in co-operation with the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. The two areas being planted are former farm land immediately north of 401 highway about eight miles west of the city, and at Hallowy.

In all 4,800 school students will take part in the Centennial tree planting project, planting 48,000 trees in the district. The Tweed Forest District takes in from Marmora to Perth and from Lake Ontario north to Bancroft.

CHILDREN PAIRED OFF

The Belleville area tree planting got underway Monday afternoon when over 190 Separate School pupils from Belleville planted trees under the direction of Lands and Forests Department officials from Tweed.

The grade 7 boys and girls are paired off with each two children planting 30 trees. White and Red Pin with a few Scots are being planted in the Sidney township plot north of 401 Highway.

The trees are being planted on Crown land turned over to the Lands and Forests Department by the Highways Department.

The Centennial tree planting project is a "killing two birds with one stone" sort of thing. In addition to getting a bit of experience in tree planting, the children are also given a brief lesson in tree and bush identification. Groups are divided and while one party is busy planting the other is taken on a brief walk through the woods where a Lands and Forests Department officer shows them how to distinguish the various tree types.

BLOOD DONATIONS UP

REGINA (CP)—The Canadian Red Cross Society's blood transfusion service increased its volume in 1964 by 6.85 per cent, Maj.-Gen. Arthur E. Wrinch, the society's national commissioner, reports. He told the annual meeting of the society's central committee Monday that 823,000 pints of blood were handled last year.

SPORTS SLICES

The Stanley Cup song is over, but the argumentative melodies linger on.

The die-hard supporters of all four contending clubs refuse to roll over and play dead dog. Fandom blood is thicker than victory water—and to hell with the Joe that thinks otherwise, they say.

Rube aficionados were jubilant. And they should be. They were the conquerors of the in-and-out Chicago Black Hawks in the never-to-forget stakes. And hadn't they rubbed out their Candiens buddies from Toronto, a poor fourth-place squad, albeit they had been extended to cop the gonfalon.

The Maple Leafs' followers were sore or less stoical in their grief. The verbal bravado of Punch Imlach arnent his "old men" had proved nothing much better than a house of cards. It crashed about his ears in the semi-finals.

Base-minded Black Hawk fans admitted that their heroes were defeated by a better club in the finals series. Home ice prevailed for the Canadiens but they played well enough in Chicago to win two of the three games played there. The Hawks never looked like winners in any of the four games played in Montreal and they were shut out in the last three.

Bobby Hull has no superior in the National Hockey League but few, except the dyed-in-the-wool Chicago fans will disagree that Jean Beliveau deserved the brand new Conn Smythe trophy and the two grand that went with it.

He scored, set up plays, chivalred like a fiend and set the pace for his team-mates. It was Beliveau at his best and greatest who provided the spark that fired the Habs to clinch cup victory.

Through the haze of the Stanley Cup postmortems one thing stands out in this agent's binoculars. The Hawks depended too much on Bobby Hull, and brilliant as he is, it proved too much for him.

"Sheriff" Toe Blake deputized his star gunslinger Claude Provost to "nail" the Black Hawk "bad man." Provost stuck to the Hullian rear like a burr to a horse blanket. It is in the record that on the occasions that Hull shook the shadow, he scored or set up scoring plays.

Toe Blake knew that a Hull on the loose is nothing short of goal-scoring dynamite. Not a few National Hockey League players have learned that trying to roughneck the Hawks' flaming comet, he is in high gear, is nothing short of concussion, six stitches or lodging in a bird cherry.

—But one swallow does not constitute a binge any more than one Hull can defeat six men of high hockey calibre. Sid Abel assigned Bruce MacGregor and Paul Henderson to tail the Hawk fury, but he shook them like a duck shakes aqua pura.

In the furore and fury of Stanley Cup play, the league champions are relegated to the background. Last year Canadiens finished atop the loop and Hitler was made of it. This year the Detroit Red Wings looked down on the field but like other topspotters they faded into the distance beyond the perimeter of the glare of cup playoffs.

Few among the fans ever remember for more than a couple of weeks who won the league championship but nearly all remember who won the Stanley Cup. The players themselves will tell you it's their ambition to play on a Stanley Cup winner because it is something they can cherish for the rest of their lives. Besides there is a lot of wallet lining that goes with it.

So as Mushmouth the Sage of Zwick's Island doggerels:

> The fighting and the fury's o'er,
> The battle flats are furled,
> To Habs the Cup—To me the Wings
> Are champions of the World.

Major Leagues Batting

Mantilla Eyes Top Rung

NEW YORK (AP) — There evidently is no limit to Felix Mantilla's ambition.

A relatively weak hitter early in his major league career with Milwaukee Braves and New York Mets, Mantilla surprised most baseball people last season by slamming 30 home runs and batting .259.

This year, the 30-year-old Boston Red Sox infielder is off to an excellent start. He is second in the American League batting race with a .375 average and a runner-up in the RBI competition with 14.

Mantilla trails only Wayne Causey in batting. The Kansas City infielder lifted his average from .318 to .320 in last week's 6 games, collecting nine hits in 19 tries, a .474 pace.

Dagoy Cater of Chicago White Sox, the pace-setter a week ago, dropped to third place at .367.

Boog Powell of Baltimore drove in seven runs last week and took over the RBI lead with 13. Mantilla is tied with teammates Thomas and Cleveland's Rocky Colavito.

THREE TIED

Curt Blefary, Baltimore rookie, and Thomas are tied for the top spot in homers with five.

In the National League, Richie Allen of Philadelphia scored into first place in batting with a .394 average. He had 14 hits in 27 times at bat last week. Allen paid, and boosted his average 86 points.

Ed Kranepool of the Mets, last week's leader, fell to second place at .388. He is followed by Jesus Alou, San Francisco, and Gordie Coleman, Cincinnati, each with .373.

The averages include Sunday's games.

Wes Covington of Philadelphia walloped three homers last week and took over the No. 1 position with six. Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs remained in third place in RBI with 22. He drove home eight runs last week.

WILL MOVE FRANCHISE

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Minneapolis team of the Central Professional Hockey League will be transferred to Oklahoma City this year. The announcement came Monday from Weston Adams, president of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. The team will be a member of the Boston organization, but Adams said local officers will guide the club.

Howard Loss Blow To Yankee Hopes

NEW YORK (AP) — Elston Howard will be lost to New York Yankees for six weeks and with him may go the team's hopes for an unprecedented sixth consecutive American League pennant.

The veteran all-star catcher, plagued by an arm injury since the start of the season, will undergo surgery Wednesday for the removal of a bone chip from his right elbow.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, Yankee team physician who will perform the operation, said today he is hopeful that Howard will be able to return to action by mid-June.

In an attempt to shore up the catching vacuum, the Yankees acquired Howard (Doc) Edwards from Kansas City Athletics Monday night. They paid a reported $25,000 for the tall defensively strong receiver, giving up catcher Johnny Blanchard and pitcher Roland Sheldon.

Howard was a picture of despair in the clubhouse Monday night after the Yankees dropped a 3-1 exhibition to New York Mets.

"My wife was opposed to the operation," he said. "But I couldn't go on this way. I couldn't do anything. I can't throw and I can't control the bat, shucks, I can't even straighten out the arm."

The 35-year-old catcher injured his throwing arm in an exhibition game in Puerto Rico April 3, while attempting to pick Dennis Daniels, Washington Senators pitcher, off second base. His foot slipped in the soft sand around home plate and his throw was off balance.

The Yankees sorely missing Howard's big bat, now in eighth place with a 7-9 won-lost record.

Howard said x-rays taken two weeks ago indicated there was a loose bone chip in the elbow but the decision to operate was not made until two days ago.

This marks the first time since he became the team's No. 1 catcher that Howard has been sidelined by an injury. He has caught more than 100 games in each of the last eight seasons and was voted the American League's most valuable player in 1963.

Last year he appeared in 130 games, batted .313, hit 15 home runs and drove in 94 runs. His 1965 salary is a reported $70,000.

Bowl-O-Drome Weekend Tournaments

Spring bowling tournaments continue this coming weekend with a "double-duty" affair slated for the Bowl-O-Drome's five-pin lanes.

The annual ladies' championship tournament and the men's "B" class (for bowlers with averages under 210) tournament will be held Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8.

Both tourneys are run off at the same time, with Friday's play scheduled for 9.00 p.m. and Saturday's for 1.00 p.m. Bowlers are asked to give their preference of date when they file entry but due to the latenes of Friday's starting time, only three bowlers will be placed per lane.

Prize money will be distributed to the top six bowlers in each tourney, the amounts depending on the number of entries.

The annual trophy, plus individual trophy, will go to the champion in each tournament.

Refs. Should Forget Book - Voss

TORONTO (CP)—Carl Voss, who retires officially as referee-in-chief of the National Hockey League next month, says it is impossible to referee by the rule book.

"It would emasculate the game," Voss said in an interview Monday. "Players would lose spirit, desire and enthusiasm. What is a great attraction would become dull, colorless."

Voss, who has spent 33 of his 38 years in professional hockey as a player, coach and official said, however, that flagrant fouls cannot be overlooked.

"If a scoring chance is lost, a power play must replace it. Injury through fouls must be curbed. Obvious penalties must be called. If everyone in the rink sees something that isn't called, the official is not doing a good job."

Voss, who spent 15 years as referee-in-chief, said two big changes in the NHL during that time were the cutting down of intimidation of officials by coaches and players and enlargement of officials until the league finally has four men capable of working a cup final.

Voss said that in his reign as a referee-in-chief only one official—Jack Maklebacher — was fired without Voss having the last word, and only one playoff referee — Dalton McArthur—was ever voted by the governors.

He said referees could but shouldn't call 38 infractions in every game, that as one can stand the prongs of refereeing no entire playoff series and that linesmen's basic salaries of $30 means they are well paid.

Emery Defeats Clarence

HULL, Que. (CP) — Burke Emery of Sherbrooke, Que., Canadian light heavyweight champ, punched out a unanimous eight-round decision over Charlie Clarence of New York City in a non-title match here Monday night.

Emery weighed 178, Clarence, 174.

In the featured match Larry Renault of Montreal, at 126 pounds, won by a TKO over Sonny Andrews, a Boston fighter weighing 120, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

Renault floored his foe five times before 627 fans at the Hull Arena.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was reported in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this relief obtained was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.®

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H relieves pain and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Chance Brilliant In 1-0 Win

— Cards Stop Giants

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Chance, his blistering fast ball getting the better of his blistering finger, doesn't need an understudy.

Chance, in fact, gave an award - winning performance Monday night as Los Angeles Angels edged Boston Red Sox 1-0.

The 23-year-old right hander pitched perfect ball for five innings and hitless ball for seven before winding up with a four-hitter for his second victory against no defeats.

Angels' manager Bill Rigney apparently didn't expect his ace to put on such a show. Chance has been plagued this spring by a blister on the middle finger of his pitching hand, and Rigney had George Brunet warming up for the first three innings.

After Chance retired the first 15 Red Sox, Ed Bressoud led off the sixth inning with a grounder to first baseman Coaten Shockley. Chance raced to cover first, but Shockley's throw was wide.

Six consecutive outs later, former home-mate Lee Thomas started the eighth with a line single to right field, breaking up Chance's bid for a no-hitter.

SHAVES E.R.A.

The victory, in which he reduced his earned run average from 3.27 to 2.32, kept Chance exactly even with the 1964 pace that carried him to a 20-9 record and the Cy Young Award as the majors' best pitcher.

In the only other games played, Kansas City Athletics defeated Washington Senators 5-3 in the American League and St. Louis Cardinals stopped San Francisco Giants 3-1 in the National.

The Angels scored their lone run with the help of an error in the third inning. Jose Cardenal led off with a single and raced all the way home when centre-fielder Lenny Green let Albie Pearson's single get by him for an error.

Successive home runs by Nelie Mathews and Ken Harrelson off Pete Richert in the second inning started Kansas City on its way. The Senators' Ken McMullen gave the Athletics two runs on his bases-loaded error in the fourth but then drove in two himself with a homer and a single.

Curt Simmons pitched a five-hitter, allowing the Giants only Willie Mays' sixth homer of the year in the ninth. The Cardinals scored twice in the sixth on consecutive singles by Tito Francona, Ken Boyer, Bill White and Phil Gagliano before Jim McCarver bounced into the pitcher's second triple play.

Pitcher Ron Herbel took McCarver's tap back to the mound and threw to Joe Pagan for the force on Gagliano at second. Pagan's relay to Willie McCovey nailed McCarver at first, and McCovey completed the play by firing to catcher Tom Haller for the out on White, trying to score from second.

Ken Colling Memorial

113 Enter Cross Country Run

Far and away the largest number of entries ever to compete, 113, will take part in the annual Ken Colling Memorial Cross Country Run tomorrow.

The race, now a COSSA event for the second year, will start at the BCVS campus, at 4.30 Wednesday afternoon.

With 113 entries, including boys from just about every secondary school in the Bay of Quinte COSSA district taking part, the draw was made yesterday placing the starters in rows of 15.

They will start at the corner of John and Queen Streets, proceeding east on Queen to McDonald Ave., south to Bridge, east to Parrott Drive, north to Victoria Ave., west to McDonald Ave., south to Queen St. and west on Queen, back to the BCVS campus for the finish.

Once again the finish will be through a "tunnel", as it was for the first time last year.

Mr. Cleo Colling, who donates the trophy in honor of his brother, the late Ken Colling, plus cests and awards, will be on hand for presentation ceremonies in the BCVS auditorium following the race.

Since the first race, back in 1946, the course has been changed several times and this latest one, approximately 4¼ miles long, is being used for the third year.

The present record time is 23 minutes and four seconds, set by Brian Kane, of Trenton High School, in 1963. Stan Woodcock, of Moira Secondary School, was last year's winner.

Large crowds of students, parents and other spectators are expected to take in tomorrow's race.

Homer "Red" Townsend is acting convener for the race, in the absence of Stan Barbour, physical director of BCVS, who is ill.

South Hastings Baseballers Meet Wednesday

The South Hastings Baseball League will hold its second meeting of the year tomorrow (Wednesday) night at the C.P.R. Freight Offices, South George Street.

The meeting starts at eight o'clock and all clubs are asked to have representation.

Only five clubs attended the finital meeting. They were Shannonville, Read, Latta, Canniffon and Foxboro. No word was available from Deseronto but the loop hopes to secure an entry from there, or from some other centre, to round out a six-team grouping.

Wednesday's meeting is an entry deadline affair and secretary treasurer Wally Dever points out that all clubs must submit a $15 performance bond this as well.

Agree To Hands-off Policy

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)— The two major professional football leagues have agreed to specific hands-off rules governing the signing of college players, Jim Corbett, chairman of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's college-pro relations committee, said Monday.

The National Football League prescribed stiff penalties for violations of the new rules including possible loss by a club of its entire draft rights, Crobett said.

The American Football League has agreed to adopt the same measures, he added.

Corbett, Louisiana State University athletic director, headed the NCAA unit which has negotiated with the pros over the past four months on the thorny issue of players signings.

NCAA members were angry last fall after it was disclosed that a number of players had signed pro contracts and continued to play college football.

PLANS MATCH

LONDON (AP)—British boxing promoter Jack Solomons said Monday he plans to match Walter Benvenuti, the British Empire flyweight champion, in a world bantamweight fight against champion Eder Jofre of Brazil in London Sept. 21. Solomons said Jofre has agreed to the fight and the terms.

'Blues' Rehire 'Red'

NEW YORK (AP) — George (Red) Sullivan has been rehired as coach of New York Rangers, the National Hockey League club said Monday.

Sullivan's retention for one year at an undisclosed salary was announced at a press conference during which general manager Emile Francis said:

"Red is one of the finest coaches in hockey. He's enthusiasm and drive are most important ingredients for a young team like ours."

Sullivan, 35, a former Ranger centre, took over as coach in December, 1962, replacing Muzz Patrick. He previously had coached Baltimore of the American League and Kitchener of the Eastern Professional League.

The rangers finished fifth in each of the last two seasons.

THINKS GOALIES EQUAL — Bill Beveridge, a former National Hockey League goaltender, thinks all goalies in the NHL are about equal and their record is made good or bad by the defence. Beveridge played with five NHL teams and Cleveland of the American League before retiring in 1942-43 season. This picture shows him in the Cleveland net in the early 1940's. (CP Photo)

FORMER NHL GOALIE — Bill Beverage, a 35-year-old real estate dealer in Manotick, Ont., and a former National Hockey League goalie, disputes the theory that goalies are as important to hockey teams as pitchers are in baseball. He figures goalies are only 20 per cent of a team's strength, while pitchers are 70 per cent. (CP Photo)

MELBOURNE (AP) — Australia may not accept an invitation to play in this year's Canada Cup tournament, says golf writer Don Lawrence of the Melbourne Age. Lawrence says a clash of dates between the Canada Cup in Madrid, finishing Oct. 24, and the Australian Open championship at Brisbane starting Oct. 28, is causing members of the Australian Professional Golfers' Association's executive committee to favor rejection of the invitation.

Remember Vic And His Bomberettes?

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

If Vic Bagnato flipped a two-headed coin, he would be inclined to bet you it would land tails.

That's the way things go for this small, chubby man with one slightly pulled ear and a smile that doesn't seem to wear off. He has taken many raps in his 49 years, most of which has been spent in the fight game.

He was a crowd - pleasing amateur flyweight around Toronto in the late 1930s and early 1940s and lost only two decisions in 100 fights in the 113-pound class.

His first big disappointment was in 1936 when he felt some hanky-panky kept him off Canada's boxing squad for the Olympic Games in Germany.

Then he got into the game as a promoter of amateur and pro fights and has taken a financial beating.

Bagnato has had many reasons to wake up scowling but he refuses to put on a long face.

One of 23 Bagnato children—of whom 12 are living—he had an early baptism into the fight game because his doting mother dressed the boys in sailor suits. "We were raised in a tough neighborhood in the West End and in the depression years and you can imagine what the other kids said and did when I walked down the street in my sissy-looking clothes."

WON A NICKEL

He had his first street fight at eight "when one of the neighbor b o o d characters offered a nickel to the winner and the guy I met was a real tough one." Bagnato won and later fought at church smokers three or four times a week where the prizes were clothing or maybe one or two dollars.

He had two of his six brothers—Joey and Billy — started promoting fights around Toronto in 1949. That was after Vic's stint with the RCAF as a physical education instructor at No. 6 bombing and gunnery school at Mountain View, Ont.

"I was going to be a tail gunner in the air force but on official remembered me as an amateur fighter and said he wanted me as a physical education instructor and also to put on amateur fight shows in the RCAF."

Probably few people realize it but Vic was promoter of the outdoor Archie Moore-James J. Parker light-heavyweight fight in Toronto in 1956. It was the little man on the fringe of the crowd—and what a mob that was.

Toronto millionaire Dave Rush bankrolled the fight, and in Toronto to stay things up were the late Jack (Doc) Kearns, Bill Daly of Paterson, N.J., and promoter Jack Solomons of London. They dreamed up all sorts of gimmicks—red carpet for the ringside, reporters in black tie, models, military guard of honor for Moore and Parker, and hair dressing rooms to the ring.

NO PROFIT

They couldn't have operated without Vic because he had the promoter's license. What happened? "I got stuck a dime out of it," says Vic, "but I certainly learned a lot.

"I used to go home at night and shake my head in wonder at the crazy things that were going on. I guess I got some kicks out of it."

Leafs Edge Suns 3-1, Wings Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs hope that a pulled side muscle isn't going to sideline William Spanswick.

Spanswick, one of the Leafs' top pitchers, suffered the injury Monday night while pitching the Leafs to a 3-1 International Baseball League victory over Jacksonville Suns.

And although he was credited with the win, big third in four starts, Spanswick had to be replaced by Mike Sinks in the sixth inning.

Rochester Red Wings walloped Toledo Mud Hens 12-7, Syracuse Chiefs downed Columbus Jets 7-1, and Atlanta Crackers edged Buffalo Bisons 6-4 in other league action.

Wilbur Wood and Sinks held the Suns to three hits, Joe Foy and Mike Page were contributing homers. Bill Millnis also collected a triple.

Andy Etchebarren and Lou Jackson, with a homer each, sparked the Red Wings 15-hit attack.

Hilario Rojas was the big man at the plate for the Chiefs, collecting two homers and two-run triple.

Dick Kelly posted his fourth victory without a loss for Atlanta to victory.

Wins Three in Row

Roberts Close to 300

NEW YORK (AP)—If Robin Roberts continues to finish what he starts, Baltimore Orioles' young-armed oldster may not settle for 300 lifetime victories.

Roberts, 38, has started four games for the Orioles this season and finished the last three, including a masterful 5-0 triumph over New York Yankees Sunday that left him 26 victories short of the charmed 300 circle.

Only Warren Spahn, with 358, has won more among active pitchers, and Roberts has a six-year age pull on New York Mets' senior southpaw.

Unbeaten in three 1965 decisions, the former Philadelphia Phillies ace has moved past ex-Yankee great Red Ruffing into 16th position on the all-time victory list. His 42nd shutout, first this season against New York, tied the Yankees' Whitey Ford for the top total among active American League hurlers.

STYLE UNCHANGED

Roberts was 13-7 for Baltimore last year but completed only eight of his 31 starts. He says he's not doing anything differently this season, hasn't changed his style, but has come up with something he lacked in recent years—staying power.

"I've been strong in the ninth inning all year," he said after blanking the Yankees on six hits to complete an Oriole double-header sweep. "I've been strong at the end of all three games I've won. I haven't been losing my stuff in the late innings as in past years."

Roberts, 5-1 against the Yankees since they released him three years ago after a perfunctory spring trial, struck out three—one in the eighth inning, two in the ninth—and didn't walk anybody. Last Wednesday at Washington, he fanned three Senators in the ninth to nail down a 6-3 victory.

FESTIVAL GROWS

The Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Ont., has grown from 42 play performances in 1953 to 129 dramatic and 73 musical performances in 1964.

Danes Lead Bike Race

By IAN MacKENZIE

TORONTO (CP)—The Danish team of Palle Lykke and Fredie Eugen retained their lead going into the third day of the six-day International bicycle race at Maple Leaf Gardens today.

Lykke and Eugen were tied in total laps with teams from Luxembourg and Germany but held the edge with 174 sprint points after 405 miles.

Lucien Gillen and Robert Letangue held down second place for Luxembourg with 101 sprint points, and the German team of Sigi Renz and Fritz Pfennigen was third with 86 points.

The winners are decided by the number of times they lap the field. In the event of a tie the race is awarded to the team which amasses the most points in short 10-lap sprints. Five are held every hour.

LAP BEHIND

Three teams, the favorites Rik Van Steenbergen and Emile Severyns, riding for Belgium, Leandro Faggin and Mino De Rossi for Italy and Roger Gilgnard and Jean Raynal, representing Canada, were one lap behind with 163 points, 111 points and 107 points respectively.

Renz and Pfenninger were penalized Monday night for taking advantage of the official defecte rule, which permits a team to have both riders off the track temporarily without penalty.

The first time they were penalized one lap but soon made it up in a jam in which individual teams try to gain a lap on the pack. The second time laps were penalized a lap and fined $10.

"They may be able to get a lap back," said race co-ordinator Rene Cyr, "so we'll hit them in the pocket where it hurts. When a machine has defects, the rider is supposed to have another one ready. They have no excuse."

Oddfellows Minors Guests At Banquet

The Oddfellow bantam and midget hockey clubs were guests of their sponsor at a seasonal - windup chicken dinner last Thursday night.

Fifty boys, fathers and head table guests attended the affair, provided by the Rebekah Lodge and C. P. and T. committee. Special guests were Noble Grand Bruce Prindle and Mr. Alvin Miller, member of the Junior Odd Fellows Lodge.

Midget coach Lou Smrke, manager Lloyd Wilson and bantam coach Floyd Crawford spoke to the boys on their excellent progress, urging them to continue their good work toward becoming a credit to themselves, their coaches and their community.

Special appreciation was given to the ladies, sponsors, managers, coaches and to Mr. Grills and Mr. Robbin, the latter for contributions toward the dinner, by the Independent Oddfellows, No. 81, of Belleville.

The Oddfellow teams represented the city in OMHA playdowns and in various tournaments.

POINT YOUR CLUB AT TARGET

Many golfers, bothered by hooked shots, could lick the problem by simply "throwing the club-head at the target" after impact.

I don't mean that the club literally moves toward the target on approach—the distance after the ball is struck. It really moves upward and around to the left. But, by thinking about continuing the swing toward the target, the player will thwart any tendency to close the clubface at impact and finish with too-flat a follow-through (No. 1).

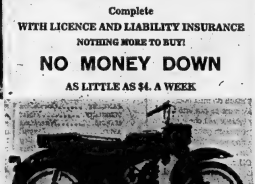
Strike the ball with your left wrist firm and the back of the left hand facing the target (No. 2). Then continue swinging "toward the target" (No. 3) with the wrist still firm. You'll find that the clubface looks at the target for a longer time and your hooking problems will be solved.



Caution: Keep your head behind the ball throughout the swing. Don't let it sway toward the target as the club moves in that direction.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed for the working taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER

Retired Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

AUNTS, UNCLES, NIECES AND NEPHEWS

A married person residing with their spouse is not allowed any claim at all for an aunt, uncle, niece or nephew. However, if the taxpayer is single, legally separated, divorced or a widow(er) the equivalent to married status ($1000) may be claimed on any of the above relatives providing they are supported in a dwelling where the taxpayer resides and such dwelling is maintained at the taxpayers expense.

In other words, you will be allowed $1000 exemption in certain cases on any of the above relatives but never $500 or $550.

In cases where the aunt and uncle have raised the taxpayer from a child, then he must claim them as foster parents to obtain any exemption for them. This also applies in regard to nieces and nephews of which the taxpayer has full custody and control. Such nieces and nephews should be claimed as adopted children. For income tax purposes, adoption, means either in law or in fact.

When a single taxpayer has an aunt or uncle residing with him, he can claim the equivalent to married status on one, which is $100 but nothing at all for the other. Of course the dependant claimed cannot have income in excess of $950. If they are receiving nothing but the Old Age pension, that will have no bearing on the claim as it amounted to only $900 in 1964.

If you are in doubt as to any claim, check with your nearest Income tax office, or a letter addressed to me, following the instructions below, will bring correct information.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, five cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

QUESTION 1: My wife and I have taken her aunt and uncle to live with us. They have no income. How much can I claim for them?

ANSWER: You have no claim at all.

QUESTION 2: My mother and aunt lived with me for the past 10 years, but now my mother has passed away and my aunt is still here. I am a single woman. Can I now claim an exemption for my aunt?

ANSWER: Yes. Claim $100 just the same as you did on your mother.

Hospitals Will Benefit by Govt. Action

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the Ontario government is prepared to use its centennial fund to help build hospitals or hospital extensions.

The Toronto paper quotes cabinet spokesmen as saying Monday that hospitals owned by municipalities will qualify for grants under the scheme in which the provincial and federal governments match the amount a municipality puts up for its centennial project.

The spokesmen are quoted as saying that hospitals not owned by municipalities will not be eligible.

The newspaper says the statement could start a building boom at hospitals owned by municipalities.

About 20 municipalities own hospitals. A department of municipal affairs official said Monday he did not know how many of them have not applied for grants for other projects.

The deadline for applications is already postponed twice—to Aug. 5.

OUT OF RETIREMENT — Vicky Baker is only 16 but she already is ending her first retirement. A Montreal singer who rose to quick fame in 1963 with a couple of hit songs—"No More Foolish Stories" and "Yutto-Tutta"—she retired to concentrate on school. Now she figures her studies have progressed to the point where she can spend time on more recordings. (CP Photo)

Grade 10 High School Student Makes Comeback After Two Hit Records

By EDDY COLLISTER

MONTREAL (CP) — Vicky Baker is coming out of retirement to record a couple of new songs.

What makes her story a little different is that she was only 15 when she retired and is making her comeback at the age of 16. That hardly puts her in the old age pension class.

Vicky, whose real name is Linda Syrek, is a Grade 10 high school student in suburban Chomedey.

The pert, dark-haired singer withdrew after a quick rise with a pair of hit songs, No More Foolish Stories and Yutta-Tutta, around the middle of 1963.

Both songs made it to the top 10 on the hit charts in Montreal before schoolwork forced Vicky to curtail her career.

"Grade 10 really hits you," she said. "I found that it took more of my time to adjust to the grade, so the singing had to be put aside for a while.

"However, I passed my midterm exams and there are these two songs waiting to be recorded, so I'm coming out of retirement, so to speak."

She started singing when she was 12 and made her first recording at 15 on the London label.

She explains that she chose a new name because she wanted something more common than Linda Syrek. "I liked Vicky and someone else in the family came up with Baker."

Some of the girls at Chomedey High School call her Vicky.

"Most of them call me Linda but some, those who don't know me that well, call me Vicky."

Public appearances have been kept to a minimum because of school.

"I did appear on television twice. After my two records were released I was on Saturday Date, a teen-age program in Ottawa."

She prefers public appearances to TV—"You can see the reaction when you face a crowd."

However, her youthful success doesn't necessarily mean she will make singing a career.

"I love sports," she says, mentioning badminton, volleyball, basketball and horseback riding. "I want to be a physical education teacher when I finish my schooling."

Stampeders Sign Track Star

CALGARY (CP) — Frank Budd, former holder of the world record for the 100-yard dash, has been signed by Calgary Stampeders, the Western Football Conference club announced today.

Budd, a halfback, flanker and split end, was drafted by Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League in 1962 and traded to Washington Redskins, who released him the following year after he suffered an ankle injury.

He was a member of the 1960 United States Olympic team and set his world mark of 9.2 seconds at a meet in Moscow in 1963.

Town Recreation Director To Be Paid $4,700 a Year

PICTON (Staff) — A motion was carried at the monthly meeting of town council Monday night to employ the services of Mr. J. Wayne King, B.P.E., College, as Recreation Director for the Town of Picton at an annual salary of $4,700, plus a $300 car allowance to be effective the 1st of June, 1965.

Nine building permits were issued for the month of April totalling $26,275. Largest of the permits issued was for the old Palomar Hall, which is being renovated for a nursing home at a cost of $15,000.

A letter was read pertaining to a municipal work shop to be held in Belleville May 26 and 27 with topics related to municipal administration, assessment, finance and planning with proposed periods of discussion on problems of municipal affairs.

A by-law was passed to engage the services of Angus LeHeup as plumbing inspector for the town at a yearly salary of $600 to be paid weekly beginning May 1st, 1965. Councillor Don Thompson brought to the attention of council the fact that over $100 damage has been done to the new town barns by vandals and probably youngsters. Parents should be advised, he said, of this activity and the children warned of these occurrences. Every window of the building has been broken, bo...said, the floor inside the building is strewn with rocks of all sizes. Mayor Mc-Farland concurred that strong legal action would be taken against anyone caught in the act of destroying property.

A committee headed by chairman of the Centennial Committee, Mrs. G. Elson, was asked to investigate sites for the coming "centennial cairvan" before meeting with the Centennial officials on May 28.

The report of the streets and properties committee was read and it was decided at a meeting of this committee that there would be no increases in salaries for town workmen. A motion was passed to provide for A. LeHeup to attend the Road Supervisors' Course at Guelph.

Town Meeting of World Comes Clear on Early Bird

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The urge to play electronic tricks with the Early Bird communications satellite has gripped the three major U.S. television networks.

All three did a portion of their evening news roundup via the trans-Atlantic satellite.

But it was CBS which foreefully demonstrated the importance of the new link between nations.

It was, of course, CBS' Town Meeting of the World, broadcast live in the early afternoon and repeated Monday night. An exciting and illuminating hour it was with State Secretary Dean Rusk in Washington, British Foreign Minister Michael Stewart in London, French Deputy Maurice Schumann and former British prime minister Sir Alec Douglas - Home in Paris and Barry Goldwater in New York.

Perhaps none of the participants in the discussion of the Viet Nam situation advanced any new ideas. Perhaps no positions were changed. But for the average citizen, just to sit on such a high-level discussion was enlightening.

Television since its beginning has been heralded as a bright window on the world and with CBS' initial Early Bird effort it showed promise to fulfilling this function.

Lorne Greene's American West, an NBC special Monday night, was an attempt to wrap up the color and scenery of Bonanza with the rhythm of a musical variety show. The result was moderately successful.

Greene's West was less real than the Ponderosa but if gave him a chance to sing some sad ballads in a handsome outdoor setting. It was an attempt at something off the well-beaten variety path and for this deserves a medal. Greene is a native of Ottawa.

Stella Stevens, Once Broke, Riding High as Actress

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stella Stevens was broke a few years ago and posed in the nude for a girlie magazine.

She's no longer broke. In fact, she has arrived as a movie actress.

But there is the same magazine, again, is a bare Stella.

How come?

"I got $3,000 for posing the first time. This last time, I did it for nothing. Why?

"I'll tell you why. They kept using the old pictures over and over again. So I figured that I'd control the art myself. I hired a photographer and posed in the nude for a hundred or so shots.

CHOSE FAVORITES

"I selected the ones I liked best and sent them to the magazine. They are pictures I like and ones that I feel are in good taste.

"At least if I'm going to show up nude in the magazine every few months, it will be with pictures that I like."

She thinks she did the right thing.

"I didn't do it for publicity. Who knows whether something like this can't do more harm than good? All I know is that the photographs of me in the nude would have kept recurring this way, at least, they'll be better."

In respect to her career, Stella is riding high. Just released is Synanon, and soon to be released is The Secret of My Success, in both of which she is starred.

The curvy blonde just bought a new greystone house in the exclusive Coldwater Canyon district of Beverly Hills.

She has a live-in maid and her nine-year-old son goes to a military school.

Budget Debate Near End

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs get their final shots today at Finance Minister Gordon's budget.

The six - day budget debate ends at 5:45 p.m. when Speaker Alan Macnaughton asks the Commons to approve the annual financial program read nine days ago by Mr. Gordon.

Two non-confidence motions which could have meant the defeat of the government and a general election were defeated during the debate. A third formal vote could be called today but the likelihood is that the budget will get final approval by a voice vote rather than through a formal standing count.

Conservatives were accused Tuesday night of staying away from the Commons last Thursday in sufficient numbers to assure the government of surviving a motion of non - confidence moved by the New Democratic Party.

SOME DIDN'T KNOW

Gerard Chapdelaine (SC—Sherbrooke) said some Conservatives didn't know that his party intended to vote with the government and thus assure the minority Liberal administration of winning the vote.

The NDP motion was beaten back by 106 to 90 votes. Thirty-one Conservatives either were not in the House or were paired with absent members.

Mr. Chapdelaine said once the Conservatives were sure that his party would again back the government last Monday, they turned out in force to vote against the government. The vote then — on a Conservative motion—was 111 to 109. Eighty-one of the 94 Conservative members voted. Another five said they were paired.

Mr. Chapdelaine said that while Mr. Gordon was merely playing games in the Commons his was assuming the only responsible role. The Canadian people didn't want an election now.

State Secretary Lamontagne said the budget must be considered in connection with the report of the Economic Council of Canada.

The council's report on the country's economic future said 1,500,000 new jobs must be provided by 1970, called for an annual increase of 5.5 per cent in the gross national product—the total of all goods and services produced—and said the unemployment rate shouldn't exceed three per cent.

Mr. Gordon's budget was a major step in reaching these

In Year, U. S. Thinking On Viet Nam War Does Complete Turnabout

SAIGON (AP)—One year ago U.S. officials have were saying that the war in South Viet Nam must remain a South Vietnamese war — Americans would lend all necessary material and advisory support but not combat troops.

Since then U.S. official thinking has undergone an almost complete change.

Nearly 30,000 U.S. marines are in Viet Nam and paratroopers began arriving today. No one is willing to say just how many more American combat troops are headed this way, but it is clear that an more token forces are involved.

What has changed American thinking?

The reason usually given is increased infiltration of guerrillas and arms from North Viet Nam. In recent months the discovery of Communist arms caches along the South Viet Nam seacoast has underscored the infiltration problem.

There are fears the Viet Cong is braced for a monsoon season offensive dwarfing any of the Communists efforts of the last five years.

For the first time in months U.S. fighter-bombers and helicopter operations will be seriously curtailed by rain squalls, low overcast and fog. This can be especially dangerous in the jungle-covered mountains that make up about two-thirds of South Viet Nam's land area.

But underlying the new American push is a factor that lies close to the roots of the war itself. Most U.S. officials have become convinced that South Vietnamese forces cannot defeat the Viet Cong no matter how long they try.

Many believe that a Viet Cong victory would come in a matter of weeks or even days without the gigantic support now coming from Washington.

The implications of this conclusion are grim. It means in effect that the Viet Cong strategy has come near to achieving the political war for South Viet Nam. To hold back the Communist tide now will be a question of sheer military force.

A year ago U.S. officials feared that the use of American combat troops here could be a big propaganda setback.

"We don't want to be saddled with charges of gunboat diplomacy," one official said.

Now things have gone too far to worry about the niceties of propaganda. The hope is that U.S. troops will be able to hold the sagging line in central Viet Nam and that a second front can be opened toward North Viet Nam.

South Vietnamese generals have been urging for years a frontal assault on North Viet Nam. The arrival of massive numbers of American troops here could make that a possibility. There seems a strong likelihood that Saigon ground forces will soon be spreading to some degree north of the 17th parallel.

Meanwhile, U.S. forces in the northern part of central Viet Nam are likely to look more and more like occupation troops.

As the marines dug out into the countryside the Viet Cong is expected to make maximum propaganda capital out of the theme that the war now is white men fighting yellow men. Already Radio Hanoi is drawing its parallels between the French army of 1945-54 and the new U.S. ground forces.

It now is a direct test of strength between the Pentagon and the men who have perfected Communist political military warfare.

Plane Armada Lands 1,200 Paratroopers

SAIGON (AP)—An armada of transport planes landed 1,200 U.S. paratroopers in South Viet Nam today. They are the first American army ground combat units sent to fight the Viet Cong.

Another 2,300 men of the 173rd Airborne Brigade were expected from Okinawa soon, probably this week.

Half of the 1,200 paratroopers were landed at the Bien Hoa air base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon. The rest came in at the Vung Tau airstrip on the South China Sea 40 miles southeast of Saigon.

U.S. Army forces already on Viet Nam are here as advisers to the South Vietnamese forces and as training personnel. The paratroopers are expected to have the same assignment that the U.S. marines now have at the Da Nang air base and Phu Bai, 350 miles north of Saigon—defence in depth of the key installations with a liberal sprinkling of offensive operations against the Viet Cong thrown in.

Vung Tau may be destined to become a major buildup area for U.S. troops, similar to Da Nang.

In Washington, Congress approved today to act on President Johnson's request for $700,000,000 in emergency defence funds to meet mounting military costs in Viet Nam.

Johnson was asked about the Viet Nam war during a press conference on the White House grounds Tuesday night. He said: "It's just something we've got and I don't know how to find the answer. I've tried everything I can."

During a White House briefing Tuesday morning of congressional leaders which was open to the press, Johnson said of the North Vietnamese and their allies:

"All our intelligence is unanimous in this one point, that they have no need for negotiation. They think they are winning and if they have won and why should they sit down and give up possessing and settle with us."

Mr. Johnson said he wanted to negotiate, but "I have searched high and wide, and I am a reasonably good cowboy, and I can't even rope anybody and bring them in who is willing to talk and settle this by negotiation."

Crime Rate No Worse

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's crime rate was no worse than could be expected in 1964, the province's top police official indicated Tuesday.

Eric Silk, commissioner of the provincial police, said in his annual report to the legislature that the increase in crime was about normal in relation to the growth of population in Ontario.

Mr. Silk's report listed 41,823 criminal actions reported during the year, exclusive of 118,573 prosecutions under the provincial highway traffic act.

The figure represents an increase of 3,350 crimes or 9.4 per cent from 1963.

Provincial police, RCMP and officers at Toronto International Airport part-time did the known criminals arriving or departing, the report said.

PROSECUTIONS INCREASED

The previous month's total that branch recovered $30,252 worth of goods and made 1,000 successful prosecutions against high - graders, those who loot babies of high-quality ore.

The annual report of the Ontario Police Commission also said there will be no formal inquiry into organized crime.

The report, tabled by Attorney - General Arthur Wishart, said a continuing investigation into organized crime is being carried out by two intelligence officers.

"Should our intelligence officers report that they have reached an impasse in certain areas of crime and that sufficient and good evidence does exist for invoking special powers of inquiry under the Police Act, they shall so report to the attorney-general.

"However, this will be done only when necessary in the public and the interests of the public served by the assured accomplishments of its object."

PLUMPS FOR POLICE

Commission Chairman Percy Milligan said in the report the commission feels the best way to combat organized or syndicated crime is through well-organized and equipped police forces.

The report placed emphasis on the need for improvement of small municipal police forces by larger amalgamated forces, or by provincial police.

In other business, the legislature accepted a board vote options concerning the activities of some private investigators.

Senator David Walker, counsel for a credit firm, asked the committee to exempt the firm's "little people" from the provision of the government's proposed Private Investigator and Security Guards Act.

He said the company's 800 part-time informants and investigators in Ontario should not be

Santo Domingo Safety Zone Extended Over Rebel Protest

WEEPING WOMAN GETS FOOD — A Santo Domingo woman weeps as she is given beans, flour and dried milk in the revolt-torn city after U.S. marines and soldiers linked a two-mile corridor through Dominican Republic city. By DANIEL GUTTLIES

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) U.S. marines today patrolled the Ozama bridge area they added to the international safety zone here over rebel protests as the emphasis in the Dominican crisis shifted from military to political moves.

An uneasy truce hung over this humid Caribbean city as some public services resumed operation and emergency food and medical supplies poured in. The revolt broke out 11 days ago.

But the main concern now was the reaction to a call by the Organization of American States peace mission for an inter-American peace force to help stabilize the situation and the problems posed by the declaration of a new constitutional government headed by rebel Col. Francisco Caamano Deno.

The marines encountered some political hostility as they expanded the eastern perimeter of the international safety zone to include some 1,200 American embassies.

LEADERS PROTEST

The rebel leadership protested that the move violated the ceasefire and a representative of Caamano warned of a possible "massacre."

But an emergency conference between the five - man OAS peace mission and representatives of Col. Caamano averted the crisis.

The U.S. military might now was massed around the main rebel territory in the heart of the city and the ceasefire was almost universally respected.

The declaration of Col Caamano's government, challenging the military junta headed by Col. Pedro Bonilla, posed the problem of which government the hemisphere nations would recognise.

BELIEVED LEGAL

(Reuters news agency reported U.S. sources in Washington said they believe Caamano's appointment is legal.

(The Associated Press, however, quoted a U.S. spokesman as telling reporters there are many questions concerning the constitutionality of the regime. The spokesman said the rebel government had no basis for U.S. recognition and there were no plans by the Johnson administration to grant it.

(The rebel regime was set up to oppose the military junta installed by Brig.-Gen. Elias Wessky Wessin after the revolt April 25 ousted the previous civilian junta.)

The OAS committee, awaiting reaction to its call for an inter-American force, was reported in the meantime to be explor-

Oh, Ye Gods Unfair! Beatles and Stones Caught in Union War

NEW YORK (AP)—Bar the Beatles? Turn Herman's Hermits into real hermits? Restrict the Animals? Stop the Rolling Stones?

"Oh! Ye gods! Unfair!" screamed 17-year-old Margaret Kuruyta, of Chicago, a Beatle fan.

"It's just like taking James Bond away from the grown-ups," said 15-year-old Larry Johnson of Indianapolis.

A transatlantic dispute between the British Musicians Union and the American Federation of Musicians over British groups touring the United States has thrown the beat music scene into discord.

The result may be to bar the Beatles, Herman's Hermits, the Animals and other British groups from the United States. At the same time, American bands would be barred from making British tours.

The big North American tour planned for the Beatles this fall still goes on because the contracts already are signed. Louis Armstrong will be coming here this summer.

But the two unions, with the American side apparently taking the initiative, will allow no

Order Alderman to Explain His Charges Against Police

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alderman Tom Campbell was ordered Tuesday to appear before a special meeting of the Vancouver police commission Friday to explain his charges that city policemen have been involved in criminal activities.

Mayor Bill Rathie said later he regretted the alderman had to be ordered to appear before the committee. He said he hoped the order could be cancelled and Ald. Campbell would appear voluntarily.

However, Ald. Campbell said he would not come forward on his own—that he was not even sure if he would comply with the order to appear.

Ald. Campbell made three specific charges before city council Tuesday:

That there was substantiation to a former call-girl madame's charge that she paid police and civic officials protection.

That seven policemen were involved in a series of breakins and enterings in 1962.

And that a "bail-bond racket" was operating in the city all right up to the time that Const. Leonard Hogue shot himself, his wife and six children two years ago.

The alderman, who offered to give names, places and dates at an in-camera meeting of city council, was reserving his demands for an independent inquiry into the police department.

Widespread Price Increases Push April Consumer Index up Two Fifths of a Point

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose two-fifths of a point to 127.7 at the beginning of April with increases in six of its seven components, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Leading the index advances were the prices of clothing and of health and personal care items. Food, housing, transportation, and recreation and reading costs rose by lesser amounts. Only the consumer prices of tobacco and alcohol remained unchanged.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was 127.3 in March this year and 125.0 in April last year.

The clothing component of the index rose to 121.2 from 120.4, with generally higher prices reported for all types of ready-to-wear clothes, footwear, cotton and rayon piece goods, dry cleaning and jewelry.

The health and personal care index rose to 123.1 from 119.6 as the result of widespread increases in doctors' and dentists' fees and the cost of optical care. Prepaid medical care rates rose slightly in two provinces. There were also higher prices for toilet soap, shaving cream and tooth paste.

The housing component of the index—which accounts for 32 per cent of the total—edged up one-tenth point to 140.3, reflecting increased prices for repairs and new houses offset by some decline in the cost of household operation.

The food index rose to 133.4 from 133.3 as the result of widespread but mixed changes in food prices. The prices of eggs, margarine, grapefruit, apples, fresh and canned tomatoes, turnips, cabbage and chicken went up, while prices of most fresh meats, oranges and orange juice, lettuce, potatoes, carrots and coffee went down.

The transportation index rose to 145.9 from 145.6 despite slightly lower prices for automobiles. There were scattered increases in gasoline prices.

The index of recreation and reading costs edged up one-tenth point to 133.5. Prices of radios, phonograph records and console television sets were higher. Portable television sets were cheaper. So were bicycles.

Nun And Bishop Agree To 'Cool Off' For Next Few Months

VICTORIA (CP) — A truce was called Tuesday night in the dispute between the Roman Catholic Church and Mother Cecilia Mary, a 75-year-old nun who defied its order to close her animal shelter.

Mother Cecilia met Tuesday night with Bishop Remi de Roo, Bishop of Victoria, and other church officials to bring the six-day dispute to a climax.

"We decided to, in the words of the bishop, 'call a truce and a cooling-off period'," she said after the two-hour meeting.

The matter will be shelved for two or three months, she said, and the animal shelter will continue to operate.

Mother Cecilia received the order to close last Thursday from Rev. Andrew Keber of Mission City, B.C., who had been commissioned by the Sacred Congregation of Religion in Rome to investigate the shelter.

He ruled that the shelter, built with the private inheritance of Mother Cecilia, was no place for nuns. He said they could not live as ascetics and religious life and were not following their vocation as helpers of the aged.

He gave them until Tuesday to close the shelter, get rid of the 120 animals there, and return to their priory.

Mother Cecilia and the five other nuns at the shelter said they would refuse. They maintained their work was worthwhile and that the church had no authority to close the shelter.

Mother Cecilia and five members of her order, Sister of the Love of Jesus, left St. Mary's Priory—a house for the aged—several years ago to start the shelter.

Mother Cecilia had been mother superior of the priory since 1937, the year she left the Anglican church and brought the Sisters of the Love of Jesus into the Catholic church. She had founded the order in 1922.

Meanwhile, U.S. forces in the northern part of central Viet Nam are likely to look more and more like occupation troops.

As the marines dug out into the countryside the Viet Cong is expected to make maximum propaganda capital out of the theme that the war now is white men fighting yellow men. Already Radio Hanoi is drawing its parallels between the French army of 1945-54 and the new U.S. ground forces.

It now is a direct test of strength between the Pentagon and the men who have perfected Communist political military warfare.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis A sunny day is anticipated for today with temperatures climbing a little higher than they did Tuesday. Fresh and warm winds will move into the Lake Superior area Thursday. Showers and thunderstorms are expected to spread across the northern half of the province Thursday. Four-county Central Jail Recommended at Meeting Of Officials at Napanee

Construction of a four-county central jail to serve the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, was recommended yesterday by a special committee meeting Tuesday afternoon in the Lennox and Addington County memorial building at Napanee.

The new $1,200,00 structure if approved by respective county councils, would be built in the Napanee district as the most central location.

In addition to the four counties, the central jail would also serve the cities of Kingston, and Belleville, as well as the separated town of Trenton.

Yesterday's meeting at Napanee was the fourth in a series over the past year when the idea of a central jail serving the four counties has been discussed from all angles. Hastings County Warden Fred Beckett, made the motion recommending construction of the jail.

Under the plan the Province of Ontario would pay 80 per cent of capital costs estimated at $1,200,000. Cost figures were prepared by the Ontario Department of Reform Institutions.

Attending yesterday's meeting at Napanee were David Dougall, Chief Inspector, and Douglas Fenhill, Director of Staff Development for the Department of Reform Institutions.

BASED ON USE

According to Warden Beckett's motion the costs of construction and maintenance of the central jail would be based on the use of jails by the different municipalities in the previous year.

The central jail when constructed would be planned for accommodation of about 150 prisoners, male inmates and would employ about 60 people.

The need for new county jails has been apparent in most counties for many years. Reform institution officials claim jails are over-crowded and do not offer sufficient facilities for efficient administration.

The overall feeling regarding a central jail has been the topic of discussion for a number of years. At first purely official, jails appeared cool toward the idea and as late as last summer council was told there was little likelihood of a central jail being approved for some time.

But during the past winter it was pointed out that considerable support was forthcoming for the Hastings county jail building, and acceptance of the central jail idea seemed a bit closer.

Yesterday's recommendation from the Napanee meeting will now go before the respective councils of the four counties for approval.

Attending the Napanee meeting from Hastings were Warden Fred Beckett, Bancroft Reeve M. J. McAlpine and clerk-treasurer, Carl Hastman.

REEVE FRENCH NAMES

OTTAWA (CP)—Under a bill introduced in the Commons by Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, 11 Crown corporations would receive an official French version of their titles. They now have only official English names. Mr. Caouette, who introduced the bill Monday said it was important that the corporations "should be somewhat Frenchified."

Three Youths Face Charges Of Car Thefts

Three youths face charges in Toronto after they fled in Belleville Monday night.

In custody and scheduled to appear in a Toronto court are: Edward Roland Robichaud, 18, Carrying Place Road, Trenton; Douglas Normington, 18, and Victor John McIver, 19, both of Belleville.

The trio have been charged with stealing the car in Belleville, then taking a second automobile in Toronto before they were arrested.

The Belleville car was later found abandoned and undamaged.

Oh,

more exchanges once current contracts have been honored.

The disclosure struck a sour note with some American teenagers.

"Gosh, gee whiz," wailed 16-year-old Kenney Lowell of Seattle, who plays guitar and trumpet and is trying to form a band of his own. "I'm going to go over there and bump the bum that did it. What a bunch of jerks."

Tom Mundig, 19, of Los Angeles, reacted with more, but language not of his own. "I think it's the pits," he said. "That means the worst of the ban.

But there are some teen-agers who feel one young fellow who wouldn't care was whether they come to the United States or not.

Miss Wendy Taylor, a 21-year-old British secretary from Ilkley, Yorks., who works in Atlanta, Ga., said of the unions' decision:

"It's a jolly good job. Then (The British beat groups) all look like monsters. Who wants to see them?"

Lori Swartworth, a 17-year-old high school senior from Vandergrift, Pa., said: "It's no great loss. We've got enough noisemakers on this side of the Atlantic without importing them."

It's Carrot and Stick For Soviet Farmers

MOSCOW (CP) — Having offered a carrot to grain-growing farmers, the Soviet government is brandishing a big stick to make sure they accept it.

Recent policy declarations make it clear that pressure will be applied where necessary to ensure that state requirements are met despite a cut in compulsory delivery quotas.

They also make it evident, Western agricultural experts say, that government control of the farm sector is not to be relaxed.

Leonid Brezhnev, Communist party first secretary, told the party's central committee Wednesday that the 1965 delivery quotas will be reduced to 55,700,000 tons this year from 63,800,000 tons. He added they will be stabilized at the lower level for five years.

At the same time he announced a "material reserve for deliveries beyond the prescribed quotas, intended as an incentive to get farmers to produce more. And a mammoth investment of 71,000,000,000 rubles ($80,200,000,000) over five years was planned to jack up the chronically lagging agricultural economy.

A decree giving effect to the changes was published later in Pravda. It said state farms must work out within three months their production plans on the state procurement schedule for the entire five years, 1966-70.

The decree also said the central committee and the Soviet government "recognized it as necessary" that wheat and rye purchases beyond the compulsory quotas be needed to satisfy state needs.

State farms were asked to "examine the question" of selling additional quantities of wheat and rye to the state this year.

To some observers here this read like a strong hint that the government is prepared to apply pressure to make sure farmers respond to the incentive plan for these two grains.

An editorial in Pravda the day before the decree was issued also carried a hint that the government doesn't intend to let farmers run their own show.

While insisting that all deliveries over the quota will be on a strictly voluntary basis, the editorial said state discipline should be "especially stressed" and added: "When we say that the plan has the same force as law, then it should be obligatory for all: it cannot be altered and must be fulfilled."

Re-zoning Request Approved If No Objection Raised

TRENTON — Lyle Hartman has been trying for some time to get re-zoning of a piece of land at the corner of Dufferin Ave. and McGill Street from residential to commercial so that he can erect a hand-stand, here.

He claimed at Monday night's council meeting he was getting "the run-around."

When the problem was tossed into the lap of the traffic committee, all members said they thought the establishment of a commercial enterprise at this corner would constitute a traffic hazard, as there was not sufficient room for parking.

Mr. Hartman said Monday night that he had room for 12 cars to park on the McGill St. side of the lot, and he said the entrance to his store would be off McGill Street, rather than on the busy Dufferin Ave. side of the lot.

He said recently "only for a few minutes at the store, rather than "park".

Mr. Hartman said that he had counted 29 industries on Dufferin Ave; and it seemed strange to him that he could not get this one area zoned commercial.

It was told by clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry that this was more industries than there are in the whole town. Mr. Hartman modified his count to include dentists, lawyers and real estate offices.

Mr. Hartman also said there were 36 people in town operating or proposing to operate businesses not designated commercial. He said he had a right to do the same thing, adding, "but I don't want to go to jail."

After some discussion, council agreed to have a by-law prepared to permit for the rezoning, if no residents objected to the idea, they may lodge formal protest, and the matter would go before the Ontario Municipal Board.

Mr. Hartman has another request.

He owns a house on Front Street, next door to a tourist home, and wants to build a lot for the past few years, to Front Street grocer, Peter Dedukis.

When it came to the convenience of Mr. Dedukis's customers, and gravel has been placed in the lot to fill the holes and spread on the lot. In the process of spreading, Mr. Hartman claims, his house has been "pushed" sideways, four feet.

H. S. Pane, chairman of the Health Board, William Johnson, building inspector and town engineer Eric Ackerman have all advised Mr. Dedukis to "do something about his back verandah," according to Mr. Hartman.

Now, how can he do something about a house that has been pushed off its foundations? Mr. Hartman wants to know.

Further to this, Mr. Hartman claims, Mr. Dedukis has added insult to injury by telling his tenant's children he'll "have them jailed" if they set foot on the land beside the house. Mr. Hartman says he owns five feet of land between the house and the parking lot.

Council took no action on the matter Monday night.

Mayor Absent From Meeting, At Convention

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald, absent from Monday night's council meeting, has been attending the Ontario Water Works' Association (Canadian Division) conference in Halifax this week. Also at the conference are C. A. Baker, chairman of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, Commissioner Charles Hilton and utilities manager, James Page.

Councillor V. Graham took over the duties of mayor Monday night in Mayor MacDonald's absence. Councillor Paul Tripp was also absent from the meeting, as he was assisting his fellow Kinsmen in the Salvation Army's Red Shield Blitz.

DEER KILLED ON ROAD

Robert Harold Dawson of 127 Bridge Street, East, Belleville, struck and killed a deer on Highway Two, a quarter mile west of the Consecon Hills, around 10.15 p.m. last night. Damage to the Dawson car was $50, and Mr. Dawson suffered no injury.

Council Must Approve Site By New Ruling

TRENTON — Persons wishing to erect homes on unserviced street in Trenton from now on will have to gain approval of the Public Health Inspector, H. S. Pane, before a building permit will be issued. Town council passed a resolution calling for the new ruling, Monday night.

Water saturation of lots on streets now serviced by sewers has plagued the residents this spring. Septic tanks in these areas were giving poor service. Mr. Pane told council Monday the conditions was often due to the homes being built on soil which did not have good absorption qualities. Another factor is that homes to be served by septic tanks must be built on lots of adequate size.

MEANING OF TERMS

Do 15 watts and 12 volts have a direct connection with each other? and what's the difference, if there is one?

The members of Trenton council, Monday night, confessed they were ignorant of the terms of electrical parlance, while considering the relative merits of tenders submitted by Motorola and General Electric for the supply of a radio for one of the town's fire trucks.

Appealed to, town engineer Eric Ackerman said no resistance and as far as he knew, had no relationship whatsoever.

Council voted to leave it up to Fire Chief Cecil Ellis to decide.

WANTS TO BUY LAND

Gordon Peter Coe of 100 Wellington Street, told council in a letter Monday night he would like to buy a five foot strip of land back of his home on the west street, adjacent to his home. The "strip" constitutes half a lane, running between the houses on West Street and Leopold Street. Unless other property owners agree, he is not to buy similar strips, the result would be a checker board of back yards, instead of a deep owned land. Offered the land, assessment free, some time ago, the residents were lukewarm to the idea. Some of them are using the land without benefit of purchase, council was told.

Councillor Joseph Gould will contact Mr. Coe and try to work out some sort of a deal agreeable to the town and Mr. Coe.

Church Women Hear Story On Trinidad

TRENTON — A man who had much to do with educational advancement on the island of Trinidad over a quarter of a century, Dr. H. F. Swann, spoke to a capacity crowd of churchwomen in the auditorium of Grace United Church last night. Dr. Swann and his wife, who shared his missionary life in the island from 1936 to 1956, are living in retirement here at 86 Burton St., Belleville.

Dr. Swann said the British government and the churches had spent more than 50 years preparing the people of Trinidad for self-government, and now that it has come, the island is a nation of happy people, with a bright future; anxious to have the children educated. While there are "traces" of communism in the island, this is not a serious threat, Dr. Swann said.

Women from Trenton's United Church, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and the RCAF Protestant congregation were at last night's meeting.

Mrs. Swann brought a wo-

Council Will Buy 33 Acres Industrial Land

TRENTON — Trenton council voted Monday night to raise $41,000 by the sale of debentures in order to buy 33 acres industrial land from Sidney Street, just north of Night Equipment. The land is now owned by H. J. McFarland.

In other business council voted to support a resolution brought down by the council of Toronto to ask the Ontario Department of Highways to include the county of Lennox in the Highways Traffic Regulations. The motion council feels the unrestricted definition of limits in the act leads to too wide vehicles using the narrow laneways and damage to private property.

In a traffic committee report, accepted by council, the following recommendations were approved: (1) the removal of one parking meter on Queen Street and Sidney Street; (2) that the speed limit on Sidney Street from Dixon Drive to Birch Street be reduced to 30 mph; (4) that employees who will be working at the new federal building on Front Street be asked to direct their requests for free parking space to the federal government.

Public Works' Committee recommendations approved were: (1) that W. Yarrow be awarded the tree cutting contract for the year at a total cost to the town of $478.80, the being the lowest of two tenders received; (2) that the engineer be instructed to take immediate steps to improve the landfill operation by means of fencing and stricter control of dumping; (3) that a town sweeper ship of four lots in Elmwood Acres, set aside for parkland, be established and, that Cox and Steele be authorized to design an entrance thereto.

Donald Wilson charged with depositing gravel on a highway, and three of his men from a motor car near the town dump, pleaded guilty and was fined $8 and ordered to pay $6 costs.

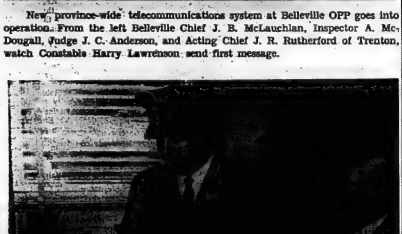
Airman Given Three Months For Car Theft



TRENTON — Ralph Franklin Wells, RCAF, was sentenced to three months in jail on a charge of car theft, by Magistrate T. V. Wills in Trenton court yesterday. Wells, a Belleville man was considered by the magistrate to have been a "go-give" partner in the "hot rides" plan placed on a year's suspended sentence.

Noble and Robitaille last week pleaded guilty to taking a car and the two cutting contracts for the year at a total cost to the town of $478.80, the being the lowest of two tenders received; (2) that the engineer be instructed to take immediate steps to improve the landfill operation by means of fencing and stricter control of dumping; (3) that a town sweeper ship of four lots in Elmwood Acres, set aside for parkland, be established and, that Cox and Steele be authorized to design an entrance thereto.

Telex Communications Linking Police Offices Across Province Opened

A new Telex communications system which eventually will link more than 150 municipal and Ontario Provincial Police offices across the province, officially went into use today.

Marking the occasion was an official ceremony at O.P.P. General Headquarters in Toronto, where Attorney General Hon. A. A. Wishart, formally accepted the new system from Ontario Premier John P. Roberts.

Then, a special message, went out over the new telecommunications system to provincial police headquarters and municipal police chiefs already linked up.

Local municipal and Ontario Provincial Police officers watched the Attorney General's message through over the system installed at the Belleville OPP headquarters.

Belleville City Police are already linked with the system.

MANY OFFICIALS PRESENT

In attendance at the local ceremony were OPP Chief Superintendent A. H. Bird from Toronto; Hastings county Judge J. C. Anderson, Belleville police Chief J. B. McLauchlan and acting chief J. R. Rutherford of Trenton.

Alderman Jack Deacon represented the city, while Thurlow township was represented by Karl Isebor, clerk treasurer, and Councillor Horace G. Wright from Sidney. Press and radio representatives were also invited by OPP Inspector A. McDougall.

A reply message to the Attorney General from Judge Anderson expressed keen interest in the police telecommunications system.

"I feel the system should be most beneficial for the need of speedy communication in order to comply with the speed necessary for police action," Judge Anderson's message read.

CANNOT MONITOR SYSTEM

Other municipal representatives present expressed similar interest in the police communications system.

The new system will not only provide police with typewritten communication with all other major departments across the province, but also anywhere in Canada, the United States or overseas.

This is one of the advantages over a former system used by police which encompassed only Ontario and Quebec.

Police will still use their radio link system for communication with smaller detachment offices and between headquarters and patrol cars, but the new telecommunications system provides a greater degree of secrecy for police messages.

Even criminals may monitor police radio messages, but this will be all but impossible with use of the new telecommunications system.

The new system uses the dial telephone technique to call specific police departments but messages may also be sent simultaneously to all offices linked with the system.

Sending and receiving equipment is similar in operation to that of teletype machines in newspaper offices.

New Flag Will Have Priority On Building

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's maple leaf flag will be given the position of precedence when Ontario's new flag is raised beside it in front of Queen's Park, Premier Robarts assured Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson Tuesday.

Mr. Thompson had asked in the legislature what the government would follow protocol when the Ontario emblem—the Red Ensign with the shield from the Ontario coat of arms—was raised.

Mr. Robarts said as far as he knows the federal government has no regulations on how the maple leaf flag is to be flown. But in Ontario, the national flag would take the position of precedence when flown with other flags.

"On the grounds in front of the Parliament Buildings a second flagpole will be erected—the Canadian flag will fly from the pole on the right, and the provincial flag will be flown on the pole on the left, according to custom."

The legislature already has adopted Ontario's new flag, but the government has not yet issued a date for its official proclamation.

goals and thus introduced a system of national economic planning.

Murdo Martin (NDP — Timmins) struck out at the government intention to place the Crown - owned Polymer Corp. under the proposed Canada Development Corp. Such a sale would be a sellout of assets owned by the Canadian people.

RECALLS CANADAIR SALE

It ranked with the sale of Canadair by another Liberal government in 1948. Canadair had been sold for less than $4,000,000 but had cost the Canadian taxpayer about $25,000,000.

The governments of the past had allowed private interests to exploit the country's resources. These interests had worried only about themselves and their shareholders.

"How many Elliot Lakes have we in Canada?" he asked.

Many Canadians had been enticed to go to Elliot Lake, Ont., to find work in the uranium industry. When the industry ran out of fat contracts, the people had lost their homes and were on the verge of financial ruin.

But the companies had been guaranteed profits. When would the government begin to look after the people as well as companies take care of their shareholders?

HE'S UNEASY

Heath Macquarrie (PC — Queens) confessed to uneasiness about comments from moderates in Quebec. These moderates were finding fault with the federal banking system and claiming a right of Quebec to sign treaties.

Such functions belonged to the central government alone, said Mr. Macquarrie, who described himself as an anti-separatist.

Quebecers had suffered in some respects in the past but discussions could end the problems. Those in the province wanting to separate from Canada should think twice about it.

All Canada would suffer if Quebec should leave Confederation.

Nicosia-Kyrenia Road Well Guarded by Troops

By PETER BUCKLEY

KYRENIA, Cyprus (CP) — "Haven't you found the bombs yet?" the beautiful woman in red asked.

She looked like something out of a James Bond thriller—immaculately dressed and thoroughly unruffled at the procedure involved in joining a United Nations-escorted convoy from Kyrenia to the capital at Nicosia.

While Cpl. Basil Barkhouse of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada from Victoria noted the car's licence number and other details on a stencilled form, other Canadian soldiers gave a cursory check under the car's hood and in the trunk for weapons.

The Danish civilian policeman who is part of the convoy team declined gallantly to "frisk" the woman or her older female companion in the small European car.

When the Dane asked the woman in red, a Greek-Cypriot with all the earmarks of wealth, whether she was carrying any pistols in her handbag, she joked: "Just one, but I have some hand grenades."

The light-hearted banter in heavily accented English was a break in the routine at the UN checkpoint, and the two women were among the few Greek-Cypriot who takes advantage of the twice-daily convoys. Most are going businessmen or farmers.

The convoys began last October in an arrangement worked out by UN officials between the feuding Greek- and Turkish - Cypriot authorities.

HELD BY TURKS

The 15 - mile road between Nicosia and Kyrenia is almost entirely in Turkish - Cypriot hands—the largest and most valuable piece of real estate the Turks hold in their desperate bid to create a separate Turkish-Cypriot community on the island.

From Christmas, 1963, until October, 1964, Greek - Cypriots were barred entirely from using the road. Those travelling between Nicosia and Kyrenia were forced to take a detour that involved 2½ hours of travel.

Even today, many Greek - Cypriots will not use the road, either through a wildly exaggerated fear of an incident occurring despite UN protection, or through a perverse refusal to recognize Turkish control over the two-lane highway.

For those who take advantage of the convoy, the routine is simple. They drive to a rallying point just outside the Turkish-held area at a set time each morning and afternoon, either in Nicosia or Kyrenia.

Their vehicles are given a quick search and the men are "frisked" lightly by a UN civilian policeman to make sure they carry no personal arms.

When ready, the convoy moves off at a slow but steady pace. In front are two armored scout cars — either Danish or Canadian—and other scout cars are interspersed through the line of vehicles.

NO PASSING

Motorcycle riders from the Finnish UN contingent whisk back and forth along the convoy like cowboys herding cattle, and at the tail end is a final scout car with a large sign on the rear, in English, French and Turkish it warns: "UN convoy. No passing."

Any vehicle that tries to overtake the convoy is cut off. Several that persisted in the past were forced into the ditch.

When the shuttle service began, the route was generously peppered with watchful Canadian troops, members of the Canadian Guards from Picton, Ont.

As the weeks passed and the convoys went through without incident, the number of roadside sentries was reduced. Now, with the Queen's Own Rifles having replaced the Guards, scarcely a dozen Canadians are stationed at convoy times to take up positions in the main Turkish villages en route.

The size of the convoys fluctuates. During the week, there may be as few as 10 vehicles in one trip. On Sundays, when Greek-Cypriots like to pass the day at this north-coast port on the Mediterranean, the number has gone as high as 90 in a single convoy.

Most Greek - Cypriots submit amiably enough to the personal searches and other routine UN checks, but once on the road their faces tend to set into either sullen contempt for the Turkish-Cypriots they pass or nervous fear of an incident. The Turks generally reflect nothing but bravado or disdain.

The opening of the Kyrenia road has really helped little to bring about the "return to normal" prescribed in the UN mandate for Cyprus.

Uranium Sale May Help Area Says Reeve

Hope that the pending deal for the sale of Canadian uranium to France might mean a revival of the industry for the Bancroft district, was expressed today by Bancroft Reeve M. J. McAlpine.

Questioned by The Ontario Intelligencer as to what effect the pending deal may have for the Bancroft district area, but we hope and assume it would eventually mean new life for mines in this district, he said.

Little more than five years ago uranium mines in the Bancroft area employed hundreds of miners and other personnel.

Then with declining world markets the mines began to close with Faraday being the last to close down last summer.

Experienced mine and mill personnel in many instances were forced to move from the district and seek employment in other areas.

Perfect Hand In Cribbage

Mr. James Cooper at 76 from Windsor recently hit the jackpot in a cribbage hand dealt to him by his wife, while visiting with their son, Jack Cooper of R. R. 3 Bolton.

Mrs. Cooper dealt her husband the jack of diamonds and three fives and in the cut up jumped the five of diamonds to give Mr. Cooper a perfect hand. Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Cooper spend many happy hours playing cribbage and bridge with their friends and this is the first perfect hand for either of them.

AOTS Clubs Hold Round-up In Muskoka

The Belleville Presbytery of the United Church was strongly represented this past weekend at the twelfth annual Round Up of AOTS clubs held at Muskoka Sands Hotel on Lake Muskoka, Gravenhurst.

The one hundred and fifty men present were inspired by the two theme speakers, Rev. George Slater of Byron United Church, London, Ont., and Mr. James Beatty, Q.C., of Brampton. Both based their messages around the Round-up theme, "The Challenge of New Dimensions." Laymen were urged to take a more active part in presenting the true image of the church to their communities. The church, to be successful, must be a leader in social problems, not a follower.

Of singular importance was the nomination of Douglas Ptolemy of Holloway St., Belleville, as Committee Chairman for the 1966 Round Up. Mr. Ptolemy succeeds Dave Campbell of London.

Members of clubs in attendance were: Wellington, Keith Hubbard, Ken Lane, Bruce Elliott, Harry Pearson, Harold Adams, Gerald Knox, William Johnston; Bloomfield: Garry Foster; Cherry Valley, Harold Bartman; King St., Trenton, Earl, Tooley; Belleville Tabernacle, Glen Jaques, William Smith, Roy Pearson; Bridge St., George Greatrix, Dave McLintock, T. F. Franklin; Eastminster, Bud Jones, Harold Woods; Holloway St., Elwood Kerrish, Seldon Tripp, Ted Wessels, Russ Dean, Sam Orr, Doug Ptolemy; Consecon, Isaac Smith, Earl Burris, Ross Goodmorphy, Russel Forsyth, Frank Wilson, Rod Anderson.

Firemen Busy, Minor Calls

Belleville Fire Department made an early morning start with a smoke investigation at 5.08 a.m. on East Bridge Street yesterday. Then, at 8.47 a.m. it dealt with a flooded basement at Great St. James St.

A grass fire on Cherrytree Place in the late afternoon was followed at 5.53 p.m. by a call to flush a quantity of gas that was spilled in front of Hydro.

The final call at 7.47 p.m. took firemen to the Brewers Warehouse where a truck had caught fire.

Commenting on the rash of grass fires that occur at this time of year, Fire Chief Tye Foote suggests the public should be more careful when cleaning up their properties. He said that close attention be paid to wind conditions which often result in fires getting out of hand.

Road Paved with Good Intentions

Before the Second Great War, what is now Viet Nam, North and South, was a part of French Indo-China and was ruled by the French. That is, it was not a free country, but a colony.

During the war, the country was over-run by the Japanese. The rulers had changed, but they were still foreigners. And the Japanese fed the country of rice.

After the war, the French returned. Many of the natives, particularly the Vietnamese, wanted independence. Men of widely varying political beliefs fought the French. Because they were ruthless, and because they were dedicated and energetic, the communists gained control of the nationalist rebellion.

By the Geneva agreements, the French got out of Indo-China. Four independent nations were formed, Cambodia, Laos, North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam. North Viet Nam was under communist rule; South Viet Nam was anti-communist. There was supposed to be an exchange of populations. There was supposed to be a free election later. All foreign countries were supposed to keep troops out of Indo-China.

Because South Viet Nam was weak, economically, the U.S. came to its aid. Because it was weak militarily, the U.S. sent in "advisers." Because it was weak politically, South Viet Nam refused to permit the free elections prescribed by the Geneva agreements.

The anti-communist Vietnamese were split into many groups, some Buddhist, some Christian, many opposed not only to communism but also to democratic reform. Not all the foes of the old ways of the French days left the country when it was split.

From the first, there was opposition to the regime installed at Saigon. The opposition grew. Not surprisingly, communist influence flourished in these groups. With its growth, the groups became more ruthless—and more efficient. Arms were sent from the communist north. Later, some men came in.

At first the flow was not large. The U.S. "advisers" played a more active role in combating the rebel forces. The government forces outnicked the Viet Cong in the growth of efficiency—and ruthlessness. Torture became commonplace on both sides. The Americans did not participate—but they watched. They taught the South Vietnamese to use napalm. Terror had spread. Whether because of, or in spite of, the communist terror, the Viet Cong grew stronger. The U.S. finally had to drop the purely "advisory" role and participate actively. North Viet Nam had followed the same course, but not openly.

What began as a nationalist revolt against the French is now become a "limited" war in which both sides see their prestige and the future of Southeast Asia at stake.

Meanwhile what most of the combatants originally wanted, a chance to order their own lives free from foreign control, is more remote than ever.

And real Asia is South Viet Nam today, though you would never get either the Americans or the communist Chinese to acknowledge the accuracy of the picture.

Cuban Senoritas

According to Paul Kidd, The Hamilton Spectator's Latin-American specialist, Havana—even under communism—still has what he terms "one of the greatest incidences of attractive young women of any city in the world."

"Despite the punitively small cloth ration—indeed, maybe because of it—Cuban girls continue to dress with impeccable chic," says Kidd.

The trouble is these girls may also be members of the local militia and carry pistols. A stranger attempting to strike up an acquaintance with senoritas of this stamp might better beware. Even if not trigger-happy, her conversation would most likely be limited to the boring tenets of communist dogma.

Worried About Neighbors

You are only as old as you feel.

When 12 men walked into the home of Mrs. Ethel Robson of Toronto she exclaimed, "What will the neighbors think?"

This of course is a typical reaction of a woman when it comes to relationships between the two sexes. However, Mrs. Robson is 81 years old, partially blind and too feeble to get around.

The men were in her house to hold court proceedings in an alleged case of attempted fraud because she could not get to the court room to testify.

Spring must be here!

Our Hard-driven Young

By Professor A. M. Buchan, in the Washington University Magazine

As a college grows in size and importance, we easily forget the simple virtue of a free and open pathway between the student and the instructor. One of the great merits of the University of Toronto when I went into it a good many years ago was that this pathway was left open, easy and available.

It doesn't exist any more because the professors are too busy, and the young people are too scared to approach them.

It used to be that in any family there was a division of responsibility between the two parents. Mother usually did a great deal of the practical managing of the home. Dad was called in to lay down the discipline, to insist, "You get to your books, Johnny!" The majority of students now come from two parents on their neck, both of whom have college degrees. In the old days Dad was lured into medicine by his doctor father. Now both parents will expect him to go into medicine. It has become harder for him to say "No, I'd rather be a carpenter, a real estate agent or an engineer. I don't want to be a doctor."

We are compounding the pressure that we lay upon our children, and it is heartbreaking to watch it show.

Young folks weep in my office because they are disappointing not one person but two, both of whom they like.

I am suggesting that the high hopes and fears and ambitions of the nice American home may quite easily be a serious drag on a young person's ability to make his own choice, to seek his own path, to be as far as is possible, his own man.

Another change comes from an inside view of what is called the "cult of excellence." Schools are raising their standards and colleges their entrance requirements, while industry and the professions are demanding more and more training and more advanced degrees.

We are setting up constantly higher levels of this frightening abstraction called excellence, and we are ingraining directly with this the guilt and the anguish of many young people who, fine as they are, can not meet the demand of specialists in every branch of knowledge.

The performance can be dreadful and frightening. There is an insistent obsession with grades.

The worst result of this obsession on excellence lies in a mood fairly common on campuses that study is always an unpleasant chore.

Hard study might be fun if it were not for the incessant reckoning that has to be made. Across every campus move hundreds of young people who, in their attitude towards learning, are as stale as overtrained athletes, too tired, for lack of any remission, to rise to the challenge of a new idea. . .

The longer I teach, the more clearly I realize that the row of grades which I put down in a notebook is not telling me—or anybody else — much about my young people.

Behind this row of figures lies a bewildering confusion of personal dilemmas, interests, tensions and anxieties, all of which have some relevance to this business of education for which I happen in a small way to be responsible. The grades are not a reliable indicator.

If we look at the goals that most of us pursue, they are in the end very simple. Making a living. Being useful in some way. Having some individual quality of excellence all one's own. . .

We tend to overlook one of the most essential goals. As age and tension increase, this arises for all of us a need to have the wherewithal and the capacity to escape, to get away. Not back into work for the pursuit of excellence, but into the relaxation for mind and spirit out of which maturity comes. And we are using our young people too little, time for this relaxation.

Study is only one part — and the older I get I think not necessarily the more important part — of this process that goes on here for several years.

A great deal of growing up has to be done, and our best growing may occur during the unhurried hours when we are not driven from task to task, but the hours of free leisure and leisure, when, quietly things soak in.

Cars, Not Crime Are Big Killer

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The big killer and maimer in America today is not a person, but a thing. It is the automobile, which last year accounted for 38,000 deaths and 1.8 million injuries — some of them nearly worse than death.

What is so sorely amazing, and depressing, about the state of affairs is that while the public is increasingly concerned about crimes of violence and assault committed by persons, hardly a word is uttered about the 38,000 killings committed by the thing.

The call for stronger laws against the delinquent and the hoodlum; for more police, tougher judges, more searching courts. The safety of the person against attack became an issue in the recent Republican campaign. We are anxious, angry, and ripe for action — even reckless action.

Yet, at the same time, we are reluctant to take a firmer stand against the car. We call for such some of the so-called "safety organizations" representing the automobile industry oppose more stringent laws against traffic offenders.

We resent the unmarked police car patrolling the highway. We complain of the use of radar in speed enforcement. We object to the "implied consent" laws that require testing of drunken drivers. We continue to look upon motoring as a "sporting contest" between us and the police.

Now explain the tremendous inconsistency between our zeal at the personal assault, and our relative indifference to the automotive assault? It is this: we cannot identify with the thug and the delinquent, but we can identify with the law-abider, or, because all who drive are offenders to some degree or other.

We are potential killers and maimers, through negligence, inattention, haste, irritation, impatience and hatred. The last alone kills more people than all the others put together; the most recent analysis in New York City showed 55 percent of the drivers involved had alcohol in drink; in suburban Westchester, the rate was even higher—72 percent.

But tougher laws — which would work in our case, whereas they do not seem to be effective against criminals — are resisted by most communities, because nearly everyone is a motorist himself. We want stringency applied only where we are sure it does not involve us: when there is a possibility of our own involvement, we want easy loopholes.

Our current excitement about violence on our streets is childish and pharisaical, unless we begin with ourselves, and with the frank admission that "good citizens" like us are responsible for more death, tragedy and misery than all the criminals since time began. When we are willing to get tough against ourselves, we might have a better case for cracking down on the creatures beyond the pale.

Italian armies under General Pietro Badoglio marched into Addis Ababa 29 years ago today—in 1936 — and King Victor Emmanuel III was proclaimed "emperor of Ethiopia" four days later. Italy's attack on the still backward kingdom of Ethiopia was the first aggression by a free European power since 1918. The League of Nations failed to apply sanctions were half-hearted and historians have since said this weakness gave Mussolini and Hitler confidence in ultimate success.

1821 — Napoleon Bonaparte died in exile.

Warns That Ear Problems Not Always Hereditary

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I woke up one morning my ears felt plugged up and I couldn't hear as well as usual. One ear stayed this way a whole week. Is this something that might just happen to anyone, or is it definitely a danger signal? Should I see an ear doctor?—Mrs. A.T.

Dear Doctor: Is there any relief for hearing loss during a session of allergy? The hearing returns later. — Mrs. H. J.

There are many reasons for loss of hearing: Damage to the ordinary nerve (about which nothing can be done); hardened wax in the ear canal (it can be washed out); calcification which prevents the tiny bones which transmit sound from moving freely (surgery many times can correct this); and others.

With some people, hereditary can be the main cause of deafness. There's not much to do about that. Hearing loss also comes from the aftermath of infections. That is why an earache (and most certainly a "running ear") in a child should not be taken lightly.

That's why (among other reasons) badly infected tonsils should not be tolerated. And other nose, throat and ear infections need attention. As attacks of infection are repeated, damage to the ears continues to accumulate. Hearing may not be noticeably affected at first, but the handicap of some cases of deafness go back many years to infections which didn't seem to do any harm at the time.

Now as to Mrs. A. T. and her ear that felt plugged up, one likely explanation is that the Eustachian tube became obstructed. This is a very small tube from the middle ear to the pharynx, and its purpose is to equalize pressure on both sides of the eardrum; it takes time for pressure to build up on the inside, through that tube.

A cold can plug the tube temporarily. If infection creeps into the tube, scar tissue can form, and the tube becomes that much smaller.

I wouldn't worry much about this occurring once, but if it recurs, then it is only sensible to consult a doctor. I prefer an ear-nose-throat specialist. Awakening with a stuffed ear can also be due to wax which has filled the ear canal.

The greatest hazard to loss of hearing during the allergy season is somewhat different, in that congestion from the allergy, — swelling, and accumulation of fluids — interferes with hearing. But it is still the result of the Eustachian tubes being partially clogged.

I could suggest nothing for this except to attempt to overcome the allergy itself, whether by avoiding whatever the allergy-causing material is, or having a series of desensitizing shots in advance, or by antihistamine drugs, or perhaps by a combination.

The risk of scar tissue in the Eustachian tubes is doubtless less than from infection, but there is some chance of permanent obstruction, so you'd give very serious thought to trying to overcome or at least minimize the allergy.

Dear Dr. Molner: What can be done for a 13-year-old boy who has pulled out his eyelash and eyebrows? Will they grow back or can something be done to help them grow? Do you think this action is the result of nervousness? — F. N.

The hairs will grow back, but very slowly. What concerns me is why a boy would do this. Call it "nerves" if you choose, but if it's just nerves it's a pretty extreme case. Some psychiatric evaluation ought to be undertaken at once before his mind develops get too much out of balance.

Note to Mrs. E. V.: People shouldn't try to remove moles. Your doctor can do it quickly. And, what's really important, safely.

Apt Comparison

Ottawa Journal

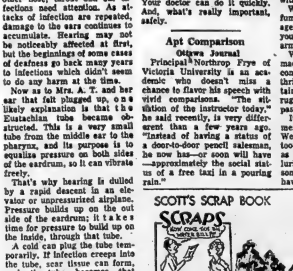
Principal Northrop Frye of Victoria University is an academic dandy. He can mix a chance to flavor his speech with vivid comparisons. "The silken cloth of the instructor today," he said recently, is very different than a few years ago. "Instead of having a status of a door-to-door pencil salesman, he now has—or soon will have—approximately the social status of a free taxi in a pouring rain."

Toothpaste Spy Thriller

Washington Post

Industrial espionage, by which is meant one company spying on another to better its market position, is thought to be on the increase. There is one estimate that the loss to American companies through espionage may be as high as two billion dollars a year. "Bugging" of briefcases and hotel rooms is not considered extraordinary.

A concrete example was disclosed recently in a federal indictment of a young man for allegedly trying to peddle "A" company's secret million-dollar toothpaste marketing plan to its greatest rival, which we shall call "B".



The young man, who had acquired A's plan, arranged to meet an agent of B in the men's room of a New York airport. He did not know that B had made contact with the FBI, and that $30,000 in bills carried by the agent were marked.

By arrangement, the young man and the agent fell into adjoining cubicles. The young man was requested to pass his trousers through to the agent along with the secret plan and allegedly got the trousers back with the marked bills.

While the young man was fumbling with his pants the agent made a getaway and the young man walked out into the arms of the FBI.

Whether this plot would have made a better Mack Sennett comedy than an Ian Fleming thriller is hard to say. It certainly does reflect a state of rugged competition in the toothpaste business.

It is also some sort of commentary on American mores. We have always regarded one toothpaste as just about as good as another; hardly worth much lurid melodrama. Maybe there's something romantic about it we haven't glimpsed.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

25 YEARS AGO

Hundreds of professional and business men from all parts of Canada, officers in the R.C.A.F., are being trained in Canada as the result of a decision arrived at by the R.C.A.F. "Cornwallis", largest R.A.F. training base in the British Empire.

These courses were announced by the Naval Service in connection with the Navy League of Canada, which sponsors the air cadet movement. Graduation of each two-weeks course was a three-day sea trip aboard Canadian warships on active service. Aboard one, the air cadet officers stood watches and exercised out the duties of ordinary seamen.

Four officers of the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps are reported to have attended one of these courses. Thrills of seagoing life were interspersed by the local officers, one of which was provided by a trip on a submarine across the Bay of Fundy.

Hundreds of prisoners have been released from the King's, King's Grace on his Silver Jubilee. The following despatch, from the Canadian Press reads: "Nearly 600 prisoners in Canadian penal institutions found freedom yesterday in the special amnesty granted by the King on the occasion of His Majesty's silver jubilee. Many had been released by mid-afternoon and others were to follow. Releases, it was announced, may send the total to around the 1,000 mark.

A remarkable decline of 36.5 per cent in motor vehicle accidents in Vancouver, as between January of 1964 and January of 1965, is recorded in a report by Police Chief Ralph Booth to a new approach to the problem by his department. Officers have been assigned to work of the police liaison type in grades 11 and 12, and are hoping that this program will be extended.

PC Senator Praises Leader For Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—Both Liberal and Conservative senators snapped back at recent criticisms of the upper chamber when the Senate resumed its session Tuesday night.

Conservative Senator Lionel Choquette (PC—Quebec), speaking during debate on the throne speech, vigorously complained Government Leader J. J. Connolly for a letter Senator Connolly wrote to a Toronto newspaper, The Globe and Mail.

"Senator Connolly said things that should have been said a long time ago. This place has been maligned for too long. What needed to be said could not have been said more forcefully than in this open letter published this morning."

Senator Connolly's letter called remarks about the Senate made by MP Douglas Fisher of the New Democratic Party "superficial and vicious."

Mr. Fisher said in the Commons April 27 the main use of the Senate was to take care of "hacks" — find retirers — for the party in power and of ministers and MPs the prime minister wanted to "boot upstairs."

SETS RECORD

Senator Connolly told senators the upper chamber had accomplished a record amount of work during the last session. It had dealt with six major proposals by way of resolutions, along with a heavy program of legislation.

Senator Connolly said Senate committees had maintained a heavy work load and, in addition, the Senate had passed 859 divorce resolutions.

It was significant that attendance in the Senate was seldom below 65 per cent. "This speaks very highly for the attention senators give to their duties here."

The government leader in the Senate also hinted that the work of committees would be extended in this session.

He said the public does not understand or appreciate the work the parliamentary committees of the Senate. But people who know of this committee work realize it is among the most important functions of the upper chamber.

ECM Replaces Congo For Belgian Business

BRUSSELS (AP)—Most Belgians, according to their own officials, have written The Congo this right out of their lives—but a small number still fight for interests there.

The Congo is not all that important to Belgium in terms of money. The rising wealth of the European Common Market has begun to constitute a huge share of Belgian business that trade with The Congo is only a pocket-size comparison.

It is with Belgium and The Congo much as it is with Holland and its former colony, Indonesia. Without it, the Dutch are doing nicely and largely for the same reason, the Common Market.

What is important to Belgium is that The Congo has given it a sort of world outlook. That chunk of Africa is so rich in resources that 50 years of active development have hardly touched it.

Today's investments in The Congo don't yield the same sort of income that new investments bring in Belgium itself. Belgium's own factories are paying dividends, producing things for the rest of Europe, including Communist states, and other parts of the world.

Exports climbed from $270,000,000 a month in 1959, the year before The Congo's liberation, to $400,000,000 a month in 1963. Exports to the Common Market absorbed about half of this.

By contrast, exports to The Congo fell from $7,500,000 a month in 1959 to about $4,000,000 a month in 1963. That is barely one per cent of Belgium's exports.

Nevertheless separation from The Congo is many people in Belgium. Many Congo stock values have fallen to about one-tenth of their 1959 level, and when the Belgian government announced it was liberating the African colony.

Despite the civil war and rebel raiding, the great industrial centre around Elisabethville has continued operating effectively, with Belgians running the factories and mines.

Clearly the Belgians are staking their hopes on Moise Tshombe, who now is an official in The Congo before the liberation and now is the premier. The Belgians made a financial settlement with him recently that not only gives him added authority and prestige, but money.

People in Barbados Take Life Easier Than Canadians Kiwanis Club Members Told

In conversation after his address on Barbados to the Kiwanis Club yesterday, Sqdn Ldr. Cleveland Knight commented that Canadians may be eating themselves to death.

"Canadians live too well," he said. "In Barbados the standard of living is lower and the diet is based upon fish, rice and poultry. The people are not overfed by any means, but they are very healthy.

"People in Barbados seem to take life easier than Canadians. My father runs a store there and if he want sto close at say 3 p.m. then he simply closes. If he did this in Canada he'd starve to death."

Sqdn. Ldr. Knight was born in Barbados. He came to Canada in 1940 on a student's visa and attended George Williams University for two years before joining the air force. He has lived in Belleville for the past ten years, is married to three children, one boy and two girls.

The speaker described his native country as a beautiful spot for tourists. The island is well serviced by the major air lines and promises a wealth of interesting sights and activities for the traveller. The temperature in Barbados ranges from a "cool" 75 degrees to a high of 85.

The Canadians were told that, "Barbados has a higher literacy rate than the U.S. All education on the island is free, but it is not compulsory. The people on the island, probably from the British influence, have long realized the importance of an education and have taken great advantage of the possibilities offered there.

MANY PAVED ROADS

"Unfortunately," he continued, "there are not enough schools and many people finish their education at the age of 14."

Sqdn. Ldr. Knight told his audience there are 680 miles of paved roads on the island, built mainly by British money. There is no railway so trucks carry the produce around the island. A modern harbor, financed by Britain, was built recently at a cost of $10 million.

"There is no economy as such in Barbados," he said, "because of the lack of raw materials. The sugar cane industry, with its byproducts, rum and molasses, is so important that the standard of living there varies in direct relationship to the price of sugar on the world market."

Most of the labor on the island is still manual, but over the past few years heavy machinery from Canada has been improving the situation."

The speaker also noted there are many fish in Barbados, but because of the lack of technology, none is imported.

The government of the island is very stable and has been always under the influences of Britain. The voting age is 18 and there are no other restrictions for voting.

TWO MAJOR PROBLEMS

He summed up by citing the two major problems of Barbados:

"First, is the pressure of the population. There are 1,500 persons per square mile. Canada can offer a lot in this area by opening its doors to immigration. There has been progress in this respect recently and I hope it continues.

"The second major problem facing the people of Barbados is federation. It was attempted but fell through. I don't think any of the islands in the West Indies are ready for that yet."

Phil Aldcorn thanked the speaker on behalf of the club. Wing Cmdr. Stu Olsen made the introduction.

In other Kiwanis business, Gary Chapman, past president of the BCI & VS Key Club, gave a report on the recent Key Club convention in Ottawa.

It was also decided that May 20 will be the date of the club's annual peanut drive.

France and Canada Near Agreement on Uranium Sale Of 50,000 Tons Says Paper

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Canada and France are near agreement on a long-term contract for the sale of about 50,000 tons of Canadian uranium for a nuclear power development program.

The newspaper says in an Ottawa dispatch that the sale would tie up about one-quarter of Canada's proved uranium resources.

Sale price for the uranium to be delivered over a period of 25 years would be about $700,000,000, The Globe and Mail says.

It says negotiations have been going on for several months and involve the governments of both countries plus officials of Denison Mines Ltd., adding: "The talks are scheduled to reach the ministerial level in Paris shortly."

In the past, Canada has maintained a policy of demanding direct inspection and control of its uranium by itself — except to Britain and the United States — to ensure the ore is used for peaceful purposes.

FRANCE OBJECTS

"France has objected to this condition of sale, claiming that such inspection and control would be beneath its dignity as a major power," the paper continues.

The story says France would not likely use the ore for anything other than peaceful purposes. The country has plans to produce large amounts of electricity from nuclear plants.

The Globe and Mail says the Canadian government is concerned about the prospect of a huge increase in the demand for uranium within the next 10 years. Prices set for ore now might be in Canada's detriment during the next 25 years.

The story says the Canadian government might ask France and Denison to re-negotiate prices every few years to conform with the world market value.

The present world market value of uranium oxide is about $4 a pound.

A sale to France of the magnitude The Globe and Mail reports would greatly benefit the Elliot Lake, Ont., region which suffered economically in recent years because of a decline in demand for Canadian uranium.

Labor Govt. Tells Spain To Keep Hands Off 'Rock'

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Britain may be ruled by Socialists, but occasionally the old Iron still growls in tones reminiscent of imperial times.

In just such accents Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government has told Spain, in effect, to keep hands off Gibraltar, and the warning was greeted with satisfaction by most Britons, to whom The Rock remains a symbol of greatness.

This does not mean that Labor and the Tory opposition see eye to eye on Spain—far from it—but no one on the British side, least of all the Gibraltarians, want "Gib" to go to Spain. All are united against the new "siege" of Gibraltar.

But the 25,000 townsfolk, who are not Spanish but of Genoese extraction, long with British, Maltese, Moroccan and Portuguese stock, live a cramped life on the Rock, which is only three miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide.

They long to get away for Spanish excursions but for more than five months Gen. Francisco Franco, who has long coveted Gibraltar, has virtually imposed the flow by imposing border delays of as much as 10 hours.

HALTED COMMUTING

Even more serious, Franco has stopped the traditional custom of Gibraltarians living in Spain and working on the Rock, with the result that the livelihood of hundreds has been dislocated.

The Spanish say that all this is simply to halt smuggling. However there is no doubt that the real prize in the long campaign is Gibraltar itself, the rock which has been a British bastion at the mouth of the Mediterranean for more than 250 years.

"The policy of Her Majesty's government, as clear," says a government white paper issued by Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, "Great Britain has at no time renounced her title to Gibraltar or failed to defend her position in Europe will not do so now.

"She has no desire to quarrel with Spain but she will stand by the people of Gibraltar in their present difficulties and take whatever measures may be necessary to defend and sustain them."

Reviewing formally for the first time the various steps in the Gibraltar situation, the white paper says the government will be ready to consider proposals by Spain for talks, as suggested by the United Nations committee on colonies.

TALKS CONDITIONAL

It makes clear that before any such talks are held, the creeping blockade must be lifted and, in any case, that Spain must accept that Gibraltar's sovereignty cannot be an issue for negotiation.

Actually, a sort of little cold war has been waged over Gibraltar for about 10 years, dramatizing a rare situation in British colonial history in which Britain not get out.

The Spanish claim rests on the Treaty of Utrecht, signed in 1713, under which Spain ceded Gibraltar to Britain in perpetuity, while Britain promised that it would never dispose of the Rock without first offering it to Spain.

In the Spanish view British breaks this treaty in 1964 when it gave the Gibraltarians a new constitution involving self-government except in foreign and defence affairs.

The Spanish maintain this was tantamount to offering Gibraltar to a third party, namely the Gibraltarians, instead of to Spain. British replies that Gibraltar is still under sovereignty of the Crown and there is no intention of giving it complete independence, which in any case the inhabitants do not want.

SAYS CHANGES MADE

"Spain cannot accept a policy of unilateral modification of the status laid down for Gibraltar in the Treaty of Utrecht," says the Spanish document. "Every treaty is, by definition, the result of a common accord among the parties and cannot be changed unilaterally."

The London Sunday Telegraph, analyzing the situation, says that to an extent it can be understood that, for the Spaniard, repossession of the Rock has become a matter of national honor.

"Sticking up-like a derisory gesture, it can be seen all along the Spanish southern coast from La Linea to Malaga. The Spanish also have cause to grumble about smuggling from Gibraltar.

"The Rock is a free port and regularly fast launches, loaded to the gunwales with contraband, speed out into the Mediterranean to land many of their uncustomed goods on Spanish soil."

At least one government minister has suggested to Britons that they give up Gibraltar as a mecca for tourists, a raise this year as retaliation. But Madrid is apparently confident that travellers from the dour British climate will be unable to resist the Spanish sun and low prices.

Last year 1,650,000 British tourists went to Spain, whose tourist business totalled some $800,000,000 worth of foreign exchange, only a little less than the total revenue from all the country's exports.

ing the possibilities of working out an agreement on a government of unification.

Both the peace mission and the U.S. feel an inter-American force is essential in the present situation here.

The peace mission's call for the force came in a cable to the OAS ministerial council in session in Washington.

Santo Domingo said the mission had been in continuous contact with all groups on all sides involved in the bloody uprising that followed a coup d'etat that overthrew Juan Bosch and ousted Raid Cabral.

The cable added the mission was "presently awaiting formalization of points which have been accepted by both parties, namely: cessation of the ceasefire and expansion and demarcation of the security zone to include all embassies, the evacuation of all refugees and the distribution of food, medicines and medical equipment to all sectors of the population without distinction as to party affiliation."

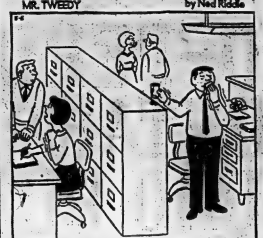
REPORTS GOODWILL

The cable added: "So far there has been goodwill among both parties. The expansion of the security zone has been accepted by both parties in order to include all Latin American embassies and we are working on the limits. . . .

"We deem it useful for member states which have possibilities to be so to establish an inter-American combined military force to be put at the disposal of the OAS in order to fulfil the objectives set forth by the meeting of consultation."

In Washington, President Johnson told it was "beyond the realm of prediction right now" to guess how long U.S. forces will stay in the Caribbean island.

A U.S. military spokesman said the U.S. now has 3,000 marines and 7,302 airborne troops on Dominican soil. The U.S. Navy has 19 ships offshore with 6,000 men aboard.



He estimated that the rebel force totals about 12,000 armed civilians and some 400 former Dominican army personnel.

SEEKS RECOGNITION

Meanwhile, called on other nations to recognize his government. He said it had the approval of exiled president Juan Bosch, whom the rebels originally wanted to return to power. In a Paris radio interview in Puerto Rico he felt Caamano would make a good president. He fears signs of starvation and epidemics triggered by the unburied dead in the streets of Santo Domingo, the OAS sought aid from the International Red Cross for vital food and medical supplies.

Telephone Company Argues For Higher Profit Level

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — After six years in which its profits have exceeded permissive levels, the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada went before the board of transport commissioners Tuesday to open its argument for a higher level.

In doing so it insisted that it has no present plans or intentions to ask for an increase in telephone rates, last increased in 1958.

John L. O'Brien of Montreal, heading Bell's six - man legal team, said the company is confident that it can reach a higher profit level through promotion of its service and increased efficiency.

But Lovell C. Carroll of Montreal, counsel representing more than 100 municipalities in Ontario and Quebec, the only provinces in which Bell operates, contended that the new formula on which Bell seeks its base its permissive level of earnings would inevitably lead to a bid for higher rates.

Bell has served notice that it will seek to scrap the board's present formula which sets its permissive profit on a per-share basis. This was last revised in 1959 to $2.45 a share but actual profits have topped that figure in every year since. They went to $2.71 in 1964.

The big private utility is suggesting that it be allowed a straight return of seven per cent on total capital. Last year's record profit of $77,782,615 was equal to 6.3 per cent of total capital.

Mr. Carroll said that if Bell profits are based on a percentage of capital it should be common equity capital — supplied by stockholders — and not on total capital—equity plus debt bonds.

The municipalities were ready to concede Bell a seven-per-cent return on equity capital, equal in 1964 to $2.59 a share or 6.1 per cent of total capital. Actual Bell profits in 1964 came to 7.3 per cent on equity capital.

The board ordered the hearings on its own initiative to provide a complete public scrutiny of Bell's financial operations and decide what changes, if any, are needed in its permissive level of income. The board has full control over telephone rates.

Although other groups are waiting in the wings to file interventions, the main contest is between Bell and the municipalities which have for years spearheaded the battle to obtain lower rates for Bell subscribers.

Block Street For Skurfing

PEMBROKE (CP)—A street in this Ottawa Valley town will be blocked to traffic and made available for skurfers, Mayor Angus Campbell announced today.

The move followed protests from teen-agers over the ban of skurfers from the community's streets announced Wednesday by Police Chief Bert Dickie.

Mayor Campbell said the city would build a barrier of hay reinforced with strong netting at the lower end of the blocked-off street which runs downhill.

U.S. Doctor Seeks Clues on Stutters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "It is a person knows he is stuttering, well, I guess most people would say, 'Why doesn't he just slow down and stop doing it?' "

Dr. Joseph G. Agnello, 38, director of Temple University's speech and hearing science laboratory, who posed the question, knows it isn't that easy, although he wishes it were.

Agnello is one of the estimated 1,000,000 Americans afflicted with the handicap.

Combining both personal experience and professional training, Agnello has designed a novel experiment which he hopes will shed light on the causes of stuttering and perhaps contribute to its treatment.

In a way, the experiment dates back to a conversation in a neighbor's kitchen. Agnello was disturbed to find that his stuttering got worse when he sat near the kitchen table. His neighbor, a music teacher, touched the tabletop and noticed it was resonating, like the sounding-board of a musical instrument, he told a visitor.

This odd observation, plus more technical considerations, started Agnello wondering. Could stuttering be linked with the way a person hears his own voice?

That's what he's a distraction," says Agnello. But I think it's more than that. I think you've broken the loop."

The "loop" he means is the theory that the stutterer's hearing of his own verbal stumble reaches some parts another animals in a self-repeating cycle.

Agnello plans to return the stuttered own voice, instead of white noise, through the earphones, with a difference. Using a little electronic gimmicking," he can change voice characteristics before they reach the ear, and observe their effect on speech.

During the next year, aided by the university, and a $3,800 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, Agnello and his associates will run tests on a half-dozen stuttering subjects and analyze their speech-hearing patterns.

Stuttering generally begins early in life, frequently with a child's first attempts at speech, but it does not appear to be hereditary.

Agnello himself is married and has three children, 3, 4, and 5 years old.

"And, thank God," he says, "they all talk normally."

David Maunder Will Appeal His Conviction

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa businessman David Maunder has appealed his conviction and sentence for violating a Canadian government embargo on export of certain goods to Russia and Cuba, justice department officials said Tuesday.

Maunder, a 35 - year - old former army officer, was fined $41,000 with two alternatives of three years in jail by Magistrate L. A. Sherwood.

Sentence was passed March 22 and Maunder is in custody. Bail has been set at $25,000, but so far he has not posted it.

Maunder, who was convicted of shipping electronic parts and other goods to the Communist countries in 1962 and 1963, has filed notice-of-appeal with the Ontario Court of Appeal.

He was convicted on eight charges laid under the Import and Export Permits Act.

Council Refuses Request For Nursing Home Licence

NAPANEE — Mr. R. Abrams told council to ask if something could be done about the dust from the road on the street where he resided. Council the situation at the dump was much improved but on occasion he was bothered by smoke, while the dump was being burned. Councillor Marshall informed Mr. Abrams that many streets were in used that but it is too early at this time, but a program is to be set up and equipment rented for this purpose.

Mr. F. Solmes also requested that persons dumping should have papers tied and garbage wrapped so it couldn't blow around as some trucks dumping have papers flying loose. Mayor Smart explained that there was a by-law to this effect but it was difficult to enforce and asked Mr. Solmes if he had a solution. Mr. Solmes replied that he wasn't on the committee.

Mayor Smart suggested Mr. Solmes could report any trucks which dropped papers to the office or the town clerk. Mr. Solmes stated the town clerk has his own work to do and the Mayor Smart not to pass be back.

The Jaycees were granted permission to use the Market Square on May 29 for a bicycle rodeo if this arrangement is satisfactory to the businesses on the north side of the street and the Fire Department.

The premises of a business in the Market Square have for some time been considered a fire hazard. Several notices to clean up the place have been sent to the tenant to no avail. The Fire, Water and Light committee have been given the authority in this section in this matter as tactfully as possible and the Public Welfare committee is to work along with them to make sure the person in question is looked after properly. The chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee asked if the town clerk was in agreement with this and an affirmative answer was given.

REQUEST TURNED DOWN

A request for a licence to operate a nursing home from Mr. D. Cowell had been given by the council on recommendation of the M.O.H. Dr. A. McLellan and the Fire Chief F. W. Patton until such time as the regulations have been clarified. The town has a by-law governing requirements for municipal home operators and the provincial government has a set of regulations, which must be complied with and until it is made clear just which regulations are to be enforced no licence will be issued or renewed by council. Councillor Wightman moved that a new by-law be drawn up for the town which will comply with the regulations of the provincial government and this should clarify the situation and save a bit of grief for any prospective nursing home operators.

A tender from the Northern Electric Company has been accepted for radar equipment for the police car at a cost of $1,445. It has been decided to paint two doors and the trunk on the police car white. Any cars that are fined for speeding will be issued with the summons at the same time as they are stopped by the police.

Councillor Woodcock brought to council's attention the need for chlorination at the sewage plant at an approximate cost of $15,000 and that Mr. D. J. Lee be instructed to prepare the necessary plans and specifications and secure the approval of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and tenders will be called for this construction.

Council gave permission to the County Road engineer to build a road from the Camden road which will follow the boundary line down past the cemetery across Church St. down to cut across the street directly in front of the Masonic Temple to meet the Camden road again near the bridge. Council feels this will open up a new area which could be developed.

BUILD TOURIST BOOTH

Mr. D. Hogarth, Mr. B. Huyck and Mr. William Morris representatives from the Napanee Chamber of Commerce presented costs and a tentative location for an information booth to be erected on Hwy. 41 and asked council to provide the $500 needed, to which council was agreeable if the ownership of the building stayed with the Chamber of Commerce.

The Land O Lakes Tourist Association will pay for the operation of the booth and the Chamber of Commerce will provide the funds for the necessary items after the booth is built.

This booth will have brochures from the tourist operators in Napanee and area surrounding, who belong to Land O Lakes Tourist Association; those who do not belong will be charged a fee. Mr. Morris, president of the Chamber of Commerce, stated the Chamber has been working on this for three years, and is pleased to see it become a reality, he feels everyone in the community will benefit as this booth will help hold the tourist dollar to this area.

FIND COLE PORTER SONGS

NEW YORK (AP)—The finding of 100 unpublished songs by the late Cole Porter—said to include enough feed material for one or two Broadway musicals — was disclosed Tuesday. Porter died last October at age 72.

Crime

(Editor's note: Persons required to be licensed.

WOULD QUIT

About half the informants would quit within 48 hours rather than register with the government as private investigators, he said.

But Mr. Wishart said any person who makes an investigation of this sort, where there is some possibility of infringement upon the law, should be licensed by the government.

James Renwick (NDP — Toronto Riverdale) asked the committee whether the government shouldn't offer the public protection against lie detectors, wire tapping and other devices.

He said he couldn't make up his mind whether legislation should prohibit the use of electronic devices such as lie detectors by private investigators.

Mr. Wishart said he doubted whether any such prohibitions would be spelled out in legislation. It might have to include such things as field glasses, he said.

MAKES CHARGE

Fred Young (NDP — Yorkview) said the government is attempting to force an injustice on civil servants when it puts the throats of Ontario civil servants.

Speaking outside the legislature, Mr. Young said he was interested in bringing to light the fact that civil servants could lose their Physicians' Services Inc. medical insurance coverage.

Civil servants now pay the full cost of PSI premiums. Mr. Young said the government, faced with assuming 75 per cent of premium costs, is trying to make the civil service accept a less expensive plan.

LOANS REPORTED

Mr. Young made his comments outside the Legislature after asking provincial treasurer James Allan how a syndicate of insurance companies was able to get a plan on Feb. 22 when the arbitration board report was not announced until March 5.

Mr. Allan replied it would be impossible for anyone to quote on a specific plan because the arbitration board did not set out in detail the form the medical plan would take. The board merely set certain limits for it.

At a meeting in London, Ont., Feb. 22, he said, a syndicate of eight companies headed by London Life Insurance Co. offered the parties a deductible type plan, where an individual civil servant would pay the first $25 of major medical expenses, or $50 for a family.

The Civil Service Association is asking that at least present coverage as offered by PSI be established. Mr. Young said. However, the government even seemed unwilling to let PSI tender for the plan.

"One can understand the desire of the insurance companies to capture from PSI a plan of this magnitude, covering as it does approximately 40,000 employees with annual premium payments of $4,000,000," Mr. Young said.

"If PSI does lose the Civil Service Association as an account, it will be the very heart out of that organization and destroy it as an effective carrier in this province."

In the Legislature, Mr. Allan said he would consider allowing PSI to tender on the plan.

Loans totalling $45,000,000 have been made available to 14 provincial universities from the government's recently - formed Ontario Universities Capital Aid Corporation.

The biggest borrowers were the University of Toronto, with $9,200,000; York University, $7,000,000, University of Windsor, $3,200,000; University of Waterloo, $3,000,000, Carleton University, $4,45,000, and Queen's University, $4,250,000.

Other schools and their borrowing: University of Western Ontario, $2,900,000; McMaster University, $3,000,000; Laurentian University, $2,000,000; University of Ottawa, $800,000; Lakehead College, $250,000; Brock University, $300,000; Trent University, $200,000, and University of Guelph, $250,000.

Susanna's Family Fare

THIRSTY THRUST

Dear Susanna: I have three tips for you today Susanna, here they are:

To see if my house plants need watering, I test them with a knitting needle the same way as one would test a cake with a straw to see if it is done. If no earth adheres to the needle when you draw it out, then I know the plants need watering immediately.

Several wide colored rubber bands placed around a child's drinking glass not only prevent it from slipping from the child's grasp, but they make an attractive decoration.

Attention dressmakers: If you lay the paper pattern onto your material and press the two together using a warm iron (pin as usual, too, if you wish) the heat will make the paper and the fabric cling together and cutting out is very much easier.

Please don't sign my name, Susanna, as I live in a small town and the last time my name appeared in the paper I got teased about it. Do love your columns, and best wishes. — F.

Your secret is safe with me, SIR. HA! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: Save those small plastic pill bottles with the snap-on tops. Clean them out well and then the next time you are preparing a lunch box or picnic basket, use them as containers for ketchup, mustard, etc. — Molly Crozier.

Bringing Up Baby

WRITTEN COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Most baby sitters today know the fundamentals of baby care but even the most competent ones are only as good as mothers help them to be. Suggestions for successful sitting:

- Sitter should be acquainted with your household—location of light switches, supplies, possible hazards, etc.
- Duties should be made clear from the start, with emphasis on baby care, not household chores.
- Written instructions on special baby duties, feeding, etc. are more reliable than oral ones.
- Snacks and soft drinks for your part-time parent sweeten sitting time.

Full-time parents can sweeten eating time by offering a goodly variety of good-tasting foods. Gerber offers over 50 pleasing, appetizing strained foods for your baby... all prepared with the Gerber flair for preserving true colours and flavours.

Everything from fruits to vegetables, meats to dinners, juices to desserts. And every one is individually processed by specialists with special know-how in preserving the utmost in precious food values.

Weaning wonders. A plastic measuring cup with a pouring lip will help baby manage those first cup tries more successfully. Spillage will be reduced if you start with just a splash of milk.

Many of today's 700,000 newspaperboys will be the leaders of tomorrow. The future judges, mayors, governors — yes, even the Presidents of our great land —may well get their first lessons in leadership from a newspaper route.

Route management encourages initiative, dependability, resourcefulness and courtesy—important character building traits. And surveys show that newspaperboys rank higher scholastically than the average student.

The training a boy receives delivering newspapers gives him a great start in life. Prominent citizens at every hand are examples of the kind of men these boys become.

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

The Evening Group of Canniffton U.C.W. met in the church on the last Monday in April with 13 members and one visitor present.

The president, Mrs. D. Parks, conducted the business. The members decided to sell greeting cards as a project. It was agreed to finance half the cost of sending a C.G.I.T. member to summer camp.

An invitation to Aiken Church U.C.W.'s open meeting on May 20th was accepted.

Mrs. H. Putman read an interesting letter, which her daughter Cheri had received from Trinidad.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. C. Ellsworth, Mrs. Avery and Miss Gladys Brenton. The group sang a selection and Mrs. Avery read the Parable of the Sower. Mrs. Ellsworth gave an interesting talk on the theme "Thou Shall be Like an Unwanted Garden," comparing the care and growth of a garden to a person. Gladys Brenton gave a reading on positive thinking.

The meeting closed, followed by lunch and a social time enjoyed.

Polish Brides Don't Want to Spend Money

By VINCENT BURST

WARSAW (Reuters) — Village brides in today's Poland would either rather mash off on a cheap honeymoon trip than spend their dowries on one riotous wedding party.

But their parents, adhering to the traditions of another age, are usually hard to persuade. Often the family's fear of social disapproval outweighs common sense.

Here and there a few strong-willed bridal couples impose their own ideas and go off to Krakow, Warsaw or Gdansk for a honeymoon trip.

But they are fighting old-established ways and when they return they sometimes meet reactions ranging from contempt to downright hostility.

Government authorities, however, are trying to help young couples shake off the burden of elaborate and costly ceremonial by organizing whole groups of wedding parties.

TAKE TOURS

Buses now can be chartered and bridal couples picked up on one afternoon throughout a whole rural area and taken to the capital where they spend a honeymoon at an inexpensive hotel.

The idea seems to be based upon the belief that when it comes to fighting regional prejudice there is safety in numbers.

Poles in the countryside cling more ardently to the tradition of the big wedding party than families in the cities.

Lavish marriage receptions in the cities with champagne, rich food, toasts and dancing all night are still frequent, but more and more young people are content with a party at home after a church wedding.

Although registry office weddings are all that the Polish state requires, most young Polish couples have a second wedding in a Roman Catholic church.

Aware that young couples in civil marriages miss the color, ceremonial and music of a church wedding, the Polish authorities have been trying to inject more color into the civil procedure.

In some provinces of Poland registrars are taking over palaces and castles from the state's office of historic monuments and remodelling them into wedding offices.

"Oh, dear, I'm sorry, Mr. Hackle—I didn't mean to talk in the middle of your lecturing."

Successful Living

A Diet That Really Works Is Acclaimed by Reader

DEAR DORIS — Thank you for the overdue and diet plan. I was 180 pounds on February 18th, am now 171 pounds on March 18th. My measurements were 42¾", 31½", 43¾", and are now 41¾", 27¼", 40¾". Not any earth-shattering news, perhaps, but I feel quite happy!

I took five cards, and received them off for breakfast, dinner and supper and had a line for each day; three columns each week; I had a line for weight and measurements. I put these in a plastic envelope. I stuck this on the door of the freezing section in my fridge. Thus, there it is, whenever I open the door, dated and in black and white.

DORIS CRANE

I still have a perplexing eating less than 1,000 calories a day, and find it hard to stay away from pastry, cakes and puddings, but hope that in time I will overcome this urge.

Friends notice my new shape, and my husband seems very pleased.

My aim — 131 pounds — 36-23-35 — as I was on my wedding day. Wish I could do it by May 23rd, my anniversary. Suppose? Anyway — any change would be an improvement.

"Slow and Steady Wins The Race" — I want to be able to keep it off! — HAPPY HIPPA.

DEAR HAPPY — Congratulations! I like your technique of having that chart stare you in the face whenever you open the refrigerator.

"Slow and steady" is right. Don't expect to reach your objective by the anniversary. Just keep up with the downward trend and you'll see many another anniversary.

Planning Is the Key To Happy Camping Trip

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — A family camping trip can be as elaborate or as simple as you care to make it, but either way it needs planning if everyone is to be comfortable and relaxed.

You can start by finding out something about the parks in which you'll be camping. If they will be provincial or national conservation - area parks, the level of governmental responsibility can vary tremendously.

Those that welcome campers will presumably have tables, fireplaces, garbage collection, toilet facilities and safe drinking water, says Alan Helmsley, supervisor of park interpretation for the Ontario department of lands and forests. But not all parks are so fully equipped and it's a good idea to check first.

On your first excursion consider renting or borrowing equipment. Later you'll know what you want to buy and whether you like camping.

Mr. Helmsley says that if you plan to do much camping, get the best tent you can afford; a cheap one won't last. And since the car usually becomes the clothes cupboard and kitchen you probably need only enough space to sleep in.

PREFERS AIR MATTRESSES

"For ground sleeping air mattresses. I think they're preferable to camp cots because they save space. Cots can be cold because of air underneath them and the fact that people neglect to put as many blankets under as over when camping.

"Sleeping bags aren't really necessary in July and August but are good insurance any way up north. Blankets are.

"For cooking, the trend is to take some kind of stove to do most of it. Firewood arrangements vary in provincial parks and you should ask about them beforehand. We find a lot of people are taking charcoal.

"Usually on a motor camping trip you can get to a store to buy perishables. In most parks there's are food concessions or stores. I do suggest taking a supply of marshmallows and whatnot that the kids can play with and burn to a crisp.

"Avoid keeping food in a tent. It attracts bears, raccoons and skunks. You have no weight problem with a car so you can take canned goods. And use packages—sugar and flour—in a wooden box; cardboard boxes disintegrate. Our family uses cotton bags for some supplies."

NEED GOOD KNIFE

Nesting units of bowls, pots and cups are useful. And you should have a good butcher knife and a sharpener. Cutlery can be kept track of in a cloth with compartments like a silver tarnish bag. You also need a couple of pails, collapsible or plastic, for drinking and washing water.

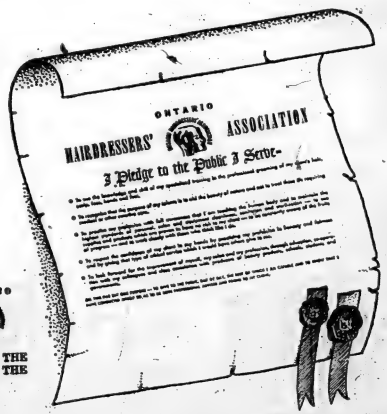
"When you are packing clothing, be prepared for cold weather and for rain. And take some rainy day amusement for the children.

"You will need a fairly large light. A gasoline lantern will also throw some heat to warm the tent. Or buy a battery-operated camp light. In addition, you will need at least a couple of flashlights.

"Remember to take towels and soap, a first aid kit, insect repellant and mosquito netting for the tent.

"I strongly suggest that people leave the dog at home. In Ontario parks he must be tied up, and some U.S. parks have banned dogs.

"I also suggest that as soon as you have made camp the whole family go down to look at the water and establish their own ground rules."



Children shouldn't be allowed to wander; there should be definite times for swimming when everyone can go and the youngsters can be supervised by their own parents.

Ann Landers

Girl, 15, Seeks Solution To Dance Floor Jitters

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a girl who will soon be 15 and I'm looking forward to a lot of fun. I am a pretty good dancer when I dance with my girl friends, but I just can't seem to dance with a boy. I get all tensed up and I'm like paralyzed in the feet. Maybe it's because I have always been the one to lead and I just can't follow.

I am so scared I might step on a boy's foot that I break out in a cold sweat. Then my hands get clammy and I'm just a mess. Can you give me some hints on how to overcome this problem? It could wreck my entire life. — OUT OF IT.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR IT — You seem to have a couple of problems — clammy hands and two left feet. First, stop dancing with girls. You must become accustomed to following.

Second, hang loose. Before you take step one with a boy tell yourself you are going to relax. Pretend you are a rag doll. If the boy has no rhythm, just clomp along and follow him anyway. Even the best dancers get their shins barked now and then. But what's a crushed toe between friends?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am married to an "Ex-Horse," too, and have been for 40 years. My wife has done every bit of work women complain about in your columns — and then some.

We lived on a farm just like "Ex-Horse's". My wife looked after our four daughters, plus a hired man and me. She managed to cook, sew, clean, take care of the chores and be president of the P.T.A., the Legion Auxiliary, the Women's Club and everything else that came along.

When times got better I was able to hire the dairy work done. Then I made her stop doing the chores and the canning. Now she just looks after the flower beds.

And what kind of shape is she in? Well, next year she will be 70. Her figure is better than it was when I married her 40 years ago. Her hair has changed from red to sandy grey. Wrinkles? She doesn't have any. She drives her station wagon all over the country and is the proud grandmother of 12 darling kids.

We travel a lot and my wife is often mistaken for my daughter, (which is embarrassing, because I am three years younger than she is.) As I put my crutches down to write this I'd like to make it plain that hard work never hurt anybody. — AN ADORING HUSBAND.

DEAR ADORING HUSBAND — Thanks for the cheerful testimonial endorsing hard work. I agree that hard work never hurt anybody (it thrive on it myself) but if you're going to work like a horse you'd better have a constitution to match.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A girl in our office received a bouquet of flowers from her boy friend yesterday. She spent the entire morning trying to find a vase "big enough."

The way she carried on you'd have thought no one in the whole world has ever received flowers from a boy friend. It was a performance that would have put Bette Davis to shame.

Wasn't it in poor taste to have sent flowers to the office? Shouldn't the flowers have been sent to her home? We'd like your opinion. — NAUSEATED SIX.

DEAR SIX — My opinion (and I don't think you'll like it) is that you girls are nauseated from envy.

The fellow probably sent the flowers to the office because he wanted to give his girl an extra-special thrill — and apparently he succeeded. So retract your claws and get back to your typewriters.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

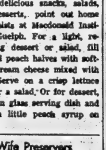
Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fresh Aspargarus and Eggs Make a Delicious Lunch

Asparagus, one of Ontario's first spring vegetables, is a popular addition to any meal. Serve fresh asparagus (cooked until just tender-crisp) soon and watch your family's lagging appetites perk up. Buy about one pound of fresh asparagus for every four servings. Be sure to purchase straight, crisp stalks with a bright, fresh-looking color.

Asparagus and eggs are a delicious combination for lunch or supper meals and eggs supply high-quality protein so necessary for growth and health. Creamy asparagus with eggs is a simple, appetizing recipe from the Foods Department at Macdonald Institute, Guelph.

Creamy Asparagus With Eggs



1 to 1¼ pounds fresh asparagus, 1½ tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup milk, ½ cup grated process Ontario Cheddar cheese, 6 hard cooked eggs, shelled, ½ teaspoon very finely chopped onion, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 to 3 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Snap woody end from each stalk of asparagus. Wash thoroughly to remove any sand. Slit stalks (but leave attached at tip) for faster, more even cooking. Spread asparagus in large pan and cook in about one inch of boiling, salted water until large ends are tender-crisp about 15 minutes. Or tie stalks in bunches and stand in a deep pot with water halfway up the stalks.

In saucepan, melt butter; stir in flour and salt, and then milk. Cook until thickened. Add cheese and blend until smooth. Slice eggs in half; remove yolks. Mash yolks and mix with onion, seasonings and mayonnaise. Fill whites with mixture.

Arrange asparagus spears in 10 × 6 × 2 baking dish. Place stuffed eggs on top. Pour cheese sauce over mixture. Bake, uncovered, at 400 degrees F. for about 40 minutes, or until hot and bubbly. Makes four to five servings.

Canned Ontario peaches make delicious snacks, salads, and desserts, point out home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. For a light, refreshing dessert or salad, fill drained peach halves with softened cream cheese mixed with nuts. Serve on a crisp lettuce cup for a salad. Or for dessert, place in glass serving dish and pour a little peach syrup on top.

Spread a bedsheet in front of the fireplace to catch spills when fireplace is burning or smoking.

Couple Honored At Presentation

IVANHOE — A number of friends and neighbors gathered in Ivanhoe township hall on Thursday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Bert Post and to extend best wishes for a long and happy married life.

Mr. Harry Lovibond acted as chairman and the program was opened by a round of community singing with Mrs. Reginald Haggerty at the piano.

The remainder of the program consisted of songs, readings and dances. Those taking part were: Miss Mae Pollock, Lana, Sandra, Dianne and Phillip LaChappelle, Margaret and Anne, Elizabeth and Marie Kerby, and Miss Margie Masterson.

Stella and Bert were given seats of honor, a suitable address was read and the presentation of a purse of money was made.

Lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Rhubarb Mint Cocktail

For spring weddings, rhubarb mint cocktail makes a delicious, tangy punch. Its delicate pink color and sparkling taste add glamor to any occasion. Garden-fresh rhubarb will soon be plentiful on Ontario markets. Purchase crisp, tender, medium-sized stalks which have a pink color. This recipe from the Foods Department at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, makes enough punch for fifty large punch servings.

Rhubarb Mint Cocktail

10 pounds rhubarb, 8 to 10 sprigs mint, 4 cups sugar, 2 cups pineapple juice, 1 quart gingerale, fresh mint.

Wash rhubarb and cut into two-inch pieces. Simmer in water until rhubarb falls apart. Strain. Add sugar and heat only to dissolve. Chill thoroughly. If desired, this juice may be stored until the refrigerator for a few days.

Just before serving, add pineapple juice and gingerale. Float washed mint on punch until a pleasant flavor develops.

TRAGEDY OF A WET BED

Remorse, shame, irritation and complexes of frustration is the lot of the poor youngsters. In fact BED-WETTING is more than an affliction, it's a problem. Be sure this science has found a way to stop it. Wouldn't you like to start your child staying to learn what should be done? Mothers cry their joy and gratitude. Doctors recommend it. We want to put in your mind that bed wetting can be stopped promptly if not caused by organic defect or disease. SEAFOOD SCALLOP IN SHELLS

My menu for a guest meal for eight was unusual: Turkey Mulligatawny (recipe given here on Monday) with Sesame Rolls (recipe given here last Thursday, April 29th); Seafood Scallop (see below): Tossed Chef's Salad and a lovely pie with a cocoanut crust (see tomorrow).

I hope that our perceptive hostesses will follow my lead and prepare and serve this meal to their guests because it was memorable and such a welcome change from the old meat-vegetable routine.

If you have a set of the little natural scallop shells that you pick up in Florida use them for this individual service. If not, use individual pyrex or pottery ramekins or failing all of these, use a large shallow baking dish.

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary Moore

Baked Back Bacon: Mustard Sauce; Buttered Elbow Macaroni; Asparagus; Mixed Bowl Salad; Chocolate Blanc Mange Pudding; Cocoanut Macaroons (see Tuesday); Coffee.

SEAFOOD SCALLOP IN SHELLS (or large baking dish):

1¾ cups milk, ¼ cup 32% cream (optional) — 10% cream could be substituted), 4 or 5 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon MSG (accent), ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon green onion flakes, ¼ to 1/3 cup sliced stuffed salad olives (include generous portion of pimiento), one 14-oz. package fresh frozen peeled and cleaned shrimp, thawed, 1 lb. fresh frozen N.S. scallops, thawed and quartered, juice half lemon.

Topping: ¾ cup grated or shredded old Cheddar cheese, ½ cup fine breadcrumbs, 2 tablespoons butter.

Heat milk and cream together. In large saucepan melt butter, blend in flour, accent, salt and sugar, then stir in hot milk and cream until thick. Add onion flakes, sliced olives, whole shrimp, quartered scallops and lemon juice to hot sauce and mix gently. Turn into 12 scallop shells or about 8 individual ramekins (or one large shallow baking dish).

Melt the 2 tablespoons butter, stir crumbs into it and with a fork stir the buttered crumbs through the grated cheese. Sprinkle this cheese - crumb mixture over top of seafood mixture evenly and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 30 minutes — time depends on shape of baking dishes. (The only ingredient which requires cooking is the seafood and since it is started in a hot sauce the baking time is not long.) Tops should be bubbly and golden.

Speaking Personally

by Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

DEPRESSION

To people who did not live through the depression years — or not in the young marrieds, those years are a vague time they have heard their parents speak about, they are not consciously aware of what it means, only that it was a bad time.

Some people say, "It didn't hurt us any," but others know that it left scars that time may heal over, but not erase.

Young people simply cannot understand the widespread feeling of hopeless desperation that gripped great numbers of people.

Thomas once wrote that most men lead lives of quiet desperation," and that was equally true 100 years later during the "hungry thirties."

If a job was offered at $15 a week there would be a stampede. The man who had a steady job at $35 a week with a reliable firm was considered one of the more fortunate ones.

One man tells about taking a job at $18 a week as a "financial representative." This high sounding name meant that he was a collection man for a firm that sold a set of encyclopedia. The gimmick was that a salesman would sell a man a set of books purporting to be a university extension course. When it turned out to be simply an encyclopedia the buyer did a slow burn which exploded like a bomb in the "financial representative's" face when he came around to collect the first instalment payment.

This man said when he returned home every night he cut out another piece of cardboard to put in his shoes which were worn through.

One day as he made his rounds, it was so hot that the road sweated. Walking along this sidewalk he saw a pair of good looking shoes in a shop window for $1.98. He had $2.00 in his pocket and his street car fare. So he went in, bought the shoes and put them on. As he was walking up the street he felt a lump under his foot, and found the sole of his new shoes had rolled up in a curl. They were made of paper and the rain had loosened the paste. He hurried back to the store where he had bought them and showed the salesman, who said, "You've just bought yourself something, Bub."

If sickness struck it was a disaster. There was no such thing as health or hospital insurance, children's allowances, old age pensions or any pension plans, unemployment insurance nor any of the social services that followed the depression.

Those years were degrading as grinding poverty is always degrading. It was not a matter of not having possessions and new clothes. What hurt was not being able to have the rent ready for the landlord, not having enough food in the house, buying coke in quarter ton lots to heat the house, and hoping for summer when heat would not be needed or winter coats. It was owing money to the grocer, to the landlord, to the doctor and dentist. It was being in debt and seeing no way out with the consequent humiliation of insulting letters and bill collectors.

Men tramped the streets trying to sell brushes, vacuum cleaners and furniture polish to housewives who had no money to buy anything.

They were years to scar the soul, and I hope we may never see their like again.

Entertains at Tea for Bride

DESERONTO—Mrs. M. J. Ryan entertained at tea for her daughter, Mrs. D. L. Hearns who was recently married. Mrs. C. M. Loffman, grandmother of the bride assisted in receiving.

Mrs. F. Conboy and Mrs. M. LaRue of Belleville served when guests were present from Deseronto and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearns will be living in Clinton, Ontario where the bridegroom is stationed with the R.C.A.F.

Russians Throw Book at Chinese

By JOHN REST

MOSCOW (CP)—The Russians have thrown the book at the Chinese to buttress their position in the fierce factional dispute now wrecking the world Communist movement.

The book is Against Dogmatism, Sectarianism and Left Opportunism, a catalogue of statements and writings by Lenin directed against fanatical Communists who fail to show tactical flexibility.

The 426-page volume, prepared by the Marxism-Leninism Institute of the Soviet Communist party's central committee, has just been issued in a Russian-language print of 25,000 copies.

Diplomatic observers say the timing of the publication is significant. Coming just a few weeks before the convening of a drafting commission to prepare for an international conference on Communist unity it appears aimed at isolating the Chinese from the wellsprings of Leninist teachings and philosophy.

The drafting commission is scheduled to get down to work March 1. The Chinese have said they won't attend either the commission meeting or the conference itself, describing them as an elaborate attempt to impose unity on Soviet terms.

The new volume doesn't specifically refer to the Soviet-Chinese differences over Communist ideology and tactics but it's obvious from the 16-page introduction that China is the target.

CHARGE DOGMATISM

Lenin is also stressed the danger of "left" opportunism to the cause of the working class and of socialism, it says.

"This part of Lenin's activity deserves special attention in the light of the present struggle of Marxist - Leninist parties with dogmatism and sectarianism," it adds, using labels that Soviet spokesmen have often pinned on the Chinese.

The authors of the introduction, N. G. Savrugina and N. N. Suvotsveva, denounce as vicious the attempt to substitute national Marxism for true Marxism-Leninism and attack attempts to split the International Communist movement into "separate isolated national detachments."

The central place in the volume, which contains 50 full or partial reprints from Lenin, is occupied by "Left-wing Communism and Infantile Disorder" written by the revolutionary leader in April and May, 1920.

In this work Lenin repudiated Communists-in-a-hurry who refused to join in popular-front activities, free trade unions and parliamentary institutions as a means of advancing Communism in the West. The secret of Communism's success, he held, was the ability to "tack, manoeuvre and compromise."

In the context of the present dispute it is the truculently anti-Western Peking Communists who, Moscow feels, have shown inability to tack, manoeuvre and compromise for the sake of greater successes tomorrow.

The introduction also contains a plug for Moscow's policy of peaceful coexistence with the West, an anathema to the Chinese. It said Lenin considered "peace among the nations" the necessary condition for "public progress."

Not Authorized to Spend Public Money on Walk

DESERONTO — A meeting of the emergency measures committee is to be held in Belleville on Wednesday, May 5. The mayor, Mr. G. Lott, Councillor Sharpe and the town clerk, Mr. J. Reynolds and the Chief of Police are to attend this meeting. The purpose is to set up emergency procedures in case of extreme damages to any area by any means such as floods, storms and bombing explosions, etc.

A letter was received from the Centennial Association asking what was being planned by the town for celebration of the Centennial. The clerk was asked to notify the association of new park to be set up as soon as all deeds are cleared, and that as yet celebration activities have not been set up.

A letter was received from the ratepayers association asking consideration be given to building a sidewalk from Main St., to Dawson's Marina. The area between these two points is private property, and it was decided the council is not authorized to spend public funds on private property. It was felt however that the merchants owning the properties would gladly deed a right-of-way to the town to build a sidewalk. Councillor Sharpe explained the streets committee could not do it this year on their tight budget. It was decided to investigate the possibility of acquiring land and the cost of such a project, along with the possibility of raising some money in the budget to this end, and report at the next meeting.

The Property chairman, Councillor Howard reported repairs were completed to the Roach building, which was damaged by a car accident, the cost of repairs to be turned over to the insurance company for payment.

The Police committee reported an excellent job is being done by the policemen, several thefts and break-ins have been cleared up and penalties awarded.

Chairman of Streets Committee Councillor Sharpe reported on an estimate from McFarland Construction Company for resurfacing 2¼ miles of streets at a cost of $7200. The surface of the streets would be treated with a primer and then a layer of limestone and asphalt which should give a good durable hard surface. The council approved this project which is to be carried out as soon as possible. Approval was also given to repair sidewalks to the amount of $2,500 and a new length of drain to be installed on Mill St., at a cost of $1,000. The province will pay half the cost of the drain.

Members Bid Farewell To Archdeacon

DESERONTO — A farewell social evening was held recently at St. Mark's Anglican church, by the members of this parish in honor of Archdeacon N. R. Stout.

Archdeacon Stout has been the rector of St. Mark's for the past few months and will be leaving shortly when the parish will receive a permanent rector.

The evening was spent playing cards after which refreshments were enjoyed.

The parishioners presented a purse of money to the Archdeacon in gratitude for the service he has rendered here.

100F, Rebekah Lodges Attend Church Service

PICTON (Staff) — The Salvation Army hall was filled to capacity Sunday morning when members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges paraded to the service which marks the anniversary of the Order. The parade, headed by the Odd Fellows' band, formed up on Ross Street. For the first time in a parade here, the Maple Leaf flag was carried, along with the Union Jack.

The service was conducted by Captain L. Pearo with Brigadier W. Hawkes, Salvation Army Divisional Commander, as guest speaker.

Mentally Retarded to Get Profits

PICTON (Staff) — The members of the Keste Chorus, who are a comparatively new group, have decided to donate the profits from their presentation of the "Pirates of Pentance" to the newly-formed Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded.

At the moment, the male members of the chorus are busy preparing scenery and properties from lumber donated by the Lake Ontario Cement Company, while the ladies are making their costumes and various other chores needed for the production. Meanwhile, a group of musicians, who are prepared to donate their talents to this worthy cause, are rehearsing the orchestra accompaniment.

The operetta, written in 1870 by Sir Arthur Sullivan and Sir William Schwent Gilbert, tells the story of events that came to pass when the beautiful daughters of Major General Stanley (Douglas Burns) meet the notorious Pirates of Penzance led by their King (Kenneth Ross) and his Lieutenant Samuel (Peter Nash) assisted by their pirate apprentice Frederic (Fred LeSieverend) and his nurse Ruth (Diane Forster).

The pirates' main desire seems to be that of marrying the maidens without their father's consent. Frederic becomes infatuated with Mabel (Pat Taylor), while the Pirate King cannot make up his mind whether to choose Edith (Frances Hayter) or Kate (Muriel McNeill), while Samuel has his eyes set for Isabel (Angela Nash). Unfortunately their matrimonial plans go awry with the appearance of the Sergeant of Police (Earl Holt) and his gallant constables.

The Kente Chorus and the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded extend a cordial invitation to all to come and support their efforts on Friday and Saturday, May 14 and 15.

When the Fiery Cross Came to Saskatchewan

By RON MACDONALD

REGINA (CP) — A cross burned on a prairie hilltop while white-hooded men preached politics based with prejudice.

This was the scene when Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, carrying on its work in Saskatchewan in the 1930s.

The province has the dubious distinction of apparently being the only part of the world outside the United States where the Klan gained a foothold.

In the U.S., the Klan started as a fraternal club 100 years ago, became an instrument of prejudice against Negroes, Roman Catholics and Jews in the 1920s and this year is the subject of a congressional investigation after being denounced by President Johnson as a society of hooded bigots.

In Saskatchewan the Klan was started late in 1926 by a group of men who came by train to Moose Jaw from the U.S. via Eastern Canada.

There were few Negroes in Saskatchewan, but the Klan found plenty of adherents—one of its organizers claimed a peak membership of 47,000—when it directed its attacks against Catholics and Jews, then immigrating to Canada in large numbers from Europe.

MADE GARDINER TARGET

The Klan, calling for "100-per-cent Canadianism," warned that Protestant Anglo - Saxons would lose their power and influence when swamped by European immigrants.

A man who once joined the organization out of curiosity in Weyburn, Sask., characterized its organizers this way: "These were a bunch of sharpies who figured Saskatchewan would be a good place to make a few fast bucks." Adult membership was $15 a year.

The Klan in Saskatchewan was a political force rather than an instrument of terror.

The late Jimmy Gardiner, premier from 1926 to 1935, was a prime political target of the Klan. He called it "an organization which has no place in the British parliamentary system."

Premier Gardiner many times accused his Conservative opponents, led by the late Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, of seeking Klan support, but no proof was offered.

During the 1929 provincial election campaign, crosses were burned at numerous points where Mr. Gardiner held rallies.

Mr. Gardiner and Dr. J. H. Hawkins, a principal Klan organizer, held a debate at Lemberg. RCMP confiscated six rifles from persons in the crowd.

SHRINE BURNED

Premier Gardiner's son, J. W. Gardiner, now provincial public works minister, tells of another incident during the campaign.

"On election night my mother got a telephone call saying Dad would be shot before he got home. He was a little late getting home and there were a few anxious moments before he turned up."

During the election campaign both the Klan and the Conservatives complained Roman Catholics were guilty of religious excesses in their separate schools. They complained of crucifixes being hung on school walls and said children were fed anti-Protestant propaganda.

Hooded Klansmen marched through one Catholic church during a service.

Klansmen went from community to community on horseback to spread their word. They told listeners that people called "Mac" at that time in the U.S. and Canada because it was a secret codeword, practically all Scots.

The movement spread from Estavan in the south to Prince Albert in the north, having its greatest success in this heavily Anglo-Saxon Protestant north.

In the 1929 election, Mr. Gardiner's Liberals lost 21 seats and shortly afterward gave up the reins of government to Dr Anderson and his Conservatives.

FADED FAST

The Conservatives condemned the Klan after taking office. The Klan quickly disappeared then, perhaps because rural folk with a strong tradition of co-operative action couldn't support its divisive ideas.

Political opponents long afterward reiterated Mr. Gardiner's charges of a Conservative-Klan link, but the Conservatives consistently rejected the claims.

Despite the denials, some political observers have said the mere suggestion of a link was enough to give the kiss of political death to the Conservatives, who were wiped out in the legislature in 1935 and failed to elect a member until last year, when they elected one.

Pat Emmons, a Grand Wizard of the Klan, once scheduled a public meeting—at which he said he would expose the alleged Conservative link, but he couldn't make himself heard over shouts and jeers.

The original Klan organizers included Dr. Hawkins, impeccably dressed in striped suit and bowler, his silver hair meticulously combed; Emmons; "Father" Rondeau, a protestant minister who claimed he had been a Roman Catholic priest; and J. J. Maloney.

The Klan started with a campaign to clean up Moose Jaw, then a tough city where criminals appeared able to defy the law openly. It claimed support from prominent Americans such as Henry Ford (he denied it) and organized parades bearing marches down the main street.

Feb. 28, 1928, Dr. Hawkins told a Regina meeting: "The Jew is granted greater privileges in Canada than in any other country in the world.

"You can't become a member of his synagogue, you can't join his B'nai B'rith Order. . . . Do you mean to tell me that the Klan doesn't have the right to let the Jew remain outside of it?"

Holding the bitter of Roman Catholics, Dr. Hawkins added: "Prior to 1760 Canada was in every sense of the word a British dominion. . . . Today, less than 47 per cent of the people living in Canada are of British descent. The balance of power has passed out of your hands completely." The 1931 census showed Saskatchewan had 147,000 Catholics out of a total population of 786,000.

When the Klan folded, "Father" Rondeau disappeared. Emmons' eventual whereabouts appear unknown to persons in Regina. Dr. Hawkins was deported for a breach of immigration laws.

Maloney was arrested in Edmonton for theft in 1933. Seventeen Klansmen appeared on his behalf, trying to kiss him and in the courtroom, pleaded for mercy. The judge gave him two months and he was led away into obscurity.

Publishers Ask Government To Drop Legislation But Receive Little Assurance

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of Canada's daily newspaper publishers asked Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday to drop the government's proposed legislation to guard against foreign take-overs of Canadian newspapers.

They said the measure involves "a fundamental violation of long established press freedom in Canada" and, as such, is against the best interests of both the country and its newspapers.

The prime minister promised to consider the protest, but gave no assurance the legislation will be dropped.

The publishers' submission was in the form of a resolution adopted last week at the annual meeting of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association in Toronto.

The resolution said the publishers wished to record "our serious protest" against Finance Minister Gordon's budget proposal to put a restriction on foreign ownership of Canadian newspapers by disallowing advertising in any foreign - owned Canadian paper as a deductible business expense. The proposal does not apply to existing foreign-owned newspapers in Canada.

"... we think in any degree or manner a tax restraint or incentive on advertising as a means of discriminating against the press of this country or its ownership is a fundamental violation of long established press freedom in Canada," the CDNPA resolution said.

The proposed legislation is "contrary to Canadian basic freedoms" and, if passed into law, would create a precedent "which could open the door for future abuses."

"We therefore urgently request that this proposed legislation be abandoned as being detrimental to the best interests of Canada as well as the newspapers of this country."

The resolution was placed before Mr. Pearson by a four-man delegation headed by CDNPA President, R. A. Grey-biel of the Windsor Star. Basil Dean of the Edmonton Journal, Aurele Gratton of Ottawa le Droit and R. S. Malone of FP Publications Ltd., Winnipeg, also attended the 35 - minute meeting in Mr. Pearson's House of Commons office.

Mr. Gordon also listened to the publishers' representations.

Mr. Graybiel said following the meeting the delegation had received a "very good" reception from Mr. Pearson.

"He expressed concern at the fact that an overwhelming majority of Canadian newspaper publishers, as represented by this resolution, have taken exception to the proposed legislation," Mr. Graybiel said. "He said he would consider our submission and advise us on his reply in a few days."

Mr. Graybiel said the prime minister told the publishers that the government had decided on the tax approach to the question of foreign takeovers to avoid "constitutional difficulties." This apparently was a reference to the fact that property and civil rights, which ownership of newspapers might normally fall, is a provincial jurisdiction.

Asked what Mr. Gordon's statement to the Commons Monday night that those opposing the proposed legislation should put forth alternatives, Mr. Graybiel said the CDNPA executive had not been empowered by its 103 member papers to make such a move.

OPINIONS DIVIDED

He said the difficulty in this regard was that there were divided opinions on the matter in the publishers on the issue. Some merely were opposed to the legislation, while others thought government action was warranted in some other form. A third group opposed government action in any form.

Mr. Graybiel said the association's annual meeting was "virtually unanimous" in opposing the legislation officially. It was the first time in 14 years the CDNPA has agreed on such submission to the government.

The CDNPA stands was supported Tuesday by the Canadian section of the International Federation of Journalists, said the organization concerned with the development and maintenance of press freedom.

The Canadian section of the Commonwealth Press Union issued a statement criticizing the budget proposal. Its statement, adopted at a Toronto meeting, said the CPU, as a body, posed legislation might lead to "direct interference with the Canadian press."

Mr. Gordon, in his Commons speech Monday night, denied any such interference is implied in the legislation.

"The government involved at this time, of course, is not freedom of the press at all," the finance minister said in reply to whether this country will have a Canadian press which controls news and views in a Canadian light."

Mr. Gordon, in his April 26 budget, said the measure—part of a program covering Canadian periodicals as well—is "purely preventive" and does not affect any existing Canadian newspapers.

7,000 Canadian Children Aided By Youth Program of Red Cross

REGINA (CP)—Nearly 7,000 children in Canada received financial assistance from the youth organization of the Canadian Red Cross Society in 1964, Ralph E. Wendeborn said Tuesday.

Mr. Wendeborn, national director, said in a report to the annual meeting of the society that the assistance costs more than $100,000.

The assistance covered dental, eye and drug care, hearing aids, orthopedic appliances, medical care, surgery and transportation, he said.

The Red Cross youth program also contributed more than $30,000 in gifts to hospitals and institutions where the handicapped and sick children, Mr. Wendeborn said. Material and technical assistance to 28 countries was made at an added expenditure of $127,000.

Membership in the youth branch, in junior and high schools across the country, now is more than 1,000,000—an increase of about 100,000 members compared with a year ago, delegates were told.

MAY CHANGE UNIFORM

The two-day meeting was told the familiar grey uniform of the volunteers may soon be a thing of the past.

Mrs. J. E. McLaren of Toronto said the national corps volunteer committee will recommend as soon as possible to the uniforms committee that new uniforms be designed. This, she said, would attract new members.

Women in the volunteer corps, which has decreased to 660 from 1,000 since 1960, gave 77,400 hours of service last year and drove 135,260 miles, she said.

Miss Estelle Hamilton, chairman of the blood donor service, said a record 823,930 bottles of blood were donated during 1964, an increase of 52,727 bottles over 1963.

Professor Alan Morgan of Toronto, disaster service director, said that while there were no major disasters in Canada during 1964, the society assisted 13,861 people at a cost of $205,000, most of this assistance going to victims of fires, mainly in Ontario.

HEADS CAMPAIGN

Kenneth J. Farthing of Hamilton was elected the national campaign chairman for 1965.

The society ended 1964 with a deficit of $64,528.

The suspended issues are Webb and Knapp common shares, six per cent series preference stock and five per cent sinking fund debentures due to June 1, 1974, and Roosevelt Field Inc., capital stock.

RETAIL SALES DOWN

Retail sales totalled an estimated $11,997,385,000 in February this year, down one-half of one per cent from the February, 1964, total of $1,405,000,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday. The slip followed increases of two-fifths of one per cent in January, 1965, retail sales showed January, 1964.

FORM NEW BANK

A group of Canadian financiers has formed a bank in the Bahamas and plans to make it active in international financial circles, it was announced in Toronto Tuesday. The new bank, called the Wellington Bank of Nassau (Bahamas) International Ltd., is headed by C. M. Stevens, president of British International Finance (Canada) Ltd.

GOLD RESERVES UP

The treasury said Tuesday in London Britain's gold and hard currency reserves rose $20,000,000 in April. During April to a total of $2340,000,000 the reserves stood at $2340,000,000 ($2,807,000,000).

Actions Causing Car Accidents Called Crimes

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Highway Safety Council was told Tuesday that statistics indicate Canada is a fantastic field for traffic-accident reduction" where driver action or conditions is involved.

Tom Mahony, Ontario highway safety officer, told the annual council convention it would seem that the high percentage of accidents involving driver behavior or attitude should be classed as a social problem.

"The actions which cause these accidents, with death resulting in many cases and serious harm to persons and property, are crimes just as much as murder or theft."

Mr. Mahony said the public often withholds censure of the drivers because the act which caused the accident was unwilful or because the operator was not aware of the law.

"The public's safety cannot be built into any highway.

IDEA IS WRONG

A popular misconception that accident incidence increases in direct relation to the speed of highway travel is also wrong.

On a highway where the average speed was 60 miles an hour, the driver generally has the same chance of being involved in an accident as the driver travelling 30, he said.

Public Mischief Charge Brings Fine of $200

TORONTO (CP)—Anna May Bernier, 21, Tuesday was fined $100 or 30 days on a charge of public mischief laid after police found the body of a woman in a field two weeks ago.

Miss Bernier pleaded guilty but told police she lied to them because she was afraid of losing her job at a bakery.

She said she is fighting for their return from the Children's Aid Society but didn't want family court officials to know she was involved in the case.

Police had asked the public to spend 38 hours investigating a "hoax and lies" story of Beverly Board, 23, whose body police found, said Norman Matusiak, Crown counsel.

Miss Board's partially-clothed body was found in suburban North York Feb. 21 autopsy showed she died of pneumonia.

Mrs. Bernier told police Miss Board was ill when they met in a downtown restaurant. With the help of two other women, Mrs. Bernier took her to a house.

Mrs. Bernier was charged after police learned one of the women named was actually in jail at the time.

Lid Blew Off Republic Four Years Ago and Pieces Still Falling

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The lid blew off the Dominican Republic May 30, 1961, with the assassination of dictator Rafael Trujillo. Four years later, the pieces are still falling.

Trujillo's death at 69 ended 31 years of repressive, police-state rule. It also marked the start of continual turmoil culminating in the current civil fighting and American intervention.

Turmoil is nothing new for Hispaniola, the lush, mountainous island shared by the Dominican Republic and Haiti. It was begun almost as soon as Columbus set foot there in 1492.

The Dominican capital, Santo Domingo, was established in 1496 as the first white city of the hemisphere. Relics of Spanish rule still remain, including battlements built in 1537 for defense against Sir Francis Drake and the French and English.

A negro revolt in the western third of the island ended French rule in 1804 and established the republic of Haiti.

The eastern end endured Spanish, French and finally Haitian domination, mixed with attempts at independence, until Spanish were finally ejected in 1865.

The country, almost as big as Nova Scotia, remained largely poverty, wracked by repeated revolts.

IT TAKES OVER

In 1916, during one governmental breakdown, the United States occupied the country, handing it back after eight years to elected President Horacio Vasquez.

During the American occupation Trujillo, son of a farmer, rose to prominence as head of the constabulary.

Six years after the marines left, revolt broke out against Vasquez and the constabulary failed to put it down promptly.

Trujillo ran in presidential elections and won easily after opposition candidates withdrew, charging widespread fraud and violent attacks, pulled out.

For the next three decades he ruled like a feudal lord, using a food-taster and a rifle nearby and controlling the country through intimidation and an efficient spy network.

Trujillo and his family eventually controlled some 500,000 acres and the best industries.

Some estimates of the fortune put it as high as $400,000,000.

Even his severest critics, however, conceded that Trujillo brought order and relative prosperity to the country.

REPUBLIC SHATTERED

The republic shattered by a hurricane, was rebuilt into a gracious city with magnificent highway projects.

The sugar, coffee and cocoa growing areas were run efficiently and there was almost no monopolies, many American.

DISSENT SPREADS

But by the late 1950s, rumblings of dissatisfaction increased over American support for Trujillo.

The dictator's favorite son, Rafael Jr., 18 years old, was made an honorary colonel at the age of 3 and a brigadier-general at 10. He was given a high-living swath through the United States and drawing criticism from conservatives.

By 1960, the Dominican Roman Catholic clergy was branching from Trujillo "evil" to "corrupt." Outside, the Organization of American States blamed him for an assassination attempt on Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt and imposed tough sanctions.

The country was ripe for explosion.

Nevertheless, many of the country's 3,200,000 people wept at Trujillo's death and his handpicked president, Joaquin Balaguer, retained power with Ramfis as chief of the armed forces.

Balaguer proved too democratic for Trujillo and the Trujillo family, however, and two of the dictator's brothers tried to regain power in November, 1961.

The attempt flailed while U.S. warships stood by. Autopsy showed the died of pneumonia.

Mrs. Bernier told police Miss Board was ill when they met in a downtown restaurant. With the help of two other women, Mrs. Bernier took her to a house.

Mrs. Bernier was charged after police learned one of the women named was actually in jail at the time.

Juan Bosch, a leading Socialist intellectual who had denounced Trujillo from exile, returned and in December, 1962, handily won the first free democratic elections since the marines' departure.

Bosch's administration, then U.S. vice-president, attended Bosch's inauguration and said: he had come "to celebrate with you the rebirth of an authentic democracy."

But falling sugar prices hurt the economy and unemployment was widespread. Rightist elements protested Bosch's social reforms, and charged he was "soft on communism."

In September, 1963, a military coup ousted Bosch and set up a three-man junta, in turn toppled by Bosch supporters in the fighting that broke out last April 24.

Govt. Will Determine Property Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald Macdonald, parliamentary secretary to Justice Minister Favreau, Tuesday night assured Ralph Cowan (L—York—Humber) the federal department would give serious consideration to problems created by filling in sections of Lake Ontario.

Mr. Cowan brought the matter up during an adjournment debate, pointing out that recent filling in of a section of the northern shore of Lake Ontario at the Toronto suburb of Long Branch resulted in a situation where both Long Branch and Etobicoke Township claimed jurisdiction over newly-created land.

He said the problem was started when Etobicoke Township was created with a boundary extending under Lake Ontario to the International Boundary. Long Branch later was incorporated it was given definite boundaries. Since the new land was outside the Long Branch boundary, Etobicoke Township had agreed to allow the developer to build an 18-storey apartment building on the site while the township rezoned the same site as a park area.

Mr. Cowan asked the justice department to seek a binding legal interpretation on the property rights.

Found Shortage Of 40,000 Tons Says Official

WELLAND (CP) — An accountant testified Tuesday he compared actual stock with recorded stock at Atlas Steels Co. at the end of 1964 and found a shortage of 40,000 tons.

Ross MacFadden said he did not know how such a shortage occurred but suggested some scrap steel never arrived at the firm as it should have; or that scrap had agreed to be involved as if it were of higher quality than it was.

Mr. MacFadden was testifying during the second day of a preliminary hearing of three men charged in connection with delivering and receiving metals at Atlas in excess of $1,000,000.

Sullivan was a former receiver at Atlas. Troester and Jack operated Trojan Alloys of London which was a supplier of Atlas.

The hearing continues.

Says FBI Informer Was Lying

By REX THOMAS
HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)
A Ku Klux Klan lawyer says he will prove today that an FBI informer was lying when he named a young Klansman as the kill er of a white civil rights worker.

The informer, Gary Thomas Rowe, himself a Klan member, also called back to the witness stand today to face cross - examination by Defence Counsel Matt H. Murphy Jr.

Rowe, guarded by federal agents, testified in state court Tuesday that 21-year-old Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., fired two pistol shots at close range into the car in which Mrs. Viola Liuzzo was slain the night of March 25.

Wilkins, a heavy-set, crew-cut auto mechanic from Fairfield, Ala., is the first of three Klansmen brought to trial on first-degree murder indictments.

After Rowe left the stand Tuesday, Murphy commented angrily to reporters that Rowe had told a lie and "I'll prove it tomorrow."

Mrs. Liuzzo, 39 - year - old mother of five and the wife of a Teamsters official, was shot to death while shuttling other marchers back to Selma following the civil rights march to Montgomery in which she, too, had taken part.

Rowe, a husky former Birmingham barroom operator, now employed by the FBI, said the 12-man jury that he saw young Wilkins, on the back seat of a car during the fire fray and shot into Mrs. Liuzzo's car on a lonely stretch of U.S. 80 near Lowndesboro.

Driving the Klansmen's car as it pulled alongside the Liuzzo automobile, Rowe testified, was Eugene Thomas, 42, of Bessemer. Seated next to Thomas was Klansman Leroy William Orville Eaton, also of Bessemer. Thomas and Eaton are also first-degree murder indictment and awaiting trial.

Eaton also opened fire with a .22-calibre pistol, Rowe said. But a state toxicologist, Dr. Paul Sledzik, has removed the death bullet from the victim's brain, had testified it was a .32-calibre and not a .22-calibre.

Rowe said he had been a paid undercover agent for the FBI for five years. He and his colleagues had infiltrated the Klan uzzo and her Negro companion, he said, while waiting at a traffic light in Selma and followed their car for some 25 miles before finally overtaking it.

The witness said he tried several times to get his companions to shoot Mrs. Liuzzo.

When the time came "Gene Thomas got out his pistol and shot it," Rowe said. Rowe then added. "As we got directly even with the car, Wilkins said, 'give it some gas' and I obeyed a little bit.

"Wilkins held his arm out the window, elbow length. Just as he got even with the front window of the car, the lady turned and looked directly at us. As she looked, Wilkins fired four shots."

As they pulled ahead, Rowe said he noticed Mrs. Liuzzo's car still traveling in a straight line and told his colleagues it seemed the shots may have missed. But he added, "Wilkins spoke up and said, 'Baby brother, I don't miss. That so, and so is deader than hell'."

Not All Needy Recognize They Are Poor

EDMONTON (CP) — Some people who would be called poor in the United States don't consider themselves badly off, Reuben Baetz of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council, said Tuesday.

When the council contacted individuals to see what they thought of their circumstances, it found "some of them didn't even know they were poor."

Mr. Baetz said the council recently completed a study of four rural areas in Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba for the federal agricultural rehabilitation and development administration.

President of 2 Speculative Companies Tells Windfall Inquiry of Loans He Made

TORONTO (CP)— The president of two speculative mining companies testified before the Windfall royal commission Tuesday he had borrowed between $75,000 and $85,000 to two stock salesmen involved in trading shares of both companies.

P. C. Giardine swore he did this without asking any collateral and without asking the loans to sign a note. The commissioner, Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal, remarked drily, "one would almost like to know how to get your leasing list."

The commission, which for the last two months has been investigating Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. and the day examining acquisition of properties in the Timmins - Kirkland Lake area by Bunker Hill Extension Mines and Glenn Explorations Ltd., Mr. Giardine is president of both companies.

Mr. Giardine said he loaned the money to Wilson McCoy and Milton Cork, now salesmen with the Toronto-based brokerage firm of Jackson, McFayden Securities Ltd.

ISN'T DEFINITE

Asked by Commissioner Counsel Patrick Hucal about whether he had been repaid, Mr. Giardine said: "I have received about $15,000 or $20,000."

"You don't know?" asked Mr. Hartt.

"I haven't had time to figure it out," said Mr. Giardine.

He said he had loaned the money to the men because they had loaned him some when "I was on my uppers."

Mr. Giardine told how he gained control of Bunker Hill and Glenn Uranium over about five months after he had been unemployed and his financial position was "not too hot."

He said he borrowed $40,000 from Herb Quinn of Oakville and $10,000 from his father. Mr. Quinn was not identified further.

INCORPORATES FIRM

With this, he incorporated an investment company, Dynasty Investments Ltd., which later he hoped to gain control of a listed mining company.

He said the loans were unsecured, there were no notes and no collateral. Mr. Quinn, he said, got the loan because of a mortgage on his home.

Mr. Giardine said he wanted control of a company listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange because "I thought if I got hold of the ownership I'd get the business instead of the selling end I would have a better chance of making money."

He said he negotiated an underwriting on Bunker Hill shares — putting money into the company's treasury in exchange for the shares — and used the proceeds to get control of the company.

Then he bought a mining prospect near Timmins for $10,000 and 50,000 shares of Bunker Hill because he had been told it was in a good location.

BRAGGADOCIO HIM

He said this information came to him from Ned Braggadocio, Timmins mining broker and prospector - promoter, who told him the property was "very hot" and "very important discovery in the area."

Mr. Giardine said this happened about May 15, 1964. On April 14 last year Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. of New York announced it had found in the area a copper - silver - zinc deposit now valued at $2,000,000,000.

Mr. Hartt asked: "You didn't get any professional advice on what to look for on the property, you only knew what Braggadocio told you and you purchased his risk $10,000 and 50,000 shares?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Giardine.

Mr. Giardine said Bunker Hill bought 6,000 shares of Texas Gulf Sulphur between March 23 and April 6 last year and then on May 21 for a profit of $140,825.

UNDERWRITES SHARES

Mr. Giardine said that through his company, Dynasty Investments, he underwrote 2,100,000 shares of Bunker Hill at an average price of 26 cents a share and bought on the stock market 2,100,000 shares at an average price of 47 cents a share.

These shares were sold at an average price of 47 cents a share for a profit of $257,000.

Mr. Hartt remarked that the figures were complicated and said he would have the commission accountants go over them with Mr. Giardine's accountants.

A report is expected at the resumption of the hearings Thursday.

When Mr. Giardine acquired control of Bunker Hill, the stock was under suspension by the Toronto Stock Exchange.

STOCK RESUMPTION

With the money from the underwriting, the stock was reinstated Feb. 12 and on the first day of trading sold at 19.50-25 cent range. By mid-April, it sold as high as $1.02. It closed Tuesday at 36 cents.

Later, Mr. Giardine bought control of Glenn Exploration with the purchase of 440,000 shares at five cents a share from Glenn's creditors.

The company then acquired a property in Wark Township, near Timmins, for 50,000 and 50,000 shares of Glenn stock.

However, in a statement to the Toronto Stock Exchange, the purchase price was given as $20,000 and no mention was made of the 50,000 shares, evidence showed.

Asked to explain this, Mr. Giardine said: "It was an oversight."

Lady Churchill Will Take Time To Choose Name

LONDON (CP) — A spokesman for Lady Churchill, created a life peer in the honors list announced on Saturday, says it may be several weeks before a decision is made on her new title.

"Lady Churchill will be conferring with experts from the College of Heralds and others concerned before a choice is made," her secretary said Tuesday.

No duplication of titles is permitted and there must be a thorough investigation of any proposed title to make sure that a similar style does not already exist. There are a number of Churchills among the peerage at present.

As the wife of the late Sir Winston Churchill, she already has the title Lady Churchill, but as a peeress in her own right she would be entitled to call herself Lady Clementine or, if she prefers, Baroness Clementine. An example of this is the wife of former prime minister Harold Macmillan who uses the title Lady Dorothy Macmillan—because she is a peeress in her own right and not by marriage.

Woman Says Man Grabbed Her by Arm

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 25-year-old mother of two said Tuesday she complied with a man's request to have sexual intercourse with him because "I thought he was going to kill me."

The mother testified at the Ontario Supreme Court jury trial of Gary Brown, 24, that she did not otherwise consent to the act which she said occurred during the early morning of March 4 in a bedroom of Brown's rooming house.

Brown, also of London, has pleaded not guilty to the rape charge.

The woman said that Brown grabbed her by the arm, slapped her face and pushed her into a bedroom where her four-year-old daughter was sleeping.

Brown was one of six persons who accompanied the woman by taxi to her apartment after the group had gathered at a downtown restaurant the evening before.

Mrs. Sandra Silverthorne, another occupant of the apartment, testified she saw Brown grab the woman by the hair and drag her into the bedroom.

The trial is continuing.

Landing of U. S. Marines In Dominican Republic May Create Problems for States

By ROBIN McKEOWN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The landing of United States armed forces in the revolt-torn Dominican Republic may have created more problems for the U.S. position in the Western hemisphere than President Johnson at first anticipated.

The way things are shaping up it may be some time before the American marines and other military forces—now totalling 14,000 in the Caribbean country of 3,500,000—are pulled out from the trouble spot.

The best the Americans can hope for is quick moral backing by the Organization of American States, with at least a token force from these states to give the operation an Inter-American character.

OAS backing of the U.S. action and the formation of an American peace force is almost certainly assured, although some Latin - American countries have expressed initial opposition.

HASTY DECISION

Events in the last couple of days cast some doubt on whether Johnson's decision a week ago to order American troops into the Dominican Republic was actually based on accurate intelligence reports or on panic - provoking accounts which led the president to believe the Communists were on the verge of taking over that country.

Johnson's own statements shed some light on this.

He said Sunday in a U.S.-wide TV broadcast that Communist conspirators had "taken over and really seized" direction of a revolt originally aimed at restoring deposed president Juan Bosch to power.

But Monday, in a further statement, he retreated somewhat from his earlier description of the role of the Communists and said that "certain unidentified elements tried to take control" of the revolution.

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, a rebel leader installed Tuesday in Santo Domingo as provisional president, denied U.S. charges that Communists had taken control of the revolution, although he did say some Communists had backed the overthrow of the civilian junta.

Johnson, in justifying the U.S. intervention in his Monday night broadcast, said the bodies of between 1,500 and 1,800 persons killed in the revolution were lying in the streets of the capital.

But U.S. newspaper men touring Santo Domingo reported no bodies were to be seen in the areas through which they passed.

GREAT CHALLENGE

What is important now is the restoration of some form of democratic process in the Dominican Republic but an ever greater challenge to U.S. statesmanship will be the justification of its action in the eyes of the Latin-American countries.

Even if it does, the U.S. move—the first such landing of an American force in Latin America since 1925—was made without prior consultation with the OAS and, secondly, it was in direct violation of Article 15 of the charter of the OAS which says: "... No state or group of states has the right to intervene, directly or indirectly, for any reason whatever, in the internal or external affairs of any other state."

This is the problem with which the U.S. must now contend if it is to regain the full confidence of the Central and Latin-American states.

Bill of Rights Can Be Justified Says McRuer

TORONTO (CP) — A former chief justice of Ontario, J. C. McRuer, said Tuesday that a bill of rights for the province can be justified.

Mr. McRuer, conducting a royal commission on civil rights in Ontario, was commenting on a brief submitted by the Metropolitan Toronto Board of Trade.

The brief said in part that the aims of a bill of rights could best be achieved if they were left in the common law, where they have been secured by the courts as individual rights.

The federal Parliament, during the Diefenbaker government, enacted a federal bill of rights which was criticized by many lawyers on much the same grounds.

The common law, Mr. McRuer said, is rooted in the English Bill of Rights of 1688. In Canada, he added, the common law is subject to change and can be altered by the courts in areas where there is no legislation.

RECOMMENDS COUNCIL

The brief by the 11,000-member board of trade also recommended that a provincial council under the presidency of the chief justice be established to supervise administrative tribunals in Ontario, especially those with judicial authority.

It recommended that all decisions of public tribunals, including the Ontario Labor Relations Board, be subject to review by the Court of Appeal.

The brief opposed retention in the Labor Relations Act of the clauses that bar courts from intervening in the board's decisions unless they go beyond the board's jurisdiction under the act.

The brief said such clauses merely makes parties who seek appeals from the board's decisions go through twisted chains of legal reasoning to justify their appeals.

The reason most commonly given for seeking to keep labor board decisions out of the courts, the brief said, is that lawyers and judges have an anti-labor bias.

In fact, the brief said, unions have resorted to the courts almost as often as employers and have a slightly higher number of successes than employers.

WANTS APPEALS

The brief said appeals on points of law should be permitted.

Mr. McRuer said that if any such action were taken, the appeal procedure should be made as rapid and inexpensive as possible. Otherwise "a certification case, for example, could be tied up for a year with appeals, all to the advantage of the employer."

Mr. McRuer also heard a brief from the Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which said trade union constitutions contain clauses that seriously encroach on personal rights and freedoms of union members.

The brief, read by H. J. Clawson, vice-president of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., said a "trade union constitution may ... grant to its officers powers which permit the expulsion of any member on arbitrary, capricious or whimsical grounds."

Under questioning by the commissioner, Mr. Clawson said unions rarely exercise this punitive power over their members. However, he said, the way is open for abuse because rules bind discipline of members without just cause.

Mr. Clawson said the association is not advocating any interference with the right of unions to expel members.

Judge Allows Doctor to Treat Juror

TORONTO (CP) — The strict isolation of the jury in the capital murder trial of Carl Wayne Stringer was eased slightly Tuesday to permit a doctor to treat a juror.

The jury, which normally is permitted to speak only to four specially-sworn officers during capital trials, was out for about 15 minutes while Dr. Claude Hale removed stitches from his patient.

Dr. Hale swore before Mr. Justice William Parker of the Ontario Supreme Court that he would not discuss the trial during treatment.

The jury heard testimony for the second day in the trial of Stringer, 25, of Maple, Ont., accused of capital murder in the death of Deborah Massie, 7, also known as Deborah Johnson.

The trial continues.

Scouting activities

Topping off a turkey supper with cake, two, three or more pieces of apple, pumpkin or lemon pie and a bottle or two of coke will be a pleasant memory for many a lad and his dad—well for many a lad at least—who attended the father and son banquet of the Cubs and Scouts of St. Michael's Third Belleville on April 28.

The feast, however, was not the only highlight of the evening. Before the banquet, the Cubs, Scouts and their guests were seated and the master of ceremonies, Mr. Bruce Lynch, introduced the guests and their hosts at the head table. Seated at the head table with Father Byrne, the guest speaker, were Sister Mary Andrew, Sister Mary Rose, Father Boyle, Father Kelly, president of the Local Boy Scouts; Mr. Al Glover, chairman of the Group Committee of St. Michael's Scouts and Cubs, Mr. Don Finkle, Mrs. Finkle and Cubs Peter and David; Mr. Joe Farrell and Mrs. Farrell, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Cubs and Scouts and Cubs Richard and Peter Farrell, and master of ceremonies Mr. Bruce Lynch.

The meal was prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary, convened by Florence O'Neil.

A token of appreciation was presented to former S-of-M Master Murray Atkinson by Don Finkle, for receiving his promotion. Cubs honored most of the Queen's Scouts, Gregg Bellemare was presented with a gift by his father on behalf of Gregg's fellow Scouts, his leaders and the Group Committee. Finally Father Byrne presented the Religion in Life Award to two most worthy Scouts, Doug Jones and Don Burshaw, for putting into daily practice the ideals of their religious training.

Father Boyle of St. Michael's Parish expressed the best wishes and thanks to the troops and leaders respectively on behalf of the Rev. Deputator, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Sullivan, and the other priests of the Parish. He then introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Father Patrick Byrne, a native of Toronto, a graduate of St. Peter's Seminary of London and at present an assistant to the Archbishop of the Peterborough Diocese.

SCOUTS IN EUROPE

Father Byrne, with longtime active service with the scouting movement and at present the holder of several executive and lesser positions in the Scouts, showed slides of life with Cubs and Scouts in Europe and North America. While serving with his Church in Rome and many lands of Europe, Father Byrne had a rare opportunity to work with boys in Rome and other parts of Italy, including Sicily, and in England. Colorful and most interesting and amusing slides taken in Italy, Sicily, England, Ireland and in North America pointed up an essential feature of scouting that everywhere in the world where scouting thrives, the boys show the same enjoyment and enthusiasm for the scouting code.

Gregg Bellemare thanked the fathers for their attendance and Mark Poolin thanked the ladies for the excellent banquet. The enjoyable evening concluded with thanks to the guest speaker on behalf of all present, Bruce J. Patrick-Maxwell.

Sharp Favors Freer Trade In Sea Food

WASHINGTON (CP) — Good marketing prospects mean "there is a good deal to be said for considering now a move toward freer trade in fish and fish products," Trade Minister Sharp said Tuesday.

Current tariff-cutting negotiations in Geneva provide Canada and the United States with the instruments for moving in the direction of freer fish trade, Sharp told the first North American fisheries conference.

He warned against becoming dispirited about obstacles at Geneva or "throwing away the hard - won trading framework and rules without having something better to put in their place."

Text of the minister's remarks was provided to the press before delivery.

The fisheries conference is being attended by representatives of commercial groups in Canada, the United States and Mexico, and government authorities.

TARIFFS NOT HIGH

Sharp said the fish tariffs between Canada and the U.S. are not high. But he said the American tariff of about 20 per cent of cooked fish sticks has "created a marked distortion in North American production and marketing."

He said there should be revision and called on Mexico as well to modify or remove restrictions imposed several years ago on Canadian sardines.

Reichstag Fire Gave Nazis Excuse to Grab All Power

From the moment he took power in 1933, Adolf Hitler started Germany on the road of conquest to the outbreak of the Second World War which ended in Europe 20 years ago. The following account of four articles on the rise and fall of Hitlerite Germany, tells of Der Fuehrer's assumption of dictatorial power.

By LOYAL GOULD

BERLIN (AP)—Shortly after he gained power in 1933, Adolf Hitler and his fellow Nazis began looking for an excuse that would give them an unfettered hand in shaping the destinies of Germany and eventually the world.

"Today Germany belongs to us," they used to say. "Tomorrow the world."

They found their chance for complete power over Germany in less than a month. On Feb. 27, the parliament building in Berlin, the Reichstag, burned down.

Historians still argue whether Communists or some of Hitler's close followers planned the blaze. Hitler blamed it on the Reds and demanded absolute power to fight social unrest.

Parliament passed a law giving all its powers to Hitler personally.

With no more parliamentary restraints, the Nazis announced a national boycott of Jewish shops, excluded Jews from public office, journalism, farming and theatre.

OPEN FIRST CAMP

Anti-Semitic signs—"Jews enter this town at their own risk"—popped up all over Germany and the first Nazi concentration camp was opened in Dachau near Munich.

The Nuernburg laws finally deprived Jews of German citizenship, forbade marriage between Jews and Gentiles and even prohibited male Jews from employing female Gentile servants under 35.

The road was prepared that eventually led to the gas chambers of Auschwitz.

With his opponents pushed aside, Hitler turned his attention to foreign relations.

Since the Reich was diplomatically isolated and militarily weak, he made a series of "peace speeches" insisting that he would never resort to force to achieve his foreign policy goals.

But four months later, he announced that Germany was withdrawing from the International Disarmament Conference and from the League of Nations.

At the same time, Hitler gave secret orders to start re-building the German armed forces. He called off the Versailles reparations payments to create the first of many international crises. Others followed over a three-year period until Germany occupied the demilitarized left bank of the Rhine in 1936.

AIDED FRANCO

But while he was professing a desire for peace, Hitler sent tanks, planes and men to be tested in the services of Gen. Francisco Franco, the Spanish fascist who revolted against the republican government in Madrid.

A German air force unit, the Condor Legion, destroyed the Spanish town of Guernica with blitzkrieg bombing tactics that later were used on Warsaw, Rotterdam and Coventry.

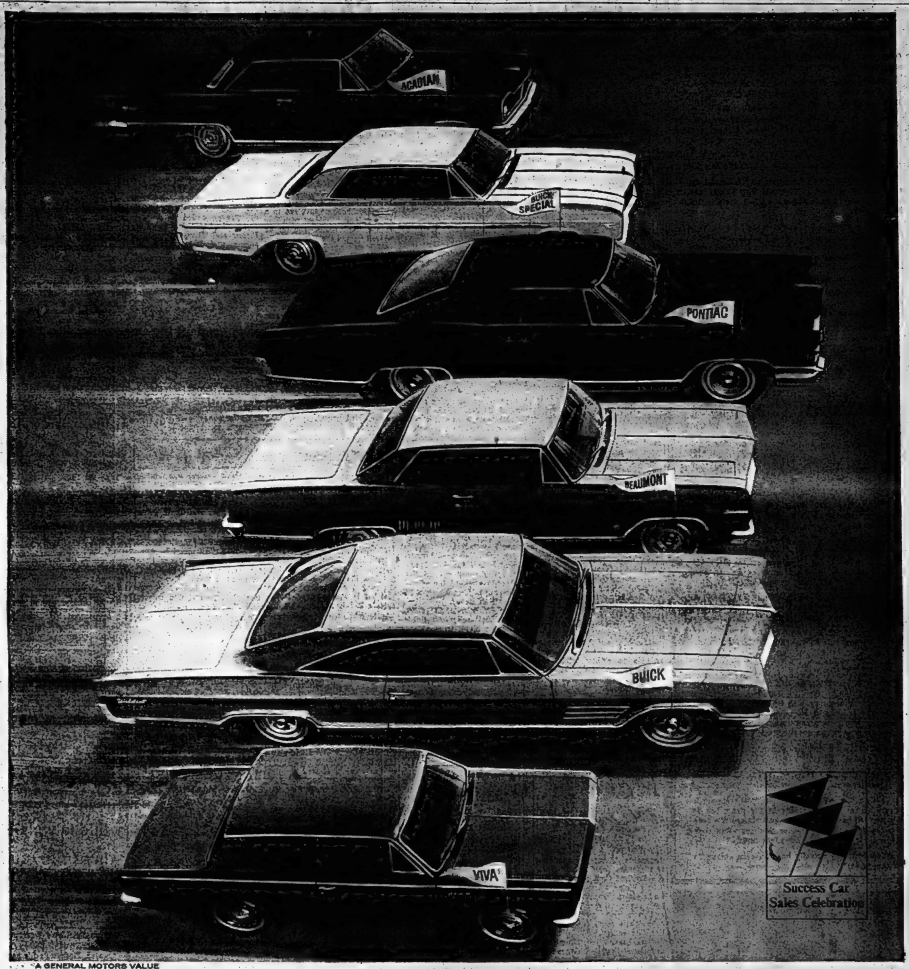
In that same year, 1936, Hitler signed the so-called Axis pact with Benito Mussolini, aligning Germany and Italy, and the Anti-Comintern pact aligning Germany with Japan.

Shortly after the 1936 Olympics, Hitler ordered secretly organized Nazis in the country of his birth, Austria, to start a series of bombings and violent demonstrations to weaken the government of chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg.

By 1938, the groundwork had been so well prepared that the German army marched into Austria without firing a shot and without fear of foreign counter-measures.

When he arrived in Vienna, thousands of Austrians flocked up to greet him, with shouts of "Heil Hitler." He told them that Austria was just the beginning.

He said he intended to achieve the union of all German in a greater Germany and mentioned specifically the Sudetenland in Czechoslovakia with its 3,000,000 Germans.



With the help of Mussolini, Hitler threatened war and frightened British and French leaders into supporting his annexation of the Sudetenland. Their surrender came at a four-power summit conference in Munich. The Czechs were not allowed to take part.

On his return to London from Munich, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain said he had brought back "peace with honor" and expressed his conviction that there would be "peace in our time."

There was peace for a while—even though German troops marched into Prague the following year on trumped-up grounds of maintaining peace and order. The Western Allies failed to come to the aid of the country they had formed on the basis of President Woodrow Wilson's 14 points after the First World War.

Hitler's bold successes won him ever more popularity at home—and whetted his appetite and raised his self-confidence. He saw no chance for error, no shadow of defeat on his path toward war. And massed crowds gathered at his rallies cheered him on with chorused cries of "Sieg heil." (Hail victory).

Thursday—The Second World War begins.

Five promoted pupils and six former pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf here are bidding for spots on Canada's team in the Deaf Olympic Games.

The five current pupils, two girls and three boys, are Carol Cleary, Janice Bancarz, Bill Gregory, Don Russell and Clyde Jourdain.

Former O.S.D. students also competing are Gilbert Little, Margaret Mennie, Sandy Spoon, Richard Cashi, Miss DeLa Frazier and Larry Gordon.

The Olympics themselves will be held on the University of Maryland grounds, from June 27 to July 3.

Trials for places on the Canadian track and field entry are being held in Montreal next Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8, where the O.S.D. athletes will be in action.

Trial games for basketball were held in Vancouver, B.C., on April 17 and 18, and two O.S.D. players were selected to play on the Canadian team. They were Michael Mooney and either Don Russell or Bill Gregory.

It was first thought that O.S.D. might send an entire team to the basketball trials but the expense proved too great. In all, eight players were named to the Canadian team.

The Olympic trials are organized by the Federation of Silent Sports of Canada. This organization is weighing cautiously but is presently searching for added financial support. Among other chores undertaken by the F.S.S.C. is that of providing transportation to the games.

This will mark the first time that Canada has been officially represented at the games, according to a report from the F.S.S.C. The games of 1961 will be the tenth such Olympics. The first was held in 1924. The Deaf games have received the recognition and blessings of the International Olympic Committee.

The cost of sending the Canadian team to Washington for the games is said to be $25,000, this to train, transport and equip the team of 39 athletes.

O.S.D. pupils take an active part in school and city sports in Belleville, both among themselves and against other secondary school and city athletes.

The school has won many honors in basketball, volleyball, football, gym, track and field and distance events. A school team took part in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's juvenile division this winter—and won the playoff championship.

The five present-day pupils, as well as their former schoolmates, will carry the good wishes of Belleville sportsmen and many others, to the trials in Montreal, and, with any luck, to the Olympics themselves come the end of June.

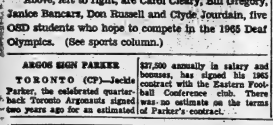
THOSE METS AGAIN



There is bitter rivalry in Gotham between the publicity corps of the Yankees and Mets. The Yanks scored a headline scoop with the famous "Maris assault" case and one of the Mets newsmen cracked, "That just goes to show you the extreme to which the Yankees will go to get the headlines away from us."

"What," somebody wondered, "can we think to top it?"

"Nothing," said a reporter. "The Mets are so bad they can't get themselves arrested."

That's a joke, son. Actually the Mets seem much improved. In fact the saying in the press box is "You can tell how much better the Mets are this year from the feeling of confidence you get when they have a three-run lead in the ninth inning."

"You feel they actually have an even chance to win the game."

Minor Softball Meeting

Another general meeting of the Belleville Minor Softball Association will be held tomorrow (Thursday) night.

All coaches, umpires and interested fans are hereby requested to attend the meeting, at the Recreation Centre, at eight o'clock.

Presentations day, sponsors, sweaters, tournament, play, schedules, team rosters and schedules will be discussed.

The association hopes to have all committee-men, problems ironed out before the season opens around the end of May.

Cahill Heads Rifles

TORONTO (CP) — Lou Cahill was named Tuesday head coach of Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League.

Cahill, 36, served as assistant coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference from 1961 until he resigned in a surprise move last Sept. 8.

He was considered for the head coaching job with the Als when Perry Moss was fired in 1963, but owner Ted Workman hired Jim Trimble from Hamilton Tiger-Cats instead.

Cahill remained with the club until a personality rift developed as Trimble took complete control of the team.

Cahill plans his same two assistant coaches for the Rifles within 10 days. He is also negotiating with several of last year's Quebec team, which was transferred to Toronto this year. Among them is quarterback John Henry Jackson, who had a tryout with Toronto Argonauts of the EFC.

The Rifles will play their home games in the 15,000-seat Maple Leaf Stadium, a baseball park adjacent to Lake Ontario.

The Rifles also announced the addition of Nobby Wirkowski, dismissed as head coach of Toronto Argonauts after last season, to their board of directors. Wirkowski will handle recruiting and public relations, but will not coach.

Argos Make Changes

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts Tuesday announced two changes for the 1965 Eastern Football Conference season.

Bob Cole, a western radio-television commentator, has been hired to handle publicity and promotion. He replaces John Walsh, who resigned earlier this season.

Argo coach Bob Shaw also announced that he has acquired Bob Agler, a former player with Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League and Edmonton Eskimos of Canada Football League.

Agler assisted at the last two Saskatchewan Roughrider training camps under Shaw, who joined Argos after the 1964 season.

Hank Aaron and Eddie Mathews, Milwaukee's record-setting home run twins, are baseball's loudest long-distance hitters.

Aaron and Mathews, who have combined for the most homers by two teammates in National League history, added three more Tuesday night as the Atlanta - bound Braves whipped Houston Astros 9-3 before the smallest turnout in the club's 13-year Milwaukee tenure.

Aaron, with two homers, and Mathews, with one, boosted their record total as teammates to 748, four more than Gil Hodges and Duke Snider hit while playing together for Brooklyn-Los Angeles Dodgers.

The major league mark belongs to Yankees Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, who teamed up for 370 circuits from 1925 through 1934.

Yogi Berra, starting his first National League game, singled twice and scored in the only run in New York Mets' 3-1 victory over Philadelphia Phillies. San Francisco Giants edged St. Louis Cardinals 9-8 behind two run homers by Jesus Alou, Willie Mays and Willie McCovey.

TWO HOMER TWICE

Willie Davis' tie - breaking ninth-inning double gave Los Angeles Dodgers to an 8-6 victory over Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Chicago Cubs 6-3 as Willie Stargell and Jerry Lynch each homered twice.

Aaron's two homers gave him 370 for his career, tying Hodges for 12th place behind 13 others on the list. Mathews, with 431, is ninth.

Berra, signed by the Mets as a coach after being fired as manager of the Yankees last fall, played only briefly for the first time since he was activated last week. He scored the Mets' run-producing run in Milan's seventh - inning single and handled Het-hander Al Jackson, who allowed eight hits and set a club strikeout mark of 11.

The Giants chased St. Louis starter Ray Sadecki in the first inning, with Alou and Mays uncorking before the left - hander could retire a batter. Joan Marichal (4-2) checked the Cards' bats, allowing five hits for the winner by Ken Boyer.

David third base of the game, off Cincinnati reliever Bill McCool in the ninth, followed successive singles by Ron Fairly and Wes Parker by starter Joey Jay and gave the Dodgers a 7-6 lead. Ollan Cassbeer's sacrifice fly delivered an insurance run. Jim Lefebvre's eighth - inning homer had pulled the Dodgers even.

Stargell's second homer, a three-run shot in the ninth, decided the Pirates-Cubs game. Lynch homered in the second inning and he and Stargell hit consecutive circuits in the sixth.

Plante Gets Knee Surgery

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacques Plante, veteran goalie of New York Rangers, underwent successful knee surgery Tuesday.

Dr. Joseph Boeheler performed the corrective operation on Plante's right kneecap. He said the 36-year-old goaltender should be fully mobile again by the start of the 1965-66 season in October.

NICKLAUS SHUNS COLONIAL

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Masters champion Jack Nicklaus will not compete in the $100,000 Colonial national invitation golf tournament, officials announced Tuesday. A spokesman for the tournament, beginning Thursday, said Nicklaus reported by telephone that he will remain in Columbus, Ohio, with his wife, who is expecting her third child momentarily.

Allan Cup Finals

Sherbrooke Goes Two Games Up

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Sherbrooke Beavers, with three - day layoff in the first and second periods and two unanswered markers in the third, downed Nelson Maple Leafs 4-1 Tuesday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series.

"Winning that second game was the big one for us," said playing coach George Roy, following Sherbrooke's win. "Now I feel confident we will win the cup and return it to Quebec."

Playing coach Bobby Kromm of the British Columbia team refused to talk to reporters.

Kromm became involved in a stick-swinging incident with Roy in the third period and as he moved toward the Nelson bench, took a swipe at a spectator who had been riding him. Referee Dutch Van Doelan stepped in and with police helped quiet the situation.

PEPIN STARS

Rene Pepin, with a third period goal and assists on goals in the first and second period was the highest point-getter for Sherbrooke.

Roy scored the Beavers' first goal at 17:39 of the first period to take the lead and was assisted by Simon Nolet's second period goal at 8:45.

Gerry Goyer and Gaillebault was the other Beaver marksman at 3:37 of the third period.

Roy and Nolet scored their goals with the Nelson squad shorthanded. The first came with Bill Stelnke off and the second with Buck Crawford taking an enforced rest.

Wally Peacock scored Nelson's goal at 10:30 of the second period.

Jim Letcher in the western club's nets made 40 saves in the form in the second period. Serge Aubry at the other end made 23.

KEEPS LEAFS ALIVE

It was the outstanding work of Letcher that kept the Leafs in the game during the first period. Letcher, who ended the period with 15 saves to six by Aubry, was called on to stop Pepin, Gaillebault, Rejean Richer and Larry Drouin on efforts that looked like sure goals.

However, he had no chance on Roy's goal as the Sherbrooke playing coach picked up a rebound of Pepin's drive and sank it for the first goal.

In the second period, Nolet was put in the clear by Pepin and lifted the puck over the fallen Letcher after dodging two Nelson defenders.

The Sherbrooke defence later had a momentary lapse and were caught out of position when Peacock teamed with Ken McIver and Doug Kilburn on a three-way passing effort at the 10:30 mark of the second.

Sherbrooke opened the third period on the attack and kept up the pressure until Larry Drouin made a rink-wide pass to Gaillebault stationed behind Nelson defence. Gaillebault hit the lower left hand corner.

Play became rough and sticks were carried high following Gaillebaults goal.

Frank Carlson received a charging penalty at 11:25 and Kromm slashed Roy across the upper lip. They carried on their feud at every opportunity after that and it was at this point Kromm became involved with the crowd.

In addition to majors to Roy and Nelson's Murray Owens for fighting in the second period, Nelson received a bench penalty in the third. Nine other minors were called by referee Van Doelan, five to Nelson and four against Sherbrooke.

The third game is scheduled for Thursday night with the fourth Saturday night at the same time. All games are being played in Sherbrooke.

City Hall Reception

Hab Fans Honor Cup Winners

MONTREAL (CP) — Crowds lined an eight - mile downtown route Tuesday to cheer the Montreal Canadiens, winners of hockey's Stanley Cup.

Canadiens won the cup Saturday night, beating Chicago Black Hawks 4-0 in the final game of their best - of - seven playoff.

The team, driving in 13 open convertibles led by six motorcycle policemen and a 40-piece band on a fire truck, were 15 minutes late arriving for a reception at city hall before a city - sponsored buffet Tuesday night. They had some difficulty leaving the Forum where the cavalcade began because of a pressing throng of fans.

PRAISES CANADIENS

Mayor Drapeau praised the Canadiens and expressed the hope that they would bring the coveted Stanley Cup until 1967.

In that year Montreal will stage the world's fair "and we can see you as absolutely tremendous receptacle for all the fair-ells in honor of three straight Stanley Cup wins."

Coach Toe Blake praised his club for "giving me more thrills than any other team I've ever coached." Blake now has coached a record six Stanley Cup winners.

After his brief speech in English, the mayor whispered to Blake something in French and he complied with a few words.

Angels On Wing, Win 6 Of 8

Wallop Red Sox

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia Phillies, who failed by one game to win a pennant in National League action last year, now are fighting for another vicariously in the American League.

They're doing it through Los Angeles Angels, who whipped Boston Red Sox 7-1 Tuesday night for their sixth victory in eight games.

Lopes went to Los Angeles in the deal that sent Vic Power to the Phillies for their pennant battle last year.

Shockley and pitcher Rudy May became Angels when Bo Belinsky moved to Philadelphia during the winter. Power, incidentally, is back with the Angels and replaces Shockley in the late innings.

HAS THREE, WINS

Lopes' performance gave him three clubhouse votes, most on the club, against two defeats and lowered his earned-run average to 2.08, second only to May's 0.86 in the Angels' starting rotation, which also includes Dean Chance and Fred Newman.

The 21-year-old lefthander's seven strikeouts boosted his total to 29, putting him in a tie for the league lead.

The 25-year-old Shockley was having hitting problems until last week. Telling he drove in a run or post an extra-base hit through last Saturday. But since that time he has knocked in seven runs and belted two doubles and a homer in four games.

Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday night, Minnesota Twins stopped Baltimore Orioles 7-3, Chicago White Sox defeated Detroit Tigers 10-6, Washington Senators trimmed Kansas City Athletics 4-2 and New York Yankees knocked off Cleveland Indians 5-3.

Shockley's grand slam, first of his career, came off Dave Morehead, climaxing a five-run outburst in the fifth inning.

PENDANTY PITCHES

Dennis Bennett, another ex-Phillie, made his first appearance of the season for the Red Sox, allowing two runs and four hits in two innings. Bennett, traded to Boston for Dick Stuart, has had arm trouble since early in spring training.

Baltimore's Wally Bunker was rocked for home runs by Earl Battey and Tony Oliva before hitting Harmon Killebrew with a pitch in the Twins' five-run third inning. Plate umpire Bill Kinnamon warned Bunker, an action which brings an automatic $50 fine.

The White Sox capitalized on five Detroit errors for six unearned runs in the first four innings. Norm Cash's bobble led to three runs in the first while Ed Rakow's wild throw gave Chicago two in the fourth.

In between, in the third, Chicago tallied three times on three singles and errors by Al Kaline, Don Wert and George Thomas.

A single by Ken McMullen and Don Lock's triple brought in the decisive run for the Senators against the Athletics.

The Yankees followed a 47-minute rain delay with five runs in the fourth inning. Joe Pepitone doubled in the first two and scored the third on an infield out. Fred Whitfield smashed a three-run homer in the Cleveland half of the inning.

KEEP LEFT WRIST FIRM ON SHOTS FROM SAND

On most bunker shots I want the clubhead to take just a shallow cut of sand. I don't want it to cut too deeply because this would slow the clubhead's progress through the ball.

One of the big causes of getting too deeply is a cocking, or hooding, of the face in the hitting area. When the clubface is closed, you find it faces left of target. It cuts too deeply downward into, rather than through, the sand.

To ensure yourself of a shallow cut, slice the clubface beneath the ball on a path from outside to inside the target line, with your left wrist quite firm throughout the downswing (see illustration). It is almost impossible for the club to get deep if the left wrist remains firm until the ball is well on its way.

Doesn't Speak French

Campbell Is Criticized

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — The St. Jean Baptiste Society of the area of Nicolet, Que., has protested the exclusive use of English by Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, in his presentation of the Stanley Cup to Montreal Canadiens.

In a telegram sent Monday to NHL governors, the society objected to what it called Campbell's "ignorance" of the French language.

Commenting on the protest, Campbell said in Montreal Tuesday he regrets he cannot speak French because "there's nothing I would like to be more able to do. . . .

"I am not sufficiently fluent to speak French in public, but all my sympathies are toward every cordial relation possible with my French friends."

Campbell presented the cup to Montreal captain Jean Beliveau Saturday night after the Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-0 in the seventh game of their best - of - seven final playoff series.

Campbell's brief remarks in English were interrupted by boos and shouts as he stood at centre ice in the Montreal Forum to present the cup. Moments later, Beliveau's acceptance speech in French and English was received in complete quiet.

The uproar during Mr. Campbell's remarks apparently resulted from his suspension of Montreal's star right winger Maurice Richard in 1955 for the last three games and the playoffs of that season.

BOXER NOT POOR

LONDON (AP)—Joe Beckett, former British heavyweight boxing champion who died a month ago in apparent poverty, actually left an estate of $36,366, his will disclosed Tuesday. For years other residents of Southampton, where Beckett died at 72, had been giving him food and other supplies in the belief that 1919-23 British Empire champion was too poor to buy his own.

Suns Turn Back Leafs, Jets Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Larry Stubing hadn't picked Tuesday night to return to form, Toronto Maple Leafs might have handed Mike Cuellar his first defeat of the International League season.

Stubing, who belted 64 homers during two seasons in the Texas League, collected his first of the year for Jacksonville and the two-run effort led the Suns to a 4-2 win over the Leafs.

Elsewhere, Atlanta Crackers walloped Buffalo Bisons 10-2, Columbus Jets edged Rochester Red Wings 4-3 in 11 innings, and a game between Syracuse Chiefs and Toledo Mud Hens was rained out.

Stubing's fifth - inning homer gave Cuellar his third win without a loss. The southpaw struck out 10 to bring his strikeout record to 37 in 35 innings, and scattered seven hits.

Memorial Cup Final

Flyers Nip Kings 3-2 In Sub-Par Game

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP)—A war of strategy went on in the dressing rooms Tuesday night as rival coaches expressed displeasure with their clubs after Niagara Falls Flyers tripped Edmonton Oil Kings 3-2 in the first game of the best-of-seven 1965 Memorial Cup final.

Niagara Falls coach Bill Long said his club would have finished in the basement of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League if it had played as badly all season as it did Tuesday. But he added he does not plan any lineup changes.

Edmonton coach Harry Allen said he figured Long was putting up a smokescreen and then added that Oil Kings also played far below their ability. Allen said he doesn't plan any lineup changes either.

Oil Kings manager Leo Leclerc said at the end of the game that his club will not use centre Fran Huck, picked up for the junior final from Regina Pats, or defenceman Jim Cardiff, picked up from Weyburn Red Wings, in the second game here Thursday.

But Kings might be forced into a lineup change by injuries. Centre Greg Tomalty and winger Ron Anderson suffered injuries in the second period and operated at reduced efficiency the rest of the way.

Both said they would be able to play, but if they're wrong, Huck and Cardiff are available.

Despite the narrow winning margin, Flyers were in command throughout. They restricted Edmonton's free-wheeling forwards and netminder Bernie Parent handled only 18 shots, two fewer than Wayne Stephenson of Edmonton.

Stephenson, conscripted from Winnipeg Braves of the Manitoba - Junior Hockey League, was dressed after regular netminder Gary Simmons decided on his own that his injured knee would not allow him to play well.

ARE SCORERS

Stephenson was beaten by Niagara Falls scorers Rossire Palement, Bud Dobrody and Derick Sanderson. The clubs ended the first period in a 1-1 tie and Flyers fired two unanswered second-period tallies. Ross Perkins and Red Simpson, a pair of bustling rookies, scored for Edmonton.

The Flyers took nine of 13 penalties, including a major to Sanderson and a 10-minute misconduct to defenceman John Arbour, but had little trouble while short-handed.

SIGNS LACROSSE PLAYERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Verdun Lions of the Quebec National Lacrosse League announced the signing Tuesday of Alex McLean, 20, and Johnny Allen, 21, both of Vancouver. They join two other British Columbia players with the team, George Gregg of Trail and Ken Street, of New Westminster.

Jaycees Rodeo Sunday

High school students are reminded of the annual Belleville Jaycee Teenage Safe Driving Rodeo, being held at the Belleville Shopping Plaza this Sunday.

The Jaycees feel that safe driving cannot be over-stressed and urge the local students to take advantage of the rodeo, both as a safety measurement as well as an opportunity to win scholarships. Three scholarships of $2,500 will be awarded to 13 national winners this year.

Belleville's local winner will compete in the provincial finals in Burlington on June 1.

Any high school students interested can obtain entry forms at their school or from Peter Clarke, of the Jaycees, at 962-7002. They will also be available at the Plaza Sunday morning. If the students have their parents' permission to take part.

Cross-Canada Survey

See Job Difficulties For Students in Summer

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Engineering, science and commerce students may not have to look far, but other Canadian university undergraduates who depend on summer job income for tuition costs may be in trouble this year.

"Even with the improvement in the Canadian economy, arts students will have a difficult time," says William Thomson, director of the National Employment Service.

"Nothing in Canada is growing as fast as university enrolment, and there is a year-round shortage of unskilled and semi-skilled jobs where they try to find employment. This is why we're all in favor of year-round universities."

Mr. Thompson says there are jobs available in the agricultural field, especially at harvest time, "but most students won't consider those."

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed that student job prospects vary from province to province, in every case it is students who already have acquired basic skills who are in demand.

Third-year students in engineering, science and commerce are prime prospects for employers with an eye to future staff needs who take students for on-the-job training and hope to hire them when they graduate.

But for co-eds and arts students the outlook is not bright and university placement officers in Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island warn that conditions will not improve.

TYPING HELPS

Girls with shorthand and typing can count on office jobs, but others have to rely on resorts. Construction work is the best bet for men, but here again engineering students get first call.

Colin Dubell of McGill University student placement office in Montreal said the problem is bad now and will become "appalling" during the next four or five years.

He said the emphasis on increasing university enrolment has doubled in the last nine years—has not been accompanied by a corresponding rise in job opportunities. "If this acceleration continues we can look forward to a bleak future for summer employment."

M. S. Anfossi, manager of an NES office in Montreal, reported 1,000 job vacancies in mid-April, with about 35,000 students in the area. Between 5,000 and 8,000 students were placed in jobs last year, but half the students looking for work were not successful.

He said one-third of job vacancies are for engineering students, with others mainly for office clerks, lab assistants and sales personnel.

Miss M. R. Salmon of the University of Montreal placement office reported "more openings this year than ever before," but said greatest demand is for applied and pure science students, who could earn up to $450 a month. Students in general work could expect $240 to $385 a month.

SOME TRY EUROPE

University placement officials in Ontario said students in general courses usually are considered unskilled labor and are confined to "blue collar" or manual work. Then, because their employment is temporary, they are less desirable to both labor unions and management.

Best bet was in construction work and industry where hourly rates ranged from $1.30 to $2.50.

Students in professional or specialist courses have the best chance of obtaining jobs within their fields, often as an integral part of their courses.

Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., reported an increasing number of students looking to Europe for summer employment.

The same job shortage also was reported in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island where officials attributed it to increasing enrolment that had not been matched by industrial expansion. Third-year students get the pick of the jobs commanding salaries above $300 a month with firms recruiting summer replacements with an eye to permanent employees next year.

But the NES in Halifax said many first-year students head for Ontario and Quebec right after exams on a gamble that they'll find jobs.

The outlook in Newfoundland, New Brunswick and the western provinces is brighter.

A spokesman for the placement service at Memorial University, St. John's, Nfld., said 75 to 80 per cent of students have been placed in the last four years. Prospects this year were good with a heavy roadbuilding and government works program this summer.

Monthly salaries range from $320-$350 for first-year students to $375-$400 for those in their third year.

University of New Brunswick called the job situation the best in six years, with a "decided upswing" for students one or two years away from graduation. Again, heaviest demand is for chemical engineering students, with other engineering fields, zoology and forestry close behind. Pay ranges to $415 for third-year science students, with arts undergraduates about $25 lower.

Manitoba officials reported increasing demand for engineering survey people and math, science and commerce students. An increase in summer resort work was attributed to a three-year cycle caused by students graduating after returning to the same summer jobs for three years.

DEMAND STEADY

The University of Saskatchewan placement officer has a steady demand for students, especially those nearing graduation, as industries are coupling an early recruiting program with summer training courses.

John Lemay, NES officer at the University of Alberta, said applications are we'll do better than in recent years." The Athabasca oil sands development at Fort McMurray, Alta., is one of the major reasons. Almost all construction and engineering companies have a real need for student help, he said.

Last year, 2,500 students were placed and "we couldn't find many students who were still looking for jobs after June." He expects an increase of 15 to 25 per cent this year, with 2,500 students applying for placement by mid-April.

But here again students with technical training, accounting and computing backgrounds will get first call.

It's the same story in British Columbia where the majority of jobs are in forestry or highway work and pay goes up to $400 a month, $25 more than last year.

Miles Hacking, student employment officer at UBC, said applications were down this year because "many students have found jobs on their own."

He said about 6,000 students—half of the university's undergraduate enrolment—had jobs last year. Students in their first or second year had the hardest time as employers prefer persons with previous work records.

HEADS COMMITTEE

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet of the Quebec Superior Court's Montreal district has been appointed chairman of a special four-member committee on corrections, Justice Minister Favreau announced Tuesday. Vice - chairman is Toronto lawyer G. Arthur Martin. A list of consultants is being drawn up from all fields of penology to advise the committee on matters of penal reform.

Six-Day Bike Race

Veteran Seeks Record

TORONTO (CP) — Rik Van Steenbergen is going to retire but not before he breaks that record.

Van Steenbergen, who hails from Antwerp and his partner, Emile Severeyns, also of Belgium, hold down third place in the six-day bicycle race here.

The 41-year-old grand-daddy of racing, who actually is a grandfather, said he now wants only to break the record of 38 six-day wins piled up by Torchy Peden, formerly of Victoria, B.C., and now of Northbrook, Ill.

Van Steenbergen and Severeyns are four one lap behind the Italian and German teams after 741 miles, but they are way ahead on sprint points, used to break any ties at the end of the race.

Leandro Faggin and Mino De Rossi of Italy, in first place in laps completed, have 182 points. HAVE 382 POINTS

But Van Steenbergen and Severeyns have piled up 382 sprint points, more than any team in the race.

If Van Steenbergen and Severeyns win this race, Peden's record will be equalled. The win after that for Van Steenbergen will be his last.

Tied with Faggin and De Rossi in first place at the race's half-way mark were Sigi Renz and Fritz Plesninger of Germany. They had covered the same number of laps as the leaders, but had only 141 sprint points. St. Iaas Iaas the Italians.

Attendance Tuesday night was about 2,500, up from Monday's figure of about 1,000. Sunday's opening night attracted 4,000 fans.

Schmidt Regains Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Peter Schmidt of Toronto regained the Canadian welterweight boxing championship by scoring a 12-round split decision over Armand Savoie of Montreal Tuesday night.

Schmidt gained the victory by a slim margin, scoring heavily on points as Savoie was content to wait for openings for hard blows to the head.

At 144 pounds, the veteran Savoie gave away 1½ pounds and five years to his younger opponent.

Two judges scored the match 58-54 in Schmidt's favor, using the five-point must system. The third judge favored Savoie 56-55.

Schmidt, who lost his title last fall in Toronto to Joey Durelle of Trois-Rivieres, Que., was a last-minute replacement as Savoie's opponent.

The scheduled Durelle-Savoie title match was cancelled and Durelle was stripped of his title last week for failing to notify the Canadian Professional Boxing Federation of his withdrawal from the match.

He said he was forced to break training to attend his father's funeral.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A Saskatchewan horse wasn't a select field of eight pacers in with the featured $1,200 eighth race at Mohawk Raceway Tuesday night.

Superior Dale, owned by W. W. Thompson of Weyburn, closed in fast to take the race by a neck over Key Adios from the H. M. B. Stable of Stratford, Ont. It was Superior Dale's first outing of the season.

The quinella of Reckless Living and Meadow Brook in the sixth paid $47.60.

A record Tuesday night crowd of 3,170 poured $196,864 through the mutuel wickets.

Annette Funicello Darling Of Moppet Set 10 Years Ago

By DORIS ELKIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Annette Funicello, the mouseketeer who became a teen-age star, is about to have a little mouseketeer of her own.

The coming baby may spell the beginning of the end of the most successful career to emerge from Walt Disney's famed Mickey Mouse Club kiddie television show.

"I'm not afraid of spoiling my teen-age image by having a baby," says Annette, "After all, a lot of teen-agers have them.

"But if I have one baby a year, like I plan—and five or six, like I plan—they may get tired of waiting for me.

"I've always said I want to bring up my own children, not leave it to a nurse, and I really mean that, too."

Annette may have a built-in baby sitter on her home television set—mommy as a mouseketeer. The old Disney shows are being re-run these days.

Annette's singing and dancing made her the 12-year-old darling of the moppet set 10 years ago.

So well did her childish sugarplum allure into shapely curves that Annette stepped right out of knee socks into a two-piece bathing suit—and the starring role in American-International's beach party movies.

With Frankie Avalon as her co-star, the four-low budget films, Beach Party, Muscle Beach Party, Bikini Beach and Beach Blanket Bingo, have reaped a financial bonanza for the studio and the stars.

Annette winds up the fifth, How to Stuff a Wild Bikini, this week.

"Then I'm just going to take the rest of the year off and enjoy being pregnant—and looking pregnant," said Annette in her beach-side dressing room. She expects the baby in October.

"I still have my contract with Disney, with yearly options, and I have no real idea of how many years I'll keep working."

Annette says her husband, manager Jack Gilardi, 34, told her when they married last January that whether she would work and how long was up to her.

AT THE ELLE — Thursday Julie Andrews, famed star of Broadway's "My Fair Lady," "Camelot" and "Sound of Music," the motion picture "Mary Poppins," the Hitchcock "Torn Curtain" movie, in which she is romantically involved with James Garner, opening Tomorrow, Thursday, at the Belle Theatre for an extended engagement.

Cloak Wrapped Around CIA Not Removed by Story

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's news department put a titillating title, The Science of Spying, on Tuesday night's special program. It is no doubt caused many viewers to anticipate that a real man from U.N.C.L.E. or a James Bond type would describe his adventures in stealing plans or breaking codes.

If so, they were quickly disabused by narrator John Chancellor, who said the spying business has gone a long way since Mata Hari and "the dagger is replacing the cloak."

After that, the program primarily was devoted to interviews about activities of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Former CIA director Allen Dulles defended the agency's work and also expressed admiration for Russian intelligence. He called its operation in Czechoslovakia "a classic" and said its Cuban work was "marvellous."

The CIA differs in its operation, he said almost casually, because "as far as I know, we don't engage in assassination and kidnappings and things like that."

Chancellor also talked with

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — The happy man seated within this cluster of beauties is Frank Sinatra. He has become a modern-day Robin Hood in "Roaring 20's", Chicago by cheating the rich and giving to poor orphans. The gals, garbed in more-or-less Robin Hood costume, are waitresses in his gambling-joint. Sinatra, starred, and the location, emphasized, appear in "Robin and the 7 Hoods", Warner Bros.' musical comedy in Technicolor-Panavision which opens tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr., Peter Falk, Bing Crosby, Barbara Rush and Victor Buono also star in the new release. 2nd fun-filled hit, also in color, is Joshua Logan's production "Ensign Pulver" starring Robert Walker, Burl Ives and Tommy Sands.

Will Discuss Transfer of Laboratories

MAPLE, Ont. (CP)—Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve plans to meet York County members of Parliament and constituents in nearby Richmond Hill May 13 to discuss the proposed transfer of the federal forestry laboratories from this community 15 miles north of Toronto to Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Sauve announced the transfer Feb. 18, saying that forestry study facilities valued at $3,000,000 will be built at Sault Ste. Marie.

Since the announcement, most of the trained staff here have said they will resign rather than move.

Originally it was announced the transfer was to be made in the Sault would be moved to Ottawa and Maple.

Civic, industrial and labor groups at the Sault protested the move, urging consideration for the economic loss to the area.

A report last October by M. L. Robb, assistant deputy forestry minister, recommended that the department's research in forest products be consolidated and that the ideal location would be at Maple.

APPROVE FORMULA

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba Legislature Tuesday approved by a vote of 40 to 3 a resolution for amending the Canadian constitution. Three members of the New Democratic Party opposed the amendment resolution seeking approval of the formula, drafted by a federal-provincial conference last fall.

Struggle With Demand
New Ontario Flag On Market Soon

TORONTO (CP)—It's amazing how flag-conscious Canada is at the moment," said Sidney Woods, a representative of Scythian and Co. Ltd., one of Canada's largest flag makers, when the Ontario legislature approved the provincial flag.

He says it will be two or three weeks before the new Ontario flag is on the market.

"The manufacturers haven't caught up with the demand for the new Canadian flag yet," he said. "Every time they switch a piece of machinery over to the Ontario flag, they slow deliveries on the Canadian flag."

It takes three weeks from the time exact specifications are made available until the first flags are color-printed.

Scythes starts with a roll of nylon nylon woven to resist the weather. Each color is printed separately through a silk screen while the rest of the flag is masked off.

The colors are fixed in an acid bath, and a coat of silicon is then applied to keep out dirt.

Government inspectors check the colors and closeness of stitching, and inspect the ropes and headband of each new flag.

Flags come in 13 sizes nowadays, from 18 inches to 36 feet wide. "You can go up to $50,000 for each set of silk screens," says Mr. Woods.

The Ontario flag will probably need four colors: black, red, blue, and yellow. This accounts for the delay in its appearance.

"With the Canadian flag it was different," Mr. Woods said. "There was only one screen because there was only one color."

Each flag is hand-cut from the roll of nylon as it is finished, by one of eight girls. Automatic cutters are available, but their high speed melts the nylon.

The biggest sizes of flag, 21 and 36 feet broad, are used on the tops of skyscrapers, and take four men to raise them on a windy day.

"Being as high as they are and as big as they are, they don't last long. They only get four weeks out of a flag."

The ordinary-sized flag should last four months if flown night and day, Mr. Woods says, but it is night-flying that ages a flag fast.

"In Flanders Fields - -"

YPRES, Belgium (CP) — Though the wounds of conflict have long-since healed in Flanders Field, the old battle ground has countless silent reminders of the First World War.

There are the blackened old concrete bunkers, where cows now peer through gun slits, the occasional freshly-found shell—but most of all the many memorials and roadside shrines.

More than 250,000 Commonwealth soldiers died in Belgium, mostly in the Ypres salient, and more than 100,000 of them are in unknown graves, their names inscribed on concrete memorials.

The older generation hardly needs reminders but can recall in some detail what it was like when Ypres and its lush countryside slipped into a night-marish vortex just 50 years ago.

Townsfolk and farmers had clung to their dwellings until the beginning of the second Battle of Ypres, April 22, 1915, when the Germans used poison gas for the first time and the Canadian 1st Division covered itself with glory in its first major action of the war.

TOP FIGHTING MEN

As Associate Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said at recent 50th anniversary ceremonies commemorating the battle, the whole world learned in three murderous days "that Canadians were unexcelled as fighting men."

The Germans never did crash through to the channel ports in that war but the area of Ypres, the moated city whose history stretched back 1,000 years, was turned into a ravaged death trap — a lunar-like landscape drenched in mud.

"We are an ancient city but nothing you see here now is more than 40 years old—except the inhabitants," said one resident.

Rebuilding of the city's famed old Cloth Hall, which dated from medieval times, now is being completed.

Dr. Alfred Cacneepel, an Ypres veterinary, surgeon who was 12/years old at the time of the gas attack, reminisced about what a child saw, heard and talked about on that fine spring day and afterwards.

"The farmers were planting potatoes—just as they are today—but they paused for what we in Flemish call vesperin, or evening vespers.

"As they left the horses in harness except for bridles and bits to eat oats. They heard firing, and in places they witnessed or smelled gas which was drifting from the Germans.

"They ran to the French flag with the Germans after them and could see French officers, who looked puzzled, looking through their glasses, trying to understand the new weapon.

FARMERS GASPED

"Most of our farmers were on higher ground — the gas stayed in the down—but some of them were gassed. My uncle died from gas about a year later. Some Germans had a sniff of their own gas and died as well."

The young Cacneepel was at Poperinge, about eight miles from Ypres, and fled on foot with his father and mother among "refugees in great numbers."

"Later we rode in a British lorry carrying petrol tins. I remember my mother sitting on the tins.

"I met an old soldier — his hair was already white — and heard about Vancouver for the first time. He told me all about Vancouver and showed me photos of it. He was sitting on a pile of blankets. I didn't care about Vancouver but wanted to ask him how many warm blankets he was sitting on.

"Behind the lines boys like me did little services for the wounded soldiers, such as shopping. No time for school in those days! Sometimes we would carry good wishes from the soldiers to their families.

"Later I went to England with other refugees and the war seemed very far away."

GARDENS WELL KEPT

The war seemed at the same time unreal and strangely close as Cacneepel, now a brisk 62, drove a reporter to the Canadian St. Julien Memorial—the Sorrow in Stone obelisk depicting a great mourning soldier amid superbly-kept gardens and trees.

"Vandalism is unheard of at these memorials," said H. Moore of Britain, Commonwealth war graves superintendent in Belgium. "The people have real respect. And anyway the police and school teachers would land like a ton of bricks if a single shrub or plant were disturbed."

"I've seen these big trees grow from babies," said Jerry Mahieu, an ex-PoW who has tended the memorial for almost 40 years.

Proudly referring to the visitors' book, he added: "You'll see that people come here from all over the world — including Russia."

Lest We Forget, is a caution that seems to have true living significance simply because he was Canadian and thus associated in the minds of the Belgians with the quarters of long ago.

Hotel manager Noel Desloovere - Coolier, for instance, bundled this reporter into his car and whisked him over some 25 miles of Belgian roads at hair-raising speed to overtake a missed transport.

Caeneepel, who has made a detailed study of the campaigns that raged around him, then pointed out how at this time of year the many streams are flooded as they were in 1915:

"This was all part of the agony of Ypres—wounded men fell in the streams and sank out of the land but Caeneepel traced out where the shallow trenches were. Then he untied Canadian soldiers struggled to erect breastworks of sand bags before the battle. Water lies two feet below the surface of the fields which are only slightly above sea level.

POORLY PREPARED

Entering the front line April 14-17, the Canadians found the positions poorly prepared, with small holes performing a double function of latrines and burial places for bodies.

Gentles lies in the undulating fields, now so harmless-looking under horse - drawn plows, where the dead — often death—to the Canadians.

The British forces had one-third more casualties than necessary because they tried to hold low ground on the Ypres salient against orders from higher ground, Caeneepel estimates.

The Canadians suffered a total of some 6,500 casualties in the 1915 fighting, second of the three Battles of Ypres.

With the spire of Passchendaele church in the distance, we drove past such battle landmarks as Sanctuary Wood, Bellewaarde, Vancouver Corner roads, beside the St. Julien Memorial, Winnipeg Crossroads, Kitchener Wood and Stroombegg Bridge.

A Flanders road map reads like the battle honors of Canadian regiments.

Each evening at Ypres trumpeters sound at last post for the legion of dead.

Spring in Victoria - - Gardeners Growl!

VICTORIA (CP) — Daffodils are blooming in Victoria, the cherry trees are covered in blossoms—and the natives are complaining about the weather!

They play golf and mow lawns and sit in the sun as they complain.

Gardeners in this city of gardens are mowing lawns and wrestling with weeds—and many other parts of Canada can't get at the turf for the snow.

"I've seen a lot better weather than this in April," said a motel owner moodily as he packed his golf clubs into his station wagon. The temperature on that early-April day hit a high of 52 after an overnight low of 42.

A few weeks ago there was some fear that no daffodils would emerge this year for the city's daffodil festival because of heavier - than - usual winter frost.

But now the slopes of Beacon Hill are covered with the yellow flowers, and daffodil farms in suburban Saanich have hired pickers to work dawn to dusk getting the daffodils in before the warm weather opens them all.

Just as colorful are the brown patches on Beacon Hill and the roughs flanking the fairways of Victoria Golf Club's seaside course, their golden flowers contrasting with the rich green turf.

Yachtsmen entering the inner Harbor dock beside a huge cherry tree dripping petals into the water.

Street after street in the city's Fairfield district is lined with fruit trees bearing pink and white blossoms.

Homes on Gonzales Hill are fronted with rock gardens blazing with blue, yellow and purple blossoms.

The top of the hill is the city weather office, also surrounded by gardens, where forecaster Bill Mackie is the good-natured target of Victorians who think their weather should be better.

"When I am right, no one remembers," says a sad little sign in his office.

"When I am wrong, no one forgets."

U. S. Jets Hit Ammunition Bunkers

Military Control Of Saigon Govt. Comes To End

Stevenson Defends U. S. Move

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— The United States describes its Dominican intervention as an unwanted burden, assumed reluctantly under desperate conditions to preserve lives and prevent a takeover by a small group of Communists.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson defended the action for the second time Wednesday as the Security Council continued an emergency debate on the crisis.

He said the disorders in the island was undertaken just in time to prevent wholesale deaths in the civil fighting there.

And he said it would have been irresponsible for the United States to withdraw its forces immediately, when such a course would have endangered the lives of those (foreigners) not evacuated and would have led to full-scale resumption of bloody warfare among the contending Dominican factions."

Cuban Ambassador Fernando Alvarez Tabio called Stevenson's speech a repetition of lies and empty phrases designed to justify "the criminal and bloody action of his government."

And Soviet delegate Nikolai Fedorenko, in a long and vitriolic speech, compared the United States to a "reptile that does its dark deed, then tries to withdraw into its hole."

The meeting ended with prolonged exchange of sarcastic barbs between the Soviet and American delegates.

Stevenson told the council that in times of chaos, "nations which possess the capacity to act must make their decisions to exercise it and to exercise the unwanted responsibility that sometimes devolves on them suddenly and unexpectedly.

"In this case, when hours and even minutes counted, there was no time for deliberate consultation and for the organization of international machinery which did not yet exist."

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. Air Force jets smashed a North Vietnamese ammunition complex today and claimed "spectacular results." A spokesman said four underground ammunition bunkers blew up after direct hits and four others were left burning.

On the political front, South Viet Nam's armed forces council dissolved itself, ending 18 months of military control of the civilian government. The development strengthened Premier Phan Huy Quat's hand.

Lose No Planes In Forty Raids

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and South Viet Nam haven't lost a plane in some 40 raids against North Viet Nam during the last two weeks, Pentagon records showed today.

Air force and navy officials attributed this record to greater combat "savvy" on the part of pilots, the success of North Vietnamese warning radar, and the nature of many of the recent targets.

One source said the Communist anti-aircraft gunners "are finding out the consequences of standing and shooting" at attacking U.S. planes.

It was indicated that the use of napalm-jellied gasoline fire bombs—had had an important effect in this connection.

In the raid north across the 17th Parallel, 25 F-105 fighter-bombers dumped 90 tons of bombs on the Phu Van ammunition centre, 125 miles southwest of Hanoi.

A U.S. military spokesman said towering black clouds of smoke were rising from the area as the jet pilots broke off their 45-minute attack. All returned home.

A U.S. military spokesman said Viet Cong attacks in South Viet Nam continue to increase and "a rather substantial number" of battalion-sized units fought it out with governments soldiers in Darlac province, killing 14 and wounded, hands known, dead.

New Act To Favor Police

TORONTO (CP) — Amendments to the Police Act introduced in the legislature Wednesday would require municipalities to pay damages awarded against policemen in civil law suits.

Under the amendment proposed by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, a force's chief constable would be responsible for damages incurred by an officer while on duty. This liability would then be transferred to the municipality under the "master - and-servant" concept of law.

A municipal council could pay damages incurred by an off duty policeman.

Another amendment to the act would allow neighboring communities such as Fort William-Port Arthur and Kitch-

31 Die as Spanish Airliner Is Burned at Canary Isles

SANTA CRUZ de TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP)—Consuls and officials of six nations sought today to identify 31 persons killed in the crash of a Spanish airliner while aeronautical experts tried to determine the cause of the accident.

The four-engined Superconstellation of Iberia Airlines was coming in from Madrid Wednesday night with 40 passengers and a crew of eight when it struck the runway of Los Rodeos airport, broke in two and caught fire.

The dead included 15 Spaniards, six Britons, five Swiss, two Italians, two Germans and a Frenchman. Iberia officials said some of the survivors were in grave condition.

Iberia officials said the 17 survivors were rescued because the plane broke apart and rescue workers were able to pull them out before the fire reached them.

Bank of Canada Legislation To Be Introduced in House

OTTAWA (CP)—Long-awaited legislation governing the state-owned Bank of Canada and the privately - owned chartered banks is to be introduced in two stages in the Commons today by Finance Minister Gordon.

Touching the roots of the banking system and spreading into all branches of commerce, the legislation could be the seed of the longest and most controversial debate of the parliamentary session. It may well be the dullest, too.

Two bills will be introduced. One is to amend the Bank of Canada Act, the legislation governing Canada's central bank. It serves as the government's fiscal agent, controls and cajoles the chartered banks, advises the government and runs the monetary system.

The other is the much-delayed revision of the Bank Act, under which the chartered banks operate. Last revised in 1954, its 10-year life had to be extended last year because the Commons spent so much time on other business.

The bills result from the detailed study of the banking and finance field by a royal commission headed by Chief Justice Dana Porter of Ontario. The government's acceptance or re-

Klansman Linked To Gun

By REX THOMAS

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—State attorneys have linked Ku Klux Klan member Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr. with the weapon an expert says was used in the slaying of a Michigan mother taking part in civil rights demonstrations.

An earlier witness had traced a .38-calibre revolver to Wilkins, and Marion Williams, an FBI weapons expert, identified it Wednesday as the gun that killed Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, 39-year-old mother of five.

The chief prosecutor, Circuit Solicitor Arthur E. Gamble Jr., said he had "a few more questions" to ask Williams today before the state rested its case.

Mail H. Murphy Jr., the Klan's lawyer, already had indicated through cross-examination of prosecution witnesses the Forces Vote On Budget

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon forced a formal roll-call Commons vote Wednesday for approval in principle of his third budget and brought the New Democratic Party around to voting for it.

The NDP, which last week moved its own non - confidence motion against Mr. Gordon's proposals, threw their support to the government when the finance minister took the unusual step. The vote was 132 to 86.

Most recent budget debates have concluded without a formal vote because the Opposition has two opportunities during the six-day discussion to test the government. But when Speaker Alan Macnaughton put the motion at the conclusion of the debate, the finance minister and several Liberal supporters stood to demand a roll call.

The finance minister was to return to the Commons today with resolutions to provide for revision of the Bank Act and the Quebec Savings Bank Act and to extend the charters of existing banks until July 1, 1975.

DEBATE UNLIKELY

No protracted discussion is likely because the government intends to proceed with the Senate reform bill — providing for a retirement age of 75—Friday and with a two-day supply debate Monday.

The Social Credit party, which supported the government on the two non-confidence motions in the budget debate, cast seven votes for the government in Wednesday's roll-call.

Fourteen NDP members, 11 Liberals and independent Real Paul (Berthier - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) also voted for the budget, while 75 Conservatives and 11 Creditistes were opposed. The NDP had voted against the government on their own and on a Conservative non-confidence motion during the six-day debate.

Five Conservatives were paired with absent MPs and did not vote. They were Paul Martineau (Pontiac - Temiscamingue), Hugh Faulkner (Victoria - Carleton), Heber Smith (Simcoe North), R. G. L. Fairweather (Royal) and Gilles Ouellet (Rimouski).

Before the Conservative non-confidence motion on the budget was voted on Monday — it was defeated 111 to 109 — Mr. Gordon said it was against his proposals was an indication of opposition to tax cuts, expansion of the economy and increased employment measures.

Intervention Historic Break With Tradition

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States made a historic break from tradition early today and voted to establish an Inter-American military force in the Dominican Republic.

The force will include some of the approximately 20,000 U.S. marines and paratroopers already patrolling the Dominican capital of Santo Domingo.

As other countries contribute to the joint force, part of the U.S. contingent will be withdrawn, Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to the OAS, told the American states. He said he was speaking on the authorization of President Johnson, who had been urging since last week that an inter-American military force be set up in the riot-torn Caribbean republic.

Paraguay and Venezuela announced they were ready to contribute military units to the new force. Costa Rica, which has no regular army, offered police units. Argentina and Brazil, it was indicated, also are considering sending military forces.

There was no indication on the total forces the other hemisphere nations might contribute, nor the date of their probable arrival in the Dominican Republic.

BREAKS TRADITION

The vote was a departure from the OAS tradition of non-intervention in the Western Hemisphere. Never before had such a joint force of American nations been created formally to go into a country beset by internal turmoil, although various nations contributed military assistance during the Cuban missile crisis in the fall of 1962.

The purpose of the joint force, the OAS declared, is to establish "a climate of peace and conciliation permitting the functioning of democratic institutions" in the Dominican Republic.

(Reuters news agency reported that diplomats in Santo Domingo, commenting on the OAS decision, said the rebel Communists had tried to capitalize on the rebel movement although the Communists only two per cent of the membership.

Among Dominicans themselves opinion on the extent of Communist influence varies from non-existent to extremely little. But all concede to some influence.)

The OAS action came on the heels of these U.S.-Dominican developments:

—U.S. government sources made public a list of 58 alleged Communists and Castroites who it said were involved in the Communist bid to take control of the Dominican Republic.

—A state department spokes-

SANTO DOMINGO (CP)—The head of the Dominican rebels says say U.S. troops entering the rebel zone will be fired on as violators of the ceasefire agreement negotiated by an Organization of American States peace commission.

One U.S. marine was reported killed, two wounded, and two captured by insurgent forces early today in brisk action in the heart of this Dominican capital.

De Gaulle May Recognize Rebel Regime

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle said today that United States troops should get out of the Dominican Republic.

He also is considering recognizing the government of Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, leader of the rebel forces, a press conference was told.

De Gaulle expressed his disapproval of "foreign troops" in the Dominican Republic at a meeting of the French cabinet, Pierre Dumas, secretary of state attached to the prime minister, said.

Dumas said the government was considering recognizing the insurgent-backed Caamano government and the ambassador in Santo Domingo had been recalled last week for consultations. He said no definite decision had been made yet.

U.S. military spokesmen said they could not confirm the casualties. American reporters on the scene saw the action involving a patrol of seven or eight marines who drove into a held territory. Shooting ensued.

A rebel spokesman said that two captured marines were being questioned. There was no immediate information on what happened to the two wounded Americans.

The ceasefire was violated at least twice only hours after it came into effect.

Some Doctors Have Agreement Not to Give Objective Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — A report tabled in the Ontario Legislature Wednesday says some doctors in the province have had a tacit agreement not to give fully objective evidence against other doctors being sued for malpractice.

The report of the attorney-general's committee on medical evidence says lawyers are gravely concerned about getting proper medical evidence before the courts.

The establishment of a joint committee of the Ontario Medical Association and the Law Society of Upper Canada was urged in the report as a means of resolving problems that may arise in getting the proper evidence before the courts.

Although procuring of evidence in malpractice suits was not strictly in its terms of reference, the attorney-general's committee said, representatives of both lawyers and doctors had raised the question at its hearings.

Some doctors said they should not have to give evidence in support of a claim against another doctor, but leaders of the medical profession showed "a real anxiety lest such a view prevail to the detriment of the administration of justice," their report said.

The committee says there has been some foundation in past for complaints by the legal profession that there has been at least a tacit agreement among some doctors that a doctor should not give the same objective evidence in an action for malpractice that he would in any other personal injury case.

Report Canadian May Be Suitor Of Crown Princess of Holland

LONDON (CP) — Princess Beatrix, heir to the Dutch throne and one of the world's great fortunes, arrived in London today to find herself the centre of a royal love drama.

From every newsstand in the British capital confidence asked: Who is her secret suitor?

The Daily Express says one report in The Hague is that the suitor may be a Canadian.

"One theory is that he is a young Dutchman belonging to a leading Protestant family," says the Express in a front-page story from The Hague.

"Other reports say that he is either a Canadian or a Briton."

Other London newspapers say Nicholas Tollemache, son of Lord Tollemache, and Prince William of Gloucester, cousin of Queen Elizabeth, have been mentioned as possible suitors.

The Express gives no hint of the Canadian's identity.

The Express printed pictures of the 27 - year - old princess hand-in-hand with a handsome broad-shouldered man of about 30.

They were smiling, fingers on lips, as they walked through the woods around the royal palace in Holland.

Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard said in a statement Wednesday night: "The rumors about a speedy announcement of the engagement of our eldest daughter are premature.

"On her behalf we make an urgent appeal to you all to give her rest and time to take a well-considered decision."

The princess is visiting London to be a godparent at the christening of Sybilla Louise, three - week - old daughter of Princess Margarethe of Sweden and her British husband, John Ambler.

Last year a constitutional crisis erupted over the marriage of Beatrix's young sister, Princess Irene, to Prince Carlos de Bourbon Parma, a claimant to the throne of Spain.

Beatrix, in five hours of plain talk at a family conference, told Irene she could marry whom she pleased—but she could not retain her right to the Dutch throne.

Irene abdicated her rights and married the controversial Spanish prince.

Satchmo's Tour of Britain Cut Short When U.S. Visas Denied to Ball's Jazzmen

LONDON (AP)—Round two in the transatlantic pop music war brought a standoff today. The British cut short Louis Armstrong's concert tour and the Americans turned back Kenny Ball's jazzmen.

The British Musicians' Union clamped down on Satchmo Wednesday night after U.S. immigration authorities ruled that Kenny and his men did not have "outstanding talents" to merit working visas.

"We are these people in the immigration authority?" demanded Harry Francis, spokesman for the musicians' union. "What do they know about music? Who are they to say one musician is not worth a visa and another is?"

Armstrong and his band are due in June for a two-part tour. The first is in exchange for an American visit by the Animals, a beat group. The second part was to be a return for Ball's tour which the immigration men killed.

"They (the Armstrong band) have been told they can come for the Animals exchange," said Francis. "Then they must go back."

BAN THE BEATS

The battle between the British musicians and the American Federation of Musicians broke out after the Beatles, the Animals and other idols of the latest began crowding out American pop singers on their home grounds.

The Americans charged that some of the British beat groups were violating terms of the exchange agreement between the two unions. The Americans said the British would arrive in the United States for an authorized engagement, then take on extra jobs and throw American performers out of work.

Relations between the two unions became still more strained when U.S. authorities began refusing work visas to some British pop singers on grounds that they were not sufficiently known in the U.S.

DR. G. S. CRONK

Dr. Sam Cronk Honored By Colleagues; Doctor, Surgeon for 50 Years

A Belleville doctor who missed a train connection in Belleville and stayed to become one of the city's veteran practitioners last night was honored by colleagues for a half-century in medicine.

Central figure of the event was Dr. G. S. Cronk, who graduated from Queen's medical school in 1915.

Fellow practitioners and pharmacists marked the anniversary at the home of Dr. Richard T. Potter.

After graduation, Dr. Cronk went straight into the army, joining the ranks of the Royal Medical Corps.

For the next three years he saw World War I service in Egypt, Salonika, China and Hong Kong.

Born on a farm at Parham, he attended public school there, and later took a business course at Kingston.

It was while working in the mines in Northern Ontario that Dr. Cronk realized the advantages of education.

"Any man can do the work I am doing here," he thought, "but skilled physicians and surgeons are none too plentiful.

"If I go back to school and college and work hard, in 10 or 12 years I can be a doctor."

So he quit his job in the mines, completed his high school education in three years and entered Queen's medical school.

LEADING SURGEON

His Belleville practice dates from a year after the conflict and was a topic of whimsical comment at last night's gathering.

In 1919 Dr. Cronk was en route to Peterborough where he intended settling. However, he missed a train connection and was forced to stay over in Belleville. During his brief stop he heard that a practice was available, changed his plans and stayed on in Belleville.

Long recognized as one of the city's leading surgeons, during his early practice in Belleville, Dr. Cronk served as medical officer of health for 20 years (1921 to 1951) has been coroner since 1930 and was regional surgeon for Bell Telephone for 35 years.

He is a life member of Euclid Lodge and a member of The Moira Chapter R.A.M. and was a charter member of the Belleville Kiwanis club.

A son Dr. Bruce Cronk is a heart specialist in Belleville, while a daughter, Mrs. Wayne Simmons, is the wife of a Trenton druggist.

Last night Dr. A. E. Myles presented the veteran physician with a pair of binoculars on behalf of his fellow practitioners. Perry Green, representing city pharmacists, presented Dr. Cronk with a wrist watch.

ister-Waterloo to amalgamate police forces.

The bill also makes it compulsory for municipalities of 15,000 or more to form local police boards. In special circumstances, a municipality with a population of 2,000 or less would not be required to have a police force.

ATTACKS MAGISTRATE

In other business Wednesday, Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) launched an attack aimed at having Toronto Magistrate Robert Dnieper removed from the bench.

There wasn't enough time for Mr. Singer to finish his speech. He later said he would complete it today and ask Mr. Wishart to relieve Magistrate Dnieper of his post.

Mr. Singer asked the attorney-general earlier if his department ever received complaints about the magistrate. Mr. Wishart said seven complaints had been received.

The Downsview member said Magistrate Dnieper had criticized a working man for the way he was dressed in court, once refused remands to youths not represented by counsel, and once conducted court at 4 a.m. in a police cruiser on a highway.

Mr. Singer said it is no secret Magistrate Dnieper was transferred to Toronto from Oshawa after a delegation from the Ontario County Law Association told the attorney-general's department that if Magistrate Dnieper were to continue to sit there, they would be most unwilling to appear before him.

WILL STRENGTHEN ONE

The attorney-general told the legislature the government intends to strengthen the Ontario Securities Commission by increasing its membership and staff and making the chairmanship a full-time job.

But legislation to increase government control over the sale and distribution of securities in the province will be delayed until the next session of the legislature.

The measures were announced as Mr. Wishart presented estimates for the spending of $20,280,000 during 1965-66.

In his estimates, Mr. Wishart is also seeking funds to provide for at least six new assistant Crown attorneys. The attorney-general's department now has 48 Crown attorneys and 29 assistants.

The department this year will add four magistrates, eight probation officers, and two safety inspectors, plus 13 new scientists and technicians for the attorney-general's laboratory.

Provincial Treasurer James Allan introduced a bill providing for fixed three-year terms for members of the Ontario racing commission. At present, commission members are appointed for indefinite periods.

A report of the attorney-general's committee on medical evidence tabled Wednesday says some doctors have had a tacit agreement not to give fully objective evidence against other doctors sued for malpractice.

The report recommends the formation of a joint committee of the Ontario Medical Association and the Law Society of Upper Canada as a means of resolving problems that may arise in getting proper evidence before the courts.

Mr. Wishart said the report will be given wide circulation among medical and legal organizations before any legislative action is taken.

The Commons wound up the budget debate, the minority Liberal government winning a vote on the final motion to adopt the budget 132 to 98.

Finance Minister Gordon, who presented the budget April 26, called for a formal vote to "see who votes against it."

Only Creditiste and Conservative members voted against approval in principle for the budget.

The government voted down a challenge to the Speaker's ruling on production of papers in the Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

The Conservative motion to have the papers produced was defeated 120 to 82 and was sent for later debate during private members' hour.

Plan to Combat Poverty Given By Robarts

TORONTO (CP)—A plan to combat poverty in Ontario—involving possible overhaul of the province's municipal structure—was outlined Wednesday night by Premier Robarts.

Speaking at a Progressive Conservative party meeting, Mr. Robarts said the plan, which would involve both federal and provincial governments, could mean the development of regional governments above the municipal level.

He described the relationship between the two major governments as one in which ultimate responsibility for the economic health of Canada rests with the federal government, while the responsibility for equitable distribution of economic opportunity in the province belongs to the provincial government.

ARE CONCERNED

"Most people in Ontario are concerned with the need to spread economic opportunity more equitably within all regions," said the premier.

"I believe that the best way to ensure the development of the various regions is to create a system by which both the local and provincial governments can work together in close co-operation with private industry, labor, the educational institutions and the people of the regions.

"This may mean, for example, a complete overhaul of our municipal structure and the development of regional governments in Ontario.

"This desire for regional development is slowly related to a growing concern over pockets of low income . . . and with the concern over the seeming inability of our present municipal structure to deal adequately with the needs of our urban population."

TORONTO (CP) — The concept of an ombudsman—a non-political appointee to hear and act on citizens' grievances — was discussed twice Wednesday before the Ontario royal commission on civil rights.

The commissioner is J. C. McRuer, former chief justice of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Prof. H. W. Arthurs of Osgoode Hall Law School said an independent but governmental adviser should be available to provide expert advice to persons appearing before any provincial tribunal.

"We now should be handicapped by lack of expert knowledge of the administrative agency with which he must deal," Prof. Arthurs said.

Prof. Arthurs said he doubts whether police and members of tribunals such as the Ontario Municipal Board know enough about citizens' rights or care enough to protect what rights citizens have.

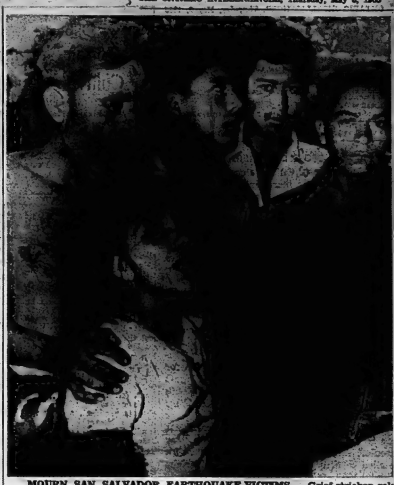
SUGGESTS ORGANIZATION

He also suggested a massive ombudsman - like organization of lawyers, political scientists and psychologists available to help citizens in difficulties with provincial departments.

Toronto lawyer Anthony Bazos complained there has been a "burgeoning encroachment in the area of civil rights" by police and government authorities since the end of the Second World War.

"Too many individuals who hold judicial office and sit in judgment on criminal matters are not mature enough to what they experienced in the ways of the world and its problems," Mr. Bazos said in his brief.

"Too many afford only lip service to the rights of an individual charged with a crime."



Other persons appearing before Mr. McRuer's commission have said similar arguments to support their recommendations for an ombudsman.

Mr. Bazos argued that the judicial system itself should be more closely supervised, so that only persons who had demonstrated their ability and maturity might serve in judicial capacities. This would make an ombudsman superfluous, he said.

Mr. Bazos also suggested that inquests be conducted only by persons familiar with the Canada Evidence Act.

A brief from the Ontario Chiropractic Association also urged that an inquest "be a real training"—as opposed to medical training—and witnesses at inquests should be represented by legal counsel if they wish.

However, when the association complained about the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, Mr. McRuer said such complaints are outside his area of reference.

U. S. in Two Main Trouble Spots Has Been Thrown on Defensive Diplomatically

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A basic rule of diplomacy is to seize and hold the initiative wherever possible.

The United States, while holding the military initiative in its two main trouble spots of Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic, has been thrown on the defensive diplomatically.

In several international meetings in the last few days—the United Nations Security Council, the Organization of American States and the SEATO meeting in London—American diplomats appear to have been fighting back against closing rings of disapproval.

Even by some close allies they seem to have been "damned by faint praise."

CREDIT STRAINED

In the Security Council, Adlai Stevenson of the U.S. reached all the way back to Soviet aggression against Poland to defend his country against a tough Communist onslaught.

No one cared to rush to Stalin's defence, but to some observers Stevenson's counsel had the air of a tired red herring.

Britain's speech in the council was the only one in the first two days of emergency debate on the Dominican crisis that vaguely supported U.S. intervention. But even that speech was described by one Western diplomat as the "minimum possible under the circumstances."

"The Americans have strained their credit to the utmost," he said.

Both the British and Canadian governments have avoided a definite position on the crisis, saying only that under international law, a government has the right to protect its citizens when law and order break down in another country.

But even the United States no longer claims that the main purpose of the intervention is to protect Americans. Instead, it says its 19,363 troops are in the Dominican Republic to make sure that the government that emerges from the present chaos is not a Communist one.

ACTED ALONE

Private criticism of the United States among its friends and allies centres mainly on two points:

1. It acted alone without co
sulting the OAS, ignoring a plicit OAS injunction again unilateral interventions.

2. It started by claiming th the intervention was only f protection of American citizen then switched signals and d cided to stay.

About the best defence Ste
enson could offer in the Sec rity Council was that thin would come out all right in t end, and that history would fi that the intervention was just fied.

For most U.S. allies, the tin
when the whole incident pass into history can't come t soon.

Hydro's Expansion

An indication of Ontario's continuing prosperity is seen in the increasing business of its electrical utilities. To serve its 3,100,000 customers last year, Ontario Hydro and associated municipal electrical utilities established a record peak of 7,310,000 kilowatts.

While generating resources to meet these requirements totalled 7,775,750 kilowatts, Hydro last year authorized new capacity totalling 5,300,000 kilowatts.

Major new projects include the coal-fired Lambton Generating Station, 14 miles south of Sarnia. This plant will have a total capacity of 2,000,000 kilowatts in four units to be brought into service between 1968 and 1971. The 1,080,000-kilowatt nuclear-electric Pickering Generating Station east of Toronto, scheduled for initial operation in 1970, and a 160,000-kilowatt hydro-electric development, the Mountain Chute Generating Station, on the Madawaska River near Renfrew, will be completed in 1967.

Biggest of the many projects announced last year is the Lakeview Generating Station near Toronto. A coal-fired plant, it will have an installed capacity of 2,400,000 kilowatts in eight units by 1968.

Hydro chairman W. Ross Strike notes in his annual report that continuing low-water flows in Southern Ontario emphasized the importance of thermal-electric stations. Purchases of coal from Nova Scotia and the United States cost $29 million, and long-term arrangements for delivery of fixed percentages of total fuel requirements had effected significant reductions in the unit cost of coal.

Nearly 9,000 all-electric homes were completed during the year, bringing the total to 14,360. In addition, heating installations in 71 churches, 54 schools and 51 apartment buildings with a total complement of 2,650 suites were completed. These involved a 60,000-kilowatt increase in electric heating demand.

Wanderlust

Although Harold Stahlbaum of Kitchener has eight children between the ages of three and 15 he manages to do what many men only dream of. He travels abroad—and as a construction worker draws good wages to send home to his wife and family.

"He has always liked to wander," an understanding Mrs. Stahlbaum was quoted as saying. He worked in Vancouver and the far north for a few years and I lived with the children in Kitchener." But Mrs. Stahlbaum didn't lose touch and a friend "used to fly out to visit using a few times a year."

This time, however, Mr. Stahlbaum has gone farther afield—to South Africa, where he is earning $1,000 a month as construction foreman on a Durban-Johannesburg petroleum pipeline project. He is on a 15-month contract and if the job is finished by or before the time limit Mr. Stahlbaum's fare home will be paid by his company. This means he may be home by Christmas.

The same company is planning a similar job in Australia and Mr. Stahlbaum has planned to go there in February after a spell at home. Mrs. Stahlbaum says she is saving to visit her husband down under.

Besides satisfying a desire to travel, Mr. Stahlbaum's wanderlust stems from a desire to see his children through high school. His most recent home earnings were only $1.45 an hour as a barman at a motor hotel.

Mr. Stahlbaum's story is an interesting one. His family is the richer in more ways than one as the result of his desire to see the world. Moreover, his children's interest in other countries will be stimulated.

60 Cents a Week

In making up his new budget the Finance Minister decided that he could afford to reduce revenues from the individual income tax by $265,000,000 a year. That is a fair sum, but it will mean an insignificant saving to most individuals. For the family with two children and an income of $5,000 a year, for instance, the tax will be reduced from $301 to $271 a year. That means only 60 cents a week more in the pay envelope.

It would have been far more useful to the country if the $265,000,000 saving had been passed on through removal of the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery and equipment. Such reductions would actively promote job-creating business expansion.

Taking a pittance off the workers' income taxes is neither good politics nor good economics.

Ottawa Offbeat

Debonair, Jaunty Geo. Hees Cultivates Future Voters

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Man!

You should have seen him.

Standing there, swinging a casual arm over his handsome head with the smooth and easy grace of the trained athlete in response to the applause and cheers — just as he once did 37 years ago in the Toronto Argonaut backfield on the now-replaced football oval of Varsity Stadium.

Of course, with the years he had changed his helmet, shoulder-padded sweater and the rest of that old gold uniform for the sharpest set of double-breasted—jacket and waskit—threads you have seen this side of Saville Row.

But he was still straight-tall, slim-hard and carried a fashionably becoming late season shrimpy tan "personality imported" he gritted audibly, from Stowe, Vermont, that very weekend.

And he was standing on the platform in face 90 or so Ontario Key Clubmen who had come to the Capital for their annual convention, and these young, teen-age Kiwanis-sponsored collegians gave him a tremendous hand and cheer.

They introduced him, in all seriousness, as Minister George Hees, former Federal Trade Minister and now stock exchange broker, and gave him the biographical build-up traditional in presenting "our important guest speaker."

THE GREAT YEARS

It wasn't as a politician or even a president that he wanted them to remember him. It was Frank to say.

But remember a member of the Argo's "great Grey Cup team of 1938."

Up he leaped again with an immensely enthusiastic "Yeah, man!"

And over them, as if it were a benediction, he raised his arms with a great laughing hug and simply swept down.

So they slammered down.

And what did talk politics? Or even finance?

Uh uh.

Football. And the "Great Years."

He told them what sports did for a man.

"Gives you guts, great heart, and perhaps as important as anything, poise."

He had them eating out of his hand by this time as he went on.

"It's wet. Cold. Blowing snow. The field's greasy. Your fingers are dropping off. But you aren't losing. And they're all blaming you.

"Quit? Are you crazy? You go on and on, hoping to win, but if you don't it's with good heart."

Here he leaned in a couple of stories.

It was Grey Cup, '38, and we were behind. Worse, I figured the referee was sticking me, and when I got my yards back on yards, I blew, snapping, 'Joe Brown, you stink.'

"Thirty years and 37 years ago is now Joseph Brown, President of Canada Cement."

THE LONG HEREAD

"Joe Brown heard me but as he was leaving over to place his kick he threw a yard back on my straightened, accepted the ball and marched back another 35 yards."

Then turning, he put his hands on his hips and barked, "Brown, I'll smell any better from here?"

After that, Hees vowed never to tell that story anymore. He was learning self control.

But there was a further lesson he was to learn for a career of coaching a senior collegiate team. Even were the days between unlimited scrimmages, and a coach could only communicate with the team on the field by uncertain extra — sensitory perception or sure (if illegal) signals from the bench.

He was so signalling when the referee spotted it and penalized the team five yards.

Rolling mad, George Hees charged out onto the field.

"Listen" — and he raged, "you're such a lousy referee you don't even know the penalty for illegal signalling from the bench is 15, not five yards!"

"Hees," the referee coolly told him, "that's not coaching you've been doing this afternoon. It's worth more than five yards."

The Collegian Key-Clubbers loved it, loved Hees, too.

"Wasting my time talking to kids?" he echoed newsmen when they suggested there might be more politically profitable things to do than fly up from Montreal to talk to such a young audience.

"These kids," he said, "are going to be voting in a couple more years."

And so they will — and if George Hees is back in political life by then, they'll remember him as a kindred spirit even if he is almost three times their age.

Letters to the Editor

Old Ship Is Found In St. Lawrence

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I have had the opportunity of visiting your city of late. We certainly enjoyed ourselves and hope to return. I just happened to read the enclosed report in our paper, the Ottawa Citizen. I am sending it to you hoping it may be of some interest to Belleville and vicinity readers.

(Miss) C. Kemp,
46 Fulton, Ave., Ottawa.

The Underwater Society of Ottawa found an old wooden cargo ship Sunday (April 25) which sank with a load of liquor in 1914.

However, the bottles were found together layer on layer, and buried in a mixture of clay and sand at the bottom of the St. Lawrence, near Prescott.

Some other parts of the ship were salvageable, though and were recovered for display in the group's maritime museum at 318 Cumberland St.

The ship, the City of Belleville, yielded a 250 pound dockside bollard, used to wrap rope around in landing and mooring the ships and sailing tools, hewing axes, an auger and about 200 spikes.

The dive was the first of the season for the society, which expects to find and explore about 60 ships this season.

The ships range from 1812 cargo boats to a man-of-war. Exploration is part of a planned program and they will eventually see parts from all the ships sunk in the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers in the society's museum.

Parts are cleaned and mounted with a history of the ship they came from.

Customer Dislikes 'Being Called 'Dear'

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Would you please give me space in your valuable paper for a remark on two things which have been noticeable to me, and I expect to others. One is the good service and good appearance of our drug stores, which I hope will not be affected by the example of stores selling many articles of merchandise, as is being done in the stores in the United States. One has to bear for a drug counter behind everything from clothing to hardware. Let's keep our high quality drug stores.

Of a different nature is my next point. Could I ask the store clerks to please refrain from addressing customers with the title "dear." One hears it spoken to young and old. It robs people of their dignity and why store managers allow it, I cannot understand as it robs them of customers. Yesterday I overheard a clerk using the term to a teenage boy. You can imagine his unexpressed resention.

Suggests Signposts At Rural Crossroads

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I have been wondering if the people of this district have ever travelled in a rural part of the province that was unfamiliar to them where at every road junction there are signs indicating the township, the concession, the number of the side road and the distance to the nearest community. What would be the reaction of a traveller or tourist to having this information so conveniently available?

Belleville is one of the gateways to a magnificent holiday and vacation area of scenic beauty and natural splendor. You encourage visitors to come here and enjoy the lakes, streams and forests and you find it profitable.

The city of Belleville has street signs on almost every corner for the convenience of the native and the stranger. Would it not be a fine idea to extend this courtesy and consideration to the countryside? It would be a very worthwhile project for the Rotary County. Or does this area pride itself on being 20 years behind the times.

Yours very truly,
A Newcomer to Belleville.

Metaphysical Body Is Seeking Reports

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

The Metaphysical Society concerns itself with the varied manifestations of psychic phenomena which Canadians may have had, and is particularly interested in extra-sensory perception incidents.

Any readers who have experienced unusual incidents and would care to tell about them, might write to the Society. All such letters would receive personal replies and would either be kept strictly filed or recorded in our publications, according to the writer's preference.

Present records show that the great majority of such stories come from "Oldtimers," and we are most anxious to capture their experiences for posterity. As a foundation project the Society is preparing a book with one story to a page, divided into chapters of Provinces, in an effort to record this vast untapped source of human experience in Canada.

Anyone who would like to contribute is invited should try to state the date and place of the occurrence, giving as much detail as possible. Information on ethnic origin is also helpful for cross reference purposes, but this is entirely up to the writer.

Lord Frederick Cavendish and Thomas Henry Burke, officials of the British government of Ireland, were murdered in Phoenix Park, Dublin, by members of the Fenian group, the Invincibles. The public outcry blocked parliamentary attempts to win more freedom for Ireland. When caught, Carey turned Queen's evidence and betrayed his fellows, in return for secret emigration to South Africa. He was recognized by the Invincibles and murdered while on the voyage.

Woman Told Hubby's Fast Breathing Not Serious

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Doctor: What causes the difference in a person's breathing rate? I have noticed that my husband, while sleeping, will take two breaths to my one. — Mrs. L. M.

The normal breathing rate is 16 to 18 a minute, but this is not absolute. An infant, for example, will breathe about twice that fast.

Many other factors can vary the rate quite considerably, including conscious control, whether intentional or not. It is really rather difficult to think about your breathing without influencing the rate even though you try not to.

During sleep there is a substantial range of rate of normal. The breathing can be even and regular, or it may be jerky and still normal.

One of the important physiological controls is the amount of carbon dioxide in the blood. M, after a period of shallow, slow breathing, the carbon dioxide content of the blood increases, nature then will speed up the breathing to compensate.

In counting your husband's breathing rate as twice as fast, your breathing was to some degree at least under conscious control. He was asleep and breathing according to his physiological needs. The exact rate, naturally, will depend on how deeply one breathes. A deep breath can draw in as much oxygen as two shallow breaths.

Obesity is a common influence on breathing. An overweight person often does a good deal of huffing and puffing. And of course, lung trouble, such as emphysema, bronchiectasis, fibrosis, and certain types of heart problems influence the breathing rate.

But let's not emphasize that too much, or we'll have everybody trying to figure out how fast he or she is breathing and thinking something's wrong if the number doesn't come out just right.

Serious conditions which affect the breathing are readily enough discovered in a routine physical examination.

If you are chronically short of breath, that's reason enough to see your doctor, but don't try to be too specific about how often you draw a breath.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes fissures and what is the cure? Would they come back if I had an operation? — A. M.

It is unlikely that fissures will occur again following surgery, but it is extremely difficult to get rid of them otherwise. You'll find details in my booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," which discusses fissures and fistulas as well as hemorrhoids. To receive a copy, send 25 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read several times about people craving ice cubes. This happened to me a few years ago. At the time I attached no importance to the fact that I felt tired when I went for the ice cubes.

Later when I had a checkup, my doctor found I was severely anemic. He gave me Vitamin B shots and iron capsules to overcome the anemia. Soon afterward, I noticed that I no longer craved ice.

I never mentioned this to my doctor, but have always felt there was a connection. Perhaps this letter will sound ridiculous to a professional, but may help in some small way. — E. M. O.

It doesn't sound ridiculous, although I wouldn't want people to think that the desire to chew or suck ice cubes necessarily is a sign of anemia. In your case, it was just something to do when you felt tired. Many people might try eating candy, or resting, or nibbling some food or other — any number of conditions hoping subconsciously that one of them "might help." Unless tiredness is a good reason for having a checkup. Thanks for writing.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF YESTERYEARS

25 YEARS AGO

May 8th, 1933

Milton F. Gregg, V.C., of Fredericton, President of the University of New Brunswick, appealed to Canadians for patience, understanding and help in veterans settling in peaceful occupations in the "Stresses and unfamiliar activities" of civilian life.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the reestablishment conference, Mr. Gregg said, "I am saying more than that, and activities would be needed, though the veterans would welcome them. Some of you old veterans need only climb back to a few years after the last war to understand what more can be done for some remuneration of the spirit that reigned in the old trenches. These new tasks have exactly the same feeling of loss as their services when we marched behind them." They must be helped to convert their service morale into civilian morale.

His Majesty King George V ascended the throne on May 6th, 1910, 35 years ago today and his silver jubilee is being celebrated today. He was born June 3rd, 1865. At the coronation the 15th Regiment Argyll Light Infantry of this city was represented by Major Lorne F. Green, Sergeant James S. Barlow and Sergeant John Ray.

The observance of the King's Silver Jubilee here today was a most commendable event, thousands of citizens, including school children; the 15th Regiment and bands; the Boy Scouts; Collegiate cadets; pipe band; war veterans; members of the Board of Education and the Separate School Board and the city council formed a huge and compact block on the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School grounds and Church Street. The official prayer of thanksgiving composed in England and approved by His Majesty was recited by Major the Rev. A. Bond and Kemp Payne, chaplain of the 15th Regiment Argyll Light Infantry and Vicar of St. Thomas' Church.

Admits Taking $6,332 From Commission

CORNWALL (CP)—A former employee of the provincial government's Upper Canada Village near Cornwall was sentenced Wednesday to two years in reformatory after pleading guilty to two counts of theft by conversion.

David B. Livingstone, 38, of Cornwall admitted taking $6,332 from the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, which runs the pioneer - style tourist attraction, while working at Upper Canada village as assistant store manager and toll booth keeper between May and August of last year.

Inspector J. S. Key of the provincial police criminal investigation branch in Toronto testified Livingstone withheld money he had picked up at the toll booth, where visitors paid an admission fee, and from the sale of tourist booklets.

Clashes Occur

cribed incidents since the ceasefire to be "period of adjustment" to be expected in such a situation.

The five-man OAS peace mission Wednesday night held a hurried round of discussions with representatives of both the military juntas represented by Gen. Elias Wessin Y Wessin and the rebel "constitutional government."

The meetings were carried out as an amateur radio station began broadcasting attacks on loyalist troops of the military juntas and urged the people to shoot any "Yankee invaders" who left the neutral zones.

The ceasefire agreement signed Wednesday covers two parts of ground rules to silence the weapons and alleviate the human suffering brought about by the 13 days of revolt, civil war and political bitterness in Santo Domingo.

It left some 19,000 U.S. marines and paratroopers armed with tanks, recoilless rifles, mortars, machine-guns and helicopters almost completely ringing a mixed rebel force of dissident soldiers and armed civilians variously estimated to number between 10,000 and 20,000.

The U.S. troops, backed by a 25-ship navy force with more than 8,000 sailors aboard, also have the help of loyalist Dominican soldiers in manning the many checkpoints they have established.

Their security area covers the nine - square - mile International safety zone and the four-block wide corridor from the eastern edge of the safety zone to the Duarte Bridge over the Ozama River, a strategic bridge that commands the route to San Isidro air base — the military junta's headquarters and major supply point for the U.S. forces.

Caamano, sworn in as provisional president by the rebels on Tuesday, sent requests to foreign governments for diplomatic recognition. The U.S. announced, however, that it believed "there is no effective (Dominican) government at the present time."

Rebel-held radio Santo Domingo returned to the air after being stifled early in the fighting. Broadcasts urged the people to return to work. Many shops began reopening.

U.S. forces continued to distribute food along the east-west corridor leading from the international zone to the Ozama River.

Intervention

man, commenting on the reported installation of rebel Col. Francisco Caamano Deno as provisional president of the Dominican Republic, said the United States does not believe there is so effective government at the present time" in the riot-torn Caribbean nation.

—The number of U.S. troops in the Dominican Republic was put at 19,363 by the defence department. It said these included 12,439 army men — mainly paratroopers from the 82nd Airborne Division—and 6,924 marines. The total was 5,363 more than the 14,000 announced Friday night by President Johnson.

FIVE NATIONS OPPOSED

Fourteen countries voted for the proposed force, five—Uruguay, Mexico, Chile, Peru and Ecuador—voted against it and Venezuela abstained.

Earlier, the Venezuelans had attempted —and failed — to amend the resolution to say that the inter-American force would replace the American troops in the Dominican Republic.

In relaxing the list of 58 alleged Communists and Castrites, the official sources said the information was part of what President Johnson had available when he declared Sunday night that Communists had seized the revolution started April 24 by supporters of ousted president Juan Bosch.

The need to prevent a Communist takeover in the Dominican Republic was cited by Johnson as a main reason for the dispatch of U.S. troops last week.

In Santo Domingo, a U.S. official told a press briefing Wednesday that Caamano, while not himself a Communist, is "moving closer to the Communists." The official said the "awkward fact of today is that the rebel movement is Communist controlled."

Military

loss are expected to arrive this weekend at Da Nang air base, 375 miles northeast of Saigon, informed sources said.

The fresh marine forces will bring the total of U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam to about 40,000.

Of this number, some 14,000 are combat troops — marines and paratroopers based into South Viet Nam in the last two months.

Transport planes continued to shuttle the 2,500 men of the U.S. Army's 173rd Airborne Brigade from Okinawa to South Viet Nam today.

The first 1,200 men of the airborne brigade arrived at the Bien Hoa air base and at the Vung Tau airstrip Wednesday. An official number was expected today with movement of the entire brigade to be completed this week.

The brigade is the first U.S. Army combat unit sent to Viet Nam.

SEEN AS COUNTER

The buildup of American troops is seen as a counter to Communist Viet Cong buildup and reports that more North Vietnamese regular army units are now operating in the South.

Although the U.S. troops still are officially confined to defending static positions, there is little doubt among observers that they would be used if necessary to meet any major Communist offensive.

Such an offensive is expected by both U.S. and South Vietnamese military officials during the coming weeks.

The major concentration of Viet Cong forces was said to be in Quang Tin province, south of Da Nang air base, and in the mountains between that coastal province and the Laotian border.

U.S. advisers in the area have reported the presence of an estimated 12,000 Viet Cong troops in the province, which makes them numerically equal to the government forces.

CHINA RITTER

China claimed that the U.S. paratroopers were sent to escalate the war in Viet Nam.

"This is the third time in a month the United States has sent combat troops to South Viet Nam after (president) Johnson's prattle about "unconditional discussions" and "peace," said Peking's New China news agency.

Radio Hanoi reported that the Soviet Union has officially informed North Viet Nam it will send volunteers if the situation deteriorates and North Viet Nam calls for help.

In Washington, the Senate moves today toward sweeping passage of a $700,000,000 arms fund bill that is President Johnson's view will constitute a vote of confidence in his Viet Nam policies.

The measure passed in the House of Representatives Wednesday by a vote of 408 to 7 after less than two hours' debate.

In requesting the money, Johnson told Congress "I cannot guarantee this will be the last request." The defence department budget already is running around $80,000,000,000 a year. The additional money will be used for ammunition, replacement of lost aircraft, maintenance of planes and construction of warehouses and oil storage facilities.

In London, the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization ended its annual ministerial meeting divided 6-2 over Viet Nam policy.

The United States, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines said in the final conference communique that the war in Viet Nam was "an aggression organized, directed, supplied and supported by the Communist regimes in North Viet Nam. They agreed "to continue and, consistent with their commitments elsewhere, to increase their assistance to South Viet Nam."

Pakistan refused to endorse the majority view. The French representative declared that his government "does not consider itself to be committed" by the communique.

Our Image Is Shaped By an Oddball Minority

By JACK HUTTON

"You won't see our pictures on TV or in the newspapers. Most young Canadians, in fact, aren't at all like the types you think of as average. Our image is shaped by an oddball minority."

The speaker was a clean-cut senior high school student talking to 30 adults. And, he was referring to himself and four other young adults (average age 18) on a panel aimed at explaining his generation.

I was the moderator of that panel last week. And I'm still thinking about reactions to that statement among the adult audience, most of them leaders in the recreation field.

It was obvious that Edgar Goodair's frank rejection of Beatle haircuts, far-out fads and kook trends, took some of the audience by surprise: after all, they'd seen rock'n'roll audiences on TV.

YOUTH'S MODEL

We had been discussing a vague title: "youth as consumer". And after the usual questions and answers about bad-girls, part-time jobs and clothing preferences, we turned to where Canadian youth finds its models.

A fashion editor and marketing expert for a national Canadian magazine touched off the spark by remarking that the chief influence around today — not only for under-30's but over-40's — is the swinging younger generation of London, England.

"It's reflected everywhere," she said. "Your music, your styles. It's a get-with-it movement, a swinging generation. And the need to 'think young' has swept through every age group."

THEY DISAGREE

I was surprised, as were most of the listeners, at the immediate disagreement from the five panel members. "Maybe you can see some London influence in me," said Jud Whiteside. "But I haven't an idea what it would be."

"What's more," he added, "I don't know anyone who looks for information or guidance in what we read about young people in London. My friends don't wear Beatle haircuts."

A quick poll of the panel — five senior high school students and one graduate who now works in an office — found that not one owned a Beatle record. Jacqui Kanitz said she thought there were some at her home but she never played them.

"You see," said Edgar, "you are thinking of the young people you see in pictures or in print. The unusual touches like long haircuts or fads. Students in Grades 9 or 10 may try Beatle haircuts but they drop them after that."

"We're too busy passing examinations and maintaining the marks we know we have to go on. There's just too much pressure to waste time. But you see and hear about the ones who try the fads — the minority."

I've thought about that brief exchange of opinions several times since the panel. And it seems obvious that many of the audience walked into the room with pre-set conclusions and impressions which just didn't fit the five young people they met.

The world has just launched a highly complicated instantaneous transmission system for flashing TV images from one part of the globe to another. Maybe we should be concentrating on communicating with our coming generation.

Let me know what you think. Are Canadian adults guilty of trying to fit labels on the younger generation that don't apply to the vast majority?

Speaking of fads police in several Canadian cities are trying to save young people from themselves this week. Montreal, Ottawa and several other cities have banned skateboard-riding on streets.

The sport — known to its fans as "skurfing" — seemed harmless when it appeared weeks ago. But some police officers are worried by accidents.

Montreal reports a rash of broken legs, sprained ankles and knee injuries, all caused when the rider lost control of his or her skateboard. One victim punctured a kidney when he hit the pavement the wrong way.

Do the longhaired Rolling Stones, the English group who recently played before cheering Canadian crowds, represent an oddball minority of their generation? In this column, some teens give an answer.

I'll confess that wild horses couldn't drag me onto one of the boards. But the answer seems to be co-operation between police and skurf fans to find suitable places where the boards can be used in safety.

Bank

ection of the commission's rec-mmendations will be reflected both bills.

RENEW ARGUMENTS

The bills also stir up both old and new controversies.

The ability of the chartered banks, under the guidance of the Bank of Canada, to create new money through interest-bearing loans has long been denied by Social Credit MPs. The importance of the Rathbones Credit as a political force from Quebec, and the most vocal force in Parliament on fiscal Credit monetary theory, will add new gingar to this old argument.

The Bank of Canada bill may rekindle the dying embers of the former Conservative government's fight with the central bank over ultimate responsibility for monetary policy—the tightness or looseness of credit.

That fight reached its climax in the attempt by Donald Fleming, then finance minister, to dismiss James E. Coyne as governor of the Bank of Canada by legislation declaring the office vacant. Mr. Coyne fought back and subsequently resigned when the Senate killed Mr. Fleming's bill.

Mr. Coyne contended that the Bank of Canada was solely responsible for monetary policy. He argued that Canada was living beyond its means and the bank pursued a monetary policy to put on the brakes. Mr. Fleming said this was holding back Canadian expansion.

OTTAWA PREVAILS

With the subsequent appointment of Louis Rasminsky, the new governor and Mr. Fleming agreed monetary policy is primarily a Bank of Canada responsibility but that is any conflict between government and bank policy, the government's view should prevail with the government taking ultimate responsibility.

The Porter royal commission was appointed by Mr. Fleming in 1961 in preparation for the Bank Act revision which should have been completed last year. Its 385-page report published last year is a text-book of banking and finance in Canada.

It recommended a more open and competitive banking system involving both the eight chartered banks and the so-called "near banks"—trust and mortgage loan companies. Some of better operate under federal charters and some are incorporated under provincial law set submit to federal inspection.

All banks and others in the banking business, the commission said, should be "carefully and equitably regulated under uniform legislation but not bound by restrictions which impede the response of the institutions to new situations, enforce a particular pattern of narrow specialization or shelter some enterprises from competitive pressures."

LIFT LOAN CEILING

In line with this, the commission recommended removing the present six-per-cent ceiling on the rate of interest a chartered bank may charge for a loan. The "near banks" are not limited in this way.

It also recommended allowing chartered banks to make conventional mortgage loans, which the trust and loan companies have found is a lucrative field.

Finance Minister Gordon already has announced the government will propose changes in the near bank act designed to protect Canadian ownership of the Canadian banks.

Marked argument is expected over his further proposal to bar provincial governments from ownership of chartered bank stock. British Columbia's Social Credit government wants to permit Mclntyre in forming a new bank under federal charter in the province. Quebec has declared it won't sit by while an attempt is made to prevent it from ever investing in a bank.

REVIVE BANK BILLS

The B.C. bank bill was introduced last session but it and two other bills making new private bank charters bogged down in argument and are being revived this session. The others are for a Bank of Western Canada—for which Mr. Coyne is one of the petitioners—and for a Laurentide Bank of Canada, sponsored by a loan company.

The 1954 revision of the Bank Act sparked lengthy debate, led mainly by Social Credit MPs, on the cash reserves the chartered banks must maintain as a basis from which they can expand their loans.

They now must keep at least eight per cent of their Canadian dollar deposit liabilities in cash or in deposits with the Bank of Canada. By its action, the Bank of Canada can affect these cash reserves and thus influence the ability of the banks in their lending activities.

In 1954 the chartered banks were permitted to make mortgage loans under the National Housing Act. This meant a flow of new money into home construction, but the blow dried up when the NHA interest rate rose above the 5-per-cent interest ceiling on bank loans.

Klansman

course his defence may take. He also has shown a revolver which he said he took from FBI informer Gary Thomas Rowe Jr.

Murphy has not said how he will connect the pistol to the killing. His counsel was, "I took it away from Rowe before he killed someone and blamed it on us."

CLAIMS REWARD MONEY

Murphy has sought to portray Rowe, the state's star witness, as a troublemaker hoping to collect a rich reward from the federal government if he could "help break the back of the Klan."

Wilkins, 51, a self-employed automobile mechanic at Fairfield, Ala., near Birmingham, is the first of three KKK members brought to trial for the night rider slaying of the Detroit housewife.

Mrs. Liuzzo, the wife of a Teamsters Union official, was shot to death near Lowndesboro the night of March 25 after taking part in the civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery and ferrying some of the marchers back to Selma.

Indicted with Wilkins — and awaiting trial — were Eugene Thomas, 42, an employee of U.S. Steel at Bessemer, Ala., and William Orville Eaton, also of Bessemer, who at 41 is a retired steel worker with heart trouble.

Rowe, who said he joined the Klan at the FBI's request to get information, told the all-white 12-man jury that he was in the car with Wilkins, Thomas and Eaton when Mrs. Liuzzo was killed.

He said Wilkins used Thomas' revolver to fire shots at almost point-blank range as their car pulled alongside her automobile in a highspeed chase and emptied his gun at the car as they pulled away.

BULLET FROM GUN

Williams, who works at the FBI laboratory at Washington, testified that a bullet found lodged at the base of the Detroit woman's brain was fired from Thomas' gun.

Another agent told the jury that the gun used in the laboratory test came from Thomas' home, and still another said a gun permit found on Thomas was issued for the same pistol.

Williams first testified that three bullets found in the car were determined by laboratory tests to have come from the gun which Rowe had said Thomas handed to young Wilkins just before the shooting.

Martin Views Military Camp Housing Red-built Tanks

By DAVE McINTOSH

KOKKINI PRIMITHIA, Cyprus (CP)—Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin Wednesday viewed from a helicopter the Greek-Cypriot military camp where 32 Russian-built tanks are housed. The camp is near this village about nine miles west of Nicosia.

The minority Turkish-Cypriots claim the tanks are intended for use against them because 32 such weapons couldn't be expected to stop any invasion by Turkey.

The Greek-Cypriots maintain they are solely to help repel any attack by Turkey.

Martin also flew in to the Kyrenian Hills north of Nicosia to visit the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, which is under the UN flag patrols one of the most troublesome areas in Cyprus.

Martin drove to the Turkish village of Tambios, hemmed in on three sides by Greek-Cypriot soldiers, and used some of his old and well-tried political campaign methods.

He quickly picked up a few words of greeting in Turkish and hailed some farmers who were cutting barley in a nearby field with ancient scythes. He spoke briefly to a group of school children outside their one-room school and then sat down to chat with village elders outside a cafe.

At a press conference at Nicosia just before flying to Marseille, France, Martin suggested that more countries contribute troops to the UN force. It is understood that Austria will send an infantry battalion to Cyprus to replace one of the two 400-man Irish units. There is no indication that Canada will reduce its 1,130-man UN contingent.

Generally speaking, the Greek - Cypriot newspapers didn't think much of Martin's goodwill visit.

One said he holds hostile views on the Cyprus struggle; another side he favors the Turkish side. A third conceded that Canada's policy on Cyprus has begun to become objective.

At Marseille Martin officially opened a new Canadian consulate.

Martin flies to Paris today for talks with French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville and with Canadian ambassadors in Europe.

'You're a Newspaper Man's Newspaper Woman'

"--And That's a Damshur, Ma!"

By TERRY ROBERTS

ILLOOET, B.C. (CP) — "It's like a little bit of everything," says Margaret L. (Ma) Murray.

"A little bit of lovin', a little bit of drinkin' and a little bit of workin'."

"I watch out pretty carefully every day for banana peels.

"Apart from that, I'm damned if I know why we're so lucky."

Expressed in her distinctive editorial style, it's Ma's recipe for the good life and it has kept her going for 77 years.

Stirred well, it also heaps barbs, pithy comments and acid bubbling from the cauldron she calls home — a newspaper office in this Cariboo cattle and lumbering town 130 miles northeast of Vancouver.

From where she sits at her roll-top desk in the two-floor clapboard building, Ma wields a rural rapier honed with such phrases as "that's a damshur" and "damfool critters."

But for all her homespun ways, she uses lye soap on up-to-date events.

When Canada's new flag was in the making, she had this to say:

"Are Canadians so damned thin-skinned that they want to hang onto the old country's apron strings, or are Canadians so steeped in imperialism or so cowardly of this fallacy of the mother country that they never are going to be weaned?"

CHUCKLE A WEEK

In the same issue of her Bridge River-Lillooet News, Ma wrote of the new incumbent in town:

". . . If the old cliche has anything to offer in godliness is next to cleanliness, or vice-versa, it's damshur Lillooet never had such a good chance to get closer to that heavenly objective than it has now."

The masthead on Ma's paper — known as much for its wit as its news — reads:

"Printed in the sagebrush country of Lillooet every Thursday, God willing. Guaranteed a chuckle every week and a belly laugh once a month or your money back.

"Subscription $4.00 in Canada. Furriners $5.00.

"This week's circulation 1,347 and every bloody one of them paid for."

Ma — known in the pages of her paper as Ye Ed — has become a habit to the "big city slicker" dailies of the West Coast. They get hooked on her barbs and are reeled in on her find even when she's blasting their type.

When she celebrated her 77th birthday last August the papers hailed the event in editorials and news stories.

The week of her birthday Ma wrote an editorial for her own paper saying good for Ma and the following issue was resplendent with telegrams and letters to Ye Ed.

"Dear Ma, if I were 30 years younger I'd ask you to marry me," said a telegram from Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun.

WIND RUNNING OUT

"May the double seven be doubly lucky; God bless you," said one from commentator Frank Willis of the CBC.

In the issue Ma's regular column — "Chat out of the old bag" — read:

"There's not much wind left in the bellows of the old bag, which is due for deflation after the big birthday celebrations. . . .

Ma may be a courageous wit — last of the daring country editors — in the eyes of British Columbia, but in her own bailiwick the feeling is mixed.

Her acid regarding — especially of courts — sometimes burns other townsfolk who say Ma "checks her tongue" a little too often.

A typical court report tells the story of George — "a nice kind of fellow who loves to get stinko and does."

Ma believes in querying with pointedness and pricks most with her sharp words. Premier W. A. C. Bennett is a favorite target.

Once when the premier — whom she calls a "gangster" and a "crook" — greeted her at a function with a kiss on the cheek, the shocked press asked if this indicated a softening of her attitude.

Her reply: "Sonny, you didn't see me kiss him back, did you?"

Born in a town fittingly named Windy Ridge, Kan., the story of how Ma came to Canada has become a legend that has inevitably "Ma Kettle of the Cariboo" is the last to deny.

SHIPPED SADDLES

She was working in a mail order house shipping saddles to Albert cowboys. She read of Canada and got to hankering for a move, so she slipped 3 nots into a saddle and made the jaunt after getting an answer.

"Well it could be true anyway, couldn't it," says Ma.

However, she did come to Canada in 1911 — debarked in Vancouver while en route to Calgary — and worked on a Vancouver weekly newspaper. A year later she married its chief, George Matheson Murray.

In the years that followed, the Murrays owned several weeklies in B.C. and Ma bore two children, Dan and Georgina. In 1923 she started the Lillooet paper when her husband went into provincial politics.

Then in 1943 she shifted the Lillooet weekly on to a back burner and moved to Fort St. John where she published the rollicking Alaska Highway News.

Her husband, after running successfully then being defeated provincially, won the federal riding of Cariboo and went to Ottawa as Liberal MP. He held the seat until 1953, eight years before he died.

Ma went with him to Ottawa and wrote her readers at home:

"In amongst the finery was me . . . Chatelaine of the Cariboo. . . .

Only once did she toss her bonnet into the political arena. She ran as a Social Credit candidate for a provincial seat but "didn't know anything much about Social Credit than a load of hay" and lost.

She later sold the Fort St. John paper to her son and moved back to Lillooet where Ma says "I might as well go on and get as much done as I can to the end."

BEER DEFENDED

NEWCASTLE (CP)—The lord mayor of Newcastle brought down coals on his head when he said southern beer was not so strong as that brewed in the north of England. An indignant brewer sent Mr. Resnick a case, and the apologetic mayor now has said he would recommend southern beer to anyone.

MA KETTLE OF THE CARIBOO—At 77, Margaret L. (Ma) Murray still carries on in the distinctive style that has made her a legend in Western Canada journalism. Publisher of the weekly Bridge River-Lillooet, B.C. News, she keeps barbs, pithy comments and acid soaking from her roll-top desk in British Columbia's cariboo country. (CP Photo)

Massive China Base Threatens Thailand

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Communist China has launched a crash program to convert Hainan Island "into the most modern allpurpose strategic base," says an Indian government publication.

The Indian and Foreign Review, a fortnightly journal published by the ministry of information, gives in its current issue some hitherto unknown facts regarding developments on the pearl - shaped, 36,000 square-mile island facing the Gulf of Tonkin in South China.

It says Peking has built an up-to-date naval and air base on Hainan. A massive air force training centre has been established near Haikow, the island's capital.

"This (Haikow) air force base has several subsidiaries runways in the form of nearby highways, parts of them being of reinforced concrete. Should the major runway become unusable under bombardment in the event of war, these roads can be used as runways, even for jet bombers."

The article says Peking's military activities on Hainan look "ominous for the independent nations of Asia in view of recent developments in Viet Nam and Peking's declaration last month (March) that Thailand is her next target."

"One would appreciate Hainan's importance to Peking when it is realized that even with 1,130 factories turning out machine tools, chemicals, medium and heavy guns and allied products to support defence needs.

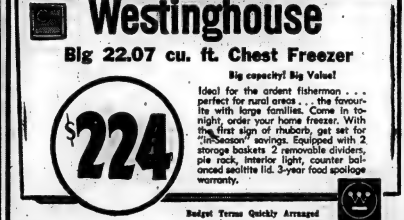
The article, which created much interest in diplomatic and political circles in New Delhi, goes on to say that "apart from being a strategic military base, Hainan forms a vital role in Peking's expansionist activities.

The island, it adds, is being used as a "secret base" for infiltration into southeast Asian countries. "Trained overseas Chinese and disgruntled elements from foreign countries from Sri Ahr-Asian region are trained in subversive activities here. They get special training in guerrilla warfare and various manoeuvres in tropical jungles."

Believed to be based on firsthand information reaching New Delhi, the article says Hainan today is out of bounds even to the Chinese people. Only such native born whose loyalty to the Communist party is absolute are assigned duties on the island.

The paper reports that since January extensive roadworks have been undertaken on the strategic island.

"Work going to reports the roads now capable of taking 30-ton tanks or light aircraft. Two airfields, of which motorable roads now cover over 3,000 kilometres."



Hailkow, the island's capital, is said to have been developed into a major industrial centre, with more than 130 factories turning out machine tools, chemicals, medium and heavy guns and allied products to support defence needs.

Mrs. Pearl Ketcheson, left, and Mrs. Minnie Moorman, dressed in old time costumes, enjoy a cup of tea as in days of yore at Granny's Old Fashioned Tea at Holloway Street United Church yesterday.

Antiques Provide Theme for U. C. W. Tea

Antiques, both early Canadian and Victorian, provided the theme of "Granny's Old Fashioned Tea Party," held Wednesday afternoon and evening by the United Church Women of Holloway Street Church.

The church women were dressed in Victorian costumes, many of them original models worn by Belleville women nearly a century ago. The old fashioned atmosphere began outside the church where a 1926 Model-T Ford was parked.

Inside, the highlight of a large collection of china, glass, jewelry and silver, arranged by Mrs. Garnet Dobbs, was a tea service once owned by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Prime Minister of Canada from 1894 to 1896. Mrs. Jack Sargent, Curator of the Hastings County Museum, exhibited a selection of European silver from the museum's Cankerey Collection.

Mr. Morney Hick, wearing top hat and coat - sway coat, explained the history of guns fro mthe C.W. Smith collection. Included among the collection was a muzzle loading cap-lock made before 1867 by a Cannifton gunsmith.

An exhibit of farm implements included a wooden rake, flail and grain cradle used by early Canadian farmers.

VICTORIAN VERANDAH

A Victorian verandah furnished with gramaphone and rocking chairs, and with an ivy covered trellis and geranium border in front, occupied one end of the tea room. Mrs. Talbot Ketcheson and Mrs. Moorman enacted a "living" tableau" of two women of a century ago taking tea on the verandah on a summer afternoon. The tea table, centred with an ivy-filled spinning wheel planter, had green candles, a green glass oil lamp and a crumb stand as accessories. Each individual table was centred with a pot of geraniums or violets surrounded by a miniature white picket fence. Decorating convener was Mrs. W. Cone.

In keeping with the old fashioned theme, tea room conveners Mrs. K. Parks and Mrs. R. Taylor served bran muffins and tea biscuits with honey and jam. They were assisted by kitchen conveners Mrs. C. A. Bath, Mrs. K. J. Lewis and Mrs. W. Bateman.

Baked beans and doughnuts were features of the bake sale, convened by Mrs. A. McMillan and Mrs. Cook. Treen and cast iron cooking utensils from pioneer kitchens decorated the table.

OPENS TEA

The Reverend C. W. Coleman opened the tea with a few brief remarks. General convener was Mrs. Harry Hutt, with convenseer, Mrs. Kenneth Parks.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Alan Hitchon, Mrs. E. Hubbs, Mrs. E. Parks, Mrs. Ricketts, Mrs. F. Wilson and Mrs. O. White.

Guests were received at the door by Mrs. R. Taylor, Mrs. J. Knight, Mrs. D. Shantz, Mrs. O. Wagar, Mrs. C. W. Smith and Mrs. W. Townson, and in the tea room by Mrs. T. Poste, Mrs. P. Holmes, Mrs. H. Hutt, Mrs. K. E. Parks, Mrs. R. Taylor and Mrs. W. Cone.

Treasurers at the door were: Mrs. H. Dixon, Mrs. W. Phillips, Mrs. A. Campbell and Mrs. A. Daniels.

Four generations of one family attended the tea yesterday at Holloway Street United Church. From left, back row, Mrs. J. E. Bond, mother, Mrs. E. Parks, greatgrandmother, Mrs. L. L. Perkin, grandmother. Front row, Julia Bond, Linda Bond and Heather Bond, all great grandchildren. Mrs. Perkin and the Bonds came from Toronto for the tea.

Ann Landers

Signed Blank Cheques Are A Temptation to Fraud

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We aren't millionaires but we do have a considerable amount of money in our joint account. My husband has the habit of signing his name to cheques and then he lets people fill in the amount.

For example, we had some stone masonry done last week and the man who did the work said he hadn't figured out the cost of the job yet. My husband wrote a cheque, signed it and said "Fill in the amount when you figure it."

When I told my husband this was dangerous he answered, "I trust people."

I believe the man is honest, but what if he lost the cheque and someone who wasn't honest picked it up? What can you suggest. — WIFE OF RECKLESS ROBERT.

DEAR WIFE — It's admirable to trust people, and Reckless Robert may never regret it. But it is foolish, for the reason you mentioned and for another reason. In the same way that keys left in the ignition might tempt someone to steal a car, a signed cheque might tempt someone to write a larger cheque than he ought to write.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A group of us high school students composed some rules for teachers to follow. Please print them in your column.

Ten Commandments for Teachers

1. A teacher should be neat and appropriately dressed.
2. A teacher should not apply make-up, or comb her hair during class.
3. A teacher should not eat, drink or take medicine in front of students.
4. A teacher should avoid playing favorites.
5. A teacher should not be influenced too strongly by first impressions.
6. A teacher should give at least a day of notice on all tests.
7. A teacher should not manhandle students.
8. A student should strive for a happy medium between being too personal and too distant.
9. A teacher should not cause students to fear her.
10. A teacher should keep her temper and not raise her voice.

thank you. — COMMITTEE FOR BETTER TEACHERS.

DEAR COMMITTEE — I'll bet if the teachers were asked to compose Ten Commandments for students some of the same items would appear on their lists — for example: Rules 1, 2, 3, 5, 9 and 10.

Your best rule is Number 4. Many teachers would do well to keep this in mind.

As for rule Number 7, I would like to add a word of my own. In New Jersey several months ago the governor signed a "Hit the Kid Back" bill which gives teachers the right to protect themselves in the classroom. Most high school kids these days are bigger than the teachers. It's the teachers who need protection against manhandling — not the kids.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I belong to a club that meets every other week. We play cards and the winners put half their winnings into a kitty which we donate to a worthy charity at the end of the year. The officers decide which charity gets the money.

A certain clique has been running the club for the past two years because they hold the offices. This clique has been voting that the money be given to their pet charity and we resent it.

Yesterday we had another election of officers. The president and vice president are sisters. The president's daughter-in-law is secretary and her cousin is the treasurer. The vice president's niece is a patient in the hospital. We know right now where the money is going again. Is this fair? — MUTINY IN THE RANKS.

DEAR RANKS — Do the by-laws say relatives cannot hold office? If not — then it's fair.

* * *

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Paris Department Stores Increase Sales Each Year

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—The average Parisian housewife says she dislikes shopping in a department store.

She insists the large stores are crowded and overheated, there is nowhere to park a car, and too great a temptation to spend more money than originally intended.

Yet recent statistics show sales in the four leading Paris department stores are increasing by an average of 10 per cent each year. One store doubled its gross sales in the five years between 1958 and 1963.

A director of this store said the majority of housewives spend at least one-half day each week in a major department store. They buy small miscellaneous items locally, but major purchases are carefully calculated and usually made during the weekly visit to the department store.

Thursday and Saturday afternoons, when French schools are closed, account for the largest turnover.

The department stores' increasing popularity among society women and the fashion-conscious Parisienne is a sign of the changing times. Formerly, most women who could afford to be dressed by the high fashion houses sent their maids off to a department store to make any purchases they might need.

In recent years, however, Paris couturiers have opened boutiques within the department stores to sell their ready-to-wear fashions. Well-dressed women were attracted and set off to have a look.

FEATURE BAVARIAN PIE

I needed somebody's shoulder to cry on (I had it) for the first crust I made for this pie was a failure — it stuck. Then I needed somebody to laugh with (I had that too) for the second crust was a success — it did not stick.

The pie I'm referring to is a beauty called Festive Bavarian Pie and it may be made in advance.

FESTIVE FRUITED BAVARIAN PIE (serves 6 to 8):

Coconut Crumb Crust: 1 cup fine cracker crumbs (if used ritz), 1 cup desiccated cocoanut, ½ cup soft butter, 4 tablespoons sugar.

Filling: 2½ teaspoons plain gelatine, 5 tablespoons cold water, 2 eggs, 1/3 cup sugar, ½ cup milk, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1/3 cup chopped pecans, ½ cup sliced drained red and green maraschino cherries, 2 slices canned pineapple, cut into twelfths, drained, 12 miniature or 4 large quartered marshmallows, 1 cup 32% cream, whipped.

Make the Crust first by mixing together evenly the fine crumbs, cocoanut, soft butter and sugar. Press over bottom of plate 1¼" deep. Patiently pat the crumb mixture into pie plate to make a smooth even edge. Bake 6 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Cool to room temperature.

To make the Filling soak the gelatine in the cold water 5 minutes. In top of double boiler mix together the eggs, sugar and salt. Place over boiling water and stir in the milk until thick. Remove from heat and add the gelatine liquid until dissolved. Chill until softly set. Fold in pecans, sliced drained cherries, cut pineapple and marshmallows, then fold in whipped cream. Pour filling into cooled crust. Chill 3 or 4 hours or overnight. You may have 2 oz. of 32% cream left-over. I did. If so, when serving time approaches, whip it until stiff and garnish top of cold pie with pouffs of whipped cream. Decorate each puff with a half of a red or green drained maraschino cherry. If desired, put a whole pecan between each puff.

Honor Institute Member at Tea

REDNERSVILLE—Mrs. Earl Onderdonk of Redneresville Women's Institute was honored at a tea at Albury Church on Thursday evening.

Past president Mrs. Clarence Vanclief was in charge and readings were given by Mrs. Morley Rowcliffe and Mrs. T. Carter. A piano trio of Mrs. H. Townsend, Mrs. Elmer Young and Miss Linda Fulver rendered a selection. Mrs. Charles Weese accompanied by Mrs. Reed sang a solo and a duet by Mrs. Morley Wood and Mrs. Hugh Weese, accompanied by Mrs. Earl McKay favored with a number.

Several members put on a fashion parade of hats which they had made. "This Is Your Life" was presented in honor of Mrs. Onderdonk when several ladies took part. In turn Mrs. Onderdonk presented the president, Mrs. H. Townsend, a gavel for the Institute.

At the close a dessert luncheon was enjoyed by all.

(Special Note: I want you to register this easy shortcut. — it isn't as good but it is better than passable. If you do not have time to make the jelled custard filling above you can make up a package of vanilla pudding mix according to package directions and add the pecans, pineapple, cherries and marshmallow (but omit whipped cream) to it when it is lukewarm and before pouring it into the cocoanut-crumb shell. If you use this shortcut filling you could substitute some cream for some of the milk called for on the vanilla pudding package.)

Successful Living

Widow, Mother of Three, Told to Defend Her Rights

DEAR DORIS — I am a widow with three children, nine, seven and four. We are on social assistance. We are poor, no TV, no furniture of our own and renting a place where we share a bathroom.

DORIS CLARK

This causes a lot of trouble as the people forget to unlock our bathroom door and are mostly out for the day. Nobody in there to unlock that door until they come home in the evening. What should I do? — LONELY AND ALONE.

DEAR LONELY — You have just as much right to insist on co-operation as the next fellow. See the landlord and make an arrangement for a key on both sides of the door. Plan with the other tenant for a signal to indicate when the room is occupied.

You are a worthy citizen and doing a worth while job of raising three young Canadians. Don't let anybody talk you down.

DEAR DORIS — I am 30 years of age; and I am interested in a girl 21 years of age. I am planning on writing a "friendly letter" to her.

According to etiquette do I ask her for permission to correspond with her? Could you suggest what to write in the first letter, in order to be tactful? Is a seven year age difference taboo in our society? What disadvantages are there in such an age difference? — NEARLY NEW CANADIAN.

DEAR NEARLY NEW — Yes, ask. Make your first epistle brief. Discuss, perhaps, your interest in studying English, or the work you do. Ask about her interests or family. Describe a humorous incident. Sign off soon.

No, there's no taboo on the age difference. Just be sure she is not living in a completely different world. Twenty-one is often a long way behind 30 in worldliness.

DEAR DORIS — I would like information regarding the meaning of wearing rings on this or that hand or finger. Is it right for a widow or divorced person to move her rings from one hand or finger to another? Why do some men wear a signet ring on the wedding finger and others on their right hand? — INTERESTED.

DEAR INTERESTED — Unless she gets engaged again, a widow keeps her rings on her wedding finger. A divorcee may remove the wedding ring and wear the engagement ring on her right hand if she wishes.

A man has the option of wearing a ring on right or left hand, unless it is a wedding ring, which belongs on the wedding finger.

A man's signet or other ring is usually seen on the little finger.

DEAR DORIS — Recently I received my secondary school graduation diploma but did not get any credit for one year of Spanish which I took in Grade 11. I obtained 90% on the first 90 lessons in Grade 11, but had to move away.

Now I am tempted to complete this two-year course by correspondence and get standing in it. I am very timid about jumping into this fast since I have heard that some correspondence schools are on the shady side. Cards are attached from two about which I would like your opinion. — FARM BOY.

DEAR FARM BOY — A student like you should be able to romp through it. If you could attend night school I'd prefer it to correspondence, but have written you privately approving one of the schools you mention as being O.K'd by the department of education.

Before enrolling, though, it might be worth while to talk to your principal. It might just happen that a retired teacher in your area would take you on for some tutoring. Great way to learn, when it's a language.

B. and P. Women Hold Annual Coffee Party

B and P Women Hold — JESS. — A balmy evening and the hospitality of Mrs. George K. Graham of the Trent Road assured the success of the annual coffee party of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club, on Wednesday evening.

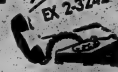
Over 200 ladies from Napanee, Trenton, Brighton, Tweed and Belleville enjoyed coffee, sandwiches and small cakes and a visit with old and new acquaintances.

Overall convener for the party was Charlotte Strachan, who was assisted by conveners Kathy Lambert, Colombe Both and Shirley Woodcox.

Official hostesses were the president, Marie Huffman, Mrs. George K. Graham and Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, while many more members circulated among the guests, making introductions, serving and generally ensuring that each person was having an enjoyable evening.

Lois Brown and Joy Nichols acted as ticket conveners.

The gleaming coffee table was covered with lace, with green and gold tapers in silver candelabra and a centre of yellow chrysanthemums and carnations. Irene Haig, Florence Fitzgerald, Joy Nichols and Charlotte Lockyer poured coffee.



Audrey Hall was in charge of the kitchen and Jean Stephenson directed a tea pool from Belleville for transportation of guests.

During the evening two draws were made. A mink collar donated by a local furrier was won by Irene Haig and a Barbie doll and wardrobe was won by Mrs. Bruce Simpson.

All members of the club were most appreciative of Mrs. Graham's kindness in opening her lovely home for their party.

The convenors also expressed appreciation to all the diligent members whose efforts made the party such a success.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority

Presidents of the five chapters in Belleville are: June Sine, Xi Beta Zeta; Trudy Thornton, Xi Alpha Mu; Joan Young, Alpha Lambda; Judy Blaker, Phi Psi; Margo Hall, Gamma Mu.

What Women Are Doing

Beta Sigma Phi, an international non-academic, Greek letter society with over 130,000 members of many different nationalities was originally formed in Abilene, Kansas, on April 20th, 1931. The founder, Walter W. Ross, felt that young women struggling through the throes of the depression, needed the warmth and comfort of friendships — a wider knowledge and deeper culture. From the first small chapter of seven members, Beta Sigma Phi, with international offices at Kansas City, grew rapidly and still grows with new chapters being added monthly. The aims of the organization have always remained the same — to unite in friendship women of similar interests and to promote the cultural development of these members through prescribed courses of study. Membership is by invitation only with three degrees of progression — Nu Phi Mu, Ritual of Jewels and Exemplar. Nu Phi Mu is for girls under the age of twenty-one years and four years are spent in each degree with automatic progression at the end of that time.

The International office provides every chapter with their program books for the current year. These are specially prepared for the sorority's exclusive use and provide a guide for the members who are each responsible for preparing one cultural program. These range from exploration of music, the theatre, art and literature to home decorating, gardening and other hobbies.

The yellow rose is the symbol of Beta Sigma Phi and it always in evidence at social events. Each degree of Beta Sigma Phi has its own Greek letter pin with its significant symbols denoting the motto "Vita Scientia, Amicitia" — Life, Learning and Friendship. Traditional events also take place in Beta Sigma Phi such as the Preferential Tea to which any prospective pledges are invited — Founder's Day celebrated annually in April and many chapters have a "Girl of the Year" party to close the season.

At the present time, five Beta Sigma Phi Chapters are active in the city of Belleville and two in the neighboring town of Trenton. Belleville has a Nu Phi Mu chapter founded this past fall season — two Ritual of Jewels chapters and two Exemplar chapters totalling approximately 125 members in all. A well-known social activity in Belleville is the annual Black and Gold Ball, sponsored by one chapter.

Though Beta Sigma Phi is first a friendship-cultural organization, each group devotes a portion of its time to service. This may be in assistance to the local hospital, supporting a foster child through the Save the Children Plan, giving scholarships at local high schools, or donating to one of the many local charities.

Beta Sigma Phis have held bridge parties, fashion shows, puppet shows and devised other money-making schemes to raise funds for their special projects. At the present time, all chapters are making donations to a Canada-wide fund in order that a significant contribution may be made during the Canadian Centennial Year. The nature of the gift has yet to be decided, but most likely will be of a cultural nature and presented at Ottawa.

"The only right you have is the right to be useful" it states in the book of Beta Sigma Phi — perhaps this is why so many busy young women of Belleville find this organization a source of satisfaction and happiness.

A DAB'LL DO

Dear Readers: The following suggestion from Mrs. French works exactly like a magic formula. It is one of those ideas that leaves me quite breathless — although not quite speechless!

Dear Susanna: When tackling your own home decorating chores, it is almost impossible not to get paint splatters on the hands and arms.

The simplest, most bland way I know to remove paint from the skin is by the use of paste wax. Take a dab of wax and rub it gently over the mark — it just seems to melt the paint away before your eyes and you can wipe the wax and paint off together completely with a soft cloth or paper towel.

I recommend this method particularly for children's tender skin. We all know that they like to help too, and of course the results are always the same — more on them than on the article to be painted.

This way however, there is no need to scrub or burn their skin with rubbing or with harsh chemicals in order to remove the paint. — Mrs. A. French

Dear Susanna: Dry out small thin pieces of toilet bar soap and save them for hubby when he is working at his carpenter's bench — they are just right for marking pieces of metal and wood.

Also, if you are sewing dark material and don't have a piece of marking chalk handy, these bits of dry soap are a dandy substitute. — Grandma

Hitler's Europe

The Blitzkrieg! 'The New Order'

Victory after victory in the diplomatic field solidified Hitler's hold on Germany and expanded his European power. Then the Nazi leader let loose his war machine. The following third of four articles on the rise and fall of Nazi Germany 30 years ago, tells of Hitler's early military successes.

Nazi Germany (part III) by

By JOHN BAUSMAN

BERLIN (AP)—Adolf Hitler had secured a diplomatic victory at Munich in 1938. It paved the way for his occupation of all of Czechoslovakia in March of 1939.

And eight days later, in a little-remembered land grab, he added a small chunk of Lithuania to East Prussia.

These were his last peacetime conquests. The next victim was to be Poland and this step launched the grim six-year war that ended just 20 years ago in the collapse of Hitlerite Germany.

But Hitler, rising with heady speed to the peak of his power, foresaw no disaster for the expanding 1,000-year Reich.

He advised his chief lieutenants that the next step would bring war and busied himself through the summer with plans to invade Poland.

The Nazi target for the Polish invasion was the end of summer, but not until Aug. 23 did Hitler finally achieve the device that was to spare him, for a time, a two-front war — the German-Soviet pact.

SIGNS PACT WITH STALIN

Playing on Soviet distrust of England and France, Hitler got Joseph Stalin to agree to a 10-year treaty to split up Poland and divide interests in Eastern Europe. It was destined to be broken by the German leader in less than two years.

In the final days of peace, Britain and France, both obligated by treaty to come to the aid of Poland, negotiated feverishly to halt the drift toward war.

But on Sept. 1, Hitler had his trusted bodyguard organization, the SS, stage a fake Polish attack against a German radio station at Gleiwitz. Later that morning, he solemnly told the Reichstag that the Poles had fired on German territory and the Germans were returning the fire.

Poland German forces rolled in strength across the Polish frontier. War had started. It quickly spread with the entry of Britain and France Sept. 3 and Canada Sept. 10.

The Germans speedily overran Poland, within a week had poured 1,500,000 men into the country, had eliminated the Polish air force and routed its army. The government fled from Warsaw, although that city's valiant garrison was to hold out for another 20 days.

FIRST BLITZKRIEG

It was the first taste of the Nazi blitzkrieg, the meticulously planned and carefully coordinated strikes of air power and tanks that cut with spear-like thrusts into enemy territory.

With Poland defeated, the war so ardently resisted by Germany's enemies and even her ally Italy settled down to an eerie, unreal standstill. The German dictator had rightly guessed that Britain and France would cause little trouble in the West.

Now Hitler was anxious for an attack of his own to the West and repeatedly clashed with his general staff, which dragged its feet, fearing disaster in an overhasty campaign.

In the end, another venture forced the postponement of a move against France. For his eventual war against Russia and the sea battle against England, Hitler needed to secure his Scandinavian flank and decided that Denmark and Norway should be taken before the major engagement in the West.

Early in the morning of April 9, 1940, with German troops already embarked, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop had his envoys in Copenhagen and Oslo present brazen demands that these governments accept immediately "the protection of the Reich." The Danes, unable to put up armed resistance against their giant neighbor, yielded.

The Norwegians held out and, with British and French support, resisted the Nazis in the north. The Nazi attack against France in the meantime, forced the Allies to withdraw their help and the Norwegians surrendered June 12. Hitler had chalked up another victory.

By now his war in the West was virtually won and was following the most optimistic blitzkrieg timetable. Holland and Belgium were the first victims and on June 14 Germans entered Paris.

Behind the dazzling front of victories, the Nazis already were busy with cruel work that was to be the darkest shame of the German nation.

OPEN DEATH CAMPS

On June 14, the day the Germans entered Paris, the Nazis officially opened at Auschwitz in southern Poland a new concentration camp, destined to become the monstrous death factory where millions of human beings were slaughtered. The gas chambers, where eventually 2,000 persons could be killed at one time, had not yet been developed, but the nazis were experimenting with monoxide gas piped into closed trucks to kill some victims of their "mercy killing" programs.

At Mauthausen, at Dachau and numerous other concentration camps, the death lists were growing. From occupied countries came reports of mass brutality and millions of Jews in Poland were herded into sealed ghettos.

Occupied Europe was experiencing the pain of living under the Nazi "New Order."

The full detail of Nazi horror and crime would come to light only after the war and still haunts the German people in war-crime trials running 20 years after the defeat of the Nazi Reich.

Do This, Sir Alec Do That, Sir Alec

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Tories, like most other people, seem to be responding to the renewal qualities of the English spring. They're hard at it again—things up ways of modernizing Sir Alec.

Put on some weight, Sir Alec, take off your specs, Sir Alec, don't wag your finger like a school ma'm, Sir Alec, bone up on economics, Sir Alec—the suggestions are legion.

Sometimes the form of advice for Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Conservative leader, varies slightly.

"Sir Alec: Now the best is on," yells a front-page headline in the Tory Daily Mail, as if he hadn't been hearing that particular shout for months.

It isn't only Tories, the Tory press and Harold Wilson, the Labor prime minister, who are picking on Sir Alec. The Communist Daily Worker depicts the former 14th Earl of Home as a man who has parked his coronet in the upper house, now is in the lower house and heading for the dog house.

This sort of thing continues although Sir Alec is, in fact, himself showing signs of joining the so-called "with it" set, rattling off gags about how he, the eagle from the north, cobbled up the sitting duck, Wilson, etc., etc.

CAN'T HELP FACE

"I don't take much notice of the discussion about my television image," Sir Alec remarked. "I can't help how my face is made.

"If you have prominent bones you need more makeup than if you have a round, vacuous face."

Vacuous: "Empty, void, unintelligent, expressionless, vacant; hence vacuity." Wilson, it was quickly noted, has one of the rounded faces in Britain.

Numerous politicians, indeed, noticed on shaving the morning after Sir Alec's crack that their faces are uncannily round. These could include such well-fed possible successors of Sir Alec as Quintin Hogg, Reginald Maudling, Edward Heath, Sir Edward Boyle and Christopher Soames.

Wilson enjoys making elaborate jokes at Sir Alec's expense when some or all of these well upholstered gentlemen are sitting on the Tory front bench in the House of Commons, somewhat overshadowing the lean Scottish aristocrat.

"I would like to assure the right honorable leader of the Opposition of the unity of his support, at least on this side of the House," said Wilson on a typical occasion.

Despite the pinpricks, there is considerable evidence that it's the Conservative party, and not Sir Alec, which is in the process of redefining its own beliefs and "image."

TORIES LOST

The Tories were ousted by Labor by only a handful of seats last October and many Conservatives now maintain "Wilson didn't really win—we lost the election and it was our own fault."

Vocal critics charge that the byelection result proves the Scottish laird should quit forthwith, but meanwhile the whole Conservative apparatus is seething in perhaps a more significant process of change.

Heath, former trade minister, and Boyle, former education minister, are heading a new advisory committee on policy, which watches over 21 groups concerned with specific topics. There are an additional 300 groups at work throughout Britain.

Maudling, regarded by many as the likeliest successor to Sir Alec, has come out flatly for the Tory party identifying itself as the party of the right—the party of the individual.

Maudling's speech coincides with the publication of several pamphlets by bright young Tories, advocating a clearer stand and stating their faith in a high degree of competition at the expense of social equality and possibly of social welfare.

DID HE WANT THE TIME?

LIVERPOOL (CP)—When the Shah of Persia visited a local telecommunications factory, the owners were anxious to demonstrate their equipment by placing a radio-phone call to the Iranian Embassy in London. All the lines were busy, so the Shah had to settle for the "speaking clock" instead.

Would Compel Drivers to Take Breath Tests

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Highway Safety Council Wednesday called for federal legislation to make breath tests of drivers suspected of drinking mandatory.

Delegates to the council's annual meeting also called for revision of two sections of the Criminal Code which deal with drinking drivers.

They suggested in a resolution that the sections—on impaired and drunk driving—be changed to refer simply to impaired driving.

The resolution also asked that blood tests and urine tests be permitted as supplementary evidence to breath tests.

REJECT RED LICENCES

About 150 delegates at a closed session on the final day of the three-day convention rejected a resolution that drivers convicted of serious traffic offences be issued red licences bearing the word "probation" as a warning to other motorists.

Another resolution calls for a uniform traffic code and central registry for drivers' licences and car registrations.

It suggests there is a problem with interprovincial law enforcement where people convicted in one province can escape punishment by leaving the province.

Delegates also urged that driver requirements and examinations be made uniform across the country.

Arts Centre Is Approved By Board

TORONTO (CP) — Board of control approved plans Wednesday for the St. Lawrence Centre for the Arts, Toronto's centennial project.

The plans, submitted by the Toronto Arts Foundation, include a 750-seat concert hall and an 820-seat theatre across from the downtown O'Keefe Centre.

Cost of the project is now estimated at $13,130,000, up $375,000 from the original estimate.

In addition, a parking lot for 1,500 cars will be built for $2,250,000. It will be paid for through parking charges and not from tax funds.

The report now goes to city council and then to the Ontario Municipal Board, which has already approved $1,200,000 for land acquisition, $750,000 for restoring St. Lawrence Hall and $50,000 for preliminary designs and site planning.

Small Trees Saved From Grass Fire

STIRLING — Local township evening hotel fire engines were called in Mill Street to extinguish a fire which had ignited in the grass along Hayden Creek.

The fire began near the home of John Svoboda and was extinguished near the home of Charles Dendale. A large number of small trees had been planted along the creek a few years ago by Frank Harding at the edge of his property and fortunately these were saved.

The firemen poured water on the blaze for one hour before it was extinguished.

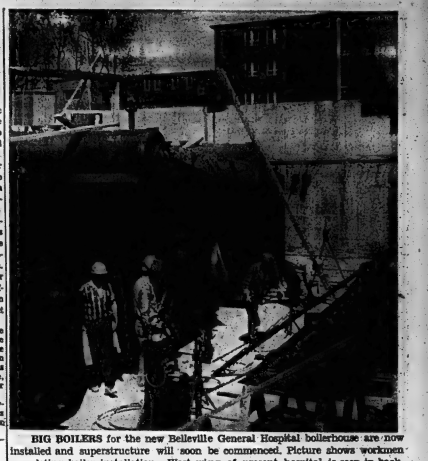
Quebec Plans To Extend Voting Age

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government plans to extend the vote in municipal elections to all persons 18 years of age and over.



Pierre Laporte, the minister of municipal affairs, made the statement Wednesday at a meeting of the legislature's private bills committee.

He said a general bill amending the law on cities and towns and the municipal code will be submitted to the legislature during the current session.

He said it would provide for application of universal suffrage for persons 18 and over in municipal elections throughout the province.

Wednesday, the committee adopted a bill amending the charter of Quebec City. The bill grants universal suffrage in municipal elections to residents more than 18 years of age, whether they own property or not.

At present only property-owners of more than 21 years of age are allowed to vote on run in municipal elections.

Heavy Capital Costs Required Says Engineer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada says it expects to spend almost $1,250,000,000 for construction and equipment programs in the next five years.

That forecast for the 1965-69 period compares with an actual capital outlay of $1,007,218,000 in the last five years.

Alex G. Lester, Bell's vice-president for engineering, testified Wednesday before the board of transport commissioners on the heavy capital requirements needed to keep the company's Ontario and Quebec telephone operations in pace with customer growth and modern techniques.

The board is holding public hearings to review Bell's financial status and determine what changes, if any, are needed in its permissive level of income. Bell is proposing a new formula to allow it a higher profit level, a move opposed by several groups.

Lovell C. Carroll of Montreal, counsel representing 105 Ontario and Quebec municipalities which oppose a higher profit level for the privately - owned utility, asked how an economic recession might affect the 1965-69 capital forecast.

Mr. Lester said unforeseen conditions might reduce the program by as much as 15 per cent. But it was also possible that an upward revision might be needed.

Major C. W. Bristol presents the Duffy Trophy for the best cadet in the ranks to Derek Hutchinson. The action took place yesterday at the cadet inspection at Moira Secondary School.

Moira Cadet Corps Praised By Inspecting Officer

Major C. W. Bristol of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was the inspecting officer at the fifth annual inspection of the Moira Secondary School Cadet Corps yesterday.

A sizeable crowd of students and parents were on hand to watch the cadets perform on the parade square. Afterwards, there were demonstrations by the band and informative displays on map using, the bren gun, first aid, signals and the recoilless rifle.

Members of the inspecting party were: Major Bristol; Lt. J. W. Owen, CD Headquarters, Eastern Ontario Area, Kingston; Capt. R. C. Rowe, Chairman of Bay of Quinte District High School Board; Mr. W. J. Musgrove, Principal; S/Sgt. F. A. Goodyear, Kingston, and Capt. J. Reid, Chief Instructor of the cadets.

The cadets, under the leadership of Cadet Major Keith Sero, impressed the inspecting party with their display.

Major Bristol said, "I am very pleased with the improvement you've shown over the last time I was here. You did an excellent job. Your steadiness was greatly improved, your band was better and you were all in step. The only thing that hasn't improved is your numbers."

The Major expressed hopes that some of the boys on parade would consider the army as a future career and added, "This is a voluntary corps, and those of you in uniform today should stand a little higher because of it. The Canadian armed services in the two wars was voluntary too, and you all know how proud we are of those volunteers.

"There are two kinds of people here today. First, those who stand on the sidelines and admire you because you are trying to do a job well, and second, those who scoff at you. Those who come to scoff can always find someone who was out of step for a while and make a big thing of that, but those who came to admire you will certainly be pleased with your showing.

"We go through life this way, with the knockers and the boosters. You people on parade have shown that you are boosters and our society will be made better because of you."

W. J. Musgrove, principal of Moira Secondary School, also addressed the cadets. "If you are going to be a leader, you must first learn to take orders. You have exemplified that very well today. Congratulations on a splendid show."

The Duffy Trophy for the best cadet in the ranks, was presented by Major Bristol to Derek Hutchinson, and the Rifle Shooting Award for the best shot in the corps was given to Andrew Sword.

SEES TRANSPORT PROBLEM

HALIFAX (CP) — Mayor Charles Vaughan of Halifax said Wednesday urban transportation will be the biggest problem facing Canadian municipalities in the next 10 years. Mayor Vaughan, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said the possibility of national research on transportation will be considered at the federation's annual meeting in Windsor, Ont., May 17-20.

Prime Minister Pearson Admits Sale of Uranium To France Being Discussed

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday that arrangements are being made for ministerial discussions with France on the possible sale of a "large amount" of uranium oxide to that country.

The sale would involve uranium worth some $438,000,000.

Mr. Pearson repeated an earlier statement that Canada's international commitments governing the sale of uranium for peaceful purposes will be observed.

The New Democratic Party Leader, T. C. Douglas, asked Mr. Pearson whether the government would handle the sale through a Crown agency. Newspaper reports had said that negotiations were being carried out between Denison Mines Ltd. and the French government and Mr. Douglas said he understood that exports of uranium are handled by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

Mr. Pearson said the government is not involved in the commercial negotiations between the company and the French government. But the government would be involved in the licensing of exports to ensure all obligations are fulfilled. He said the government has been in touch with the French government and arrangements are being made to begin discussions at the ministerial level.

He said there still are too many factors involved to draw any conclusions but he hoped it would be possible to arrive at a "mutually acceptable basis" for the sale.

The prime minister said the government regarded the maintenance of the Canadian uranium mines at the present level as of primary importance.

Creditiste Leader Caouette asked Mr. Pearson whether a contract with France would help to reopen the mines at Elliot Lake, in the prime minister's own riding of Algoma East.

Mr. Pearson said this would depend on the details of the contract. And he told Rod Webb (PC — Hastings - Frontenac) that Hanover, Ont., where other uranium mines have closed, "will be very much in our minds."

Canada has international commitments that any sale of uranium abroad must be for peaceful and not military purposes.

SUDBURY (CP) — The Star says announcement of the signing of a deal with France to supply 100,000,000 pounds of uranium is expected to be made about May 20.

Trade Minister Sharp and External Affairs Minister Martin are to fly to Paris for the final ministerial meeting May 17 to iron out remaining details of the negotiations on which general agreement has already been reached, the newspaper says.

The deal is expected to keep the Denison Mines at Elliot Lake, 80 miles west of here, working at full capacity for the next 20 years and could, with the escalating price structure proposed, amount to as much as $700,000,000, it says. Initial price is expected to be about $4.29 a pound.

While Denison carried out the negotiations in the preliminary stage, there was a strong indication that the federal government may require the company to sub-contract part of the deal to Rio Algom, which also has uranium mines at Elliot Lake, The Star says.

Youth Charged Considered Family Member

STRATFORD (CP)—A man charged with the capital murder of a Kitchener school teacher was described by the slain girl's father Wednesday as being "considered a member of the family."

Foort Vandervliet was testifying during the second day of the preliminary hearing of Jon Pitman, 21, charged in the Feb. 14 bludgeon-shooting death of Marianne Vandervliet while she was visiting her parents's home in Dublin, 16 miles west of Stratford.

Mr. Vandervliet said the accused, who worked as a hired hand on his farm, had gone to church with the family on the Sunday morning of the slaying.

The father said he discovered his daughter's body late that afternoon when the family returned home from visiting friends at St. Marys, about 10 miles south of Dublin.

He said Pitman had been invited to go along but he declined, saying he wanted to stay home and rest. Mr. Vandervliet said his 16-year-old daughter also told the family she planned to stay home that afternoon.

Dr. J. L. Penistan of Stratford, provincial pathologist, testified there was no evidence of an attempted sexual attack on the girl. He said his examination revealed a severe blow on the back of the head.

Dr. Penistan said a bullet wound in the girl's breast apparently had been inflicted after the head blow.

A .22-calibre rifle, its stock smashed, was found beside a chesterfield on which the girl lay.

Mr. Vandervliet identified the rifle as his. He said Pitman used it to hunt on occasions and he and Pitman used to joke about the latter's poor marksmanship.

Pitman was arrested in Sarnia the day after the shooting.

Man Posing As Amish Is Deported

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Calvin A. Laskey, 47, who had been posing as an Amish farmer and carpenter, was ordered Wednesday held in custody until deportation to Canada.

Laskey, wearing a beard, long hair and Amish garb, was arrested Monday in the town of Intercourse, near Lancaster, by FBI agents.

At the hearing before Daniel J. Schroll, special inquiring officer for the U.S. immigration service, it developed that Laskey had been deported seven times previously from the U.S. Testimony showed he had been arrested 10 times for grand larceny and dishonorably discharged from the U.S. Navy.

Laskey, who gave Saint John, N.B., as his Canadian address, requested permission to leave the United States voluntarily. This was denied. He said he had $45 and an automobile and trailer at Lancaster and wanted to pick them up before leaving.

Laskey said he was raised in an orphanage and after hearing of the Old Order Amish wanted to become part of the group. He said he was not accepted but worked with them as a carpenter and butcher until arrested. He appeared at the hearing clean shaved and was not wearing Amish clothing. He called himself Daniel Fisher while posing as an Amishman.

New Hospital Boilerhouse Job Is Well Underway

There is no suggestion that construction will be completed in time for Hospital Day on May 12th, but the first stage of building for the new Belleville General Hospital addition is well underway.

The initial phase of building for the new $7,000,000 hospital project is the new boiler room which now is beginning to show above the ground. Construction was started in January and is hoped to be completed in August.

Hugh Murray Ltd., general contractors for the boiler house and connecting underground tunnel to the new hospital wing has the basement walls in and the three mammoth boilers installed. Contract price is $363,649.

Excavation for the underground tunnel connecting the boiler house to the hospital is well underway, with forms for the west end tunnel walls about to go up.

The big boilers to heat the hospital are being installed by Dominion Bridge as part of the boiler house contract.

Construction of the boilerhouse as the initial phase of the new hospital construction was a "must" as the present boiler house is to be torn down to make way for the new building. The boilerhouse is being constructed immediately to the south of Education Hall. The long underground tunnel is necessary to run steam pipes and other services to the hospital.

Tenders for the new hospital addition are expected to be called during the summer or early fall.

Fire Damages Swedish Ship At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Fire severely damaged the Hispanio's, a 6,152-ton Swedish flag freighter, in Montreal harbor early today.

The crew was evacuated from the ship and there were no injuries reported. Sailors left in their nightclothes by taxi for the Montreal Sailors' Institute.

The ship herself, however, was reported listing toward the dock because of fire-hose water in its cabins.

The Montreal fire department said 25 of its trucks were at the dock where the Hispaniola was moored to fight the blaze. They extinguished it towards sunrise.

C. W. Olufsson, the ship's captain, told a reporter the fire of unknown origin broke out "in the top bridge accommodation room."

The ship arrives from South Africa and had due to leave today.

Grain Sales - - Key To New Port Records

By MICHAEL BLAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Cargo records set at most Canadian ports this year are expected to be bettered in many cases this year, shipping officials say, as much depends on international grain sales and, for Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River ports, water levels.

The optimistic tone was set by Capt. R. D. T. Johnson, Vancouver port manager, who said "we're running neck and neck with last year and as I see it we can do neither but improve."

But an element of caution was evident at Montreal, Port Arthur and Fort William where officials said it is difficult to estimate whether shipments will increase because of the lack of any major grain sales to date.

And while Montreal port authorities expect a good year, they are concerned that extremely low water levels in the harbor could prevent large bulk-carriers from entering.

The level of the St. Lawrence is six inches below the 35-foot minimum required by Montreal harbor.

"It means large bulk-carriers can't fill up here and must stop off with cargo at a point farther down the river," says Jean Bourguignon, secretary of the Montreal Port Council, adding that "this costs money."

TONNAGE UP

Preliminary figures for 1964 show that the volume of freight handled at Canadian ports was up to 232,952,022 tons from 206,-231,286 in 1963. Cargoes bound for or from foreign countries were up 14.3 per cent to 130,-982,822 tons from 114,567,311. Domestic cargoes were 11.1 per cent higher, at 101,969,199 tons compared with 91,733,977 tons the previous year.

Busiest port was Montreal which handled 21,326,207 tons compared with 20,723,732. It was followed closely by Vancouver with 18,952,368 tons compared with 17,883,181 in 1963.

Capt. Johnson said shipments from Vancouver have been above average for the last five years "and I think the coming year will be at least as good." He expects bulk-product shipments such as potash to increase.

One reason for Montreal's optimism, despite low water, was that its late April charts were twice as many ships in port as at the same time a year earlier.

"I don't know how big an increase we might expect, and having no control over grain shipments—which is our principal commodity—I can't even make any predictions," said a National Harbors Board official.

"We're now trying to show shippers that Montreal is a fast turnaround harbor, which means a saving in port costs."

As in Vancouver, Quebec City and, of course, the Lakehead, wheat was the biggest single product in terms of volume handled in Montreal.

In Halifax port manager J. R. Mitchell says he expects spring and summer traffic to be about the same as last year. With the opening of lake ports, Halifax traffic is falling off a little, "which is usual for this time of year."

"It will pick up slightly in mid-May when ships begin arriving from the Lakehead with grain." Lake ships carry grain to Halifax where it is transferred to ocean-going ships.

Mr. Mitchell said 564,143 tons of wheat were exported through Halifax last year, much of it to the Soviet Union. But the 2,112,215 tons of petroleum were the port's largest cargo. Total volume in 1964 was a record 8,600,137 tons compared with 6,186,484 the previous year.

Last year Lakehead ports handled 18,353,524 tons of cargo compared with 14,829,147, an increase mainly due to the $500,000,000 Soviet wheat deal. Wheat accounted for 10,598,334 tons of the total, with barley amounting to 1,074,893 tons and oats 686,826. One official said a good level of activity is expected this spring.

At Churchill, Man., shipping was down last year to 863,436 tons from 772,817 but officials said it will pick up again if grain shipments increase. Four new grain - cleaning machines have been installed at port grain elevators and all cleaning equipment has been overhauled during the winter to facilitate faster loading of grain. The shipping season at the Hudson Bay port is from July 22 to Oct. 15.

Paul Bousquet, Quebec port manager, says "the coming season, from all information available, should be very good." An increase in lumber exports is expected along with shipments of grain, newsprint, asbestos, wood pulp and fuel oil. Steel imports are also expected to rise.

Last year Quebec handled 4,027,218 tons compared with 3,790,113 the previous year and during the winter season 233,000 tons of cargo went through, about the same as in the 1963-64 season.

Seward MacDonald, executive director of the Saint John, N.B., Port and Industrial Development Commission, is "optimistic" about the spring and summer months. Cargo tonnage handled last year totalled 5,942,-772 compared with 5,254,347 in 1963.

There is similar optimism at such other ports as Sept-Iles, Que., which handled 16,602,786 tons of cargo last year, almost all of it iron ore, Hamilton, where coal and iron ore constitute more than two-thirds of the 3,236,616 tons, and Toronto which handled 2,663,421 tons, most of it fuels of various kinds.

Fined for Not Providing Lion With Food

ROCKLAND, Ont. (CP) Keith Sazsville, 41, was convicted Wednesday of failing to provide suitable food and shelter for a lion at nearby Woodland Zoo and ordered to pay a $50 fine and $216 court costs or spend 60 days in jail.

Sazsville was acquitted of a charge of neglecting 13 animals at a zoo at Clarence, Ont.

Magistrate J. A. Archambault said he agreed with Crown witnesses T. L. Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society, that such zoos should not be established without availability of public funds for maintenance.

Aku Aku Revisited

Canadian Sailor Finds Easter Island No Egg!

By FRED JOYCE

HALIFAX (CP)—Easter Island held several surprises for me and 37 other members of a Canadian medical expedition which spent two months there.

Finding other sources loadgate, we turned to Thor Heyerdahl's book, Aku Aku, as a reference before we arrived. Heyerdahl's expedition visited the Pacific Island, 2,000 miles west of Chile, in 1955-56.

The book said only one ship visits the island each year. But during our time there, from mid - December to mid - February, we had visits from three ships, two Chilean and one French.

We had been led to believe that Easter Island, known to its inhabitants as Rapa Nui, was almost treeless. We found lovely landscape comparing favorably with the highlands of Scotland and with parts of Nova Scotia.

We did not know whether we would find a primitive people or just an isolated people. It was a happy experience to find the people of Rapa Nui friendly, honest and quite intelligent.

FRUIT TREES GROW

Large areas of the 48-square-mile island are treeless. But around the village of Hanga Roa, where most of the islanders live, there are many trees, including stands of eucalyptus, mira tahiti and miro hiva. There are also numerous fig trees and banana groves.

The island also produces a number of coniferous trees, including cedar and boxwood. The natives decorate their homes with these for Christmas. The expedition, which was on Easter Island Dec. 25, had taken along two Canadian Christmas trees in the expedition ship Cape Scott's cold room. The trees were taken ashore just before the ship left, four days before Christmas. But they quickly turned brown in the prevailing 80 - degree daytime temperatures.

Most of the islanders have their own garden plots and produce delicious pineapples and watermelon, as well as yams and squash.

The inhabitants co-operated extremely well with the expedition. Many local volunteers helped the expedition set up its camp and later worked around the laboratories. Some of them learned complicated techniques easily and were of great help.

WANT TO RETURN

The simple society of Easter Island is undergoing a change and the expedition's trip probably coincided with the last year of relative isolation.

The islanders of this Chilean dependency want a larger say in their own affairs. They also hope to establish some light industry to employ the many young people who have no work, other than tending their garden plots and producing the small wood carvings that are used for barter when ships visit the island.

The members of the expedition were asked on their return from Easter Island if they wanted to return to that beautiful and historic place. All expressed a wish to go back.

But as Ken Lobcillon Englert, the island missionary for more than 30 years, told us: "Leaving Easter Island is not like leaving any other place in the world. Why? Because all visitors know in their hearts they will never come this way again. It is, I think the saddest parting of all."

Still, we can hope.

HMS Victory, Flagship Of Lord Nelson, Is Still On Duty in London

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—England expects that HMS Victory will do her duty today and every day—and that includes Friday, May 7, her 200th birthday.

But while Lord Nelson's flagship is still a "living ship," and therefore on duty officially, she carries on in a manner sedate and static befitting her venerable age.

Victory looks just as she did at the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805, the ship in which England's greatest naval hero died at a moment of triumph that foiled Napoleon's invasion hopes and made Britannia ruler of the waves for 100 years.

The frigate has survived the blitz and an invasion of beetles and, standing in a concrete berth at Portsmouth, she handles her duty with dignity—reminding some 300,000 tourists a year of glories past.

Visitors climb up her narrow gangway, duck through the low-beamed entrance, walk the decks where Nelson walked and gaze at the shrine-like cockpit where he said "Kiss me, Hardy" and died.

They marvel at the intricate network of lofty rigging, correct in every detail, and at the generally impeccable appearance of the ship. And well they might because £300,000 has been spent in the last 16 years alone on Victory which was already 40 years old—oldest in the fleet—at Trafalgar.

LAUNCHED AT CHATHAM

The three-decker, comparable in her day to a battleship of the Second World War or an aircraft carrier today, was launched at Chatham May 7, 1765.

Horatio Nelson, it is said, perhaps first saw Victory when he joined the navy as a boy of 12 in 1771 at Chatham while she was lying idle in the Medway.

She was serving as a hulk for sick prisoners of war in 1800 when he gave her a professional once-over and, enchanted by her lines, ordered an extensive refit before making her his flagship.

By then a vice-admiral, Nelson was already a hero and had lost his right eye and right arm in battle. And Victory had also distinguished herself in several campaigns before Nelson went aboard in 1803.

Generations of English schoolboys have been taught how, at the Battle of Trafalgar, Nelson boldly bore down with 27 ships on the Franco-Spanish fleet of 33 ships under Admiral Villeneuve on Oct. 21, 1805.

They have learned by heart how Nelson at the moment of triumph was struck down by a musket shot and died, with Capt. Thomas Hardy at his side, murmuring thanks for having done his duty.

They also know it was Nelson who, before the battle, sent the famous signal to his men: "England expects that every man will do his duty." But not so many know he transmitted the order with the thought that it would "amuse" them.

ATTACKED BY BEETLES

Victory saw action in Hitler's war—on the receiving end—and Nazi propagandists striving to undermine British morale broadcast in May, 1940, that the tall three-master was "gone." But the warship had only been damaged in an air raid on Portsmouth, a bomb landing under her port bow.

Finally the Victory almost came to grief under the ravages of the lowly death-watch beetle so named for the eerie tapping sound it makes in the silence of country houses.

A high-powered brain trust headed by Prof. Sir Albert Richardson, president of the Royal Academy, made war on the beetle and conquered it only after Victory had been unsuccessfully subjected to fumigations and other indignities. Radioactive pellets were injected into her three-foot-thick timbers and many of the timbers were replaced.

The refitting of the 227-foot, 2,000-ton, 104-gun Victory involved use of 34 miles of new Italian hemp, three tons of spun yarn, 300 yards of canvas. And today, Edward Boulton, who for seven years was the timber technologist advising on killing of beetles, says: "The hull now would be quite safe for her to go to sea if you could find the people to sail her."

Both Chatham and Portsmouth have prepared bicentenary ceremonies for this most famed of Britain's "wooden walls"—the best-known warship in the world.

The May 7-16 bicentenary week in Chatham will feature an exhibition contrasting the navy of 1765 with the navy today. The old port, which once produced most of the navy's "ships of the line," now is moving into the nuclear age by refitting hunter - killer submarines and also is building three submarines for the Canadian Navy.

Amateur actors will depict gun-deck scenes from the time of Nelson. And the celebrations will range from open-air dances to a dinner at which guests will include Earl Howe and Viscount Hood, descendants of one-time Victory commanders.

Portsmouth will extend the freedom of the city to the Royal Navy May 7 and the navy's top brass will attend a short service and Colors ceremony aboard the Victory.

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A political row involving the Union Jack has broken out in South Africa.

The flag issue threatens to split the white section of the nation, which is divided into two distinct language groups—English and Afrikaans—each with its own cultural and national backgrounds.

Bill Trollip, son of a ruling Nationalist Party cabinet minister, sparked off the uproar when he told a political meeting the "miserable" Union Jack should be "ripped out" of the present South African flag. (A small Union Jack forms part of the centerpiece of the national flag).

Trollip later supported his campaign for a change in the design of the South African flag by emphasizing that Canada now has a new flag without inclusion of the Union Jack.

His outburst was prompted by a report in an English-language magazine describing Premier Hendrik Verwoerd, Nationalist Party leader, as "an arrogant fanatic" and "the disciple of Hitler."

The flag issue has embarrassed the Nationalist Party, which is vote-hunting among the country's English-speaking people. Until recently the ruling party had been supported mainly by Afrikaans - speaking people of Boer descent.

The opposition United Party, which has the support of many English-speaking voters, is playing up the flag issue.

Enlarging on his remarks, Trollip told Johannesburg's independent Sunday Chronicle: "My point is that I am in favor of some symbolic representation in the South African flag which reflects the contribution the English-speaking people have made to this country. But I feel that the representation of the Union Jack is not acceptable to a large number of English-speaking people because of the present political climate."

Trollip said while he was himself English-speaking and regarded England as his second home, "the actions and utterances of British political leaders, embargoes and that sort of thing caused resentment here."

He was referring mainly to Britain's embargo on arms and ammunition to South Africa, imposed to protest South Africa's race segregation policies.

Trollip advocated for the South African flag "symbols which are acceptable to all groups and which are as innocuous as possible." He indicated he would not object to inclusion of the British lion, which is part of South Africa's national coat of arms.

Powered Toboggans Replace Dog Teams

By IRA DEYSDALE

WINNIPEG (CP)—There's a new way to get a moose in winter—chase him down on a power toboggan.

It may be easier than the time-worn method of tracking him on snowshoes, but it's also illegal—in Manitoba at least.

And as for its sporting merits, one old-school hunter says he wouldn't put in words fit to print what he thinks of it. The critic is G. W. Malaher, who directs the Manitoba wildlife branch and takes pride in his ability to track an animal.

Power toboggans have been infiltrating the domain of the dog team for about five years, rapidly increasing in numbers in Manitoba during the last three.

You can get one for $700 to $1,500, and skim over the snow at 25 miles an hour or more. A gasoline engine turns rubber treads under the toboggan to drive the machine.

Some have been bought to replace dogs on trap lines and for various other ventures. A growing number are for recreation alone.

As for hunting goes, says Mr. Malaher, it's not the trapper who is causing concern. Most trapping areas are not sport-hunting areas.

CAN'T ESCAPE

He says the "so-called sportsman" is guilty. Non-resident hunters were no different from resident hunters in this respect.

They have been used to drive animals out of cover, he says. There was "no sanctuary" for such an animal.

The long-legged moose has a chance in snow against the rifle-packing hunter on snowshoes, but with a power toboggan "all you'd have to do is stay on his track and you'd wear him out."

There was no objection to using a power toboggan to get to a hunting area, but the law prohibited the carrying of a loaded firearm in a vehicle. It also prohibited hunting from a vehicle.

Mr. Malaher says Manitoba is testing to prevent legislation. If it is found to be weak, "we may have to ask for something stronger."

He said such a situation would arise if there was difficulty getting convictions under existing law.

There has been a record conviction in the province for hunting moose with a snowmobile, a bigger machine than a motor toboggan and worth about $5,000.

HUNTING SPOILED

Mr. Malaher says there have been many complaints from people tracking game about machines scaring animals away.

Coce Patterson, resources department supervisor at The Pas, was interviewed while moose hunting was in full swing in the area last December.

A large number of hunters in the area had been reported to be using snow machines. Some had been transported to the area and some rented there.

Mr. Patterson said some hunters complained about enforcement of regulations carrying snow machines, but a majority complained that hunting was being spoiled by their use and wanted to see them curtailed.

He suggested difficulty can be encountered in determining whether a snow vehicle is actually being used in the hunt, or for transportation to a hunting area.

But generally, he felt, it can be established whether it is tracking an animal by observing the machine's movements.

U. S. Penitentiary Gives Its Inmates College Education

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — The Crank gang and the College gang are locked inside the narrow confines of Menard penitentiary, an old brownstone institution overlooking the Mississippi River here.

The groups are a world apart. The Crank gang is a detail of prisoners too old, embittered and mean to work even with other prisoners.

The College gang is a group of inmates assigned to a full-time schedule of college-level classroom work.

It is the most recent innovation in Menard's prisoners educational rehabilitation program established by Warden Ross Randolph. It is one of the foremost of its kind in the U.S.

A man could enter Menard as an illiterate and eventually obtain a junior college education.

Randolph's next project is the establishment of a four-year college curriculum in the prison.

Prisoners, prison authorities and outsiders associated with the program are proud and enthusiastic about it. They believe it works.

"It has changed my whole outlook on life," says Jim Cook, sentenced to 120 years for murder. "I was a worker in the textile mill before I came here. I got into the College gang and now I'm sports editor of the prison paper.

OUTLOOK CHANGED

"But more than that, I think my outlook on life has changed through attaining a better education and by the work the people in the program have done with me. They treat you like a human being, not just like a number behind bars."

What do the instructors at Menard think of the program?

"I'll tell you one thing," says John Taylor, journalism instructor at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale. "My convict students work a lot harder than most of my college students.

"We don't have any failing students at Menard, or even any D students for that matter. Most get As or Bs."

Currently, 926 inmates—more than one-third of the prison's 2,800—are engaged in the Menard educational program. They attend vocational classes such as learning to be heavy equipment operators, and they also study grade, high school and college work.

The college-level program is conducted with the co-operation of Southern Illinois University, 35 miles south of Chester. SIU provides teachers for such varied courses as English, journalism, sociology, political economics, economics and, yes, criminology.

The prison educational staff consists of nine civilian instructors and Menard's executives.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Sports Editor

Old Mother Nature, the best stage manager and producer since Noah decided to man the Ark on a palm basis, is wielding an early brush over the canvas of the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

Someone apparently has tipped the fickle old dowager off to the fact that 1965 is slated to be a tournament milestone in the history of the club.

She has showed the greens, her warm breath is drying up the fairways and in her present mood she will soon have the course in near par-condition.

All this of course after the fine preparatory work done in the aftermath of a treacherous winter by course superintendent and club professional George Balazs, and his hard-working associates.

In fact reports from district clubs indicate that the old girl may have shown more favoritism to the bay-bordered course. A club spokesman says officially that annual Midland League tourney slated for the Peterborough Golf Club on Saturday has been postponed. Course not yet in condition.

The fine early-season condition of the greens and fairways augur well for the first Ontario Golf Association Tournament to be played over the Country Club course.

This is the Ontario Best-Ball Championship which is slated for Friday, Saturday, 1965. It is expected, will attract over 100 pairs of the best golfers in the province. This was won last year by the Macleland brothers on their home course at North Bay.

And hoping to exceed the high mark of success of its inaugural presentation last year, is the "Festival of Golf," a 54-tournament series that takes in the three-day Civic Holiday weekend.

The 1964 "Festival" attracted well over fifty of Ontario's finest professional golfers and over 400 of the district's most promising amateurs.

The 1964 club president George O'Brien, his directors and operating committees aided by the outstanding co-operation of club pro George Balazs set the stage for a high standard of golf excellence.

The experience gained last year augurs well for an even bigger and better Festival in 1965.

Official word from the club has it that in order to facilitate playing facilities, and because of the increase in membership, it has been found necessary to restrict the playing hours of junior members under 15 on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays to after 4 p.m. unless accompanied by parents. In this case the starting time will be 2 p.m.

Accident hazards on a golf course are comparatively rare, but there is always the possibility. This is spotlighted in the presence of small children on the playing course.

Members are reminded, directors point out, that children under ten years of age are not permitted on the course for safety reasons. A few "near-incidents" occurred during the Festival last year, but nothing of a serious nature resulted.

And officialdom reports in the very near future there will be additional storage room in the club house for members. Preparations are already under way.

The club opens its social season on May 22nd with the first dinner dance. Only 100 tickets are available and they can be secured from the committee or at the clubhouse.

Speaking of golf, sometimes the game proves a tough proposition in South Africa. At the Sand River Country Club recently, a visitor took six putts on one green and then attached a note to the flag-stick warning "This hole is out of order." The same green produced even more drastic action from another player who missed a short putt and promptly took the hole out and threw it over a nearby fence.

Ralph Terry was so effective in his first start against his former New York Yankee teammates that he struck out one of them with a pitch he doesn't even throw.

Terry, the hero of the 1962 World Series who was sent to Cleveland Indians in the Pedro Ramos trade last season, waited almost seven months for a shot at the Yankees and then spent only an hour and 40 minutes mowing them down on three hits for a 4-0 victory Wednesday night. Strikeout victim Tom Tresh was one of the Yankees impressed with Terry's performance.

RALPH TERRY

"He threw me one pitch I've never seen him use before," said Tresh. "He struck me out with a kind of screwball that came up to me and broke down and out."

"I don't throw a screwball," said Terry. "I throw fastballs, curves, and sliders."

Terry used only 70 pitches. He did not walk a man and did not allow a runner past first base while bringing his record to 4-1 and reducing his earned run average to 1.66.

SOX WIN TWICE

Chicago White Sox, meanwhile, received strong performances from John Buzhardt and Joe Horlen, each pitching a four-hitter in 4-0 and 4-1 triumphs over Detroit Tigers. Camillo Pascual checked Baltimore Orioles on six hits in Minnesota Twins' 5-3 victory and Los Angeles Angels downed Boston Red Sox 6-4.

Washington Senators and Kansas City Athletics were not scheduled.

The Indians had lost 10 straight to the Yankees in Cleveland, but quicker than you can say Whitey Ford they had given Terry more working room than he needed.

With two out in the first inning, Leon Wagner homered off Ford, Rocky Colavito singled, Max Alvis walked and Fred Whitfield homered. That eventually left Ford's record at 2-2.

Buzhardt, now 3-0, struck out 11 and allowed only one Tiger to reach third base in the opener while Bill Skowron and Ron Hansen supplied home run support.

COLLECT FOUR RUNS

Horlen was tagged for an inside-the-park homer by Dick McAuliffe in the sixth inning and went into the seventh trailing 1-0. Then the White Sox struck four for a 4-1 lead.

Skowron's double, in between two walks issued by Dave Wickersham, loaded the bases. Smoky Burgess drove in two runs with a two-bit single, then reliever Larry Sherry balked home one run and let in another with a wild pitch.

Pascual, bringing his record to 3-0, struck out eight and walked only one while Zoilo Versalles provided the power with four hits and four RBI.

The Angels made it seven victories in nine games with rookie Paul Schaal hitting his fifth homer and Willie Smith slamming a double and two singles. Fred Newman got the victory for a 2-1 record.

Commercial Softball League

Seven Clubs Form Loop

The Commercial Softball League closed off its entries at seven teams and elected a 1965 slate of officers at an entry deadline meeting last night.

Dave Feeney was returned to the position of president for a second term.

Terry Keller was elected vice-president and Robert Cruickshank is the new secretary-treasurer.

Eight teams turned out last week and said they would officially enter at the next meeting.

However, only seven showed up to file entry and those in attendance voted to close the matter in order to go ahead with schedule arrangements.

The league will consist of Lightfoot Construction, City Hotel, RCAF, Stewart Warner, Ter-Haar Dauberts, Point Anne Cementmen and Black Diamond Cheese.

Belvedere Hotel was the eighth club, which failed to have a representative at the meeting.

Earlier in the evening, a league representative was held at a Parks Board meeting that the Alemite Field, one of the diamonds used by the league, will be ready for play on June 15. Floodlights, bleachers, etc. are expected to be ready for use in August.

In the meantime, the Commercial League has been given use of a diamond on the new

Boros' 66 Leads Field

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)— Seventy-two of the top names in golf—here by invitation only—tee off today with a field of the toughest golf courses on the professional tour, the 7,132-yard Colonial Country Club layout. The winner takes home $20,000.

Julius Boros, the casual 46-year-old ex-accountant, carded a brilliant five-under-par 66 in a pro-amateur Wednesday and immediately moved up high on the leaderboard.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 66 to win $200.

Seeking a second straight tournament victory will be Arnold Palmer, fresh from taking top money in the Tournament of Champions at Las Vegas, his first tour triumph in almost a year. He shot a 73 Wednesday as a prelude to the main event.

Sport Part of Culture

Russ Philosophy More Logical

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Wednesday the Russian philosophy that sport is part of a nation's culture is "much more logical" than the North American approach.

In an interview, Campbell expressed his views on the whole issue of sports subsidization and the distinction society places on the professional and amateur athlete.

"In North America, we've adopted the concept of the gentleman player as the standard of amateur status," said Campbell. "I've got no quarrel with that except that it doesn't fit the North American picture and never will.

"The question is simply what is a professional athlete? Well, he's someone who is proficient at his game, and because he is proficient he expects to be paid, whether it is in money, as in North America, or in benefits, as under a state subsidy. There's nothing wrong with that.

"My attitude is that there is perhaps a lot to be said about the Russian approach. They believe all sport is part of their culture. They subsidize many of their cultural activities, particularly ballet and opera, and I think it is quite proper that they do so.

"We consider, I guess, that sport is part of our general culture but we don't support it in the same way as they (Russians) do. I don't think we are ever going to overcome this, at least not for a long time. And certainly not until such time as the world is prepared to accept open championships (in hockey), the same as is done now in soccer."

Campbell said the distinction between the pro and amateur crates all sorts of friction.

U.S. RIGHTS SOLD

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Television rights to Canadian Football League games for distribution in the United States next fall have been acquired by Fourth Network Inc., a programming service based in Los Angeles. Announcement was made Wednesday by G. Sydney Hamilton, commissioner of the Canadian league, and Karl Groener, vice-president of Fourth Network.

Kitchener Junior B Champs

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Greenshirts, paced by Joe Brady, defeated Etobicoke Indians 5-3 Wednesday night to capture the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B championship and the Robertson Trophy.

Kitchener won the best-of-seven Ontario final 4-2. The last three games were played in Kitchener because of lack of ice in Etobicoke, and the Greenshirts won them all.

Brady scored three goals, including the winner early in the third period and an insurance marker into an empty net with three seconds left.

The Greenshirts grabbed a 2-0 first-period lead and were ahead 3-2 after the second.

Bunning Nips Spahn 1-0; With Homer

Both Toss 4-Hitters

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Bunning, who made his comeback last year, has temporarily sidetracked Warren Spahn's 1965 revival by beating the great southpaw at his own game.

Bunning, whose perfect game last June 21 against New York Mets helped him capture National League comeback laurels, returned to Shea Stadium with Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night and outscored the Mets and Spahn 1-0 with an opposite-field home run.

The homer was Bunning's first in the league. Spahn has 96, the all-time record for NL pitchers.

Spahn, determined at 44 years of age to bounce back from his 6-13 season with Milwaukee Braves in 1964, pitched his best game as a Met, matching Bunning's four-hitter. But the pitch that Bunning hit over the right field fence in the sixth inning made Spahn a loser for the second time in four decisions.

He is winless in five Shea Stadium appearances over the last two years while Bunning, 6-0 against the Mets overall, has beaten them three times in New York, allowing a total of nine hits and one run in the process.

Bunning's homer left him seven behind Willie Mays for the year. Mays hit No. 8, high in the majors, in San Francisco Giants' 10-5, 10-inning victory at St. Louis. Milwaukee slipped Houston Astros 2-1 in 14 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers topped Cincinnati Reds 4-3 and Chicago Cubs defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 in other NL games.

YIELDED FOUR SINGLES

Bunning yielded four singles while bringing his record to 3-3. He retired 20 of 21 Met batters during one stretch and wrapped up the victory by striking out the side in the ninth.

"I hit a high curve ball," he said of the home run pitch. "Spahn should know better than to throw a high curve to a country boy."

The Giants exploded for five runs in the 10th inning after two errors by second - baseman Phil Gagliano on the same play opened the gates. A bases-loaded triple by Willie McCovey and a run-scoring double by Mays capped the rally.

Mays' leadoff homer in the eighth had tied the score 5-5.

Left-hander Wade Blasingame pitched the entire 14 innings for Milwaukee, yielding only five hits and striking out 12, while Eddie Matthews, two-out double in the 14th delivered Mack Jones with the winning run.

Dick Farrell, the Houston starter, was struck on the back of the head by Hank Aaron's line drive in the last of the ninth. He finished the inning but was removed for a pinch hitter in the 10th.

Home runs by Dick Tracewski and Ron Fairly helped Sandy Koufax, 2-1, top Checinatil for the league - leading Dodgers.

Chicago's Bob Buhl checked Pittsburgh on three hits for his third victory in four decisions. Jim Pagliaroni's eight-inning homer ended his shutout bid.

Ken Colling Memorial Race

John Hayman Leads Field; Sets Record

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Moira Secondary School's pint-sized ball of fire, Johnny Hayman, led the largest field in the history of the race to win the Bay of Quinte COSSA Ken Colling Memorial harrier at BCIVS yesterday afternoon.

Hayman topped a pack of 113 runners from just about every secondary school in the Bay of Quinte district, setting a new course time of 22:52.1.

It was a popular win for the 16-year-old, grade 11 student, who came in fourth last year. His time then was 24:29.5, in a race won by another Moira runner, Stan Woodcock.

The winner was well in front of the pack and in apparent good condition at the finish, after turning back the challenge of Albert College's Bob Sinasac, a pre-race favorite.

Sinasac grabbed off second place honors after he and several others had stayed fairly close behind Hayman until the Queen Street stretch, when he pulled away. Sinasac's time was 23:29.5. The old record, 23:4, was set by Trenton's Brian Kane in 1963 when the course was changed.

BCIVS's Ray Bourne picked up third place honors yesterday, followed closely by Dennis Maher, of Moira S.S. They, along with Sinasac, made it a tight finish behind Hayman. Bourne's time was 23:30 even while Maher's was 23:33.2.

With prizes going to the top six finishers, Clyde Jourdain, one of the favorites from O.S.D., took fifth spot and Fred McAdam, of Stirling, was sixth.

Just out of the "money" came Tom Scott, of Campbellford, Allan Anderson, of Picton, Murray Lockwood, of Central Hastings, and Allan Kimick of Trenton High School, in that order. Crests went to the first 36 finishers, and most starters did complete the 4-mile distance, despite the large field and a mighty warm sun.

One teacher-spectator near the finish line was heard to remark upon Hayman's victory, "And some people run down compact models." Hayman was head and shoulders below most of his opponents — but in size alone.

Presentation ceremonies were held in the school gym following the race, with Jack Sisson, of Quinte Secondary School, chairman of the affair.

Mr. W. MacKay, vice - principal of BCIVS, welcomed those in attendance while Honor "Red" Townsend, convener of the race since its beginning some 21 years ago, added his colorful remarks.

Mr. Cleo Colling, donor of the Ken Colling Memorial Trophy, made the official presentation to Hayman and passed on the other prizes and crests to the first 36 finishers.

As in previous years, co - operation of the students, citizens, school officials and the city police department, made it possible for the event to be held on city streets.

Due to the large number of entries, names were drawn and the runners started in eight rows. One rumor following the race claimed that Hayman had started in the wrong position but no official confirmation was taken, and it was neither confirmed nor denied.

OUT IN FRONT by a healthy margin, Moira's Johnny Hayman charges across the finish line in record time to win the COSSA Ken Colling Memorial Cross Country Run, at BCIVS, yesterday.

TO THE VICTOR goes the spoils and here Cleo Colling congratulates Johnny Hayman following his harrier victory. Colling presented the trophy later in the BCI auditorium.

Clemente Prodigal Son?

CHICAGO (AP)—Ali Roberto Clemente has to do is say he is ready to play for Pittsburgh Pirates and manager Harry Walker will greet him with open arms.

That's what Walker says. Clemente, defending National League batting champion whose average now is .363, was not answering telephone calls at his hotel room Wednesday night.

Clemente was quoted Wednesday by Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, as saying:

"I'm not traded from this club and I don't want to play for this manager any more." The Pirates lost 3-1 to the Cubs Wednesday and the teams wind up their series Thursday.

Clemente has been benched for several games after being used as a pinch hitter Sunday in St. Louis.

"He hasn't said a word to me about wanting to be traded," said Walker. "We certainly need him and want him back in the line-up as soon as possible. In St. Louis Sunday he said he wasn't feeling very strong and probably needed a rest."

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

THE IMPORTANCE OF PLANNED APPROACH SHOTS

No doubt you have often been told that you should play approach shots to finish below the hole. But be sure that you leave yourself an uphill putt.

I think that No. 2 shows why this advice is especially sound. You will note that the ball which runs uphill to the hole has a built-in backstop—the higher edge of the hole. The downhill putt has little, if any, such backstop. Obviously, a putt, struck a bit too hard, will have more chance of falling on an uphill putt.

Also, we must remember that an uphill putt will stop closer to the hole if it misses the cup than will a downhill putt that rolls on and on.

I hope this explanation of why uphill putts are preferable will encourage you to plan your approach shots accordingly next time you play.

Pile-Up Ends 20-Year Career

TORONTO (CP) — A high-speed pileup, the first of the six-day bicycle race at Maple Leaf Gardens, ended a 20-year career in international competition for Oscar Plattner of Switzerland Wednesday night.

Plattner, who suffered a fractured cheek bone, had intended to end his racing career in Canada, competing in the Toronto race and the six-day race which starts in Quebec City May 18.

Heinz Reinhold's rear tire blew at close to 45 miles an hour during a jamming session when individual teams attempt to break away from the pack and steal a lap.

Reinhold lost control of his bicycle and fell. The 41-year-old Plattner and Robert Lelangue, riding for Luxembourg, piled into him and Lelangue's pedal cut Plattner's cheek.

He was the first of two riders to retire from the race, which goes into its fifth day today.

Another rider, Dick Cortright of Buffalo, N.Y., riding for the United States, retired when he became ill.

Reinhold returned to the race today and the other member of the Swiss team, Hans Kunters, was paired with Jos De Bakker riding for the U.S.

Palle Lykke and Freddie Eugen of Denmark stole a lap in a thrilling chase which had a crowd of 4,000 on its feet. This put them one lap ahead of teams from Belgium, Canada, Italy, Luxembourg and Germany.

Rik Van Steenbergen and Emile Severyns of Belgium claimed second place, one lap behind the leaders with 309 sprint points.

Roger Gaignard and Jean Rayzal, riding for Canada, held down third place with 283 sprint points.

Owned by Mrs. Gordon Mcmecken of Toronto, Your County had finished second twice and third once in previous starts this season.

As a four-year-old, Your County finished in second place in half his races.

Your County paid $12.10 straight for the win. Warriors Day paid $3.80 and $3.10 and Top Topgery returned $4.20 to show.

Distir combined with Tullo for a daily double of $22.20. So War and My Kimie returned a quinella of $12.70.

Leafs Hand Suns 9-1 Walloping

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What does a baseball club do when four pitchers can't stop the opposition from scoring at run-an-inning average?

Jacksonville is still trying to figure it out today after Toronto Maple Leafs collected 15 hits to whip the Suns 9-1 in International Baseball League action Wednesday night.

Every Toronto player except Mike Page hit safely and two—Joe Foy and Stan Johnson—collected three hits each. Right-hander Doug Gentry scattered five hits to gain the victory.

Elsewhere, Columbus Jets edged Rochester Red Wings 4-3 in 11 innings, Atlanta Crackers swept a double header 5-4 and 6-3 from Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Chiefs defeated Toledo Mud Hens 8-4 before losing the second game 6-3.

Jack Damaska clouted a three-run homer in the 11th inning to give the Jets their victory.

Adrian Garrett singled in the winning run in both games for the Crackers. Teammate Bubba Phillips also contributed a three-run homer in the second game.

Ken Nishchwitz shut out the Mud Hens on four hits in the first game.

Not In 1964-65 Playoffs

So, Hockey's a Young Man's Game, Huh!

By JERRY GLADMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When a National Hockey League club goes into a prolonged slump the critics immediately put the rap on the veteran players.

However, when the money is on the line and a coach requires a big game from some of his charges, more often than not these "senior citizens" carry the load.

Such was the case throughout this season, particularly in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Take the case of Montreal Canadiens, winners over Chicago Black Hawks in the seven-game final series.

The Canadiens, who have been undergoing a rebuilding program during the last couple of years, weren't expected to come out on top at least for another year until their younger players could fully develop.

However, in the finals it was the club veterans who paved the way and made it possible for the Canadiens to take home their 11th modern-era Stanley Cup.

Gerry Ika rotund goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley, who, at 35, spent most of the season in the American Hockey League. The pesky, gnome - like netminder chalked up two shutouts in the series, including a 4-0 count in the final game.

And there was little Charlie Hodge, who played most of the season in goal for Montreal but split the playoffs with Worsley because of an injury. The five-foot, striped, 31-year-old Hodge played spectacularly, including a 2-0 shutout over the Hawks.

But the big gun for Montreal was towering Jean Beliveau, voted the outstanding player of the playoffs. The 33-year-old talented centre scored eight goals in 13 games and performed with the youthful verve of a rookie.

Henri Richard, a 10-year veteran at 33, was another offensive powerhouse for Montreal with his seven - goal playoff total. Defensively, Claude Provost, a 31-year-old rightwinger, nullified the Chicago attack by providing expert coverage on super-star Bobby Hull.

The youngsters on the squad chipped in and did their part, but the "old men" were the payoff players.

And the Hawks might never have lasted the seven-game distance except for the spectacular netminding of 33-year-old Glenn Hall. A 16-year man, Hall came up with countless breath-taking saves to keep the Hawks alive when the team's youngsters were playing before jet.

And it was fallows like Doug Mohns, 31, whose goal in the sixth game forced the series to go the full limit, who enabled Chicago to keep pace with the much faster Canadiens.

A tired Detroit Red Wings club, league champions in 1964-65 despite a fourth-place prediction by the experts, were able to play like champions in the playoffs because 37-year-old Gordie Howe, 33-year-old Alex Delvecchio and 28 - year - man Norm Ullman were able to put the puck into the net.

Rookie goalie Roger Crozier could have had a much tougher go but he had a tight defence in front of him, anchored by 37-year-old Bill Gadsby, a 19-year veteran in the NHL. With Gadsby were 34-year-old Marcel Pronovost and Warren Godfrey, also 34.

Perhaps most criticized because of an over-abundance of older players were Toronto Maple Leafs, 1962 - 64 Stanley Cup champions. But it was the oldest player in the league, 40-year-old Johnny Bower, who saved the Leafs from complete embarrassment in their semi-final loss to the Canadiens.

Bower came through with some unbelievable saves throughout the six games, but it wasn't enough to make up for a lack of scoring punch by the "senior" members of the team.

If hockey is a game for the young, there are several "old-early" gentlemen in the league who still have to be convinced.

Red Tilson Trophy to A. Lacroix

TORONTO (CP)—Andre Lacroix, 19-year-old centre with Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, has been named the 21st winner of the Albert (Red) Tilson Memorial Trophy.

The trophy, presented annually by The Globe and Mail, is given to the player regarded as most valuable and gentlemanly in the series.

Lacroix, a native of Levis, Que., still has another year to play before being called up to professional ranks.

Prior to his arrival at Peterborough, Lacroix played with Quebec Citadels in 1963 and Montreal Junior Canadiens in 1963-64.

The award is in memory of Red Tilson, a junior player with Regina and Oshawa billed in the Second World War while serving with the Canadian Army. The winner is chosen by reporters who cover the eight-team league.

Stars Have New 'In' Spot To Do Frug and Watusi

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On academy award night, Rex Harrison, clutching his best-actor Oscar, went to the "Governors' ball at the Beverly Hilton.

He dutifully posed for the photographers and then grabbed his wife, Welsh actress Rachel Roberts, and hurried off to the Daizy. There he met most of the other Oscar winners along with most of the top names in town.

The Daizy is the movie colony's new "in" spot—a discotheque where movie stars frug, twist and watusi.

There's one difference between the Daizy and such sunset strip watusi palaces as the Whisky A Go-Go and Ciro's.

It takes a $250 membership fee to get inside unless you know someone who is a member.

ONLY FEW MONTHS OLD

Jack Hanson, a sportswear manufacturer, founded the Daizy some months ago. The original Ramsnoff's restaurant, in the heart of Beverly Hills, was vacant.

Hanson reasoned the movie crowd would appreciate a place where they could let their hair down. And $250 keeps away a lot of autograph seekers.

It took about a week to build up a membership roster that would do justice to a major premiere turnout.

On any given night from 10 p.m. on, you can see Eddie Fisher, Dean Martin, Frank Sinatra, George Hamilton, Tony Curtis — and all the British crowd—dancing with such loveliies as Natalie Wood, Jane Fonda, Tuesday Weld, Sandra Dahl and Stella Stevens.

And for those who don't dance, there's a pool room.

a cliff near Malibu Beach.

The surfing, rock and water sequences were filmed by Academy Award-winning Director of Photography Floyd Crosby at a new spot for the beach films, Leo Carillo State Park Beach, about ten miles north of Malibu and named after the late character actor.

Seen in "Beach Blanket Bingo" as the airport and site of Big Drop's flying School is the Los Angeles area's famed Whiteman Air Park. The hangar used by Coffin, to believe it or not, Coffin Flying Service—owned by a man named Coffin —but there were no mishaps there.

AT THE PARK — Frankie Avalon stars with Annette Funicello in the new musical comedy "Beach Blanket Bingo" in color and panavision, opening tonight at the Park Theatre for a limited engagement. Complete shows 7.00 and 9.10 p.m. Box office opens 6.30 p.m.

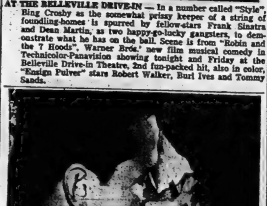
"Beach Blanket Bingo" Has Daredevil Crashes and Leaps.

Exciting realism, including the wrecking of a plane and an auto, keynoted production filming for American International's newest "Beach Gang" film, "Beach Blanket Bingo," opening tonight at the Park Theatre for its first showings.

It was all part of a day's work during production of the color and Panavision musical comedy in which the surfers take up sky diving for their fourth picture together. Once more Frankie Avalon, Annette Funicello and their friends star, with newcomers Debobar Walley, Marta Kristen, Linda Evans and Paul Lynde added to the group.



The plane wreck, a complete loss, was of a craft identical to the candy cane-striped one seen in the picture. The craft was ditched into the sea near Malibu's famed Paradise Cove with the pilot parachuting to safety before the crash.

Other sky diving sequences featured Rod Lauck, the daredevil who jumped without a chute and donned same in mid-air after receiving it in mid-air from a fellow sky diver. . .

The car was wrecked as part of the exciting chase sequence in which, as usual, Eric Von Zipper and his Rat Pack get off the hinips. The vehicle, a 1960 convertible, was sent flying off

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — In a number called "Style" Bing Crosby as the somewhat prissy keeper of a string of foundling-homes is spurred by fellow-stars Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin, as two happy-go-lucky gangsters, to demonstrate what he has on the ball. Scene is from "Robin and the 7 Hoods", Warner Bros.' new film musical comedy in Technicolor-Panavision showing tonight and Friday at the Belleville Drive-in Theatre, 2nd fun-packed hit, also in color, "Ensign Pulver" stars Robert Walker, Burl Ives and Tommy Sands.

AT THE BELLE — James Garner and Julie Andrews, portraying a U.S. Navy Commander, and a British Volunteer driver in World War II, find themselves head-over heels in Love in Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's "The Americanization of Emily", Academy-Award winner Melvyn Douglas, also stars in the screen version of William Bradford's Novel.

All But 2 Evening Shows On NBC Will Be in Color

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Network interest in color television increases in proportion to the burgeoning number of color sets in use—at last estimate well over 2,000,000.

NBC, which has been leading in colorcasts, will have all except two of its regular evening programs next season in color. The two black-and-white shows are "Convoy," an action series about Second World War merchant ships, and a comedy series, "I Dream of Jeannie," cut along the pattern of super-natural "Bewitched."

ABC, which started its colorcasts modestly, plans to move about one-third of its evening entertainment programs into color.

CBS has shown the least interest in color TV, but has had a change of heart. Eight of its regular shows will be in color next season.

START SEPT. 12

All three networks plan to launch their winter season Sept. 12, to prevent one network from getting a head start.

In this contest, NBC has a ratings coup in the annual "Emmy Awards" show. It will be on the air Sunday, Oct. 12.

Both CBS and ABC are preparing programs on the Ku Klux Klan, but ABC's "Scope" will beat "CBS Reports." The Klan will be the subject of next Wednesday's ABC news feature program. The CBS show will not be broadcast until late this month or early next month.

NBC's forthcoming comedy series, originally called "the Mr. and The Misses" has acquired a new title and new co-star. It will be "The John Forsyth Show." He will play the "Mr." in the title, and Elsa Lanchester will play the principal of the exclusive girl's school he inhabits.

The Trots

CAMPBELL VILLE, Ont. (CP)—Kwik Kat won his first race in Canada Wednesday night at Mohawk Raceway with a length victory over Eagle Armbro.

Owned by J. Arthur and C. Strehb of Otterville, Ont., Kwik Kat paced the fastest mile of the night in the eighth race with a 2:02 clocking.

Third in the featured race was Highland Girl, a neck behind Eagle Armbro.

The highlight of CBC's summer television schedule is The Great War, a BBC documentary in 26 parts about the First World War.

Memorial Cup Finals

Injuries Hit Oil Kings

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings were expected to go into tonight's second Memorial Cup series game here against Niagara Falls Flyers with one or two lineup changes because of injuries.

Flyers, meanwhile, appeared healthy.

All three members of Edmonton's highest - scoring forward line, Wingers Ron Anderson and Graham Longmire and centre Greg Tomalty, were shaken up by checks in Thursday's first game of the best-of-seven Canadian junior final series.

Flyers won the first game 3-2. Anderson suffered a knee injury, Tomalty a bruised shoulder and Longmire a back injury.

Defenceman Jim Cardiff, steady captain of Weyburn Red Wings, and forward Fran Huck of Regina Pats, standouts during the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League season, have been put on the Oil Kings roster as recruits for the series but they didn't see action Tuesday.

During the opening game, fans in one section of the Edmonton gardens repeated in unison: "We want Huck." Huck won the SJHL goal - scoring race this season by a handy margin.

Niagara Falls coach Bill Long didn't figure the first game was as hard - hitting as those his club normally plays in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit.

"It doesn't look as if they do any checking out here," Long said.

Oil Kings play during the regular season in the Central Alberta Hockey League, an intermediate A circuit.

Long said he planned no lineup changes for the second game but he expected Edmonton coach Harry Allen to use both Cardiff and Huck.

Player Roster Amendment

CFL Will Reconsider

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Football League officials will hold a special meeting in Calgary May 14 to reconsider the CFL's player roster amendment limiting teams to three naturalized Canadians.

The meeting was called after a constitutional law expert advised the CFL that the amendment probably is a violation of the Ontario Human Rights Code.

CFL President Pat Mahoney, who feels the CFL constitution can be rewritten to comply with fair employment legislation such as the Ontario code, declined Wednesday to offer a prediction on the outcome of the meeting other than to say it will be being called to "consider the roster ruling."

The meeting will be closed to the press but results will be made available later.

CFL commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg said last week he has no plans to meet with Ontario government officials to discuss the code and players' roster rules before the Calgary meeting is held.

BENEFITS HAVE EDGE

OTTAWA (CP) — After 12 years of operation, the unemployment insurance fund shows a cumulative deficit of benefits over contributions of $184,272,534. Figures tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Labor Minister MacEachen showed that, since the fund began in 1942, benefits totalling $4,364,809,037 have been paid out up to the end of 1964. In the same period, the fund has taken in contributions totalling $4,200,536,503.

Man Wanted For 1961 Montreal Bank Robbery Caught By Early Bird TV Show

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The space - age police technique of satellite television led to the arrest of an urbane Canadian who has been hunted all over the world since the spectacular burglary of a Montreal bank four years ago.

The Canadian, Georges Lemay, 39, was surprised when 11 federal agents and Fort Lauderdale police officers stopped him just as he boarded his fancy, 42-foot yawl in the huge Bahia Mar marina in Fort Lauderdale Thursday.

"I very seldom make mistakes," he told police Capt. Bob Smith. "How did you people catch me?"

Told that a boat repairman recognized a mug shot from Canada displayed by an RCMP inspector on the inaugural Early Bird satellite television program Sunday, Lemay was incredulous.

"Is that your word of honor," he asked Smith. Assured it happened that way, Lemay said:

"Well, isn't that something. It took a satellite to catch me."

Police have had an interest in Lemay for 14 years since his beautiful blonde wife, the former Huguette Massot of Montreal, mysteriously disappeared while fishing from a bridge on the Overseas Highway in the Florida Keys.

On Dominion Day in 1961, a gang of thieves smashed through the concrete reinforced floor of a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia and rifled 377 safe deposit boxes. The bank is located on St. Catherine Street in the heart of Montreal's shopping area.

They escaped with $500,000 to $4,000,000 although the exact amount was never determined because of the reluctance to talk. The chief witness at the trial where four others were convicted of the theft said that Lemay was the mastermind.

Circulars with Lemay's picture and description were sent all over the world, but it wasn't until Sunday, and the first Early Bird TV broadcast, that police got a break.

The program showed the RCMP inspector describing wanted men while FBI agents in Washington and Scotland Yard officials in London watched.

The Fort Lauderdale man, who asked that his name not be used, went to police the next day.

"I'm sure that's the guy I saw on TV last night," he said.

Alabama Jury Deadlocked In Murder Trial

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—A deadlocked jury was called back into court today to try again for a verdict in the civil rights murder trial of a Ku Klux Klansman.

The 12 white male jurors deliberated four hours and 20 minutes Thursday night before Circuit Judge T. Werth Thagard ordered them locked up for the night.

The jurors resumed their deliberations at 9 a.m. in hope of reaching the unanimous agreement necessary to convict or acquit 21-year-old Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr. of Fairfield, Ala., of the nightrider slaying of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, a white civil rights worker from Detroit.

Thagard handed the first-degree murder case to the jury at 3:40 p.m. Thursday and 75 minutes later the jurors asked whether they could convict the raunchy, crewcut defendant of a lesser offence than first-degree murder.

The judge, repeating his earlier charge, explained they had a choice of first-degree murder, second - degree murder, manslaughter, or acquittal.

The jurors retired with the case after Sidesing in the militant plea for white supremacy from Klan lawyer Matt H. Murphy Jr. of the defence counsel, and a warning against prejudice from three states' attorneys.

Murphy, himself a Klan member as well as legal counsel for the United Klans of America, punctuated his 70-minute speech to the jury with frequent reminders of the civil rights struggle going on in Alabama. At one point, he shouted: "I'm not ashamed of my heritage. I'm proud to be a white man. I'm for white supremacy."

The Communists and the nigger have taken us over," he charged. "Some of them have even infiltrated this courtroom to watch this trial."

Actions Illegal Is Claim

TORONTO (CP) — Vernon Singer (L—Dovercourt), the Opposition's critic of the attorney-general's department, told the Ontario legislature Thursday that justice will not be properly administered in Ontario as long as magistrates Robert Mackay of Toronto and O. C. McClevis of Walkerton are on the bench.

He said the government should ask for their resignations and, if they will not resign, take action to remove them from office.

Mr. Singer, himself a lawyer, stated his case against Magistrate Dnieper in a speech that began Wednesday and ended Thursday.

He said Magistrate Dnieper had refused requests to youths not represented by counsel, once conducted court at 4 a.m. in a police cruiser on a highway, criticized a working man for the clothes he wore in court, and told a defendant "You're lucky you're not looking at a rope."

TELLS OF CASE

He also said Magistrate Dnieper had told a witness to reveal his criminal record. Elmer Phillips (L—Sudbury), also a lawyer, said this was clearly illegal and contrary to the Canada Evidence Act.

Thursday, Mr. Singer criticized Magistrate McClevis for suspending a man's driving licence in court and later lifting the suspension outside court.

He said Magistrate McClevis had no right to change his ruling after having delivered it in court since he was no longer concerned with the case.

Correspondence was read which indicated that Magistrate McClevis felt he was still charged with the matter and decided to alter his ruling after hearing "a most impassioned plea" from the accused in his office.

ASK INQUIRY

Mr. Singer asked the attorney - general's department to launch an inquiry into the matter.

He said the cases of the two magistrates show that "something far less than should be desired has gone on in magistrates' courts in this province."

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said later his own investigation concerning Magistrate Dnieper is still going on.

He said he agreed there have been instances of discourtesy in Mr. Dnieper's court.

As for Magistrate McClevis, Mr. Wishart said he does not regard the matter as serious enough to ask for Mr. McClevis' resignation.

Labor Wins Steel-nationalization Vote By Margin of Votes of Converted Rebels

LONDON (CP)—Tory newspapers today came out with charges of farce and play-acting following the Labor government's victory in a rough-and-tumble clash over steel nationalization Thursday night.

The big battle, however, still lay ahead and observers forecast months of bitter political clashes—and possibly a general election—before the plan can go into effect.

The last-minute "conversion" of two Labor rebels gave the government a four-vote majority in the House of Commons on a policy white paper laying down a basis of legislation for state control of steel.

Billed as the biggest test for Wilson since he came to power seven months ago, the debate built up a fantastic climax of fury and comedy in a jam-packed chamber.

Allowing for "pairs" and authorized absentees, the vote of 310 to 306 corresponded exactly with the strengths of Labor and the combined Tory and Liberal opposition at the time of the ballot.

But today the government's over-all majority has been cut to three because a Birmingham by-election Thursday returned a Tory member, as expected.

Conservative spokesmen bitterly charged in the Commons that Wilson arranged the timing of the steel showdown deliberately to come before a vote for was declared in Birmingham Hall Green constituency, a Tory stronghold.

Some sources described as outright stage - managing the dramatic last - minute conversion of Labor rebels Woodrow Wyatt and Desmond Donnelly to the white paper, which envisages nationalization of 90 per cent of Britain's steel capacity, fifth largest in the world.

In any event, Economics Minister George Brown became the central figure of the strange fight when he offered to "listen" to any suggestions about an ownership takeover of less than 100 per cent.

As debate neared the 10 p.m. cutoff, Brown announced:

"I am prepared to say that if the industry and its friends in the Tory (Conservative) party

More Marines And Seabees Go Ashore

SAIGON (AP)—A flotilla of landing craft brought 3,000 U.S. marines and 3,000 Seabees ashore today at Chu Lai, 52 miles south of the big Da Nang air base. The marines will guard a South Vietnamese combat airfield which the Seabees will construct.

There was no contact with the Viet Cong during the landing, so far in town, including the casualties.

U.S. officials in Saigon reported three raids by U.S. Navy planes over North Viet Nam Thursday. The sorties were aimed at railway traffic, ferry boats, bridges and trucks.

Tornadoes Spew Death Damage

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A string of tornadoes spewed death and destruction over this heavily populated area of Minnesota Thursday night, killing a least 10 persons, injuring more than 300 and causing millions of dollars in property damage.

Heavy rain and two-inch hailstones preceded the twisters that struck during supper time.

Utility lines were flattened, in many sections dangerously crossing highways lined with homeward bound workers. Dozens of accidents were reported on the highways.

Hundreds of homes were damaged, many were destroyed.

CALLS OUT GUARD

Governor Karl Rolvaag called out National Guard units to help local police and civil defence volunteers to maintain order.

Tornado sightings were reported over at least 25 small towns.

The heaviest damage was reported in the resort area around Lake Minnetonka, some 15 miles west of Minneapolis, and Spring Lake Park and Mounds View, 15 miles north of the city.

Four persons died at Mound, residential community on Lake Minnetonka's west shore. Dozens of homes were hard hit, Island and Navarre also on the lake's west side, received heavy property damage and numerous persons injured.

Four persons died at Spring Lake Park, one at Mounds View and two at Navarre.

The injured in twisters that hit Fridley, Spring Lake Park and Mounds View were brought to Mercy Hospital at Coon Rapids and numerous emergency cases quickly.

After two hours, the hospital's administrator, Robert Van Hauser, pleaded with ambulance drivers and motorists to take their injured to other nearby hospitals.

Van Hauser estimated that upwards of 100 persons had been treated at Mercy Hospital. Nearly 30 of those treated were in serious condition.

SERIES OF STORMS

The Minneapolis weather bureau had alerted Twin Cities residents around 6:30 p.m. CST. Minutes later, a heavy rain and hail hit the cities, and civil defence sirens blared to warn the thousands of persons took to shelter.

It was Minnesota's second night of tornadoes. A series of twisters struck a northwestern portion of the state Wednesday, and another series struck the southeastern portion of the state. About 20 persons were injured, but property damage was heavy.

FAVOR SALES

BRANTFORD (CP) — The Community Welfare Council of Brantford and Brant County Thursday asked Justice Minister Favreau to legalize the sale of contraceptives. In a letter to Mr. Favreau, the council said an amendment to the Criminal Code could allow the establishment of family planning clinics where persons could receive advice and supplies to prevent conception.

4 Marines Die As Patrol Turns Into Rebel Area

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Another wrong turn into rebel territory was blamed today for the deaths of four marines, bringing the U.S. death toll in the Dominican fighting up at least 13.

U.S. sources said three marines were killed Thursday after a patrol wandered into the insurgent-held sector of downtown Santo Domingo. Two others were wounded and one died after he was taken to the aircraft carrier Boxer.

A rebel spokesman said one insurgent was killed and two wounded in the encounter. The rebels at first accused the United States of violating the ceasefire arranged Wednesday by a peace commission of the Organization of American States. Later they said they believed the marine patrol had taken a wrong turn.

Two U.S. newspaper men who had been observing the clash from a taxi were caught in the crossfire and wounded slightly.

Another marine patrol took a wrong turn Wednesday into rebel territory. After sharp firing, the rebels captured two of the marines but released them Thursday to the OAS peace commission. The commission returned them to U.S. authorities.

In other incidents Thursday, insurgents opened two U.S. para-troopers and hit a helicopter, wounding the pilot in the leg.

A flurry of sniping activity broke out near the U.S. Embassy during the afternoon, but it died down quickly.

Otherwise Santo Domingo was quiet Thursday, and more stores reopened for the first time since the revolution broke out April 24.

Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, the rebel provisional president, denied a report by U.S. official that he had agreed to give Communists posts in his rebel government.

"It's a lie," Caamano told reporters.

Caamano also denied a U.S. claim that Fidelio Despradel, identified as a prominent Communist, was one of his aides.

"I don't even know who Despradel is," Caamano declared.

Widen Powers Of Banks

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's eight privately - owned chartered banks will be free to move gradually into the hazardous mortgage-lending business and seek wider ownership of shareholder stock among Canadians under proposals to the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Gordon.

But a tight rein is to be applied on foreign or provincial government ownership, and the banks must cut back severely their ownership of trust companies.

It may be easier for new banks to obtain federal charters, but all will continue to be limited to six-per-cent interest rates on bank loans.

The banks will have to adjust gradually to a new requirement that they keep cash, day-to-day loans and treasury bill holdings as a reserve against their total demand liabilities.

But the Bank of Canada will still be able to temper inflationary and deflationary pressures by influencing the bank's reserve conditions. The central bank will have to keep to federal government direction in any conflict between the two on Bank of Canada activity.

These were the principal provisions of three pieces of banking legislation introduced in the Commons by Mr. Gordon—bills to revise the Bank Act and the Quebec Savings Banks Act, and to amend the Bank of Canada Act.

Mr. Gordon told reporters at a press conference after the end of the day-long banking debate that he adopted some recommendations of the 1961-64 royal commission on banking and finance because he thought they were good, but rejected others. Many of the recommendations are still under study and may be incorporated in other legislation.

The banking legislation will go to Commons committee after it is given second reading — approval in principle. It will be considered by the House for further debate and third reading before going through like readings and committee study in the Senate.

The charters of the banks now expire July 1 unless for any reason Parliament doesn't there are legal conundrums in sweeping the sc — wiped clean of bank banks under the federal banking umbrella. Many of them operate under provincial government charters. This question will continue to be under study — perhaps for a long time.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP-AP)— A flight engineer said Thursday he killed a Toronto-owned harness racing horse with a fire axe to save the nerve of a cargo plane 8,000 feet above the Pacific Ocean Wednesday night.

"It was either him or the nine of us on board," said George Ropcean of Edmonton.

The six - year - old champion pacer from New Zealand, named Vanderford, had broken out of his stall and kicked his way almost to the plane's cockpit.

Bankers Both Glad And Sad Over Proposed Revisions To Bank Act

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Banking circles expressed both satisfaction and disappointment Thursday as Minister Walter Gordon introduced revisions of the Bank Act in Parliament Thursday night.

Bankers were happy that the government is apparently moving toward changes recommended by the Porter royal commission on banking, but were surprised and disappointed that the finance minister proposed to retain the current six-per-cent interest ceiling on bank loans.

The government's "stand-pat" attitude on the interest issue was criticized by S. T. Paton, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

He said it is "difficult to understand in the light of the strong recommendations of the royal commission on banking and finance" that the commission's report, tabled a year ago, recommended that the ceiling be lifted even if its other suggestions were not accepted.

Mr. Paton said the proposal to allow chartered banks to enter the mortgage-lending field gradually would alleviate banks' problems somewhat and was thus to be welcomed.

The reduction of the cash reserve requirements from eight per cent to seven per cent is a step in the right direction, but I feel the variable reserve ratio for time deposits proposed by the royal commission is preferable."

The decision on the loan ceiling was described as a "government - preserved protective device for high-rate lenders" by Neil J. McKinnon, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Continued limitation on commercial interest rates will deprive many Canadians "of high-risk loans at much cheaper rates than they are now to pay to finance companies of various kinds," he said.

Mr. McKinnon welcomed the permission granted to banks to enter the mortgage field, but added that the money supply would have to be large enough to allow the banks to step into that field to a major extent.

G. Arnold Hart, chairman and president of the Bank of Montreal, also expressed disappointment at the retention of the current interest ceiling.

Declaring that Stevens, president of British International Finance (Canada) Ltd., and a leading Toronto lawyer to be a director for the proposed Bank of Western Canada, said the proposed changes to the Bank Act appear favorable at first glance.

He was especially pleased at the proposal that would make it easier to form new banks.

Mr. Gordon said authority will be sought to issue charters to new banks by letters patent, apparently in the same way that most commercial enterprises now are incorporated under the Companies Act. These charters, however, would be subject to upset by Parliament —only Parliament now can grant charters for new banks.

The Laurentide Bank and the Bank of British Columbia are also seeking charters but they have been delayed in parliamentary debate.

CHANGE DRIVING LAW

REYEJAVIK (AP)—The Icelandic Parliament has decided the country will switch to driving on the right in 1968 because of the increase in U.S. and Continental tourists. Britain and Sweden still hold out for driving on the left, though Sweden is expected to change in 1967.

Mental illness is called the nation's number one health problem, because it takes a greater toll in human suffering and financial loss than any other illness. There are more people in mental hospitals than in all other hospitals combined.

Contrary to popular opinion, mental illness not only affects the old and middle-aged; it affects the young as well. In fact, the most widespread of all the serious mental illnesses is schizophrenia—known as the mental illness of childhood. It strikes primarily at teenagers and young adults, it also strikes thousands of little children, some as young as two or three.

Citizens can help fight this tragic disease by contributing to scientific research sponsored by the Canadian Mental Health Association. This is Mental Health Week, when public attention is called to the problem of mental health. Next week the Belleville branch of the Mental Health Association is appealing for contributions.

Out of research have come important gains. Effective treatment has been developed for some forms of mental illness. Some mentally sick people can now recover entirely. Others partly. But medical scientists are still in pursuit of a real breakthrough. Their goal is the conquest of all mental illness through prevention and cure.

The National Mental Health Research Fund of the Canadian Mental Health Association deserves the full support of every citizen so that the conquest can be continued and the scourge of mental illness be lessened and, hopefully, at last conquered.

Scouting activities

On April 21, 1965, during the Easter holiday, Scouter Shaw, Scoutmaster of 6th Belleville planned a trip to Ottawa for the troop and the sixers of Packs A and B. Robert Temple, M.P., made the arrangements in Ottawa for a most interesting tour.

We left Tabernacle United Church at 7.30 a.m. arriving in Ottawa at eleven o'clock.

We toured the Parliament Bldgs. which included the House of Commons Chamber walking through the lovely old corridors where paintings of former speakers hang. We entered the library so uniquely carved. We then visited the Senate Chamber, and on to the Peace Tower and the memorial for the war dead. The boy's and leaders were very impressed and proud to be Canadians.

Our Foxboro bus driver was a very knowing driver through the streets of Ottawa and took us to a lovely park just past the Friendship Fountain for our lunch. We all had box lunches and soft drinks.

We were then taken to the R.C.M.P. barracks where we were shown through the stables. We were very fortunate in being able to see the musical ride in a practice period in the arena. We were thrilled to see the horses and their riders perform.

From here we were taken to the War Museum, a place well worth seeing and the mint where our Canadian coins are made.

On our way home we stopped at a shopping plaza, so the boys could buy souvenirs and we had our supper there.

We arrived home at nine o'clock, tired but happy.

Negroes Kill Boy They Did Not Know

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three Negro teen-agers, seeking members of a white gang to revenge the non-fatal stabbing of a Negro, stopped crippled 15 - year - old Elmer Rush Jr. as he walked home from school Wednesday.

They didn't know him, nor did he know them.

"Are you a member of the 10th street gang?" they demanded.

Elmer had fallen down a flight of stairs when he was four or five, damaging his brain so that he was muscularly uncoordinated and spoke with difficulty. He was unable to say something they could not understand.

Thereupon, said Capt. Joseph Golden of the homicide squad, Robert Bell, 17, punched him; James Tinsley, 17, hit him some more and Albert Mitchell, 15, drew the four-inch blade of a pocket knife into his back.

Elmer slumped to the sidewalk and died there minutes later.

Thursday, the youths insisted to police, they hadn't meant to kill the boy.

"We only were going to grease a white boy," Golden quoted them.

In the teen-age vernacular of teeming south Philadelphia, where the attack took place, the word "grease" means to beat him up.

All three were charged with homicide.

After he died, Rush lay unidentified for hours in the morgue. His mother, Louisa, 53, became alarmed when he was not home when she returned from work and reported him missing. Police had been waiting for just such a call, and took her to identify the body. She collapsed.

Senior Citizens Hear Talks

The Senior Citizens held their general meeting on May 5th in the Recreation Centre, with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. M. Clapp welcomed all. Mrs. L. Adams presided at the piano. The birthday song was sung for all members and one new member was welcomed to the club.

During the business Mrs. M. Robinson, secretary read the minutes. Mrs. V. Tryan, treasurer, gave the financial statement. Other reports were given by Mrs. H. Vickers, Mrs. H. Taylor and Mrs. E. Ross.

The Senior Citizens' convention is to be held in Guelph with Mrs. M. Clapp and Mrs. L. Adams being named delegates.

Miss M. Rae was the winner of the lucky draw.

Mr. John White introduced Mr. Adam Stalker, city clerk, who gave a talk on Canada. Mrs. M. Clapp thanked Mr. Stalker.

Dr. Charles Dondale of the Belleville Research Institute was also introduced to the members by Mr. White. Dr. Dondale chose as his subject "Spiders Are Wonderful," and explained the different types of spiders, insects and pests, their homes and habits, their usefulness and destructiveness. He also showed slides of the Research Institute and gave an interesting talk on the work that is being done there. The president thanked Dr. Dondale.

Mrs. H. Taylor and committee served refreshments.

Housewife Left Roast of Meat On High Heat

A grass fire at the rear of the Tops Motel yesterday afternoon started the day for Belleville fire department. The fire occurred at 3:13 p.m. among some rubbish. As things turned out, it was the department's only grass fire of the day.

But shortly afterwards, at 3:18 p.m. units were called to a home on East Bridge Street where a housewife had left a roast of meat, on maximum heat while she went outside.

The result: a meatless Thursday and a house full of smoke. "It was pouring out of every crevice," said Fire Chief Ted Poste.

By way of contrast, the city dump erupted in flames offering a chilly, necessitating another trip for the firefighters.

Finally, at 5:17 p.m. the department received a call to the property of Mr. G. Stratton on Wallbridge-Loyalist Road. There, low, where a barn was on fire. The blaze was virtually under control when firemen arrived and booster pumps finished the job.

Winter Kill Of Fall Wheat Heavy in Area

Although it is still not known whether the loss will amount to the 50 per cent suffered from the Peterborough area, farmers in the Bay of Quinte area are also complaining of winter kill of their fall wheat.

Douglas Tipper, agricultural representative for Hastings county, stated today the percentage loss of winter wheat in this area was not yet known but said it would be "considerable."

In the Peterborough area the percentage loss in some wheat fields was so great that farmers are recultivating and sowing to oats or other spring crop.

Splendid progress in spring seeding is reported in the southern part of Hastings county although the rain of last night and today will temporarily halt cultivation and sowing.

But, according to agricultural officials, the rain was badly needed as cold drying winds had rapidly dried out fields.

Today's rain, if followed by warm weather will boost grass growth which because of the cool weather has been slow.

Police Alert Area Against Confidence Man

City police alerted the Quinte district today against confidence tricksters posing as bank employees.

The tipoff came from a Belleville woman when a con man committed the unprofessional error of mistaking her bank.

Police said Mrs. Harold Reid warned that the con man seek information on individual bank accounts and facilitate the cashing of forged cheques. The usual operation is to phone householders posing as a bank employee. The usual opening gambit is to inquire from the victim if they have lately checked their bank account.

"This then leads them off into all sorts of questions which gullible victims unwittingly answer," said the inspector, "Fortunately for us the artist on the phone this woman yesterday got the wrong bank."

Alerted by the woman's call, police issued a public radio warning.

Even Canoes Using Trent Need Licences

OTTAWA (CP)—All boats—from canoes to yachts—using the Trent, Rideau and Quebec canals from now on will be required to be licensed under the Canada Shipping Act, it was announced Thursday.

The transport department, which administers the three canals, said the regulation was made necessary by a sharp increase in traffic.

The licences are free and are available at any customs office. Enforcement will be limited to warnings at the outset of the coming boating season.

Previously, licensing was required for boats propelled by motors of 10 horsepower or more and not exceeding 20 tons registered tonnage.

ALICE BOXILL

Psychologist Talks on Mental Health

Mr. Dick Shooter, psychologist from St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, spoke to the High School assemblies on Wednesday of Mental Health Week.

He stressed the importance of realizing that it is normal to have some problems and that everyone has them, as much in adolescence as in adulthood. It is imperative that each individual develop his own unique way of facing and dealing with stresses and strains and that he should have an opportunity of learning to do so in childhood. Lack of preparation and adaptability can lead to breakdown in mental health in adolescence as well as in later life.

Psychiatrists are interested in the fundamental characteristics of normality and in working toward the evolution of common problems, and fortunately adolescents and adults have an almost infinite capacity for change.

Hostility experienced at times by all of us, and frequently projected to a new situation, is often misconnected earlier one. This is commonly combined with anxiety, a problem from which adolescents suffer constantly and needlessly. Feelings of self-defeat are also too often shielded and the wise adolescent will begin to acknowledge that for his or her own sake it is imperative to release and express feelings.

Becoming mature is a gradual process of biological and intellectual integration considerably aided by the human ability for "self repair" and the learned art of "rolling with the punches". To achieve this successfully realistic insight is needed, moderate and appropriate responses to varying circumstances and only a sensible degree of self pity.

Adolescence is the time for cultivating acceptance of love, anger and fear as normal emotions, for learning "give and take," and compassion; and the possibility of being alone comfortably when necessary. Moral and ethical maturity result from individual integration of morals and standards that are uniquely one's own. To be not at peace with oneself is devastating and Mr. Shooter said he has seen many emotional breakdowns and broken homes in marriages of young adults, because the individuals lack the insight, understanding and integration that they must have to face the frustrations of normal living.

The Canadian Mental Health Association expresses appreciation to the high school principals for welcoming Mr. Shooter.

Letter-writing Eases Worries Of Parents About Sick Children

TORONTO — She might be called The Little Lady who lived in a Hospital and had so many children She Did Know What To Do.

Each day, Alice Boxill, grey-haired, motherly parents' personal repre-sentative at The Hospital for Sick Children, writes between 40 and 50 letters. They are warm, intimate and comforting. They go to parents of children from distant places mainly too often to others who can't afford frequent visits from near-by places. Here are excerpts from one day's letters:

To Baie d'Espoir, Newfoundland: "I never saw Maria look cuter than in a new blue dress with tiny tucks. One of the nurses found lovely shoes to match it. Maria is coming along find and sends her love." To Cochrane, Ontario: "Ray's still in an isolette but doesn't need oxygen now, and he's become a voracious eater. We're very proud of him . . ." To Lethbridge, Alberta: "Linda is sitting up now and looks aurelia better. We found a new doll for her, with a pink dress, and she's just crazy about it. Some played with blocks. We hope it won't be long now before she'll be on the way home."

A few weeks ago a hospital official from Philadelphia, one of many who've come from all over the continent, visited the Hospital to study the system. It began in 1930 when the late Joseph Bower, then Director of the Hospital, became concerned at parents taking children out of the Hospital despite doctors' insistence that it was too early. He inferred that no child go until he talked with the parents.

Mr. Bower found that it was loneliness that caused the withdrawals. He started parents' personal service, and for 13 years Alice Boxill has headed it. From chief nurses of wards she learns about lonely children, and she studies every admission to find distant parents. Then she checks their cases daily, chats with many, and writes hun-fet-ters. From time to time she includes snapshots taken by members of the Hospital's Women's Auxiliary.

Today, second only to Santa Claus, she probably receives more mail from children than anyone else in the world. She laughingly says she is getting mail from her "grandchildren" now, and at Christmas her mail comes in bags.

Can You Remember When?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Memory is man's best friend and boon companion.

You probably have minted many a sad or merry memory yourself if you can look back and remember when—

An enterprising lad could make his spending money in summer going from door to door selling flypaper.

It was testified in that Clara Bow, the glamorous "It Girl" of the movies, lost some of her $5,000 weekly income playing kitchen poker with her household help.

Hatcheck girls usually got only a dime from a customer and weren't too upset if he left only a nickel.

Your stature in a small community was partly determined by the number of times you had read the Bible all the way through.

It also was a mark of distinction if you had a worn buffalo robe to keep you warm when you went riding in a horse-drawn sleigh.

A lot of people were secretly ashamed of old furniture in their homes which now is being eagerly sought as antiques.

The first thing a newly married couple bought was a big bright brass bedstead.

During the flapper era girls wore bead necklaces so long they were in danger of tripping over them while doing the Charleston.

When you went out for a night on the town you said you were going to "make whoopee."

Those were the dear old days. Remember?

City Boards Represented At Meeting

The many aspects of education administration came under close study at Niagara Falls during the three day annual conference of the Ontario Association of School business officials.

Attending the conference from Belleville were J. Leigh Anderson, secretary-treasurer of the Belleville Public School Board, and Roy Dulmage, Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

The conference talks, conducted largely on an informal format of panel and workshop discussions ranged from the complexities of data processing equipment to the vital areas of public relations, and from administrative professional development to the intricasies of government grant structures.

Lord Thomson Sells Holdings In Company

LONDON (CP) — There was an unexpected announcement Thursday about Lord Thomson, the Canadian - born publisher. He was selling — not buying.

The Thomson organization announced the sale of 60 per cent of shares in Thomson Printers, holding company for most of the group's printing interests, to the Reed International Corporation (BPC).

Purchase prices of £2,160,000 ($6,480,000) will be satisfied by the issue of £2,160,000 in five-shilling ordinary shares in BPC to Thomson. That also includes 6 per cent of BPC's enlarged ordinary stock.

Thomson has undertaken not to dispose of the shares for two years. If he wants to sell then, BPC will have the first refusal granted minimum price of 20 shillings.

The Financial Times columnist Observer interprets the move as a big, if apparently paradoxical, step in Thomson's diversification program.

The publication says two airholiday firms and an airline last week and it might seem at first glance that the business now sold fits better with publishing interests than the newly-purchased enterprises.

"But this is not at all how it appears to the Thomson strategist. The aluminum division sits — Gordon Brunton, managing director of Thomson Industrial Holdings," says Observer.

"Too close links between the publishing and printing sides of the group would be a standing temptation to feather - bedding on one side or the other.

"Travel, on the other hand, provides nice earnings during the dead season for publishers and takes much of its money in advance. Above all, expert management comes ready-made."

SEATO Backs 'Hard Line' Over South Viet Nam But Coming Apart at Seams

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The eight - nation southeast Asia Treaty Organization backed up President Johnson's "hard line" over South Viet Nam at the end of the 10th SEATO council meeting in London Wednesday.

But all the tough - sounding words in the six - page final communique couldn't disguise the fact SEATO is showing signs of coming apart at the seams.

The French government, represented only by an observer, declined to take any part in the proceedings and Pakistan, in a carefully - ambiguous paragraph, made clear its reservations about the way the Vietnam war is being fought without actually coming out with a contrary view.

As one member of the Pakistani delegation is quoted as saying: "We showed we could have disagreement without being disagreeable."

WILL NOT JOIN

Neither the French nor the Pakistani navies will join the SEATO naval demonstration in the South China Sea next week.

That leaves the U.S. navy, the United States, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Thailand united in their determination, as the communique puts it, "to continue and, consistent with their commitments elsewhere, to increase their assistance to South Viet Nam."

The communique expresses "warm support" for the U.S. policy on South Viet Nam and condemns "aggression organized, directed, supplied and supported by the Communist authorities of North Viet Nam" in contravention of the Geneva agreements.

Under the terms of its original charter SEATO could intervene only otherwise than give the Americans unequivocal diplomatic backing. It was founded in 1954 specifically to fight armed aggression in vulnerable Southeast Asia, although at the time the U.S. added a rider saying the aggression must be Communist inspired before intervention could take place.

Educational "Rat Race"

Globe and Mail columnist Richard J. Needham makes a point about education that is often obscured in the plethora of talk and competitiveness that surrounds it today. "Teachers are beginning to recognize," he says, "that we have forced our young people into a gruelling rat-race—through public school, then immediately into high school, then immediately into university, then immediately into the hungry maw of some vast corporation where they will spend the rest of their lives being digested and depersonalized."

Needham is right of course, and so are the teachers. He goes on: "Nowhere along the line is there a breathing-space where they can stand and stare; or better still, travel and stare. Nowhere is there a period of freedom and contemplation where they can figure out who they really are and what they really want to do. At no point can they call their souls, minds and bodies their own; they are always being pushed, poked, paraded and preached at by somebody or other."

He quotes some educationists in Britain where the young people are going through the same exhausting process. Says Ian Crombie, senior tutor of Wadham College at Oxford: "Boys should be made to think two or three times before they decide to get off to university as soon as they have the minimum qualifications. Some will be better to stay at school and have a bit of time to browse, and some better to leave school, knock about the world and learn how people live, for six months or so before they come to university."

C. N. Ridley, headmaster of Kingswood Grammar School in Bristol said high schools were sending students to university "who are A-plus in intellect and C-minus as social creatures." They are going to there, he said, until they were more independent and mature.

Needham contends that young people now have the time educationists feel is necessary to "browse around." There is time enough because the average Briton or Canadian can look forward to living some 70 years.

He emphasizes the need for young people to travel, and it is travel, and not always early marriage, that helps to give rest to a long life.

In one compelling passage, Needham sums up the whole issue. "From cradle to grave, we are too anxious, too committed. And that is bad enough for the middle-aged (those sad, sad people on the Toronto subway) but it is even worse for the young. They, of all people should have the time to stand and stare. If they did it more often enough, might question the values by which our society lives, and they might go forward (or back) to values of greater substance."

Why Spoil the Suspence?

A report from Dr. A. William Lilley of Auckland, New Zealand, says that doctors can now determine the sex of an unborn infant quite accurately.

The sex is determined by sampling a fluid from the mother's uterus. Doctors look for the sex chromatin in the unborn baby's amniotic fluid. The chromatin is found only in female cells.

Dr. Lilley added, "we don't normally do it. It's like unwrapping the Christmas present before Christmas."

Indeed, it is!

However, with most discoveries and inventions, the intentions of the originator are not always a consideration. Einstein certainly did not intend his discoveries of nuclear power to lead to the present-day threat of nuclear weapons. It is probable then, or at least possible, that this new discovery may come into common usage. If so, then it seems a shame.

A large part of the joy of having children is in the suspence involved during pregnancy—the looking forward with eagerness to whether it will be a son or a daughter. Without this suspense, something very precious would be lost.

Perhaps, in some instances, where the health of mother and child is in danger, it could help the doctor to know the sex of the unborn child, and if this were the case, the new findings could prove invaluable.

But if everything is normal, and the need for sex determination does not exist, why spoil the suspense?

Modern science is wonderful, but let us leave a few things for people to wonder about.

Science and art belong to the whole world, and before them vanish the barriers of nationality.—Goethe.

Tahiti - - Island in Transition

By HARRY McCULLAGH

Tahiti, fabled island of the South Pacific, is in a state of transition. It is now on the jet routes from North America, and the mystery and romanticism that once stemmed from time and distance are fast dissolving.

Big, plush hotels are springing up and there are the beginnings of the kind of commercialism long since perfected in regions like Florida and the south of France, bringing with it the end of an illusion that has been described by Australian author George Farwell in his new book, "Last Days in Paradise." Farwell says the old Tahiti of legend and romance is disappearing as the island becomes accessible. Its people are being exposed to the monetary values of the western world, and sense that they too can take advantage of them.

Nevertheless, the sheer physical presence of the place, one time home of the artist Gauguin and haunt of adventurers from many lands, is still impressive. It is like a beautiful woman whose loveliness is ageless.

DAWN ARRIVAL

Approaching Tahiti on the ocean voyage, the island lies silhouetted against the dawn. It is 4.30 a.m. and the dark outline instils a sense of awe. On the port side is Moorea, Tahiti's sister island, its jagged peaks already familiar from travel posters. Out of sight, 150 miles away, lies Bora Bora, most magnificent island in the group. Seven hundred years ago, the forebears of the Maoris are believed to have sailed from these islands, in one of the great migrations of all time. Then, about 200 years after Leif Ericson sailed from Greenland to Vinland, or what is now Newfoundland.

At 6.30 a.m. the pilot boat came out of the track of the rising sun and at 7.00 a.m. the vessel docked at Papeete (Papa-ai-tai.)

The green slopes behind the port shimmered in the tropical heat and the dockside bustled with activity. Tahitians and Europeans. Standing at the rail I witnessed a charming incident. A pretty Tahitian girl greeted her friend and kissed her gently on both cheeks, the custom of France has adopted in Tahiti. Polite. But what could be more natural in Tahiti than the in-born courtesy and graciousness of the Gallic temperament. It is in Tahiti, Mentor in the South Seas,—the reactions would have been less restrained, but these two citizens gave the visitor curious fingers at each other and smiled and seemed to be saying, "naughty."

IN SHADE OF H-BOMB

But Tahiti has its darker side, problems of politics, economics and overpopulation. It is the headquarters for the forthcoming French nuclear tests in the Gambier islands 700 miles to the south. The Foreign Legion is in Tahiti in force. No fewer than 5,000 Legionnaires are based there, along with regular French colonial personnel and militia. There is also talk of resettling 30,000 Algerian refugees on the island.

The effect of such a move would be catastrophic. At one in where the outsider, or popaa (stranger) has never been particularly welcome. Intermarriage is rife and the facts of economic life are hard enough already for the 80,000 Polynesian population. Of its 45,000 people, 35,000 are Polynesian, 8,000 Chinese, and 2,000 Europeans, including French government officials. The capital, Papeete, has a population of 18,000.

Papeete is an interesting segment of the French tradition overseas. From early morning it is a riot of scooters and motorcycles. At 11.00 a.m., the mid-day siesta begins and the populace streams homeward (just about every man, woman and teenager rides a scooter of some sort, and there are plenty of cars, too) to return two-and-a-half hours later.

TOUCH OF SULLENNESS

A downtown bar where I relaxed over a beer was staffed by Tahitian girls in skin-tight orange dresses. They moved with a languorous grace and their manner suggested they had seen it all, and strangers like myself, before. There was in their bearing what one writer has described as a "certain sullenness." One smoked a cigarette as she swept the floor, and I was reminded of the Maori women of New Zealand who are seldom without a cigarette. Perhaps their manner was that of the sophisticated city dweller everywhere. And Papeete, I was constantly being reminded, is not Tahiti.

What one must remember too, as a stranger in Tahiti, is that the same color bar which operates between Maori and European in New Zealand (despite superficial racial harmony) applies in Tahiti, and that possession of a white skin is not necessarily a badge of honor nor a mark of superiority.

SIX-MONTH STAY

Yachts and schooners in the harbor across the street contained their quota of adventurers. An Irish friend encountered an American and was invited on board for refreshment. Such hospitality disguised the fact that the lone yachtsman was running out of both time (the French authorities discourage permanent residence by imposing a six months limit) and funds.

But despite the rumblings of discontent, there was still ample evidence of the Tahiti of one's imagination. A bus ride, for instance, in an open vehicle to Point Venus (where Captain Cook observed the transit of the planet Venus in 1722—a view across the broad sweep of Matavai Bay and ten miles of blue Pacific to the jagged peaks of Moorea—wayside stops to buy mangoes—encounters with smiling Tahitian children —native homes and luxuriant tropical growth—the scent of flowers. Was this not the real Tahiti?

It was at Matavai Bay that the Bounty anchored and where scenes of the Marlon Brando film of the mutiny were shot. That night I danced under the stars at the Hotel Tahiti, in the shade of the coconut palms, to a lagoon. The January air was soft and warm and the sound of electric guitars was like blood tingle. A Tahitian waitress in a blue pareu and flowers in her hair served at my table. In the accents of France she said, "Hello—hello, what would you like?" We sipped our drinks and talked and danced, and watched the exquisite young Tahitians who performed the dances of Polynesia for us, to the urgent throb of drums in the still of the Pacific night.

Womenfolk Are Often Demanding

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The more a man knows, the harder it is for him to answer a "simple" question; for the greatest complexity often resides in the most "obvious" subject on which everyone thinks he can explain to a child.

Women tend to be either indifferent or demanding toward men; the temperate zone is not one that is congenial to the feminine temperament, where men are concerned.

Carbohydrate Counting Not Always Successful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: several of our friends are now attempting to lose weight by the carbohydrate method. If the number of calories of carbohydrate is kept low, the dieters can eat or drink anything.

This doesn't seem reasonable to me, as the calorie content could be terrifically high even if the carbohydrate count is low.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. J.

I agree with you. So, in time, will your friends.

They may, some of them, manage to lose a bit of weight in the beginning. This is true of some of these trick dieting systems which, from time to time, droughts, and measles, come and go in cycles..

The message has temporary success in these diets which purportedly let you eat whatever you want, so long as you abide by the so-called "rules," is probably this:

Eating is very much a matter of habit. That, in fact, is why it is so hard to lose weight, once you've spent years getting into the eating habits that have made you fat.

Now, if you can persuade somebody to give up (or almost give up) some particular type of food, he'll achieve that restriction: He'll eat a lot less carbohydrates in this case. But he'll tend to go on eating or drinking about the same amount of other things as formerly. He'll follow his past habits, that is. So he may actually lose some weight.

But sooner or later one of two things happens. He gradually begins to increase the amount of foods other than carbohydrates. Or, and this is more likely, I think, he begins to get so hungry for some of the missing carbohydrates (spaghetti, cake, bread, sugar in its various forms, etc.) that he says, "Ah, five lost X pounds, so I can afford spaghetti once a week."

Pretty soon he's back where he started.

Then when somebody comes along with some other kind of a trick diet, he goes through the performance all over again.

Why? Search me, except that hope springs eternal in the human breast—especially in the breast of somebody who wants to get thin but not at the expense of cutting down his calories from all sources.

Silly, isn't it?

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain this word: "Cholecholedochodenostomy". — V. L. H.

Let's start with some anatomy. There is a common bile duct which carries bile from the liver and from the gall bladder to the duodenum, or first portion of the small intestine. (Bile is one of the necessary digestive juices.)

Sometimes, because of obstruction at the point at which the duct connects to the duodenum, it is necessary to bypass the obstruction and connect the common duct to a different (but nearby) part of the duodenum. This allows the flow of bile and reduction of jaundice.

The jaw breaker word is the name of such an operation.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am diabetic and take a urine test every afternoon, about an hour or two after lunch. I notice that after the tablet has stopped sizzling the contents has a very dark color, greenish-blue. After it has settled several hours it becomes blue, indicating it is negative, but there is very heavy settling in the bottom of the tube. What causes this? — L. R. H.

The settling and color change result from chemical reactions which take place over a period of time. The test should be read according to directions that come with the tablets"— shortly after the sizzle has stopped, not several hours later.

Also, the test after a meal is more apt to show sugar. Ask your doctor when you should make the test.

If Government diverts too much of our national resources to causes, no matter how worthy, which do not add to the national income, we may all be the poorer. This would be an unfortunate outcome for any war on poverty.

Despite increased fine penalties imposed upon speeders, charges of speeding preferred under the War Measures Act, continue to dominate the local County Police Court.

Warning that the sum of one dollar a mile in excess of 30 miles an hour would be assessed speeders over and above the minimum fine mandatory under the W.M.A., seems to have taken no effect as three such violators paid fines today. One motorist of Galt was assessed $42.50 after being convicted of being apprehended driving his car at a 75-mile an hour clip. Another motorist of Springbrook paid $32.50 after pleading guilty to speeding at 65-miles per hour. A motorist of Bellville was only accelerating between 40 and 50 miles an hour so he paid the minimum $15.00 and costs. One motorist paid $10.00 and costs for failing to report an accident contrary to the H.T.A.

The Mohawk Indians on the Tyendinaga Reserve celebrated the Silver Jubilee of His Majesty King George V on the small house on the Reserve yesterday. Following over the radio to the King's address, the gathering sang the National Anthem. The pastor of the Anglican Church on the Reserve, Rev. Herbert Pringle, occupied the chair; with him on the platform were a number of distinguished chiefs of the band. The guest speaker was Mr. C. C. Mikel, K.C., and the gathering enjoyed his talk dealing with the life of His Majesty and the people of the British Empire.

Where is the centre of Belleville? Some people would place it at the Bank of Montreal at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Ave., and others would say that it is at the city hall. According to city engineer, it is neither of these places but at the Church Street near Victoria Ave. The discussion arose on the City engineer presented the Intelligencer with a new map of the city today. The point is to be located as the city limits remain as they are.

Stan Freberg Gives Pointers On Advertising

TORONTO (CP) — Satirist Stan Freberg, now devoting most of his time to producing off-beat advertisements, told a group of fellow ad men Wednesday it would be hard to find another industry that understands less about the art of communicating.

He told the closing session of the 50th annual meeting of the Association of Canadian Advertisers the thing that got him into the business after a successful entertainment career was "the challenge of proving daily that advertising does not necessarily have to be dull, insipid, nauseating or irritating in order to communicate and thus sell the product."

Somewhere along the line, Mr. Freberg said, people were renamed consumers by advertising men and had to be convinced their mission in life was to consume.

"To accomplish this herculean task, the volume of advertising obviously had to be increased to the point where Madison Avenue leapt to the challenge and-or the billing.

"In their voracious zeal to sell, sell, sell, they began to irritate, irritate, irritate."

CONCEDES PEQVE

Mr. Freberg conceded that hard - sell supporters can produce consumer research reports to show that when people need a laxative or have a cold they are interested in a television commercial that proclaims a cure.

"Assuming this has its roots of truth, why drag 20,000,000 other viewers along with them?

"That's like you're at the theatre, and suddenly at the first act intermission a woman stands up in the first row and in a loud, shrill voice begins to tell the audience about her gallstone operation.

"Nobody wants to hear about that. Not even, I'll wager, gallstone sufferers.

"If that kind of client feels obliged to be so unsubtle about his advertising, let him choose another medium — like newspapers or magazines, where people may be selective and flip right by it, if they so desire. Viewers don't like to be trapped in their living rooms."

LIBERAL CHANGES VIEW

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice Leroux, former public relations director of the Quebec Provincial Liberal Federation, announced Thursday he will run for the presidency of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale. Mr. Leroux, special television adviser of Premier Lesage, quit his post in mid-April, saying the Liberal party had shifted away from the dynamic wing of the Liberal Federation towards a more conservative stand.

Two Suspects In Killing of Famous Clown

NEW YORK (AP) — Police disclosed Thursday they have two suspects — one "running" and the other believed to be in the city — in the slaying of circus clown Paul Jung.

Jung was found beaten to death in his hotel room two weeks ago after he failed to appear for a performance of the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

At the time there appeared to be no clues except eight unopened cans of beer found in the room.

However, police disclosed Thursday they had identified the murder weapon, a blunt instrument described as hotel property and something usually found in hotel rooms but not further identified.

Jung, ope of the circus' most famous clowns and producer of many favorite clown routines, also was wealthy from his own firm producing circus gag material.

Police have questioned more than 1,500 persons, including 264 from the circus and 233 guests at the Hotel Forrest where Jung was staying.

They declined to give further details concerning the suspects.

Police Guard Negro Voters As Rhodesian Election Held

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Armed police rode on the tops of buses today to protect Negroes going to polls in townships near Bulawayo as Rhodesia's general election got under way with independence the key issue.

Negro nationalist leaders have told their supporters to boycott today's election. It was feared that those Negroes who did want to vote would be intimidated.

Bulawayo is about 300 miles west of Salisbury.

In Salisbury's white areas only a trickle of voters went to the polls when voting stations opened at 7:30 a.m.

Although Prime Minister Ian Smith denied that this was a "UDI (unilateral declaration of independence) election," he has said that if he cannot negotiate independence for this self-governing British colony his government "will have to seize it."

OUTCOME CERTAIN

Smith's government was almost certain to be returned in the general election with at least a two-thirds majority in the 65-seat parliament.

His unity - for - independence appeal has won massive support from the white voters despite the unlikelihood of Britain granting Rhodesia independence on the basis of its present constitution.

Most of the country's 4,000,000 Negroes have boycotted the election and refused to register as voters because they believe the constitution would prolong white rule.

Although they are in the minority, the voting is heavily weighted in favor of the whites.

There are 50 "A" roll seats and most of the people qualified to vote for "A" roll candidates are whites. Most Negroes must vote on the "B" roll — where there are only 15 seats.

Given Life Term For Murder

TORONTO (CP)—Carl Wayne Stringer, 24, Thursday was sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of seven-year-old Deborah Massie Jan. 4.

Stringer, of nearby Maple, had been charged with capital murder. But after three days of evidence before Mr. Justice W. D. Parker and an Ontario Supreme Court jury, he entered a plea of guilty to non-capital murder and the judge directed the jury to return that verdict.

Mr. Justice Parker said there was no evidence to show the slaying of the girl was either planned or deliberate and therefore Stringer could not be convicted on the more serious charge.

Defence Counsel Austin Cooper told the court he was prepared to concede that the crown had made a case of murder against Stringer but not capital murder.

Evidence was that the girl died of a fractured skull and had been sexually molested.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Elaborate legal safeguards exist to protect property rights. However, if one is determined to commit a fraud, even these times are not enough, as one of our correspondents has found to her sorrow.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Boy, am I mad! I just found out that my husband sold my house, took the money and is now living it up with his girlfriend in Mexico or some other foreign country — I don't know where.

Two years ago, tired of his constant threats and beatings, I took my two children and moved out. The house was a gift that my father gave us as a wedding present.

My lawyer said not to worry for he couldn't do anything with the house without me because my name was on the deed. He must have had a smarter lawyer for he collected $18,000 and is now thousands of miles away. How did he do it? Is there anything I can do? — Mrs. (?) P.E.

ANSWER: The legal advice of your attorney was correct — but your husband did it illegally. He probably got one of his paramours to pose as his wife and forged your name to the deed and settlement papers.

Your attorney can take steps, if you desire, to have your husband indicted for fraud, but first he must be found. By that time all the money may be gone. There also will be a lot of notoriety which will hurt you and your children. Why you can decide for yourself if getting your pound of flesh is that important.

Fortunately, you should get your pro-rated portion of the sale price by having your attorney file a claim with the company that insured the title. As for the balance, I would consider it a cheap price to pay for getting rid of a bad apple.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I know you cannot answer all letters you receive in your column but I am sure many people have had my problem. Last year we had a new roof put on our house. Since we wanted the best job, and were willing to pay for it, we picked one that was guaranteed for 20 years. We received an official looking bond with a large gold seal.

They seemed to have done a good job but after a few months two leaks developed. We tried contacting the company but they have gone out of business. What do we do now? — Mrs. M. B.

ANSWER: Read your so-called bond carefully and see who is doing the guaranteeing. There might be a remote chance that it could be a surety company or the manufacturer — but I doubt it if your case is typical.

Repair the two leaks. Give the document with the gold seal to your children as a plaything and next time make sure that when you get a guarantee someone substantial is behind it.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I never went beyond the 8th grade but my son is trying to tell me that 6 percent interest costs less than 5 percent. If this part of the new mathematics, we may be needing new teachers.

Our boy starts college this coming September and I am making arrangements to borrow money. The bank is willing to advance me $4,000, by adding it to my 6 percent mortgage or give me a loan at 5 percent on which I will make monthly payments just like I do on the mortgage.

Fifty years of living has taught me that 5 percent is less than 6 percent. Is there any possibility that I could be wrong? — Just a Parent

ANSWER: Even by the old math your son is right. In this case your 5 percent loan will cost you a lot more.

When you borrow money on a mortgage you pay interest each month on the unpaid balance. As the balance decreases, the amount of interest paid decreases.

In the second case your $4,000 loan at 5 percent has a decreasing balance because as you're paying back a portion each month. The average outstanding balance, therefore, over the life of the loan is approximately $2,000 but you pay interest on $4,000. Therefore your true interest rate is almost 10 percent.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Our street has been nicknamed "chickenpox row." The walls of every house have big paint blisters. Mine is the worst of all.

Every spring for the past three years, I have had the house repainted. By the time July rolls around the paint blisters are back. I have tried all sorts of paint, even those guaranteed not to blister. As spokesman for my neighbors I have been delegated to write. What can we do? — Mrs. J. K. L.

ANSWER: First, I would drop my paint brush and start looking for the cause of the trouble. Paint blisters are almost always the result of entrapped moisture. In your case, it is not from rain beating against the walls.

There apparently is a structural deficiency that is allowing rain water to get behind and inside the walls. The hot sun vaporizes the moisture and the result is paint blisters.

The water may be getting into the walls from improperly installed gutters, poor caulking, faulty down-spouts or any number of reasons. If you or your neighbors can't locate the trouble, I recommend that you call in a builder. The trouble spot or spots should not be hard to locate.

Hitler's Dream Evaporates
Thousand-Year Reich Folds in 12 Years

By JOHN BAUSMAN

BERLIN (AP) — The fall of France in June, 1940, left Hitler free to choose another victim.

At first he set his sights on Britain and made elaborate plans for Operation Sea Lion, the German invasion of England. But an essential condition was air superiority, a goalthat Herman Goering's luftwaffe was never able to establish over Britain. The Battle of Britain raged in the skies throughout the second half of 1940. The British pilots, who gradually turned the balance of air losses in their favor, were the first force to check Hitler's advance.

But the Nazi dictator by this time had set his sights on the Soviet Union with whom he had signed a 10-year non-aggression pact only 22 months before. It was to be a land campaign of unprecedented dimensions and fired the imagination of the Fuehrer.

To prepare for the campaign, Hitler secured his Balkan flank by taking Yugoslavia and Greece in 1941 and then Greece, which had successfully resisted an Italian invasion six months earlier.

June 22, 1941, Hitler unleashed 3,300,000 men in a three-pronged attack on Russia. At first all went so smoothly that an elated Hitler was counting on victory in a matter of weeks.

But while Hitler declared the Soviet Union had been "struck down, never to rise again," the Russians were putting up increasingly strong resistance. His mobile armies bogged down in mud and the harsh winter slowed the blitzkrieg to a crawl.

The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, brought the United States into the war against the Axis. And while the United States kept up its fight in the Pacific, it agreed with its British and Russian allies that the defeat of Nazi Germany had priority.

The year of 1942 saw Nazi dominion reach its peak. The summer campaign into southern Russia added new territory and in North Africa, Gen. Erwin Rommel, whose Afrika Korps had come to the aid of the Italians in early 1941, threatened the British at El Alamein.

TURNS TIDE

But these last thrusts were deceptive. They tested the limits of Nazi strength and it proved to be the end. Rommel was forced into retreat by the British in October and the campaign in southern Russia brought bitter defeat at Stalingrad. The tide was turned.

In November, 1942, the British and Americans landed in North Africa and by the following spring had wiped out the Axis forces there. The Nazis launched another summer offensive in Russia in 1943, but the drive was blocked there.

The Allies stepped up massive bombings of German cities throughout 1943. In July the Americans, British and Canadians invaded Sicily and in September, Italy proper.

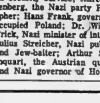
The approaching defeat only seemed to spur Hitler and his more warped aides in their fiendish projects to kill off all Jews and enemies of the Reich. In 1944, when the western Allies had landed in France and Russia was rolling back the eastern front, the SS was burning 6,000 or more bodies a day at Auschwitz alone. In June of that year, the month of the Allied landing in Normandy, more than 250,000 Hungarian Jews alone were put to death at Auschwitz.

Nazi fury reached a peak July 20, 1944, when a small group of officers, hoping to save Germany from destruction by getting rid of Hitler, attempted to assassinate the fuhrer at his headquarters, the Wolfs' Lair, at Rastenburg in East Prussia. The attempt failed and hundreds of persons, including 21 officers of high rank died in the purge that followed.

The outcome of the war could no longer be denied. But Hitler refused to give up. In December, 1944, he launched a final offensive against the western Allies, calling up boys and old men to strengthen his forces in defence of the Reich. It proved only a temporary halt on the road to final defeat.

HITLER DIES

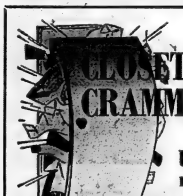
May 1 the official German radio announced that Hitler had died "fighting to the last breath against bolshevism." It is now generally accepted that he had committed suicide April 30 in his bunker with his lon g-time mistress and bride of one day, Eva Braun, at his side. Their bodies were carried to the garden and burned. The scattered Russian troops were only a block away.



Karl Doenitz, the minister of propaganda, escaped Allied hands by committing suicide the day after Hitler died. Heinrich Himmler, head of the SS, committed suicide after his arrest by the British.

But the allies tried and condemned to death Hermann Goering, No. 2 man under Hitler; Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop; Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitl; Dr. Ernest Kaltenbrunner, last chief of the SS' security service; Alfred Rosenberg, the Nazi party Philosopher; Hans Frank, governor of occupied Poland; Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of interior; Julius Streicher, Nazi publicist and Jew-hailer; Arthur Seyss-Inquart, the Austrian quisling and Nazi governor of Holland; Fritz Sauckel, head of the slave labor program, and Gen. Jodl.

All were hanged except Goering who took poison two hours before he was to mount the gallows.



The International Tribunal at Nuernberg was only the start of the course of justice trying to catch up with the criminal Nazi regime. Liberated countries in both Eastern and Western Europe caught and condemned their own collaborators and German tormentors.

The Allied occupation authorities separately tried and convicted thousands more. And Germany itself, 20 years after the war, still was conducting war crimes trials.

Many Colorful Beer Parlors Left in Quebec

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — "Notice: Forbidden to swear, whistle, sing, sleep or pull wrist in this tavern."

The last injunction is aimed mainly at the lumberjacks who pour into this old city's taverns to spend money earned in the north woods.

Pulling wrists is a good deal more damaging, for tavern furniture at least, than bending elbows. Strapping men put an elbow to the table, grasp hands and try to bend the opponent's forearm until his knuckles touch the tabletop.

Waiters in the Montcalm Tavern, where this particular sign is posted, sometimes allow the tests of strength. And similar scenes may be witnessed in other colorful old beer parlors in Quebec City.

There are about 50 and the most famous is Le Chien D'Or (The Golden Dog), hard by the Chateau Frontenac. Dating back to French colonial times, Le Chien d'Or has been owned since 1917 by the Noonan family.

With its regular gathering of soldiers, reporters, lawyers and ancient Irish, it probably comes closer to an English pub atmosphere than any tavern in Canada.

After an evening there, the clientele repairs, at times in disarray, to "Aux Delices," a restaurant around the corner which, like others in the area, is run by the city's small bilingual Greek community.

On the eve of the royal visit last fall the true flavor of the city could be caught in three discussions going on there.

TOASTED QUEBEC

A group of young artists of separatist bent spoke in the corner in hushed tones while a Toronto cartoonist and a Montreal sculptor at a centre table toasted the Queen in roaring glee. And at a table near the door five young men were arguing intensely over who Ireland's greatest informer was.

Another favorite hangout, especially among university students, is La Chapelle, in the Clarendon Hotel. The name is unofficial. It came about years ago during recesses in the courtyard of Quebec Seminary, a classical colleges behind the hotel.

Students would ask: "Father, may we go to the chapel?" Rare is the priest who would turn down such a request, and the students would pass through the college chapel and out a door leading to the tavern which they soon dubbed La Chapelle.

The taverns of Quebec, despite their French names, have an unmistakable Victorian air, and even tried to kill him, and drove many who would have remained loyal to him to offer their protection to David.

Saul had so much with which to begin. He was the son of a rich father. He was very handsome. (I Samuel 9:2) He stood out in a crowd by reason of his height. When the people clamored for a king, he was Samuel's choice for this great responsibility and honor.

At first, Saul was humble. He even did to keep from being made king. (I Samuel 10:22) But once he got a taste of power and fame, it went to his head. He rejected Samuel's advice. He became envious of David's growing popularity. He could not stand to see another person get more acclaim than himself. He could never have said of David what John, the Baptist, was willing to say of Jesus, "He must increase and I must decrease." (John 3:30 RSV)

HEART-BREAKING RESULTS

What heart breaking tragedies have been caused by jealousy and envy. Hearts have been broken and homes shattered by the green-eyed monster, jealousy; by an over-possessive love that fears any rivalry from another's affection. In the same way, many a life has been ruined by envy of another's good fortune, or success. Envy is a form of selfishness. It makes a person unhappy to see another enjoy favor or success he wants for himself.

As is so often true, Saul's envy drove out a sense of security. He was afraid David would supplant him on the throne. He even tried to break up his son's friendship for David by warning Jonathan that David stood as a threat to his succession to the throne. (I Samuel 20:31) But Jonathan's friendship for David was too genuine.

Basically, envy is a lack of love. In his great poem on love, the Apostle Paul declares that love "envieth not . . . is not puffed up." (I Corinthians 13:4 KJV) Love does not make itself miserable by resenting the good fortune of others. Rather, it rejoices in their happiness and success.

Envy is so foolish. Saul did not have to envy David's popularity. He had enough fame and glory of his own. He did not have to fear David. David wished Saul no harm, and would gladly have served him. This was amply proved in the cave near "Wild-goats' Rocks." (I Samuel 24:2 RSV) When Saul was at the mercy of David and his followers, David refused to harm him. Instead, he tried to reason with Saul about how baseless his fear and envy were.

There is no doubt that Saul's envy of David was psychopathic. Nevertheless, there is a little of Saul in every person. Envy makes people try to pull heroes down to their level. They envy the great, so they call them peculiar. As one present day preacher puts it, "We simple cannot stand success . . . in other people." We don't want other people to have what we cannot have for ourselves.

Sunday School Lesson

Malignancy of the Soul

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

What cancer is to the body, jealousy and envy are to the soul. They can grow until they kill all contentment and happiness. They can turn a person into his own worst enemy. Long before he faced defeat at the hands of the Philistines, Saul, the first king of Israel, had been defeated by his own envy. When Saul ended his life by thrusting his own sword into his body, it was the logical climax to what he had been doing to himself all along. He who could have had the loyalty and respect of all his people including David, tortured himself by his envy of David's success and popularity.

Instead of rejoicing that David had rid Israel of the threat of Goliath, Saul ground his teeth with envy when he heard David being acclaimed by the people. Instead of enlisting David's qualities as a leader, Saul opposed, and even tried to kill him, and drove many who would have remained loyal to him to offer their protection to David.

Saul had so much with which to begin. He was the son of a rich father. He was very handsome. (I Samuel 9:2) He stood out in a crowd by reason of his height. When the people clamored for a king, he was Samuel's choice for this great responsibility and honor.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 9: "The Results of Disobedience," I Samuel 13:5-18, 26:1-12; 31.

Envy is not only a personal problem, it is an international problem. Many nations today envy the United States because of its wealth and power. Envy leads to resentment. Psychologically, people often resent the very persons they most want to copy. Nations hate us because have what they want. They blame us, and yet want to become like us. They accuse us of arrogance, yet act arrogantly toward us. The United States must practice the patience of David until other nations see our success not as a threat but a challenge. The world can use a lot of Jonathan's kind of friendship and a lot less of Saul's envy.

BONNY BOWE

Dear Susanna: Could anyone help me? I have quite a lot of ribbon on hand from bouquets and floral baskets. Since it isn't suitable to use on anything that must be laundered — all the stiffness would come out — I am wondering what in the world to do with it. — Fran. .

Maybe we can help — do you like any of these happy ideas:

The 1½ inch width, plus a touch of ingenuity, will make a darling book mark. Cut the ends of 12 inch length with pinking shears. Type or print, right down the middle, a long row of letters spelling out the name of the owner of the book or, a verse from the bible for a religious marker, or a small poem could be typed down the centre. For that elegant finishing touch, decorate the both ends with a flower or bird sticker. Ooo, la, how pretty!

Wider widths make colorful sachet bags which can be filled with spices or with a cotton pad dipped in lavender perfume.

Add a short piece of elastic to a length of ribbon for a youngster's hair band.

Extra wide ribbon, if pleated and held with transparent tape that can be creased and uncreased in the back, will make a dear skirt for a slim grown-up type doll.

Finally, a one inch width in blue can be shirred over a piece of elastic to be worn as a bridal garter to add that pretty touch of "something blue" — trim with lace and a tiny bow if you like. Try some, they're really a snap! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: I like to pop woollen sweaters into the dryer immediately after wearing them. Once through the "normal" or "air" cycle freshens them nicely. — Mrs. W. A. Meinyk

READERS' FRIDAY COLUMN

QUESTION:

Do you have available an Italian style recipe for Lasagne? I want one for about 10 people. I recently had some at a restaurant and the sauce, which had mushrooms incidentally, was the most delicious we had tasted . . . Irene H.

ANSWER:

The following recipe is for genuine Italian Lasagne.

LASAGNE (serves 8 to 10):

½ lb. lasagne noodles (cooked until tender in plenty of salted water and drained), 1 cup chopped onions, 1 cup sliced mushrooms (optional), ½ cup olive or other salad oil, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 garlic cloves, finely chopped, 2 lbs. good quality ground beef, ½ lb. salami, chopped, 1 teaspoon oregano, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1½ teaspoons allspice, ½ teaspoon crushed dried red pepper (optional), 3 cups tomato sauce (see below), ½ to ¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese, ½ to ¾ cup grated Swiss Gruyere or Switzerella cheese, 1½ teaspoon salt, 1/16 teaspoon pepper (freshly ground), ½ lb. cottage cheese (or Ricotta Italian cottage cheese).

Gently saute onions and mushrooms (if used) in combined olive oil and butter for 10 minutes. Add garlic and gently saute for 5 minutes. Add beef and salami and gently saute for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add spices, cover and simmer for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. This lasagne is made with 3 layers of the lasagne noodles, 3 of meat and cottage cheese. Pour about ¼ cup sauce (see below) in the bottom of 1 large 2 quart dish. Put one layer of lasagne noodles on top of the sauce, add a third of the meat mixture and a third of the cheese and sprinkle lightly with Parmesan and Swiss cheese or Mozzarella. Repeat, ending with a layer of lasagne noodles. Pour about 1 cup of tomato sauce over and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. Heat the rest of the tomato sauce and serve it with the lasagne.

TOMATO SAUCE: Boil together one 28-oz. can tomatoes (or 3½ cups tomato juice), 1 cup finely chopped onion, ½ cup chopped celery with leaves, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar for 10 minutes. Stir together 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine and 1/3 cup flour until blended. But she adds that more and more working women are specialists, and their part-time help in church work may be more important than mere membership in the group.

Ukelele Meets Waterloo As Auntie Calls the Tune

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have an aunt who is very fat. She is also rich. Her husband owns half the lumber in North Carolina. This fat aunt came to visit us a few days ago. I know it was a dumb thing to do but I accidentally left my ukelele on a chair in the living room. Well, this fat aunt goes and sits right down on my uke and smashes it in a hundred pieces.

She didn't say one word about buying me a new uke. All she could talk about was how kids don't take care of their things and how the sound of that collapsing ukelele almost gave her heart failure.

I think it was mighty cheap of my aunt not to offer to buy me a new ukelele. She could buy me a whole store full of ukes and not miss the money.

Please tell me what you think about this, and if you can help me in any way I would appreciate it a whole lot. — FORMER OWNER OF A UKELELE.

DEAR FORMER OWNER — I agree with your aunt that you should not have left the uke on the chair, but then people should pay some attention to where they sit.

There might have been a darning needle, scissors, or a small child on that chair.

This column appears in many cities in North Carolina. Let's hope Auntie sees your letter and comes through with a new ukelele.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Your advice to the three career girls who were planning a vacation together to "split up" and "avoid hunting in packs," was as dumb a piece of counsel as I have ever read.

I am a bachelor 50 years of age. The idea that any girl (alone or with friends) could snag a husband while on a vacation is insane. Any man who has the brains he was born with knows he can't tell anything about a woman unless he sees her in her home environment.

A man wants to know about a woman's cooking. He wants to see what her apartment or home looks like. He wants to know about her reading. He is interested in the way she treats her mother and father. These things cannot be learned on a vacation.

Whose did you get that piece of advice, Ann? Out of a travel brochure? You sound as dumb as the girls who wrote. I call it the crippled leading the blind. — FREE AND HAPPY.

DEAR FREE — You sound like such a sweet, adorable guy. I can't understand why you are still single. Maybe it's because the women in your home town all know you. Why don't you take a vacation, Bub?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We have known this couple for several years. They are the kind who are so lovey-dovey on Monday you could throw up. On Tuesday we hear that "Lovey" gave "Dovey" a black eye and that she has moved in with her mother.

Now that you have the background, here is the question: This couple has a habit of lighting cigarettes for each other. For example, she lights two cigarettes at one time, placing both cigarettes between her lips. She then takes one cigarette and places it between his lips. I'm sure they think this creates the image of "togetherness." To me it looks gross and unappealing. How does it look to you? — JUST INQUIRING.

DEAR JUST — Cheap and unappetizing.

Confidential to TRIAL BY TRYING — What he is suggesting is that you loan yourself out for 30 days like a dishwasher. Don't do it.

Marijuana Smoking Making Way on Significant Scale In Three Major Cities

By DENNIS ORCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Marijuana, smoked in the Orient for 1,000 years, is a relatively new big-city problem in Canada.

The leaves and flowering tops of the hemp plant, rolled into stubby cigarettes and tucked into penny matchboxes, make their way in growing quantities to the three largest cities—Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

A Cross-Canada Survey by the Canadian Press shows that, aside from an occasional arrest, there is no evidence of marijuana-smoking on a significant scale elsewhere in the country.

Right now the spotlight is on Vancouver. The city has fewer "pot" smokers than Montreal or Toronto but their numbers are increasing quickly. And the weed is being taken up by students in some cases.

Police Chief Ralph Booth says marijuana "is fast becoming a major, serious social problem, affecting our younger generation in the high school and university levels."

A Vancouver co-ed, described by her professors as a near-genius, went to jail for six months, convicted of marijuana possession.

WANT IT LEGALIZED

Small groups exist in both Vancouver and Toronto urging marijuana be made legal for import and consumption. They argue that the drug produces no physical dependence and deserves the same legal and social status as alcohol.

In the 17 months to April 1 this year, 85 charges were laid in Canada for offences involving marijuana. More than half the cases still are before the courts. Few of those charged have been in court before.

Practically all were in the big cities. The Atlantic and Prairie provinces were almost void of known marijuana use. Newfoundland courts have never dealt with a narcotics charge. Police in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia report no known or suspected use of marijuana in recent memory.

Save for the discovery of a home-grown hemp plant five or six years ago, Winnipeg police files are bare all the way back to a rash of trafficking 25 years ago. Regina has no known use and Edmonton reports only two seizures in the last decade.

"People coming in from the West Coast or from the East" are blamed by Supt. L. S. Grayson, superintendent of the RCMP's Calgary detachment, for marijuana's appearance there. Calgary police make "one or two seizures a year."

SIX ARRESTED

A 32,000 brick of marijuana measuring 10 by four by two inches was seized Jan. 26 in an Ottawa raid and six persons were charged with possession. But this was Ottawa's only marijuana case in years.

Vancouver had eight marijuana arrests last year and already has nine in 1965. This compares with 253 arrests last year for heroin possession and trafficking. Police estimate the city has fewer than 60 regular users, and perhaps 100 who try marijuana occasionally. But one West Coast user says there are "more than the public realizes."

In Toronto, police have made 24 arrests this year and the number of users varies by police count between 400 and 500; by the account of users themselves between 700 and 1,000. The number depends a lot on the supply.

Montreal police do not give figures but it is believed the number of users there lies somewhere between the figures for Vancouver and Toronto.

Psychiatrists and psychologists say constant use of marijuana probably indicates a deep-seated personality problem. In the user—some inadequacy driving the individual to seek an artificial world of distorted perception or easy laughter.

CAN GET 7 YEARS

Police point to cases in other countries of violence and brutality among persons "hopped up" with the hallucinatory drug. They regard its use in Canada as serious.

So does the Narcotic Control Act. The act lumps heroin and marijuana together, with identical stiff penalties: Up to seven years in prison for possession of any amount; life for both trafficking and importing.

You will hear the drug Cannabis sativa called dawamese, hashish, bhang, ganja, charas, marijuana, muta, grefa, kef, pot and tea. The cigarettes are reefers, muggles and sticks.

Clinically, marijuana has not been proved either addictive or of therapeutic value.

A cigarette of the green stuff runs between $1 and $2 and the traditional matchbox container of reefers between $5 to $15, but usually $10.

The hemp plant can grow in Canada, but the highly alkaline Mexican plant makes a better reefer and most of the marijuana in this country comes from Mexico.

LESS PROFIT

Seldom are the supply routes for marijuana and heroin the same, because marijuana is much less profitable and much bulkier. If traffickers must risk the same penalty for handling both as the other, they are likely to choose the higher profits and greater demand of the heroin market.

Toronto users say they make their own arrangements for at least part of the supply. Organized traffickers do not push marijuana in Montreal, says the RCMP.

Heroin is an underworld problem, marijuana is not," agrees Supt. J. J. Atherton, a narcotics squad man for 13 years before his appointment as head of the RCMP's Vancouver subdivision.

Who uses pot?

Eugene Elmore, a Vancouver social worker who has studied the problem, says the city's users are "upper adolescent rebels of the 'intellectual' group." Several of the young people charged with possession have been students at the University of British Columbia.

In the eastern cities there is little indication of use by students.

Dr. S. J. Holmes, senior psychiatrist at the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation in Toronto, said he thinks many users belong to a group that is "out" or "lost."

They are "looking for something that is not to be found in reality as we know it."

'I TOUCH BETTER'

Whatever the reasons for its use, marijuana has remarkable and varied effects.

The Drug Experience, an authoritative book on narcotics edited by David Ebin, says some marijuana users report "fresh limits in the making of music, love and judgments; others irrespressible laughter, changed perceptions and hallucinations."

"I touch better, I see better, but I don't see farther, if you know what I mean," says a Vancouver user.

Half-a-dozen members of the Toronto branch of LEMAR, a group urging legalization of marijuana, said they had never experienced hallucinatory effects from pot.

A user "smashed" — extremely high — on marijuana would have his sense of time and spatial perspective distorted. He might crush a piece of cellophane and see light reflections and refractions changing as it dropped to the floor.

Without encouraging use of marijuana, the West Coast's Civil Liberties Association criticizes laws that make it a crime.

The president of the association, made up largely of professors and lawyers, Dr. James Foulks, head of the pharmacological department of the University of B.C.

He says the young intellectual caught with a reefer in hi shand is more to be pitied than punished; that society "has to be big enough to tolerate these kinds of deviations."

SAYS ALCOHOL WORSE

Dr. Foulks says the drug can —like all drugs—be dangerous. Its use is to be deplored, its control should be as strict as possible, and he does not advocate its sale. But he says the abuse of alcohol is more harmful than the use of marijuana in the context society uses to decry the latter.

Dr. Foulks says that the oft-stated connection between marijuana and violence is taken from cases in Africa and the Middle East, and does not hold true in North America.

He says he can give no explanation for this discrepancy, except that the people there may live in poor circumstances and be subject to deeper emotional disturbances.

"In any event, under certain circumstances it would be correct to say that alcohol has caused the same sort of violent reactions," he says.

Lawyer William Deverell, another member of the association, says marijuana users are not criminals.

"These laws make criminals because they bring about prison associations and force criminal acts of theft and trafficking to get marijuana or heroin" he says. "We provide only penal facilities, not medical facilities."

Experts with the narcotics foundation in Vancouver oppose any steps to lower penalties for marijuana use. Mr. Elmore, here a counsellor at the foundation, says that although the drug is not physically addictive, it might be termed "socially addictive."

CAN LEAD TO HEROIN

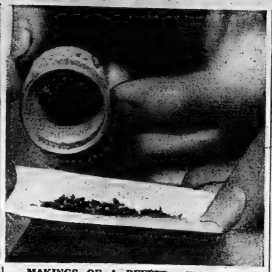
"In New York a large percentage of heroin users started on marijuana," he says.

"One drug doesn't lead to another. But one process can lead to another. They go after a bigger bang, a bigger bumb."

All authorities would welcome an exacting study of the pharmacological, physiological and psychological effects of the drug. The only one on record was made in New York between 1939 and 1944 at the direction of the late mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia.

It said marijuana does not lead to addiction and that it is not the determining factor in the commission of major crimes.

But the report discouraged indugence in the drug and looked forward to further research. It never took place.



Social worker Elmore hopes reefers are a fad that will disappear.

"Generations ago it was sex, before that smoking. The younger generation seeks some acting-out procedure.

"It wouldn't surprise me if the next one is heroin, or homosexual experience. This is the way the group can say: 'I guess we've shown you!' "

SMALLER THAN NORMAL CIGARETTES — Picture shows the contrast between a commercial factory-made cigarette (on hand) and a home-made marijuana cigarette. Use of reefers is on the increase in Canada, especially in Vancouver. (CP Photos)

MAKINGS OF A REEFER — This is how a marijuana cigarette is made. The leaves or flowering tops of the hemp plant are usually carried in a small plastic or matchbox container. The user shakes the marijuana into an ordinary cigarette paper.

Expect Princess To Wed German

THE HAGUE (AP) — A spokesman for the Dutch government information service indicated today that Crown Princess Beatrix is expected to become engaged to a West German commoner, 28 - year - old Klaus von Amsberg.

The spokesman said von Amsberg, an official of the West German foreign ministry in Bonn, was a "very good friend" of the 27-year-old heir to the Dutch throne and would be referred to as such "until an eventual engagement announcement."

He added, however, that he could not say whether a definite engagement decision had been taken.

Von Amsberg told the London Daily Mirror he was "amazed" that he had been named as Beatrix's future fiance.

"We have never discussed marriage," he said, "but I hope to see the princess again soon. She is a charming person."

Labor

will come to us and say that they are prepared for the government to assume the control which my honorable friends (Wyatt and Donnelly) and I agree is essential, we will of course listen to what they have to say."

Wyatt immediately asked: "Does that mean that if the industry is prepared to come forward and concede the complete control . . . on something less than 100 per cent, we will listen to them?"

Brown said it did, and the Labor victory was in the bag.

Steel legislation has yet to be drafted and may not be seen in Parliament for many weeks, after which it would take an estimated two years for a take-over to occur. But Brown's remarks created widespread confusion.

BODY FOUND

OTTAWA (CP)—The body of 12 - year - old Dwaine Kinkade, missing from his home since April 17, was found late Thursday night in a wooded area within 200 yards of his home. Ivan Kinkade, the boy's father, was in the party of four searchers who found the body. A witness said an empty bottle lay nearby. The missing child was believed to have been carrying sleeping pills.

Rio Algom May Expand Operations at Elliot Lake

TORONTO (CP)—The future of the Canadian uranium industry looks so good that Rio Algom Mines Ltd. hopes to expand operations by 1970 in Ontario's Elliot Lake district, the company's chairman said Thursday.

Robert H. Winters said in an interview that Rio Algom is looking for uranium deposits within a 120-mile radious of Elliot Lake, where many uranium mines have closed since 1959 when the post-war boom ended.

France already is negotiating a long-term sale of uranium with Denison Mines Ltd., and German, Swiss and Japanese interests are all known to be seeking similar contracts with Canadian producers, Mr. Winters said.

"The potential customers are coming to us now. Some of them are getting concerned about future supplies, now that France is looking for a long-term contract."

EXPLORATION LAGS

Except for a limited program by one French company, there has been next to no exploration for uranium in Canada since 1959, when the United States Atomic Energy Commission stopped buying Canadian uranium.

At that point, there was a surplus of uranium for military needs and it was not expected the demand for nuclear power stations would become significant before 1975.

However, there are signs now that the revival of the Canadian industry may be much closer—so much so that a uranium shortage is predicted for the early 1970s, Mr. Winters said.

Rio Algom, like Denison, is bidding for the French contract but is not anxious to tie up a large amount of its reserves at the current depressed prices, Mr. Winters added.

While Denison's contract to ship uranium oxide to Britain runs out this July, Rio Algom has another six years left in its contract and therefore has less urgent need of new markets, he said.

Woman Must Bring Child Back to Canada

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An Oakville woman was warned Thursday she will be cited for contempt of court if she does not bring her eight-year old daughter to Canada from Denmark for a custody hearing May 13.

The woman's former husband, Bent H. Poulsen of Oakville, was given custody of their three children last May during a hearing in Milton.

In August the woman took the three children to Denmark when she had custody of them for a month, court was told. When she returned to Canada she left the eight-year-old girl in Denmark.

Mr. Justice G. T. Evans of the Ontario Supreme Court told the woman she is bordering on contempt of court by delaying the return of the child. He ordered her to have the girl back in Canada by May 13 when the hearing resumes in Toronto.

Each of the couple has remarried and live in Oakville. She now is Mrs. Nelson Rapp.

Revised Bank Act Opens Way for Banks to Play Direct Role in Mortgages

OTTAWA (CP)—The revised Bank Act introduced in the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Gordon makes it easier to start a bank and opens the way for banks to play a direct role in mortgage lending.

But it sets strict limits on the amount of bank stock which can be held in foreign banks or by any individual, foreign or Canadian. It holds fast to the six-per-cent ceiling on commercial bank loans in face of a royal commission recommendation that this limit be dropped.

In all, it is a 40,850 - word "monster," revising the banking system for the first time since 1954 and, in line with the decennial pattern, setting out the terms under which banks may operate for the next 10 years until 1975.

In Mr. Gordon's own view, it is a major revision which will open the way for an increase in numbers in the eight chartered banks now operating in Canada — something he says is needed — and in keeping Canadian interest rates in line and ensuring a Canadian banking system free from undue foreign or government pressures.

TAKES SOME IDEAS

As the finance minister, told reporters outside the Commons, the bill, which now faces detailed examination in the House, picked up some recommendations from the Porter royal commission report on banking and rejected others. The commission report, tabled April 24, 1964, "contained some good points and some bad," Mr. Gordon said.

Among the bad, in his view, was its recommendation that the six-per-cent ceiling on commercial bank loans be lifted to permit the chartered banks to compete freely in the lending market with their "near-bank" competitors which face no similar restriction.

"To have eliminated this ceiling, in my judgment, would have had the net result of increasing interest rates," the minister told a press conference. "It is my conviction that, if the ceiling had been erased, the small borrower would have been hurt."

OFFERS CHANGES

While rejecting this recommendation, Mr. Gordon did offer these major changes:

—Banks henceforth will be chartered by obtaining letters patent from the federal cabinet, instead of by the right of Parliament to annul the letter if it receives from 10 MPs, and accepts, a motion against the proposed charter. Such a motion must be voted on within 40 sitting days after the cabinet decision.

—Banks will be permitted to set the par value of their capital stock, now frozen at $10 a share, at anywhere between $1 and $10, thus opening the way for share splits should any bank desire.

—A limit of 25 per cent will be set on the number of shares of any chartered bank to be held by "non-residents" —be it persons "not ordinarily resident in Canada" or corporations incorporated outside the country.

—A limit of 10 per cent will be set on the amount of issued shares of any chartered bank to be held by any individual.

CAN'T BUY STOCK

—Federal or provincial governments or their agencies. Mr. Gordon said the latter included Quebec's General Investment Corporation, will not be allowed to purchase stock in chartered banks. However, if they held such stock prior to last Feb. 17 when the minister announced his plans to introduce the restriction, they may continue to hold it on a non-voting basis.

—Any bank violating these ownership provisions will be subject to a $5,000 fine with any director or employee authorizing such a violation open to a similar fine plus one year's imprisonment.

—The amount of cash reserves held by each chartered bank against deposit liabilities will be reduced to seven from eight per cent with the reduction spread gradually over a 16-month period starting two months after the bill is passed.

—Banks henceforth will be limited to a 10-per-cent interest in any other corporation except the real estate company owning the bank's own property and the Export Finance Corp. Ltd. The main target here is bank investment in trust companies, some of which are 0-per-cent controlled by chartered banks.

—Chartered banks will be allowed into the lucrative mortgage lending field at the same terms open to other institutions recognized under the National Housing Act as approved lenders. Under the existing act, banks can lend money on mortgages, but they are limited to a six-per-cent interest rate compared to the five per cent for mortgages on the open market.

SEES MORE BANKS

Mr. Gordon said the change in the regulations obtaining bank charters should encourage more new banks.

Asked by the present system, anyone seeking to start a chartered bank has to get a formal petition through the parliamentary system which last session produced lengthy delays in the case of one bank, Mr. Gordon said Western Canada banks and completely stalled the proposed Canada Bank. Under the new system, he said, the application would be given a simple annual interval rate.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said the measure "continues the situation by the chartered banks."

The bill was given first reading, approval in principle, with Creditistes saying "no division" to record opposition.

Finance Minister Gordon introduced amendments to the Bank Act, including a change to allow banks into the mortgage lending field.

He also announced a proposed cut to seven per cent from eight the cash reserve that must be kept by chartered banks.

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby - Richmond) promised a fight against a proposed amendment that would keep the provinces from buying bank shares.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) said he did not see the need for prohibition of foreign investment in banks except for voting stock.

Henri Latulippe (Creditiste —Compton - Frontenac) said the banks are a "financial dictatorship."

J. J. Greene (L—Renfrew-South) suggested the government require all borrowers be given a simple annual interest rate.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said the measure "continues the situation by the chartered banks."

The bill was given first reading, approval in principle, with Creditistes saying "no division" to record opposition.

buy shares in existing ones, while Quebec also has expressed interest—at least in principle—in being allowed to enter the banking field.

"The federal government does not want its powers over monetary policy eroded in any way," was Mr. Gordon's stand.

He added, however, that provincial entry free is set up a treasury branch system such as is now operated in Alberta.

Among some of the other new points included in the 111-page bill are:

—A provision that an individual may be a director of only one chartered bank at any time and that members of any one corporation may not account for more than one-fifth of a bank's directorate.

—A requirement that all banks end their financial year on Oct. 31.

MAKES EXEMPTION

—A specific exemption, as far as the 25-per-cent limit of foreign ownership is concerned, for share purchases made before last Dec. 22 when the minister first announced his intention to introduce such a limit. Included in the exemption will be the 50 per cent purchase of the Mercantile Bank of Canada via the National City Bank of New York, the only major foreign holding of Canadian bank stock.

—Provision that farmers will have priority over banks in claims against food processors who enter bankruptcy proceedings.

Beyond these changes, major and minor, most of the 40,850 words were repeated, with the odd grammatical change, sections of the 1954 act. The result is an entirely new edition of the mammoth bill.

Canada's Aid to Needy Countries Praised at Meet

LONDON (CP)—H. O. Moran, director - general of the Canadian external aid office, said Thursday 1964 was "a vintage year for Canadian aid" and Canada won praise in Paris this week for its efforts to help needy countries last year.

The praise came at the annual meeting of the development aid assistance committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development. Mr. Moran was here viewed here, where he has talks scheduled with British officials before he flies back to Ottawa Saturday.

DECD members, he said, particularly approved the quality of the aid and the terms in which it was given, although they would like in see Canadian contributions increase still more than they have.

Last year 50 per cent of the aid was in the form of direct grants, 50 per cent in the form of soft loans and the rest in loans at the commercial rate of six-per-cent interest.

Moran said Canada's aid is concentrated on high - priority items that will promote the educational and economic development of the country, in accordance with criteria laid by receiving countries themselves have established.

Canada also recognized that many developing countries did not want to become dependent but wanted help in maintaining projects already started. Canada had met this with aid in such commodities such as copper, aluminum, fertilizers and similar goods.

Moran told the OECD committee that—Canada's aid commitments in 1964 totalled $185,000,000 in 1964. This was 50 per cent higher than in the previous year and double the 1962 figure.

On the educational and technical aid, Canada's training programs for foreign students in Canada now are four times what they were in 1961, and the number of Canadian advisers overseas has risen by seven times what it was four years ago, Moran said.

Among new developments in the Canadian program were establishment of a separate food aid program, Asian scholarships, introduction of a development loan fund last year and the decision to extend bilateral Canadian aid to Latin American countries.

Major Change In Medicare Plan Possible

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government was reported today to be considering a major change in its medical care insurance legislation that may give the province a monopoly on publicly-operated medical care.

Up to now the government's policy has been to provide principle of keeping medical care insurance in the hands of the insurance companies and other private carriers. It has proposed only to exert control over premiums and benefits.

But now, it was learned, the government is considering the establishment of a commission similar to the Ontario Hospital Services Commission to operate a medical care plan for all persons receiving government subsidies towards their premium payments.

Secession Talk In B.C. Cabinet Stirs up Row

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Thursday he is making no threat to secede from Canada, but the gulf between British Columbia and Ottawa is growing larger and the federal government is doing everything it can to widen it.

"B.C. has been badly dealt with by the national government. I call upon them to correct this forthwith," the premier said.

Asked to comment on a remark Wednesday by Ralph Loffmark, the trade and commerce minister, that the provincial cabinet was thinking of "separation," Mr. Bennett replied:

"We are thinking about this gulf and how to bridge it. I as premier minister want to see it bridged.

"I make no threats, I'm a great Canadian. I'm a Queen's man, first, last and always. We are trying hard to close the gulf, but Ottawa does everything it can to widen it."

The premier was speaking to reporters at the opening of a centennial museum here.

DIFFERENCES GROW

Mr. Loffmark said in an interview in Vancouver Wednesday a growing list of differences between provincial and federal governments is making B.C. impatient with its role in Confederation. He was quoted as saying he sees conflicting thinking of the B.C. cabinet. However, he has since been unavailable for comment.

Many of Mr. Loffmark's fellow cabinet ministers said in interviews, however, that they weren't thinking of separatism.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner: "It's a question of being abandoned more than of separation."

Health Minister Eric Martin: "B.C. has been thinking of seceding ever since they got into Canada."

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter: "I don't know what he bases his statement on. It's one man's opinion."

"There is no thought of secession, I'm sure — certainly not on my part," said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

"In a year's eyes" was the comment of Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi.

DIAGNOSES AILMENT

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Canada shows the symptoms of an emotionally - disturbed person, unable to face sober reality, and seeks a refuge in dramatization, Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, said Thursday night. In a convocation address at the Lakehead College of Arts, Science and Technology, he said the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism "might be looked on . . . as a sort of collective psychiatrist trying to establish the facts and them to make the patient look at them serenely and objectively."

Martin Snubbed In Paris

By DAVE McINTOSH

PARIS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin's RCAF Yukon plane was not permitted to park in front of the terminal building at Orly airport when he, minister arrived Thursday for talks with Foreign Minister Couve de Murville of France.

Couve de Murville was not at the airport and Martin was finally met at the terminal, after a bus ride from the plane, by an assistant chief of protocol and an assistant in the American division of the French foreign ministry.

Martin's plane taxied up to the terminal. It was ordered away by the control tower and went around in a circle twice before being allowed to park in a busy hall at the far away.

The aircraft captain said he had tried to park in front of the terminal but had been ordered away. When Martin came down the ramp there was no official welcome — French or Canadian—to meet him.

There was a bus at hand, however, and Martin got into it along with his staff and a group of reporters accompanying him. The bus took him to the terminal where the two major French officials greeted him.

LAUGHS IT OFF

Martin laughed off the incident and said in effect "no sense" to read anything into it. Privately, however, officials on the minister's staff said the Canadian embassy here were seething with indignation.

Officially the government to express any indignation. They conceded, however, that they had not treated any visitor of currence.

French officials said there are new regulations at Orly which prevent military aircraft parking right in front of the terminal. But the captain of the aircraft said he hadn't heard of such regulations and the French officials declined comment when asked whether they had informed the RCAF or Ottawa.

One official said Martin's visit is not an official one but a meeting and Mrs. Martin joined Couve de Murville is officially receiving Martin Friday in the building reserved for such official functions.

Officials said there were not allowed to drive a car out to where the RCAF plane was parked to greet Martin. Consequently the French and Canadian diplomats had been forced to wait at the terminal until Martin arrived from the plane by bus.

MET AT PLANE

When Couve de Murville was in Ottawa two years ago Martin went to the airport to meet him and was on hand at the bottom of the ramp when the French foreign minister stepped from his plane.

Martin's first official function here was to visit the Maison Canadienne established in 1924 for Canadian students in Paris. Martin himself stayed there in 1931.

Martin announced a gift by the Canadian federal government of $5,000 to make certain repairs to the residence. The Quebec government donates $25,000 a year to the upkeep of the house.

Martin said in a brief speech that relations between Canada and France are "improving every day."

Beer-Parlor Meeting Led To $100,000 Profit for Plumber Inquiry Is Told

TORONTO (CP) — A chance beer-parlor meeting led to a profit of more than $100,000 for plumber Eric Thorne during last year's scramble for stocks and mining claims amid the copper boom that hit the Timmins area of Northern Ontario, the Windfall royal commission was told Thursday.

And the commission was told Mr. Thorne made the profit without risking any of his own money.

Mr. Thorne, of nearby Oakville, told the commission he was driving to lunch in Oakville behind last May and quoted Mr Willard as saying he had four Timmins - area mining claims for sale.

He said he reached an agreement with Mr. Willord to purchase the claims for $20,000 and 10,000 shares of stock in a company to be named at a later date.

APPROACHES GIARDINE

Mr. Thorne then approached Pat Giardine, president of Bunker Hill Extension Mines Ltd., who agreed to buy the claims from Mr. Willard for $20,000 and 400,000 shares of Bunker Hill.

With this commitment from Mr. Giardine, Mr. Thorne closed the deal with Mr. Willford for $20,000 and 10,000 shares of Bunker Hill stock, Mr. Thorne testified.

He said payment for the claims was sent directly from Mr. Giardine's lawyers to Mr. Willord. Mr. Thorne collected his 390,000 shares.

Subsequently, 360,000 of these shares were sold back to Mr. Giardine for $90,000. Of the remaining 30,000, Mr. Thorne sold 20,000 and 10,000 remained for about $13,000 and still has 10,000, he said.

(Shares of Bunker Hill closed at 25 cents on the stock exchange Thursday.)

MAY CHECK OTHERS

The royal commission, investigating the rise of Windfall Lake and Mines Ltd. stock to $5.00 from 56 cents and its decline to 80 cents last July, is also empowered to check the activities of other mining companies in the Timmins area.

The frantic property acquisition in the Timmins area was triggered by a $2,000,000,000 copper - silver - zinc discovery by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co.

Mr. Thorne said he cashed the $80,000 cheque he received from Mr. Giardine and hid the money in his house.

Later, he deposited $30,000 in two bank accounts, loaned $20,000 at seven-per-cent interest on a demand note to a friend, spent $20,000 on a vacation in the Bahamas, "playing the horses and gambling," and still has $20,000 hidden in his home.

Commissioner Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly asked Mr. Thorne why the money was kept at home. "I didn't know what to do with that amount of money," said Mr. Thorne, "I wasn't in a hurry to do anything."

NEVER STAKED CLAIM

The commission also heard from Mr. Giardine, 29, who described himself as a "prospector and mining executive," but admitted he has never staked a claim.

He said he was in debt "in the neighborhood of $30,000," in February, 1964, but now draws a salary of $1,000 a month from Dynasty Investments, a company he formed on borrowed money.

By April, he directed the incorporation of an investment company in the Bahamas, Carbon Co. Ltd., to "mitigate my tax position."

Later in the year, he set up another investment company, Sudbury Link Co. Ltd., in the Bahamas.

Shortly after its incorporation Carwan bought 440,000 shares of Glenn Uranium — another company controlled by Mr. Giardine — from Dynasty investments for five cents a share.

ASKS RUNDOWN

The description of transactions between Mr. Giardine's Canadian companies and the Bahamian companies became complex, and commission counsel Patrick Hartt asked for a concise rundown of business deals.

Mr. Giardine said 370,000 shares of Bunker Hill were sold to the Bahamian companies for $80,000. All the share are still held.

A total of 855,000 Glenn shares were sold for $84,000 to the Bahamian companies, which resold 540,000 shares for $180,053.

Both Caravan and South Link are controlled by a trust—Mr. Justice Kelly said he couldn't figure out the situation — with Mr. Giardine as a beneficiary to the trust rather than its trustee.

Mr. Justice Kelly ordered a memorandum be presented showing the actual position of the Bahamian companies. The memorandum is expected to be placed before the commission today.

By Geo. H. Carver

"You," said the North Hastings courier-du-bois, who looked as though he had been a house-guest of the Three Bears since the annual winter hibernation vacation got under way, "should consult a head-shrinker."

"You have stated several times," he filtered through a six weeks' mat of beard, "that the Detroit Red Wings are the hockey champions of the world. Where were you when Billy Reay's transplanted Mohawks from Chicago sent them on their annual spring vacation two weeks earlier than they anticipated?"

"Where were you when that great team wearing the colors of the Montreal Canadiens struck their first great blow for sports illculture when they tackled the tails of Punch Imlach's Leafs between their hind legs and yelled 'Scat.'

"Likewise where were you when Tee Blake's magnificent couriers-du-hockey-sticks rose in their righteous wrath and smote the dunky warriors from the shadow of Chicago's shatiolets plumb between the eyes and sent them to their unhappy hunting grounds with a pair of skunk-skins attached to their wampum belts?"

"I was," I admitted sheepishly, "here in the newspaper slave-mart quietly extracting pieces of silver from the family's food hoard and donating them to the hungry maws of staffers on whom the gods of pool luck smiled consistently. As a result we are now retaining the coffee grounds of the day previous, giving up our sardines and using the family's cats daily quota of milk for camouflaging the java substitute."

"Are you convinced now that the 1964-65 Habitants are the best team in the league? Are you convinced Les Canadiens could have taken the gang from Detroit in their stride?"

The news room door was open. I had a clean path to the fresh air of the great outdoors. This guy was asking for it—and he got it.

"I am convinced," I said, "that the Detroit Red Wings at the peak of their potential which swept them to the National League championship would have taken Les Canadiens in their stride—or allowing for a breather or two—in six games at the most.

"And as a chaser—from the performance of both Chicago and Montreal in their last three or four games—the Wings could have made an all-star ensemble from both clubs, say 'uncle'."

That stopped him. I figured that if he intended to take me apart I might as well let him have both barrels at once."

"You're one of those English blokes that some one wrote about being in the mid-day sun too much with his dogs," he snarled.

"All you tripe-and-onions, sausage-and-mash-limejuice-soaked shopkeepers think about is Gordie Howe, Bobby Hull, Ullman, Bower, and others guys like them. Why don't you write about the great Rocket, Beliveau, Blake, Boom-Boom and other famous Canadiens stars once in a while?"

I humbly suggested that from time to time these great athletes had received the quota of praise due them.

"Sure they have," he growled, "after they had whupped the hell out of you—and made you like it. And they'll keep on doing it unless you blokes start the skulduggery again."

"Meaning what?"

"At the Battle of Waterloo, the little corporal, Napoleon, had you almost licked with one arm tucked inside his coat. But you had to call in Blucher and his minor leaguers from Germany for the third period to give us the works."

I ventured a sally. "How about the Plains of Abraham?"

"That," he said, "was the forerunner of another modern trend. The referees beat us."

Another link with the sports era of the "Recovery Thirties" was snapped here Monday with the passing of "Cy" Earrage. A member of this city's well known families of sportsmen by the name name, "Cy" lived to the full the code of the athlete. His ability was such that he rose to champion status with the 1937 intermediate hockey club while his administrative abilities sent him to the presidential chair of a city senior softball league.

"Cy" was soft-spoken but sincere in his attitude towards sport, his family, and his city. He was fair but forceful in his decisions and he enjoyed a well-deserved popularity not only among sportsmen of the city but in other circles as well.

Wings, Hawks, Habs No. 1 All-Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — Roger Crozier, rookie instrumental in leading Detroit Red Wings to a first-place finish in the season just ended, is the National Hockey League's No. 1 all-star goaltender.

He is one of two Red Wings on the first of two all-star teams announced today. Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks with two players each copped the four other first-team spots.

The teams, with the number of points each player received bracketed, are:

First team—Goal: Crozier (137); defence: Pierre Pilote, Chicago (133), and Jacques Laperriere, Montreal (110); centre: Norm Ullman, Detroit (159); left wing: Bobby Hull, Chicago (123); right wing: Claude Provost, Montreal (134).

Crozier's name is the only one that did not appear on the first team selected at the midway point of the season. Hodge was the leader then.

A native of Bracebridge, Ont., who at 23 is young for NHL goaltenders, Crozier had a 2.46 goals-against average in leading the Red Wings to their first season atop the league since 1957. He missed winning the Vezina Trophy, taken by Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs, by only two goals.

PLAYED IN EVERY GAME

He was the only goaltender to compete in all 70 games. Because he played only portions of two of those games, his official record lists 69½ games.

Crozier—like all the other players on the first team—gets $1,000 cash. The second-team members get $500 each. Players who were named to the first team in mid-season or end-of-season voting also get $500 each and those on the second team for either half-season get $250.

Crozier was an unanimous choice with 90 points in the second-half voting. Others who will get $500 for leading the second half are Pilote and Marcel Pronovost of Detroit Red Wings on defence, Ullman, Mahovlich and Howe.

Named to the second half's second team and winners of $250 each are Bower, Gadsby, Toronto defencemen Bobby Baun, Mikita, leftwinger Johnny Bucyk of Boston Bruins and Provost.

Crozier, Ullman and Provost, the three players who received most points, are on an all-star team for the first time. It is Howe's 16th all-star selection, a record.

PICKED BY REPORTERS

The all-stars are selected by sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities. Points are tabulated on the basis of five for a first-place choice, three for a second and one for a third.

High-Flying Robin Unbeaten In Four

Tied With Terry

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Right - hander Robin Roberts posted the 275th victory of his 18-year career Thursday by subduing Minnesota Twins on four hits to give Baltimore Orioles a 5-1 victory.

It was Roberts' fourth win without a loss this season and lowered his earned - run average to 2.37.

Roberts, who came to the Orioles in 1962 after getting his release from New York Yankees, had an after - thought about his climb up the victory ladder.

"I noticed it most when I went past Bob Feller and Red Ruffing on the all-time victory list. Some of those names mean something."

So does Robin Roberts. He proved it again against the Twins, as he joined another Yankee reject, Ralph Terry of Cleveland, as the leading winner in the American League with four victories.

Only one other game was played in the American League, Los Angeles Angels running their winning streak to four as Bobby Knoop drove in four runs with a triple and a homer in a 5-4 victory over Kansas City. The New York - Cleveland game was rained out.

Roberts allowed the Twins only one run on Harmon Killebrew's fourth - inning homer that mushed one by the Orioles' Brooks Robinson in the second inning off Jim Kaat.

So, with the score tied, Roberts took things in his own hands in the fifth inning, driving in the lead run with a single following a walk to Johnny Orsino and Jerry Adair's single.

Knoop tripled home two runs for the Angels in the second inning and then built the lead to 4-1 with a two-run homer in the fourth inning. The decisive run, however, came across in the sixth inning on Jim Fregosi's triple and a single by Bob Rodgers.

Whip Nelson 9-2 For Third Win

Sherbrooke Strangleholds Cup

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Sherbrooks Beavers took advantage of a weak Nelson Maple Leafs defence Thursday to bank in seven goals in the third period alone for a 9-2 win and a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series.

"We'll wrap it up in four straight Saturday night," predicted Georges Roy, Sherbrooks playing coach, after the game. Leafs playing coach Bobby Kromm said he figures his team can still win a game here.

Nelson skated well during the game but lacked finish around the nets and missed several good scoring opportunities. Leafs goalie Seth Martin had trouble with the Sherbrooks players swarming around his net.

Both Martin and Beavers goalie Serge Aubry dominated the first two periods of play with several outstanding saves. Martin stopped 26 and Aubry 20 in the first 40 minutes.

Sherbrooks went ahead at 3:30 of the second period on a goal by Simon Nolet and made the score 2-0 on a goal 10 minutes later by Jean Levesque.

When Nelson's defence fell apart at the start of the third period, Beavers were quick to take advantage of the situation and rammed home four goals by the 5:54 mark to take a commanding 6-0 lead.

Nelson managed to make the scoreboard at 5:19 of the third when Mike Laughton snared a rebound. The team's second and last goal was scored by Brian Russell, who whacked the puck into Aubry's net from a goalmouth scramble.

Réjean Richer and Georges Guilbeault got the Sherbrooke third period attack with two goals apiece with Rod Gaudreault, Claude Cardin and Larry Drouin accounting for the other Beaver goals.

Lead Memorial Cup Finals 2-0

Flyers Zoom To 5-1 Win Over Oil Kings

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP) — Jubilation dominated one dressing room and gloom the other after Niagara Falls Flyers whipped Edmonton Oil Kings 5-1 Thursday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup final.

Niagara Falls players appeared confident they could wrap up the junior hockey championship in four games, but coach Bill Long declined to be drawn into a discussion of how long it might take.

"We're here to win the championship," he said, "whether it takes four games or seven."

Edmonton officials were dismayed at their club's dismal performance, in which they trailed 2-0 after the first period and failed to skate throughout the third session. There were 4,957 fans at the game.

FIVE PLAY WELL

Harry Allen, who now runs the club, said only about five Oil Kings played well. Former coach Buster Brayshaw said he had never seen one of his teams check so poorly.

"I'm embarrassed," he admitted.

"These guys look like they're trying to learn something from the Flyers."

The third game of the series is Monday.

Kings were outskated and outbumped almost from the opening face-off. Bud Debrody led the Flyer attack with two goals and Bill Goldsworthy, Derek Sanderson and John Arbour added the others.

Centre Fran Huck scored Kings' only goal, a vicious drive from the right point during the second period while Flyers were two men short.

Huck was Kings' outstanding offensive threat and four of Flyers' 14 penalties were imposed for infractions against the slippery speedster, picked up from Regina Pats.

IT'S FIRST GAME

It was Hucks's first game of the series. Jim Cardiff of Weyburn Red Wings also made his series debut and played well.

Goaltender Wayne Stephenson of Winnipeg Braves, sharp for the second game in succession, was the third player picked up under Canadian National - Sports Association regulations that allow the Western Canada representatives to strengthen for the final.

Sanderson batted home Goldsworthy's pass from the left point for the opening goal during a Niagara Falls power play and Debrody connected eight minutes later after he eluded Cardiff.

Huck halved the deficit in the second period, but Debrody pocketed a rebound a quick shot from directly in front of Stephenson six minutes later. The tally followed shortly after an apparent Flyer goal by Jean Desmond had been nullified because of a whistle.

Arbour tallied from 35 feet out on a shot similar to Debrody's early in the third period with Edmonton short handed and Goldsworthy completed scoring with less than five minutes remaining when his shot deflected off Stephenson's pads.

Stephenson stopped 26 shots to 22 for Bernie Parent.

Belvedere Ups Commercial Entries to 8

A late entry has boosted the Commercial Softball League starting lineup to eight teams, President Dave Feeney announced this morning.

Belvedere Hotel was accepted into the league yesterday afternoon, after failing to attend Wednesday night's entry deadline meeting.

"I contacted four of the clubs yesterday when Belvedere ask ed to get in and they all agreed to accept the late entry," Feeney said. He added that the eight-team circuit would make for better scheduling, giving each club two games per week.

Other teams in the league are: Point Anne, BCAF, Stewart Warner, City Hotel, Black Diamond Cheese, Ter-Haar Daubers and Lightfoot Construction.

The league schedule will open on Tuesday, May 18, and the executive expects to meet this weekend to draft a complete schedule.

TORONTO (CP) — Professor M. S. Moyer of the University of Toronto predicted Thursday retail stores will double their sales by 1980. Speaking to the Retail Council of Canada, Prof. Moyer said sales will reach about $40,000,000,000.

"Turk" Barclay Shoots First Hole-In-One

Don "Turk" Barclay said farewell to the Bay of Quinte Country Club's golf course in fitting manner yesterday.

In fact, Thursday, May 6th will go down as one of his most memorable days.

He said farewell to the Northern Electric Company's branch here. He is being transferred to Bramalea.

Previous to a private party held last night, the Turk decided to relax with eighteen holes of golf.

With Ron Hutchinson and Lou Cunningham, Turk took to the greens and fairways.

They reached the 13th hole. There were no black cats in the vicinity. Turk didn't even cross his fingers.

He picked up his trusty six iron and let go with his favorite Palmer drive.

And while he, Ron and Lou looked on in sheer amazement, the ball arced to within feet of the pin, bounced once and disappeared.

When Turk came too he told admirers it was his first hole-in-one in ten years of golf.

He hasn't told anyone at this writing what it cost.

It was the earliest hole-in-one in the Bay of Quinte Country Club history.

No wonder Toro's new Flymo handles like no other mower can . . . because it floats on air.

A light push and off goes Toro's new Flymo goes where you want it to go. Back and forth. Side to side. Straight ahead.

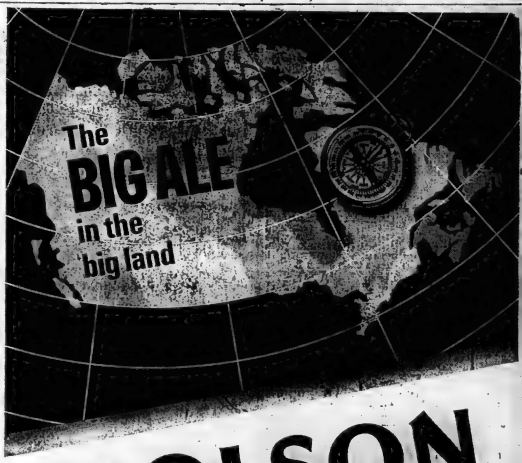
The most revolutionary idea since power mowing began. Flymo floats on a cushion of air, just like the hovercraft.

It's as safe and easy to use on hills and terraces as it is on level lawns.

Unlike earthbound rotary mowers, Flymo has no discharge chute. Debris and grass clippings drop safely to the ground beneath the housing.

Flymo weighs just 30 pounds, light enough to hang on a wall where it's up and out of the way. It cuts a 16" swath, and features a fast starting 2½ hp engine.

FLOATS ON AIR. A whirling impeller spins a ring of air that supports the new Flymo only ¾" off the ground. Floats so low that it glides right under shrubs, bushes, even some fences. Height of cut is easily adjusted for ¾, 1 and 1¾ inches.



New Toro mower floats on air!

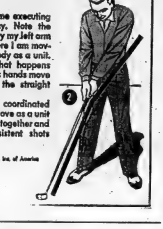
THE ARNOLD Palmer Method



by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER.

HOW'S YOUR SWING COORDINATION?

Coordination in the golf swing means that everything moves as a unit. The hands, arms, shoulders, hips and legs are all part of the package. When a golf swing goes haywire, usually it is because one of these elements is moving out of step with the others.

Often the hands and arms are at fault. When a player gets overanxious, or when he wishes to "let out shots" with an extra-long shot, he often allows his hands and arms to move independently.

In No. 1, you see me executing the proper takeaway. Note the straight line formed by my left arm and the clubshaft. Here I am moving all parts of my body as a unit. In No. 2 we see what happens when a player lets his hands move too fast. Note how the straight line is broken.

When the swing is coordinated —when all elements move as a unit —then all muscles pull together and more powerful, consistent shots result.

Cubs Larry Jackson

Waited 11 Years To Clout $100 Homer

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Larry Jackson is ready to collect on an 11-year-old promise from a Boise, Idaho man who raises flowers.

Jackson, who won 24 games for Chicago Cubs last season, trotted out the first home run in his 11-year major league career Thursday when he thought about his friend back home in Boise.

"My good friend who promised me a $100 present if I ever hit a homer finally will have to pay off," Jackson said after his two - run shot helped the Cubs to a 5-4 victory over Pittsburgh.

"He raises flowers, so I might take it out in a hundred bucks worth of posies.

In the only other National League game Thursday, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 4-3.

YIELDED THREE HOMERS

Jackson, who evened his record at 2-2, yielded three home runs, two to Willie Stargell and one to Jim Pagliaroni.

When he walked Bill Virdon with two out in the ninth, Bob Kennedy, the Cubs' head coach, brought in Ted Abernathy. The Pirates loaded the bases before Abernathy retired Manny Mota to end it.

The Dodgers won their third straight from Cincinnati and ran their string to four victories in five games since losing Sunday. Left fielder Tommy Davis with a broken ankle.

Derrell Griffith, called up from Spokane two days ago to replace the injured Davis, homered to break a 2-2 tie in the fourth and Ron Fairly homered in the fifth. Frank Robinson connected for the Reds.

Johnny Podres started for the Dodgers and got credit for his second victory but needed help from Bob Miller when his arm stiffened in the sixth.

Bruce Kidd Undergoes Surgery

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. William John Virgin, a foot surgeon who operated on Toronto runner Bruce Kidd here Thursday, said later the distance runner will be on his toes in competition when he starts running again.

Dr. Virgin said in a telephone interview a corrective operation on Kidd's ankle tendons will permit him to run on the front instead of the flat of his feet—as he had done before.

The surgery straightened out ankle tendons which snapped out of place three weeks before the Olympics last October. The dislocation put an abnormal strain on the long arch of Kidd's foot, making it difficult for him to run on his toes, said Dr. Virgin.

Kidd will be in hospital for two weeks and in the casts for another six weeks.

Coach Fred Foot of Toronto said Thursday night he plans no competitive running for Kidd only a slow comeback routine after.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP)—Pat Remillard, 39, believed to be the oldest active jockey in North America, was one of three riders spilled at Fort Erie race track Thursday. All three were uninjured.

Remillard was unsaddled near the finish line of the first race by Jivroll, a three - year - old chestnut filly leading the field by two lengths.

After Remillard was tossed, Music Note, ridden by Noel Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., won and combined with second-race winner Royal Poppet for a $57.20 daily double.

Jockey John Leblanc of Rogersville, N.B., tumbled from Sienna Star at the start of the fourth race and Keith Robison, a Manitoba native, was spilled by Duby Cat at the beginning of the sixth.

Remillard, born at Beresford, S.D., has survived a fractured skull, two broken legs and several fractured ankles and bent clavicles during his 35-year career. He appeared uncgacious for a minute after his spill, but was only shaken up.

The quinella of Perfect Lane and Itsfordem in the fifth race paid $10.10.

Six-Day Bike Race

Luxembourg Takes Lead

TORONTO (CP) — Luxembourg raced into the lead and the Danish team was all but eliminated Thursday in the fifth night of the six - day international bicycle race.

Freddie Eugen, 24 - year - old partner of Palle Lykke of Denmark, crashed to the floor off the highly - banked end of the oval track and broke his left collarbone.

The Danish duo, in fourth place after Thursday's races, had been rated as second favorites in the marathon after Rik Van Steenbergen and Emile Severeyns of Belgium.

About half of Thursday night's peak crowd of 5,500 watched Eugene win the fourth sprint of five at midnight.

As he crossed the finish line and went into the 55-degree turn, second - place finisher Hans Kanters, riding for the United States, reached over to give the swift Dane a friendly pat on the back.

TIMING IS WRONG

He touched him at the wrong time, as Eugen was slowing down to about 35 miles an hour, and coming down off the top of the track. He lost his balance, somersaulted off the bicycle and tumbled on to the track, rolling to the concrete floor of Maple Leaf Gardens.

Race promoters said it was possible that Eugen would return to the race tonight with a special harness on his shoulder. If he doesn't, the Danish team will be forced out of the race.

Until then, Lykke will ride alone in what six-dayers refer to as a neutralized race. He will be able to win sprint points, but will not lose any laps while he is off the track.

In first place after Thursday's racing was the Luxembourg team of Lucien Gillen and Robert Lelangue. They had a 297-250 points lead over Sigi Renz and Fritz Pfenninger of Germany.

In third place after 2,550 miles were Van Steenbergen and Severeyns, one lap behind the first two teams. They had 447 sprint points. Lykke and Eugen had 424 points and were also a lap behind.

Suns Thump Leafs 10-3, Jets Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ever hear of a baseball player wanting to go to the majors because things might be easier?

It's tougher for most, but the theory doesn't hold true for Ed Connolly.

Connolly registered 73 strikeouts in 81 innings with Boston Red Sox of the American League last season, but the 26-year - old southpaw found the going a bit tougher in his International League debut Thursday night.

He allowed two hits, five runs and four walks before leaving the mound in the second inning as Jacksonville, Suns went on to a 10-3 victory over his Toronto Maple Leafs.

Elsewhere, Atlanta Crackers defeated Buffalo Bisons 6-5, Columbus Jets walloped Rochester Red Wings 10-3, and a game between Syracuse Chiefs and Toledo Mud Hens was rained out.

Fritz Ackley earned the win for Jacksonville and helped his cause with a double and a single.

Bubba Phillips gave the Crackers their early lead, smashing out a two-run homer in the second inning.

Bob Perry sparked the Jets attack, collecting four hits in five trips to the plate for the second straight night.

Palmer To Play In Open

TORONTO (CP)—Arnold Palmer, golf's biggest money-winner, will compete in the Canadian Open July 14-17 at Toronto Westiscanugua.

Palmer's entry was announced Thursday by Bruce Forbes of Brantford, president Association.

Palmer, who has won more than $619,000 since he turned professional, scored his first pro victory in the 1955 Canadian Open at the Toronto Weston course.

He was second in the Canadian Open last year, two strokes behind winner Kel Nagle of Australia.

The entries this year also include Master's champion Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio.

Hartack May Ride Ft. Plate

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Bill Hartack said Thursday night he is interested in riding Flyalong in the 1965 Queen's Plate race in Toronto.

"I've been wanting to ride that horse," he said at his home here where he is taking a few days' vacation.

Told there is published speculation he will get the mount, Hartack said: "I'm glad you told me that. I'll call my agent and see what can be done. My agent knows the owner."

Hartack rode Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor's Northern Dancer to victory in last year's Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Queen's Plate.

Duke Campbell, who trains Flyalong for owners Jim Hays of Oakville and Doug Weldon of London, Ont., said at Fort Erie, Ont., Thursday: "We won't commit ourselves this soon."

Campbell said Hartack came to see the owners after seeing Flyalong run in the Florida Derby.

Knudson Leads With 68

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Soft greens and sparse fairways promised more sub-par rounds today as Canada's George Knudson got with a two-under-par 68, led a field of 72 top golfers into the second round of the $100,000 Colonial National Invitational tournament.

One stroke behind the Toronto pro in the race for the $30,000 top prize were five others, including Ben Hogan, a five-time winner over the 7,132-yard layout sometimes known as Hogan's Alley.

The others were Johnny Pott, Gene Littler, Mike Souchak and Tommy Bell.

Knudson said he profited by "a lot of good fortune" on the fifth hole, one of the most difficult in the United States. His tee shot faded quickly to the right and appeared to be headed directly into the Trinity River when it hit a tree and bounced back onto the fairway.

"I mean I hit that one way out," he said with a grin. "I would have made a six for sure if it didn't come back."

Lawn care is a two-step job: Cutting and raking. A Lawn-Boy Grasscatcher does it in one step; you cut and rake at the same time. Your lawn ends up looking as neat as a new haircut. The Grasscatcher will also collect leaves in the fall and tidy up the lawn each spring.
The Grasscatcher clips on and off the mower in seconds without tools and is zippered to empty in two shakes. And even vast grass and leaves can't clog it.
FINGER-TIP START makes Lawn-Boy the easiest starting power mower you can buy.
2 SPEED CUTTING—high speed for heavy cutting; low speed for normal cutting.
SAFETY—Lawn-Boy exceeds all ASA safety standards. See the 1965 Lawn-Boy soon. It's warranted for two years, twice as long as any other power mower.

Hints for Acne Sufferers Offered by Two Readers

DEAR DORIS — I notice that very often teen-agers write to you asking about acne. My 13-year-old is troubled with it also, but we notice that it improves very noticeably in direct proportion to the amount of fresh, raw fruit and vegetables she eats!

Also, very noticeably, if she eats chocolates, pastries, sugars or very many hot breads, it increases.—GRATEFUL MOTHER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Some years ago I came across an article which said that drinking two glasses of lukewarm water before breakfast does lots to clear up a skin.

I have mentioned this to many young people with skin problems and it often does help. It takes about two weeks before any results begin to show. — V.M.S.

DEAR GRATEFUL AND V.M.S. — Both ideas are excellent. Experts constantly stress the relationship between acne and diet. Yet some of the not-so-bright sufferers keep telling themselves: Oh well, this chocolate won't count. Or, I never drink water. Or, I don't like fruit. We know better than we do.

It's like the farmer who was told about a book which could help him to raise better crops. He said: "What do I want that for? I already know more about farming than I'm doing about it!"

DEAR DORIS"— Read your column of the gentleman who signed himself as "Old Fashioned." I was one of those unlucky girls who married one of those guys that always listened to his mother's speech, and did not discuss things with his wife and children.

So where did it lead him to? I had to give up and walked out with my family, as I could not take it any longer. Thus, alas, did his mother take the "right" to be the master of my married life, as he was Mama's boy. — LONELY MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR LONELY — Alas, indeed! This too-masterful mother robbed her son of the capacity to be master of his own life and congenial partner to his wife.

* * *

Confidential to LOVE TO DANCE — There is no set age for beginning to date the boys. It depends on what your mother says. She also is the boss when it comes to setting the time for a girl 13 to go to bed on school nights. Just be glad you've got her to take care of you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I know a person who gets mad for no reason at all. I don't know why she does it but if she stays that way she will have a very hard time to get along with others in her future life.

Could you tell me why she gets mad for nothing? — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING — It's ten to one that temper tantrums brought her mother to her knees many long years ago. This is her learned way of getting what she wants.

It's just as certain that it will now drive the persons and things she wants away from her. Her mother did her a great favor, didn't she?

DEAR DORIS — I am writing this letter especially for the benefit of "Alberta" who has the small end.

I am an 18-year-old girl, full-grown at four feet eight inches. My parents have always taught me to be happy with what I have and to use it well; not to mope around about what I don't have (height.)

I suppose it's much worse to be a short boy than girl, but as long as this mother is ashamed and embarrassed, her son will be ashamed and embarrassed. This, not his height, will make his life miserable.

She thinks these people who call her son "pee wee," etc., are being cruel. I've found that very few people mean to be cruel. Most are surprised and some are trying to pay a compliment (however backward it is.) Not everyone is as horrified to see a small person as this misinformed, naive mother is. If she teaches her son to count his blessings, his height may soon become one of them. — SMALL AS POSSIBLE.

DEAR SMALL — And when your mother counts hers, I'll bet you are right at the top! How about this, Alberta?

* * *

(Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Youth Sent For Trial on Murder Charge

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Jon Pitman, 21, was committed for trial Thursday for capital murder in the February rifle slaying of Marianne Vandervliet, 21, a Kitchener school teacher.

The trial is scheduled to start here May 25.

Miss Vandervliet was visiting her parents on their farm, 16 miles west of Stratford.

The dead woman's father testified during the three-day preliminary hearing that Pitman, a hired hand, was going upstairs when he, his wife, and two sons left the house to visit friends.

When they returned they found Marianne's body on the kitchen couch.

Sarnia police officer Roger Minaker testified Thursday that Pitman was carrying a blue suitcase when he was apprehended in Sarnia, the day after Miss Vandervliet's death.

The dead woman's father identified the suitcase Wednesday as belonging to his daughter.

After the suitcase was examined at the Sarnia police station, a pair of trousers yielded six .22-calibre bullets.

Request Ban On In-flight Entertainment

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 24 member airlines of the International Air Transport Association have called on the United States Civil Aeronautics Board to approve a ban on in-flight entertainment aboard international flights.

The request takes the form of a submission to the board, which is receiving statements on the matter from interested parties up to May 13. The submission was made by four U.S. carriers with the concurrence of 20 other association members.

At stake, said the airlines, is the possibility of avoiding "a chaotic situation" in international air fares.

Entertainment consists of movies and closed-circuit television.

The spokesmen said the member airlines voted to ban such entertainment and that all governments concerned, except the United States, have approved the ban.

New fare structures were scheduled to come into effect May 15 but unanimous agreement was not reached because of the entertainment issue. A new deadline for such a structure has been set as June 9.

The airlines directly involved in the submission to the board are American, Pan American, Panagra and Trans-World Airlines.

Those concurring include Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The spokesmen said that if each of the 720 four - engined jet aircraft presently operated by IATA carriers is equipped with the latest type of visual in-flight entertainment, the initial installation cost would be in the order of $36,000,000 and the annual operating expenses would be of a like amount.

The spokesman said the U.S. board has indicated it will make use of its prerogative of taking 60 days in which to consider the matter.

Advocate County Foam Bank At Meeting in Deseronto

DESERONTO—The monthly meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association was held in the Canadian Legion hall in Deseronto on Wednesday evening.

Mayor Gerald Lott welcomed the association on behalf of the people of Deseronto and the local fire department. Mr. Lott felt it was an honor to be able to speak to such a well represented association planning continuously to ward off any disaster that might strike the large area of Hastings and Prince Edward.

Fire departments attending as members were Bancroft, Batawa, Belleville, Bloomfield, Deseronto, Frankford, Marmora, Point Anne, Sidney Township, Stirling, Trenton, Tweed, Picton, Rawdon Township, Wellington with a total of 94 fire fighters present.

The guests were members of Deseronto Council and Colonel Duffy from Emergency Measures Organization Co-ordinating Committee.

A large number of visiting firemen attended from Kingston Township.

A letter was read from Peterborough department asking consideration be given to having foam banks, to enable smaller departments to afford the advantage of this measure of fire fighting. A letter was received from the town of Trenton thanking the Frankford Fire Department for their valuable assistance in a major fire.

Mr. Herb Mallory of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office spoke on some districts not being arranged for mutual aid calls. This problem was straightened out with Marmora and Bay's Bay to have help from inter county aid.

RADIO HOOKUP

Chief Ted Post of Belleville spoke on radio hookup for the association. He stated Belleville will have two radio mast on the Utilities water tank with no large problems in sight. This radio hookup will be able to reach the complete area. He also stated that for any Department without uniforms, the association would gladly assist in fund raising activities to this end.

There is to be a church parade for the firemen in Rawdon Township on May 16 at Mount Pleasant United Church, this is 3½ miles northwest of Stirling.

Deseronto Fire Department is holding a fire works display on May 24 at the site of the new Centennial Park. This is to be the kickoff for work to begin on the park. On July 2 and 3 the Department will hold a jamboree and parade with assistance from other Departments.

The firemen enjoyed seeing movies of many of the parades and competitions held in the past year, after which a delicious lunch was served.

The next meeting will be held on June 3 at Bancroft.

SCHOOL CLOSES

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Seager Hall, Anglican school for older men wishing to enter the ministry after years of employment in other work, will be closed at the end of this academic year. Officials feel that older men will get a better-rounded course with other theology students at Huron College here.

May Widen Napanee Valley Authority

DESERONTO — Deseronto council nominated Mayor Gerald Lott as their representative to the Conservation Authority meeting to be held at Tamworth on June 3. Mr. Lott has been given full assent to vote for the following resolution to be proposed at this meeting.

"That the representatives of municipalities here assembled, petition the minister of Energy and Resources to enlarge the Napanee Valley Conservation Authority by the addition thereto of the watersheds of the Salmon River and all other streams entering the Bay of Quinte from the point where the west boundary of the Napanee Watershed meets the shore of the Bay of Quinte to the point where the west boundary of the Salmon River Watershed meets the shore of the Bay of Quinte."

The above resolution is a result of a former meeting of the Salmon River Conservation Authority, at which time it was agreed it would be more economical to have a combined Authority.

225 Delegates On Hand For Meeting

DESERONTO — From Friday April 30 to Sunday May 2 the Business and Professional Women Clubs of Ontario held a provincial meeting in Sault Ste. Marie.

Award-winner Is Making First Film in Hollywood

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yes, that's right," said Richard Attenborough. "I'm using my own face for the first time."

Attenborough — British academy award winning actor, latter winning producer-co-shoestring and director of the late Mohandas Gandhi's film biography—displayed a smiling, boyish face.

Only a small, fake scar slashing his right eyebrow marred his lack of disguise.

It was the touch of unrealism needed for rehearsals of Flight of the Phoenix, in which he plays a drunken navigator crashed in the Sahara desert, with Jimmy Stewart and Peter Finch.

Attenborough is making his first film in Hollywood and loves it.

"Jimmy Stewart is part of Hollywood's golden age," said Attenborough during a rehearsal break. "I've been in this business for a while, but it's a joy working with such a legendary figure."

In 1959, Richard formed a producing partnership with Bryan Forbes and, "after one disaster we like to forget," made The Angry Silence.

FILM SETS A STYLE

The films, a working class drama, became the prototype of the new British realistic school that later led to such films as Room at the Top and Saturday Night and Sunday morning.

Forbes wrote the script. Attenborough starred, along with Pier Angeli.

"We needed $150,000 to make it. But we couldn't get it. We finally got it down to $100,000—but none of us, Forbie, Pier or I, drew salaries."

Attenborough later scored another success with The L-shaped Room, which won an academy award nomination for its star, Leslie Caron.

The shoestring has lengthened to $5,500,000 for his directing debut, Gandhi's life from age 20. He'll co-produce the film with Joe Levine.

Aided by his wartime friendship with Earl Mountbatten, the last British viceroy in India, Attenborough became friendly with Indian Prime Minister Nehru before his death.

He spent five months in India lining up the picture.

Suggests Local Govts. Be Abolished

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial government study of municipal government in the Ottawa area is proving that there is little effective co-operation between municipal governments, the Association of Ontario Counties was told Wednesday.

Robert Thomas, reeve of Torbolton Township in Carleton County, suggested that municipal and county governments in Carleton be abolished and replaced by one government.

Peter Breck Plans to Dress Western Style Off Camera

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Breck, who rode tall in the "Black Saddle" series of television's yesteryear, is eager to get back on the range after several seasons of horseless movie and TV roles—so eager that he plans to dress western style off camera as well as on.

In New York recently to talk up ABC's forthcoming "Big Valley" series which will star Barbara Stanwyck, dark and handsome Peter attracted attention with his carved leather boots, tailor-made wrangler's pants, western jacket and five-gallon hat.

"Big Valley, Breck said, is set in California's San Joaquin valley in the 1870s and is built around the matriarch—Barbara Stanwyck—and her children.

"Ah," exclaimed your reporter, "like 'Empire' three years ago."

"No," he said, "not at all. That was set in modern times. Anyway, there are three boys and a daughter. I'm Nick who runs the ranch, which is a 440-mile spread. And I've a brother Jarrod, who is a lawyer in San Francisco. And then there's Heath, the younger one."

"Sort of like 'Bonanza,'" commented your reporter.

"Just the opposite of 'Bonanza,'" replied Peter. "The sons don't get along well at all. And besides, Heath is the illegitimate son of our father who ran off and got mixed up with a woman in an Indian village. . . ."

"Oh-ho," shouted your reporter. "Like 'Peyton Place!'"

"Can't you people stop comparing everything new to an old show?" asked Breck. "Anyway, it's going to be a good, fast-moving show."

Recommended viewing: Saturday—"Victory in Europe: 20 Years After," CBS, 9-10 p.m. EDT, commemorating VE-Day with an Early Bird discussion between Dwight D. Eisenhower in New York and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery in London and a view of historic warsites as they appear today.

Heaviest Kill Of Fall Wheat Seen in Area

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—The heaviest kill of fall wheat in the memory of many farmers is causing concern in this district.

In some fields almost the entire planting was destroyed during the winter and kills of from 75 to 90 per cent are reported to be common.

Many farmers are simply passing a cultivator over what is left of the wheat and reseeding with oats, barley and other spring crops.

Spring plantings have been delayed from two to three weeks because of cold weather.

Bruce McCorquodale, department of agriculture representative, yesterday Thursday at least 50 per cent of the fall wheat has been killed in the Peterborough area.
